ALBANY LEGISLATURE.

Election of Chauncey M. Depew as Senator the Only Certainty.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The reelection of Chauncey M. Depew of New York as United States senator appears to be the only certainty of the coming week in the legislature, which opens here today the third week of its one hundred and twenty-eighth session.

There are few indications yet of the legislative programme of the majority, and with the exception of the repeal of the state tax on the surplus and undivided profits of savings banks bills are yet to be introduced to carry out the plans and recommendations of Governor Higgins and the Republican organization.

The 1,000 ton barge canal proposition may have an airing pro and contra in the expected debate over the resolution of Senator Brackett of Saratoga, calling upon the attorney general for an opinion as to whether the canals are not "navigable waters" under federal jurisdiction and whether the barge canal act of 1903 does not necessitate obstruction of such waters in a manner prohibited by federal statute. Senator Brackett protests that his resolution is neither friendly nor inimical to the canal enlargement scheme, but is merely in the line of reasonable precaution at the outset of a stupendous state enterprise.

Lieutenant Governor Bruce, as president of the senate, will hand down in that body tonight, it is understood, as Speaker Nixon did in the assembly on Thursday, the New York grand jury's presentment and evidence on the subject of the $23,000 fund which President Lindinger and his associates in the "legislative committee" of the State Liquor Dealers' association say they raised and spent during the last session in the effort to create "a good feeling" toward their interests.

A FAMILY SUFFOCATED.

W. T. Mason, Wife, Two Children and Maid Found Dead In Their Beds.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Five persons were suffocated in a fire that broke out early Sunday morning in the basement of 135 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street, occupied by William T. Mason.

The dead: William T. Mason, Clara T. Mason, his wife; Marion Mason, aged four months; Helen Mason, aged fourteen months, and Annie Wells, a servant.

The fire was burning fiercely when discovered, but the firemen soon had it under control. The bodies of the five persons who were suffocated were found in bed. Mr. Mason was a prominent lawyer, with offices at 63 Wall street. The financial loss was $3,000.

Three Democrats With President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. — Three Democratic senators, Messrs. McCreary of Kentucky, Foster of Louisiana and Daniel of Virginia, were in conference with the president at the White House for some time last night. The purpose of their visit was not disclosed. The suggestion was made that perhaps it related to the pending arbitration treaties in the senate, some opposition to which has been manifested in the south because of a fear of a revival of claims against southern states.

Two Shot Dead In Barber Shop.

VEEDERSBURG, Ind., Jan. 16.—John Brant, owner of the Veedersburg News, and Charles Egburg, a barber, were found dead yesterday afternoon in a barber shop, where they had gone to balance the books of the Odd Fellows' lodge, in which they held official positions. Both men were found lying in barbers' chairs, and both were shot in the head. A revolver was found near Egburg's body. The affair is a mystery, and the coroner is investigating.

Escaped Convict Killed by Engine.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 16.—Edwin Estes of North Adams, about forty-four years of age, was struck by an engine on the Boston and Albany railroad near Agawam Junction while walking along the tracks. He stepped aside to let one train pass and was hit by an engine coming behind him. He died as a result of his injuries in the Springfield hospital last night. Estes escaped from jail in Pittsfield seven years ago and had not been heard from by the authorities.

Specialist Dead In Hotel Room.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—George H. Harris, aged forty-five years, of Beverly, Mass., for several years a specialist in the bureau of entomology of the agricultural department, was found dead in his room in a hotel here yesterday. It is believed that he was stunned by falling on the floor in an attempt to light the gas and the gas, which filled the room when the body was discovered, caused his death.

Knox Will Succeed Quay.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—United States Senators Penrose and Knox arrived here last evening and will remain until after the election of a United States senator by the legislature tomorrow. Senator Knox will receive the full Republican vote of both branches of the legislature to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Quay.

Indus Floated Off Fire Island Sands.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The steamer Indus, aground on Fire island bar and reported a wreck, was floated at 12:10 o'clock on Sunday. Tugs began pulling at the steamer with the rising of the tide, and their efforts to release the vessel were finally successful.

Wayeross Double Saloon License.

GENERAL SHOT AT.

Trepoff Escapes Student Assassin at Moscow.

THIRD ATTEMPT TO KILL EX-CHIEF

New Head of Russian Red Cross Incurred Enmity by Severity In Crushing Street Riots—Had Been Sentenced to Death.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16.—At the Nicholas station last night while General Trepoff was bidding farewell to Grand Duke Sergius on his departure for St. Petersburg a young man wearing a student's cap fired three shots from a revolver at the general. All the shots missed General Trepoff. Grand Duke Sergius proceeded on his journey.

General Trepoff, who was recently relieved of the office of chief of police of Moscow and ordered to the front to take up his duties as head of the Red Cross society in Manchuria, incurred the special enmity of the students of Moscow by the severity with which he put down their demonstrations last month. Within one week there have been three attempts upon his life. The first of these was by a woman named Allart, a governess, who placed the muzzle of a pistol against General Trepoff's breast and pulled the trigger. The weapon, however, failed to discharge.

Four days later a man armed with a dagger tried to force his way to the presence of General Trepoff with the avowed purpose of killing him. The would be assassin was overpowered and arrested. Within two days after this incident while General Trepoff was riding in his carriage a young man supposed to be a rusticated student sprang upon the step of the vehicle and tried to stab him, but only succeeded in slightly wounding a policeman. After the antigovernment demonstrations in Moscow last month it was said that the Socialistic Revolutionary party had passed sentence of death upon both General Trepoff, chief of police, and Grand Duke Sergius, governor general of Moscow.

Robber Killed Led Double Life.

MONACA, Pa., Jan. 16.—The robber who was killed while attempting to force an entrance into the home of the Lance brothers, near here, has been identified as Arthur S. Harris, aged nineteen years, of Midway, Pa. Previous to this time Harris had been regarded as an industrious, moral young man without a single vicious habit. He belonged to a highly respectable family and for the past year has been a pupil in the commercial department of one of Pittsburg's academies. The relatives and friends of Harris think an innocent man has been killed, but the county police officials consider the false mustache that Harris wore and the revolver found in his pocket incriminating evidence.

President Loubet's Mother Dead.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Mme. Loubet, mother of the president, died at Marsanne at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from congestion of the lungs, aged ninety-two. The president's son Paul and other members of the family were at her bedside when she expired. President Loubet had expected to leave last night for Marsanne, but the announcement of the death of his mother came before he was able to depart. Mme. Loubet contributed much to the president's prestige, as she was a type of the simple country class.

His presence gives confidence to the people that a satisfactory solution of affairs will be reached in the near future.

J., Jan. 16.—John Samsdell, aged fourteen years, lies at McKinley hospital with a pistol wound in his stomach, and his eighteen-year-old brother William has been locked up pending an investigation into the shooting. It was reported that the boys had quarreled, but the elder boy says they were shooting at a target and skylarking and that the shooting was an accident. The injured boy is expected to get well.

PATRIOTIC FANATIC

"Gessler Rosseau" Discovered to Be a Dangerous Crank.

MADE AND USED INFERNAL MACHINES

Prisoner Has Confessed Attempt on Frederick the Great Statue at Washington and on Steamship Umbria at New York.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—"Gessler Rosseau," who was arrested in this city on Thursday with an unloaded infernal machine in his possession, has admitted to the police that he is the man who attempted to destroy the statue of Frederick the Great in Washington last Tuesday, and also that it was he who sent the trunk containing an infernal machine to the British steamship Umbria at New York in May, 1903.

The prisoner, whose right name is not known, made these admissions in the office of Captain Donaghy of the Philadelphia detective bureau after he had been identified by persons brought here from New York and Washington for that purpose. He gives no reasons for the attempted outrages, except that "there are too many foreign affairs in this country." After having Rosseau under fire all afternoon the police classed him as an "American patriotic fanatic."

The prisoner gave no information voluntarily to the police, he admitting only those things which the police had fastened on him. Both the Washington and New York authorities want the man, and it is probable that he will be turned over to the police of the latter city.

The apprehension of Rosseau was due to the disappearance of Owen Kelly, a wealthy Irish-American, who is prominent in Irish-American societies in this country. Kelly disappeared on Oct. 25, and from time to time the newspapers, particularly of the east, have published articles on the mysterious disappearance. These, the police believe, undoubtedly attracted Rosseau's attention.

On Thursday he called on Patrick Kelly, the brother of the missing man, and offered to take him to his brother in New York for $500. He said he and Owen Kelly belonged to a secret society that was organized for the purpose of blowing up British ships in American ports. The valise he carried, he said, contained explosives. Patrick Kelly notified the police and Rosseau was taken into custody.

The valise contained an infernal machine of the clock arrangement variety, but no explosives. About the machine was wrapped a Washington newspaper. This gave the police the clew that he might know something of the explosion at the statue of Frederick the Great.

Captain Robert Boardman of the Washington detective force and Alfred Carter, colored, and George E. Hazel, cabman, of Washington, who saw the man who attempted to blow up the statue, have arrived here and identified the prisoner at once. When Rosseau was brought in Hazel said:

"I guess you know me?" to which the prisoner replied:

"How do you do?"

In reply to a question he admitted the attempted outrage on the statue. He said he had manufactured the infernal machine himself and that it consisted of a candle, fuse and "dynamite engine." Where he made it he would not say. It was his intention, he said, to blow up the statue at night, because he did not want to hurt anybody. The failure to destroy the statue, he said, must have been due to the melting tallow spoiling the fuse or interfering with the dynamite. Rosseau then gave the police the interesting information that he had intended making a second attempt to blow up the statue, this time with a time clock machine. As it was difficult to get past the sentries after nightfall he intended going to the arsenal at about dusk, arrange the infernal machine so that it would explode at about midnight and then hang it on the statue.

Where he had been between May, 1903, and last week he will not say, always replying, "That is for you to find out."

He said that he made part of the Umbria infernal machine in Chicago and then took it to New York in a trunk. The trunk, he said, was not strong enough, so he purchased one better suited for the machine. In New York he obtained a room at Mrs. Curry's place and there finished the work of making the machine. He admitted writing the note to Police Commissioner Green, which read:

"The Mafia greets you and wishes you well. The society has declared war against England and has ordered the destruction of every steamer flying the British flag that sails out of New York. The society has undertaken to clear New York harbor of British ships, and it will succeed."

The prisoner was closely questioned regarding the motive for blowing up the Umbria, but to all questions he made a noncommittal reply.

He said he was born in America and that he was a farmer. Where in America he was born and where his present home is he would not say. He admitted his name was not "Gessler Rosseau." He said he had read much and that he was a student of social economy. He took the name of Gessler Rosseau because two of his ideals had those names—Albrecht Gessler, the Swiss dictator, who was killed by William Tell in 1307, and Jean Jacques Rosseau, the French philosopher and writer.

He would not say anything of the Owen Kelly affair, and the police believe he knows nothing about it. He said:

"I did not expect to get any money from Kelly's brother, because I did not think he had any."

He was also silent regarding the mysterious societies he spoke of for dynamiting ships and would not incriminate any one.

The police, after they concluded their "sweating" process, expressed the belief that he is what they term an "American patriotic fanatic;" that he is sane on every subject except those of an international character. They believe he wants to figure in all matters where the American government is criticised.

STEEL CEILING FELL.

Five Firemen Injured When Lynn Baptist Church Was Destroyed.

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 16.—During the progress of a fire that destroyed the edifice of the Second Baptist society here the steel ceiling of the vestry fell, pinioning under it and seriously injuring five firemen. Three of the men were promptly rescued, but Hosemen Downer and McDonald were not extricated until a hoisting apparatus had been used to raise the heavy ceiling. In the meantime both suffered much.

Those injured, all of whom, it is believed, will recover, are: Paul A. Downer, hoseman, compound fracture of one leg, bruised head and body; J. Fred Tarbox, engine driver, one leg and one arm fractured; Charles P. Duntley, hoseman, thigh and shoulder fractured; Thomas McDonald, hoseman, severe bruises on head and chest, and Frank L. Large, hoseman, shoulders bruised.

The accident occurred after the fire had practically burned itself out and while the firemen were playing on the ruins.

The monetary loss is $100,000. The fire, which is supposed to have originated from an overheated furnace, broke out about an hour before the time for the morning service.

The church, which was of brick and stone, was erected in 1874. The pastor is Rev. Frank W. Padleford.

FRENCH CABINET TO RESIGN.

Premier Combes Threatened In the Chamber With a Saucepan.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The ministry of M. Combs, after emerging successfully from its bitter midnight struggle in the chamber of deputies, has decided to abandon the field while some portion of its prestige still remains and has signified its intention of resigning. Official announcement of the resignations has not yet been made, but M. Combes has definitely stated the intention of himself and his colleagues, and the termination of the ministry after a tempestuous career of three years only awaits the formal submission of the letters of retirement.

Premier Combes in the chamber was assailed not only by the almost continuous hoots and yells of the Opposition, but by Baudry d'Asson, a Royalist deputy, who rushed at the premier brandishing a huge saucepan.

He had been an active preacher for fifty years and had charge of the Atlanta branch of the American Baptist Publication society. He was seventy-two years old and a native of Suffolk county, Va.

Banana Company Asks Federal Aid.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 16.—The American Banana company has asked the state department at Washington to intervene in its behalf on account of alleged interference by the Costa Rican government with the company's planting, railroad building and other operations in the territory now belonging to Panama, but at one time under the jurisdiction of Costa Rica. Damages in the sum of $2,210,000 have been asked for by the company.

Panama Wants Separate Legislation.

PANAMA, Jan. 16.—Representatives of all political parties here have asked American Minister Barrett to withdraw the suggestion he made to the Washington government that the functions of governor of the canal zone and minister to Panama be combined in the person of the governor of the canal zone. It is argued by the memorialists that the dignity of Panama as an independent nation requires a separate legation.

Two Found Dead at New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16.—Two men were found dead in bed in the boarding house kept by Mrs. James B. Kilbride here. The men, one of whom was Alexander Robowski, went there late last night. Gas was flowing from an open jet when the bodies were found.

SAD ASPECTS OF THE STRIKE.

Textile Workers at Fall River Growing Desperate.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 16.—The textile strike is now in its twenty-sixth week and has added its quota to the tragedies associated with the cotton mill troubles here.

John Neville, a weaver, who, with his crippled wife, is said to have suffered much, laid down the paper after reading of the failure of the strike conference at Boston and, crossing the room to a looking glass, killed himself.

Three striking loom fixers, James Logan, Michael Waddington and Peter Hudson, who since the mills closed have lodged together in one small room, were found unconscious from illuminating gas and removed to a hospital. They will recover. Gas was escaping from a jet in their room when the door was forced by other lodgers. The men were unable to explain the accident last night.

Douglas Anxious to End Strike.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—After Governor Douglas had formally opened the textile strike conference, called by himself here, he submitted his proposition, which was that the strike be declared off at once and the operatives go back to work immediately, leaving the issues to be disposed of in some manner to be decided upon by the conference. Nothing has been made public yet as to the nature of the propositions made by manufacturers or strikers.

RECIPROCITY WITH GERMANY.

American Chamber of Commerce at Berlin Favors Immediate Action.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—The American chamber of commerce of Berlin considers that the moment is favorable for a movement looking toward a reciprocity treaty between the United States and Germany and especially so because the new system of reciprocity treaties Germany has concluded most probably will affect American trade adversely.

The chamber of commerce has sent a petition to President Roosevelt, which in part follows:

"The American chamber of commerce of Berlin, organized with the purpose of furthering good relations between the United States and Germany, especially in the direction of commercial affairs, and including among its members leading concerns of both nationalities trading between the two countries, would pray that you urge upon congress and the other authorities the pressing need of prompt action for a reciprocity treaty with Germany and also of new laws and regulatons for the appraisal of merchandise to replace the present very faulty and often an unjust system which has been and still is constantly causing much bitterness of feeling among practically all the importers of commodities into ports of the United States."

The American chamber of commerce offers its services in the collection of information.

Increasing Trade With Abyssinia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—How rapidly the good results of the American commercial expedition to Abyssinia which brought about the commercial treaty between the United States and that country are beginning to be felt is seen from a report to the state department from Mr. Skinner, the American consul general at Marseilles, in which he says that many American orders are now being shipped direct to Abyssinia and that trade between the two countries is increasing steadily.

Robert Swain Gifford, Painter, Dead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Robert Swain Gifford, the landscape painter, died yesterday afternoon of angina pectoris at his home here. He was first attacked a week ago, and several attacks followed. He rallied, however, and appeared to be improving until he succumbed to the final seizure. Mr. Gifford was born on Naushon island, Massachusetts, in 1840 and was one of the most distinguished of American painters of landscapes and coast scenery.

Armours Charge False Testimony.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A complete denial of the charges made by witnesses before the interstate commerce commission investigation of the business methods of the Armour refrigerator car lines was made by a representative of Armour & Co. The testimony offered during the investigations is declared by the Armour interests to have been not only prejudiced and biased, but in many respects false.

Will Attack Standard Oil Methods.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Jan. 16.—It is said here that the department of commerce is preparing to investigate the workings of the Standard Oil company. The department has made inquiries regarding the price paid for oil, shipping rates and other information relative to the oil trade. This section has been the scene of fierce rivalry between the Standard and independent refineries. It is alleged that there have been discriminations.

MISCHTSCHENKO RAID

Russian Leader, With 20,000 Cossacks, In Liao Plains.

HAVE VIOLATED CHINESE TERRITORY

Czar's Cavalry Column Surprise and Kill a Hundred Chunchuses—Stoessel Arrives at Nagasaki—Japanese Defeat Near Tasudyapu.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A Newchwang report says that General Mischtschenko, with 20,000 Cossacks, has deliberately invaded the territory of China, a neutral country, and broken the limit of the war zone in his recent cavalry raid against the Japanese forces on the plains of the Liao river district.

The force crossed the Hun river and swept southward over the Liao plain in three columns, commanded by Generals Samsonoff, Abramoff and Tyeleschoff.

The front extended five miles, one of the most magnificent sights of the war.

The column rested the first night at Sifanatai, half way between the Liao and Hun rivers, when scouts came upon a Japanese transport, which they captured, the Japanese fleeing. When the main body came up, it found a house in the village burning and sending up enormous columns of black smoke.

When darkness came, signal fires were seen, one after another, reaching an extreme distance eastward.

At 8 o'clock in the morning they came into contact with chunchuses. Captain Chaplin, formerly of the artillery at Warsaw, at that moment in control of the machine guns of the Degistan regiment, was shot through the heart by the first fire. The Degistan regiment, commanded by Colonel Bunting, charged with extraordinary swiftness and fierceness.

The chunchuses, well drilled and armed with Mausers, resisted bravely, but 100 of them were cut to pieces. They numbered 500. A Japapese flag was captured from them. Some Japanese were killed among the chunchuses.

Farther south the right and central columns attacked the walled village of Shontoze, at the bar of the confluence of the Taitse river with the Liao. The village was held by 300 Japanese infantry, who resisted stubbornly, but were driven out.

A Tokyo report says that the Russian note to the powers calling attention to China's nonenforcement of neutrality is regarded there as absurd. It is felt that China's weakness and constant failure to enforce neutrality must release Japan from obligations to observe restrictions which Russia openly ignores.

A Nagasaki dispatch says that the Japanese transport Kamakuru, from Port Dalny, with General Stoessel, his wife and many other prisoners on board, has arrived there.

A report from Tasudyapu says that for a whole day the Japanese bombarded the Russian positions to the right and left of the railroad with unaccustomed vigor.

A Japanese regiment then advanced in the face of a furious fire from batteries and rifles, drove back the Russian outposts, who drew on the Japanese to a masked battery, and later allowed them to come on suddenly, when the Russians opened a murderous fire, the infantry at the same time falling on the Japanese flanks. The Japanese regiment was almost completely annihilated, and the survivors fled in wild disorder, leaving heaps of dead and wounded on the field.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that Emperor Nicholas has addressed a rescript to the army and navy praising and thanking the garrison of Port Arthur for its prolonged defense.

Huanchan reports say that Captains Kosinoff and Troitgki, with seventy-five Cossacks, lately drove the Japanese out of the villages of Mitzi and Tkhangay and captured a large amount of forage at both places.

The Japanese are pushing sapping operations toward the Russian lines at several points.

The war office at St. Petersburg does not admit the appearance of General Mischtschenko's cavalry southwest of Liaoyang is more than a raiding expedition designed to strike the railroad at several points and interrupt the transportation of General Nogi's guns from Port Arthur to Manchuria, but from certain indications it seems possible that it is preliminary to an operation of magnitude. General Mischtschenko, with his 20,000 horsemen, moving rapidly may be able to seriously damage communications in the rear of Liaoyang. Important developments, it is said, are about to break the long calm since the battle of Shakhe.

The tone of the rescript addressed by Emperor Nicholas to the army and navy is regarded here as putting an end to all present hopes of the possibility of mediation or peace and as indicating the likelihood that General Kuropatkin soon will resume the offensive.

A dispatch from Yinkow says that General Mischtschenko's raiding force was cut off on its way back by 8,000 Japanese dispatched from Sanlihoo by General Oku.

It is reported that the raid was only a divergence from a mass of cavalry now moving down the banks of the Liao river and that the exceptional mildness of the season affords a chance for the repetition of such operations.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 16, 1905.

In the death of Stephen A. Ginna Plainfield sustains a real loss. He was a generous, open-hearted man, but few knew of the extent of his benefactions for he went about doing good deeds so quietly that it was only by chance that intimate friends learned now and then of his kind acts to those in sickness and distress. His work among the colored people brought good results in many instances and Bethel chapel will stand as a monument to his memory. Mr. Ginna was of the type of man who wished those in humbler stations to enjoy life with him. Every year he opened his greenhouses in order that the public might see his beautiful chrysanthemums, carnations and orchids, perhaps the finest collections in the State. Mr. Ginna will be missed not only by his relatives and immediate friends but by the general public.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The next praise service at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Sunday night, Jan. 29.

The Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church will meet at the church on Thursday night, Jan. 26, to elect officers for the ensuing year.

Evangelist Smith will speak on "Man's Three Fold Duty" at the Christian Church this evening. Song service beginning promptly at 7:45.

Rev. J. DeHarte Bruen, Moderator of the Synod of New Jersey, will give an illustrated lecture at Warren chapel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on "Korea and the Late War."

The illustrated lecture to be given tonight at the First M. E. church by Rev. F. H. Jacobs, the evangelist, will be for the benefit of the Children's Home. Mayor J. F. Buckle will preside and have something to say regarding the Home.

An interesting feature of the exercises at Hope chapel Sunday-school yesterday was the graduation of twenty-five pupils from the primary to the junior department. Each one was presented with diplomas and several were awarded with special gifts for faithful attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble C. King, of East Ninth street, who have been prominent workers at Hope chapel for the past five years, are soon to make their permanent home in Chicago. Mr. King will leave the first of the coming month and Mrs. King will follow within a few weeks.

Pursuant to a previous announcement the men of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church met yesterday after the morning service and held a religious service. The church has had a men's association for some time, but it has not been active. The pastor, Rev. George Mooney, now proposes to reorganize the association and present a plan of work to be carried out during the coming year.

IN THE SHOPS.

George A. Bicknell, who has been employed for some years as a press erector for Walter Scott, has now entered the employ of the Campbell Printing Press Co., at Taunton, Mass., in the same capacity.

W. W. Cary at Y. M. C. A.

W. W. Cary, a well known engineer, gave a practical talk to a large audience of men at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon, his address being at once an interesting and an instructive one. He related some of his personal experiences, touching upon the religious influences, which add to a man's strength in whatever stage of life he may be. There was special instrumental music, and Mrs. John Manley was the soloist. She rendered two pleasing sacred selections.

REBUILDING FRENCH'S MILL.

Building Which Was Partially Destroyed by Fire is Being Repaired.

The work of rebuilding the roof on the old French mill on Somerset street, which was recently partially destroyed by fire, has commenced and nearly the entire roof has been relaid. The work is being done under and direction of Robert McNab. Last week most of the rubbish and ruins in the rear of the building, which was destroyed beyond hope of reuse, was removed, and the roof is being put on the front part of the mill, which was only damaged inside.

All of the old beams were so far charred as to make it impossible to use them again, and then old tin roofing, which to a great extent kept the flames from bursting through that part of the roof, was entirely torn away.

Rural Mail Service Now.

Nelson Peterson, the letter-carrier, started the new rural free delivery route over the mountains this morning. He left the postoffice at 7:30 with a fairly heavy mail. He also carried the mail pouch for the postoffice at Gallia. Mr. Peterson makes but one trip each day, returning he arrives at the postoffice at 12 o'clock noon.

The State Board of Agriculture adjourned Friday after an interesting session. Among the matters discussed at the closing session were the parcels' post, automobile speed, oleomargerine and federation of agriculture societies. In each subject legislative action was asked. The board enthusiastically endorsed the parcels post, the benefits which the farmer would derive from its establishment and the practicability of such a system and a resolution was presented by the resolutions committee and was adopted calling upon New Jersey's senators and representatives in Congress to work for the establishment of a parcels post in this State. The parcels post matter was brought up in a paper on the subject by H. W. Collingwood. The president and secretary of the board were appointed as a committee to go to Washington to urge the parcels post and oleomargerine interests in the State. Considerable interest was manifested in a resolution by Charles E. Rue, endorsing that part of Governor Murphy's message which dealt with the automobile speed question, and calling upon the Legislature to amend the present law by making a provision prohibiting the licensing of automobiles geared for a higher speed than twenty miles per hour. The resolution also called for a license fee of $5 per year for each automobile, the fees to be devoted to road improvements.

GOSSIP OF CHICAGO

HAPPENINGS AND CONDITIONS IN THE WINDY CITY.

A LACK OF SCHOOL ROOM

The Numbers of Children Grow Faster Than the Educational Accommodations—New Police Stations and Big Hotels.

Chicago.—This city is suffering with a dearth of school-teachers. Schoolrooms are overcrowded and children are being turned away every day because of a lack of teachers, especially for the primary grades. This is by no means a new condition, but one which confronts the school board of Chicago each year. At the beginning of the school term in 1903 there were 10,000 children unprovided with school facilities, both in the way of teachers and schoolrooms. When the school term of this year began those 10,000 children had been provided for, but another 1,000 reported at the schoolroom doors for which there was no provision, and the city was still a year behind time in the demand created by the children.

The Schools Are Overcrowded.

Two years ago the school board made a ruling that no married women would be employed as teachers. The labor organizations claimed that the employment of married women as teachers was an injustice to those seeking positions who had no other means of support, while the married teachers had their husbands to support them. It has never been possible to enforce the rule for the reason that there have never been unmarried teachers enough to go around, and to-day the school board is asking no questions along that line at all.

There are enrolled in the public schools of Chicago at the present time a little more than 186,000 pupils. Should the number of pupils continue to grow for the next 20 years as it has in the past at the end of that time there will be nearly one-half million boys and girls in the schools, and about 10,000 teachers. It is doubtful if the latter can be secured without an increase in the salary schedule commensurate with the increase in efficiency demanded of the teachers.

Historic Police Station.

Though the increase in school attendance in Chicago is greater in proportion to the population than the increase in crime, yet the latter has assumed alarming proportions, and while the school board must provide new schoolhouses, the police department must provide larger accommodations for the criminal and criminal catchers.

Familiar to Criminals and Friendless.

In keeping with this demand the old "armory" police station, at Harrison street and Pacific avenue, is to be razed, and in its place will be built a police station of the most modern and approved design, and of much larger proportions.

With the exception of the old "Tombs" station in New York there is probably no other police station in this country that has sheltered so many notorious criminals as the old "armory." It was built just after the great fire of 1871, and was for years in the very center of the levee district, though increasing demands for business locations have pushed the levee district farther south until the old police station is now just on its edge. Right beside it now is the new central station of the Lake Shore and Rock Island railroads; but two blocks north of it is the board of trade, the Illinois trust and savings bank and all the vast financial interests of La Salle street; two blocks east are the mammoth office buildings of Dearborn street. It is one of the remarkable comparisons of the city that right at the doors of these great business interests there should stand this ancient memorial to Chicago's crime and poverty. And to it there flocks each day an army of friendless tramps seeking municipal bounty, and criminals of all classes to pay the stern penalties of the law.

That New Charter.

Miss Chicago, that overgrown girl, is being measured for the new dress the voters of the state authorized the coming legislature to give her. Just what that new dress will be is as yet a thing of surmise, but the brightest minds of the city and state are engaged in its designing, and when completed it should be an acceptable production.

Measuring for a New Dress

There are three specific reforms which the city's new charter is to grant. One is the privilege of bonding the city for permanent improvements up to a maximum of five per cent. of the assessed valuation of the property taxed within the city. When this maximum has been reached under the present tax returns it will give the city a bonded indebtedness of about $50,000,000. Under the present system, the city is handicapped by having to expend out of its annual income about $5,000,000 for permanent improvements, thus taking that amount away from the police and fire and other departments of the city government where it should be used.

Another reform is the regulation of the justice and police courts of the city. No other place in America has been so cursed by petty justice shops as has Chicago. The justices of the peace have been but the paid servants of the loan sharks, the gamblers and the chattel mortgage men. They have been a curse alike to the poor and the rich; to employe and employer, and their abolishment will be a godsend to every class worthy of the protection of the courts.

The third reform is in the reorganization of the city government, and the elimination of many of the wheels within wheels. The number of taxing bodies will be reduced, and the methods of tax assessing and tax collecting greatly simplified.

Though the voters have but given the legislature power to frame a charter, and the whole subject must again go before the voters before it can be completed, those who have the growth and development of the city at heart believe the beginning of the end of the long-drawn-out battle for municipal independence and betterment has arrived.

A Rival for Gotham.

New York has its St. Regis, where half a fried spring chicken is served for the small price of three dollars, but rumor has it that Chicago is soon to have a hotel that will equal if not eclipse that famed hostelry.

Appreciated by Chicago Society.

The proposed new hotel is to occupy a block of frontage on Michigan avenue just south of the Auditorium. It is to be 16 stories high, and to cost in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. The money, it is said, is being furnished by eastern capitalists, among whom is mentioned George Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria, of New York, whose property in that city is now outshone by the new St. Regis.

Skeptics say there is no demand for such a hotel in Chicago; that it is bound to be a financial failure; but those seemingly authorized to speak for the projectors are decidedly optimistic in their views of the situation, and believe it will be a success from the day its doors are open to the public.

The truth of the matter is that aside from the year or two following the close of the Columbian exposition, when the city was dead, and the world's fair hotels were numerous, the hotel accommodations of the city have never kept pace with the demand. For the past five years the higher-priced hotels have been overflowing. To be sure one or two of the older well-known houses have been closed, but that was because they had passed their days of usefulness, in the opinion of the moneyed classes.

Within the same five years the better hotels have found a new source of revenue in their a la carte dining-rooms. The class that will spend from five dollars up for a dinner, when they can have it served by trained English waiters, and in elegantly furnished dining-rooms, is rapidly increasing. Then, too, the east is coming west. Even Reggie Vanderbilt found Chicago society bearable during the week of the horse show, and left a goodly sum in the pockets of the caterers. The third generation of Chicagoans are ready to spend the money made by the first generation, and they are seeking places to spend it. The fashionable hotel, and the higher-priced the better, will be acceptable to them.

The Windmill City.

Chicago is not only the "Windy City," but it provides wind machines for the remainder of the world, and these machines are pumping water on the ranches of Texas, for the fruit farms of California, for the homesteads of Maine, for the farms of Iowa; they are irrigating the waste places of Nebraska, of Montana, of Arizona, the wheat fields of Argentina and the rice fields of the orient.

Chicago Produces Many of These.

Nearly 100,000 windmills are manufactured each year in Chicago factories, and shipped from here to every corner of the globe. Even darkest Africa is not exempt and Chicago-made windmills are now being turned by the tropical breezes of the Congo Free State and around the headwaters of the Nile. South America is a good customer; so also are Japan, India and Australia. Even Holland, the home of the windmill, has been invaded, as has also every country of Europe.

But the great majority of the Chicago-made windmills are sold in the United States. They have become a necessity to the American farmer, and one he would not now believe it possible to get along without. It is in keeping with the modernizing of American farms and ranches. It is to-day as much of a farm necessity as the harvesting and threshing machine.

FREAKS OF FASHION.

A New Skirt For Home Gowns—Dainty Demitoilet Frock.

A number of the new skirts are no longer gathered over the hips, but fit closely around them and are very full at the bottom. A certain type of corselet skirt perfectly fitting treated in this way and gored to a great width at the bottom is a special favorite for house wear.

A dainty little demitoilet gown is fashioned of the new shade of mousseline known as aurore. The name speaks for itself as regards the coloring. The gown is made all in one, belted in at the waist with a ceinture of soft cream satin. It opens in a little point at the neck and is adorned with a curious mixture of passementerie and satin, which trimming partially covers the bodice and continues around the hips and down one side of the skirt. A chou of cream satin is introduced in the immediate center of the waist. The passementerie is repeated on the full puffed sleeves, while there is an entre-deux of lace heading the two ruffles on the skirt.

A beautiful gown of parsifal blue soft satin has a broad and almost invisible stripe which only reveals itself in certain lights. The skirt and bodice are bordered with mink and embroidered in a rose design in silver. There are clusters of pale pink and silver roses on the corsage.

The stunning street costume pictured is carried out in kaiser blue broadcloth. The coat is of the redingote order, trimmed about the revers with bands of beaver fur and in deeper bands on the sleeves and at the hem of the skirt. Lace forms the vest and puffed lower sleeves.

DAINTY THINGS IN VOGUE.

Picturesque Hoods Worn by Our Grandmothers Revived.

The fashionable woman is wearing all kinds of handsome bags depending from her waist belt. Not only in the street are these accessories in evidence, but they are worn in the house, matching the indoor frock in color and often in material.

One of the newest bag fads is to cut off a piece of each shirt waist and send it to the bagmaker to fashion into a bag to hang from the belt.

My lady may pay as much as a thousand dollars for her elaborate bag, which will be exquisitely mounted in gold and studded with real gems.

Many of these expensive bags are made of velvet with silver heads set along the edge, the chatelaine and chain being also set with silver heads.

The picturesque hoods of our grandmothers' day are being revived for evening wear. They are made of satin or velvet with a loose puffy crown edged with marabou and the softening influence of tinted lace about the face.

Tweeds, homespuns, double cashmeres and serges are the favorite materials for children's dresses. Onion shades, browns, greens and bright blues are the colors usually selected.

The picture shows a stunning little hood of pale blue panne. Framing the face is a border of white fur and under this a frill of cream colored lace. At one side is an exquisite La France rose. The strings are of lace and fasten with another lovely pink rose.

DOLL'S EVOLUTION

THE ONES OF YESTERDAY AND THOSE OF TO-DAY.

Countries Where They Are Manufactured, and Something of the Cost of Our Little Girls' Popular Playthings.

The world is full of dolls at the present moment, an infinite variety offered the thousands now playing the role of Santa Claus. An infinitely wider choice than there was but a few decades ago. And, for some reason or other, dolls are especially cheap this year.

The date 1860 marks the birth of the modern doll; previous to that time wood and kid were the chief materials used in the construction of this most popular of toys. To-day, bisque, china and celluloid dolls are to the fore, although quantities of wooden dolls are still manufactured in the Hartz mountains in Germany. And it seems a pity that not more of them are in demand now, for they are just the thing to put in the hands of careless youngsters. According to an article in the New England Magazine, there was exhibited a few years ago in the South meeting house of Boston (which is now a museum for historical relics) a wooden doll chat had withstood the ravages of time for over a hundred years, and which, in that long period, had been a much used toy. The museum card accompanying the doll bore this testimony: "Polly Sumner, purchased by Mrs. Williams, a relative of Gen. Sumner, in 1773. The old English oak of which she is made enabled her to withstand the caresses and abuses of five generations."

The countries that buy the most dolls are England and the United States. The countries that make the dolls are Germany, Switzerland, and France, and the United States, at New York, is now making strides in this industry. The New York stores display the highest-priced dolls to be found anywhere in the world, and the newly-rich that want to throw their money away can here pay from $200 to $300 for a single doll. But this is the rare case, and, a comfort to the average shopper, the large shops offer very dainty dolls at very reasonable prices. The average person is not called upon to buy an expensive ladykin, nor an expensive wardrobe for the ladykin.

In the manufacture of a doll, no matter how humble, many different workmen are engaged and the process is by no means a simple one. For this plaything that may be a ruin ere the end of Christmas day, men have labored in different lands. Myriads of dolls sent over to the United States have received their heads in France, their bodies have been made in Germany or Switzerland, their eyes manufactured in Germany. The manufacture of doll-eyes is a secret jealously guarded; they are fashioned very much as artificial eyes for human beings, and are very expensive. They are difficult to make, but very easily gouged out!

Doll clothes are a very important article in the world of small feminity, and the big stores have show-cases and shelves given over to the outfitting of the little girl's little girl. The price asked for these small clothes is seldom a low one, and doll stockings, doll shoes, petticoats, frocks, coats, jewelry, cost a pretty penny. There are doll corsets to give the little madame the fashionable figure of the moment, doll-hammocks for her to swing in, garden-hairs and couches, elaborate houses, furs, parasols—everything, it would seem. The New York Sun tells the story of a westerner that purchased a doll for $350, and then bought for her earrings, rings, a watch and bracelet costing $200 more.

It goes without saying that the recipient of this wonder got no more pleasure out of her showy toy than the child whose new doll was a small rag or rubber one.

A noted educator once made a study of dolls, and, in his investigation in regard to preferences, found that the children were by no mean unanimous in favor of the costly dolls. "Of 845 children with 989 preferences, between the ages of three and twelve, 191 preferred wax dolls, 163 paper dolls, 153 china dolls, 144 rag, 115 bisque dolls, 83 china and cloth, 69 rubber, 12 china and kid, 11 pasteboard, 7 plaster-of-paris, 6 wood, 3 knit, with a few each of papier mache, clay, glass, cotton, tin, celluloid, French, Japanese, Brownies, Chinese, sailor, negro, Esquimaux, etc."

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth. 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

A TURKEY BURNS UP ITS OWNER'S BARN.

Flies at a Lantern, Smashes It and Thereby Starts a Destructive Blaze.

Middletown, N. Y.—A murrain upon all turkeys is the heartfelt wish of Edward Washington, of Liberty, a few miles from here. Mr. Washington went to his barn at six o'clock the other morning to throw down fodder to his cattle. He carried a large lantern, which he hung upon a wooden peg at the back of the barn.

A large and foolish turkey who had been roosting all night on a lower branch of a tree across the road saw the bright light.

"Gobble! gobble! gobble! gobble!" he squawked and flew straight at it.

HE SQUAWKED AND FLEW STRAIGHT AT IT.

His flapping wings sent the lantern flying. It fell with a crash and broke, and the oil and flaming wick rolled in a pile of straw. In an instant the big barn was ablaze.

Mr. Washington saw he could not quench the flames, so he turned his attention to releasing his cows and horses and succeeded in saving them all, together with a carriage which stood near the open door, but the other contents of the barn were destroyed. The building which was 30x122 feet, contained 50 tons of hay, all his farming implements and wagons, harness, etc., besides a large number of ducks and chickens. Mr. Washington's large summer boarding house would also have been destroyed but for the wind, which blew in the opposite direction.

WEDS TOO QUICK TO LEARN WIFE'S NAME.

Youthful Bridegroom Looks Blank When Asked to Give Spouse's Maiden Appelation.

Chicago.—William Mitchell, who married a North side girl 13 hours after meeting her, was unable after 30 hours of married life to tell the maiden name of his wife.

In the same Madison street cafe where he ate his wedding dinner, Mitchell was seen last night, ready to start on his wedding trip. With him were his wife and several friends.

"Mr. Mitchell, will you accept the congratulations of a reporter?" the young man was asked.

With a beaming face he rose from the table and grasped the outstretched hand.

"You say you want a photograph of her?" continued Mitchell. "Well, go to No. 252 Fremont street, and ask for her mother. You will find no difficulty in getting it."

"What is her name?" he was asked.

Mitchell hesitated for a moment, blushed fiery red, and then finally stammered:

"Darned if I know! What is it, Lu?" turning abruptly to his wife.

"B-e-c-h-t!" snapped the surprised girl, and the new Mrs. Mitchell shifted her blushing face in another direction. She hid her disgusted features from the rude gaze of the fat man at the next table who had the audacity to giggle aloud, and looked blankly out on married life.

Mitchell met Miss Becht, the daughter of a North side contractor, Tuhrsday night at a party. Three hours afterward the young man proposed. The next day, 13 hours after the engagement, they met at the office of a downtown justice and were married. That night they had their wedding dinner at a Madison street cafe, where friends of Mitchell showered the two with rice and congratulations.

Heart Had Ceased to Beat.

Elkhart, Ind.—Thomas Boening, city electrician of South Bend, has just been dismissed from a hospital, where he lay several days after receiving a severe shock from a live wire.

For five hours after the accident Drs. Carter and Daugherty were unable to detect any heart action. They would have given up the case as hopeless had they not discovered by the use of a mirror that he breathed slightly.

For five days after his heart beat became perceptible his pulse could not be felt because enough electricity remained in the arms to retard the circulation in the wrists. To-day Mr. Boening's health is fully restored.

Cat Attacks Woman.

Evansville, Ind.—Before a strange cat that had sprung upon her with the ferocity of a tiger and sunk its teeth and claws into her hand would release a hold, Mrs. Anna Cooper, wife of Elder Cooper, was forced to choke it to death. Now she is suffering severe pains in her arm and hand, and it is feared serious complications may set in.

HUNTING BUFFALOES

BUT WITH A CAMERA, AND NOT WITH A GUN.

Ernest Harold Baynes Tells of an Interesting Day in the Corbin Game Preserve on Croydon Mountain.

Yesterday morning, as I looked from my window upon Croydon mountain, the sun, which was rising behind it, silvered the white tree-tops along its summit. The day before, white clouds enveloped the top of Croydon, and the moisture which had condensed upon the tops of the evergreens had turned to crystals in the night. A grassy plateau to the west of the mountain, and just outside my garden, was also white with a heavy coating of hoar frost, and upon this gleaming field a herd of more than a hundred buffaloes stood facing the northwest gate, which opens directly from my garden into the Corbin game preserve. They had passed the night on a grassy hilltop, a mile to the southeast; had just charged down over a woodland trail, and now stood blowing clouds of vapor from their wet, black nostrils.

As there was the promise of a bright day, I took my camera, a score of plates, and a field glass and set out prepared to hunt the buffalo until sunset, or until all my ammunition was gone.

After entering the gate, I walked quietly eastward, along the fence, pretending not to see the buffaloes, for, often as not, the moment they see that they are attracting special attention, they will give a few grunts of alarm and gallop off, leaving you to follow them over hill and dale for a mile or two, and then another mile or two after that, if you are not careful. After getting well to the east of the herd, I crawled along under cover of a stone wall, until the animals were within reasonable range. From where I lay, the ground slanted slightly upwards toward the west, so the dark forms of the buffaloes were in good relief against the light brown grass. Some of them were lying down now, and, slipping the nozzle of the camera through a gap in the wall, I got a picture of them in this position. I then worked round them until I could get them against the sky, for this is one of the best of all backgrounds for buffaloes. In order to do this, however, I was obliged to show myself, but as I walked along as though on business in some other part of the preserve, the animals took no notice of me. One photograph of the herd in the distance, and another at much closer range, were the result of this maneuver, and the buffaloes, finding that no harm came from my presence, now seemed prepared for even further advances. As I sauntered very slowly toward them, those which were lying down quickly arose to their feet, and all of them gave me their undivided attention. After getting two more snaps at the herd, I began to try for pictures of individuals. But first I sat down and waited, that they might become used to seeing me near them. Two or three animals, however, were getting restless, and one young four-year-old bull kept grunting from time to time, as though giving it as his opinion that I was not to be trusted. Presently he gave an emphatic grunt and started to walk away in the direction of a valley to the south, and I knew that, if he ever broke into a trot going down that hillside, the entire herd would follow him like sheep through a gap in the fence. So, as though by accident, I quickly placed myself between him and the valley, and he, finding that his move was checked, trotted back to his companions, and the danger of a stampede was for the moment averted.

The herd was now becoming uneasy, and my friend, the young bull before mentioned, gave a loud grunt and dashed away toward the valley, with two or three others close in his wake. I knew that to stop the stampede now would be about as easy as to stop an avalanche or a landslide, so I stood apart and gave them plenty of room. One great flying wedge of brown, with the four-year-old bull at its apex, they went thundering down the hill, and through the valley along the bank of the brook. Then, in a long string, they filed up a hill to the west, along the ridge, and down into a valley beyond. As I watched them through the glass from a hill-top, I could see, in a hollow which was crossed by the trail, another smaller herd of buffaloes, lying at rest, and in the apple orchard further to the south was still another herd; and as the main body went through, these smaller ones fell in with them, until about 150 buffaloes were on the march. Laden as I was, it seemed wiser to give them time to slow down before attempting to come up with them, so I sat down by the brook and had my lunch. When I overtook the buffaloes, they were about to enter a wood, and here I photographed them again. As they moved through the wood, they presented a strange appearance. The trail was dimly lighted and was filled with a surging mass of great hairy beasts, parts only of whose outlines could be seen. Now and then a few rays of sunshine filtered through the trees, and for a moment lighted up a rolling sea of humps and glinted from the well-curved horns.

The sun was setting behind the Green mountains when the buffaloes gathered together on the top of a hill for the night.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

Whittier and Leal's second team will meet in the Juvenile League on Wednesday afternoon between the halves of the Interscholastic game. Whittier and the P. H. S. seconds now have the lead in this league.

These games will take place at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight: Y. M. C. A. first team against the Business Men of the association and the Plainfield High School basketball team against a team composed of alumni of the school. The games will begin at 8 o'clock.

This week will mark the most important game of scholastic basketball which the season has in store for local teams. The Plainfield High School and Leal's teams are to contend in the local gymnasium in a game which, if won, will mean the city championship for Leal's School, and if lost will mean another chance for the title to the Plainfield High School. In the first game of the year, the P. H. S. was defeated by the Leal's School team, which at the present time leads the Triangular League. The public school's boys are anxious to win this game, as it is their only chance to get a show for the trophy, and city championship. In the event of a tie the rubber will be played on February 8.

DIAMOND DUST.

There is already considerable talk about having a first-class team at Scotch Plains this season. Within a short time a meeting will be held to discuss the matter and elect a manager.

"Warry" McLaughlin is about the only member of the New London, Conn., baseball team that has not signed a contract for the coming season. He has not fully determined whether he will return to New London or play elsewhere.

Manager Woolston, of the Plainfield Baseball Club, is already beginning to plan for games during the coming season. Manager Thorp, of Columbia University team, has written to him asking for a game here on Saturday, April 29, and it is possible that the season may open with that game. Billy Lauder, formerly of the New York Nationals, has been engaged to coach the Columbia boys. Tyler will pitch for the team this season. The manager of the Rochlings, of Trenton, has also written for a game, but as the Mercer county boys play all of their games at home there is little likelihood of the locals going there for a Saturday contest. Mr. Woolston has his lines out for a strong team and he already has several fast players practically engaged.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers will roll their match against the Jersey City team in the Central Journal Bowling League, which was postponed from last week, on Wednesday evening at the Jersey City club's alleys. On Friday night the Parks have a home game against the Newark Bay organization.

The entries for the Y. M. C. A. bowling championship tournament now include these names: R. Warren French, Maurice Sutphen, Frank Neal and C. B. Koons, all members of the Y. M. C. A. bowling team. The matches will start promptly at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening, entries closing on that day.

Y. M. C. A. SPORTS.

The Spartans lead in the group contests at the Y. M. C. A. boys' department for last week, which were held on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The total points are as follows: Spartans, 650; Romans, 593; Gladiators, 302, and Olympians 100. The next events take place tomorrow.

Denies Fanwood Story.

The story which has been going the rounds of the State papers to the effect that Fanwood borough has not had an arrest in five years is denied by Collector Charles Sheelen in a communication to The Daily Press. Mr. Sheelen states that there were five arrests in 1904 and that furthermore the borough has not rented a place to be used as a jail but expects to have one in the near future. He also says that the borough is not without police protection in the day time as two officers are constantly within reach.

Remodeling Old Building.

Workmen began this morning to remodel W. R. Codington's building on West Second street. The entire front of the building will be changed.

IS NOW GOVERNOR STOKES

The Inauguration Ceremonies Took Place at Trenton Today.

IMPRESSIVE AFFAIR

Oath of Office Administered by Chief Justice Gummere in Presence of Many Attendants.

Attended by an impressive ceremony at Taylor Opera House and followed by a civic parade of 5,000 men, Edward Caspar Stokes, was inaugurated Governor of New Jersey at Trenton today.

Notwithstanding the Governor-elect's wishes that the inauguration be conducted on a modest scale at small expense, great preparations were made for the event, and it was modest only in that no large bodies of State troops were ordered out.

The oath of office was administered at the opera house, where the services commenced at noon. In compliance with the law that the Governor must be induced into office in the presence of both branches of the Legislature, the Senate and Assembly convened on the stage just before noon. The hall was appropriately decorated for the ceremony.

The inaugural service was opened with prayer by the Rev. Holmes Francis Gravatt, pastor of the First M. E. church at Millville, which the Governor-elect attends.

After prayer Chief Justice Gummere read the oath of office to the Governor-elect, who repeated it after him. This ceremony over, Governor Murphy handed Governor-elect Stokes the great seal of the State and then Governor Murphy gave way in office to Governor Stokes.

Following this the new Governor delivered his inaugural address. The ceremony closed with the pronouncing of the benediction by the Rev. Dr. Henry Collin Minton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Trenton, of which Senator Barton B. Hutchinson, chairman of the inaugural committee, is a member. The Second Regiment Band rendered music during the ceremony.

At the close the inaugural party lunched at the Trenton House, and then proceed to the State House to review the procession from the stand erected in front of the Capitol. As the Governor was sworn in a Governor's salute of seventeen guns was fired from the State House grounds.

The parade formed on Hanover, Academy, Montgomery, Stockton, Perry and North Broad streets. It was headed by the chief marshal, Major Frederick Gilkyson and staff, followed by the Essex troop, N. G. N. J., which acted as the Governor's personal escort and was the only military company in line.

The line was formed of 1,200 men with several bands from Hudson, a large delegation from Essex, 600 men and two bands from Camden, several hundred men from Cumberland and delegations from all the other counties. Mercer turned out several hundred, who marched as the Republican club.

This evening Governor Stokes will receive in the executive chamber at the State House from 7:30 to 9 o'clock. The interior of the Capitol will be handsomely decorated for the event and the reception promises to be unusually brilliant.

In this city, no organized movement was made to attend the inauguration but among those who went as individuals were Mayor James F. Buckle, State Supervisor of Roads R. A. Meeker and Martin Lance.

Semi-Annual Meeting.

The semi-annual meeting of the Elizabeth district Woman's Home Missionary Society will be held in Dunellen, tomorrow, at the Methodist Episcopal church. All interested in missions are invited to be present.

HIGH SCHOOL CADETS MAY GIVE A MILITARY DANCE

BATTALION HAS PLAN IN VIEW FOR SUCH AN AFFAIR.

Commissions and warrants were awarded to the officers of the Plainfield High School battalion at its weekly drill yesterday afternoon. The presentation speech was made by Principal I. W. Travell, who commended to cadets upon their work, and spoke of the noticable value of military drill.

The battalion has not yet given any form of entertainment for the purpose of raising money. Two years ago, "A Day in Camp," a graphic reproduction of camp life in the army was given, through no such event has taken place since that time. There will be the usual expenses of the battalion this year, and by some the advisability of raising the money to defray these expenses, without going to the Board of Education for an appropriation, has been favorably considered.

Though it is not definitely known what form of entertainment will be adopted, the one which has met with the greatest favor is a military dance. There may be a drawback to the venture, as in all probability the permission of the Board of Education would have to be secured before the event could take place. Nearly all the officers in the battalion are uniformed and a picturesque appearance would be made.

DR. RICHARD BURTON ADDRESSES LOCAL CLUB

LECTURES BEFORE A GATHERING OF MONDAY AFTERNOON MEMBERS.

Dr. Richard Burton, of Boston, gave a lecture of unusual thought and profound interest before the Monday Afternoon Club at the Casino yesterday afternoon. The lecture terminated the club study of the subject: "England from 1750 to 1800."

Dr. Burton claimed that instead of being a period of limitations and an era of prose as some students of the present day considered it, the eighteenth century marked a steady advance towards democratic ideals in representation, toleration, manners and a recognition of personal rights. Robert Walpole and the elder and younger Pitt in politics; Addison Steele, Johnson and Goldsmith in literature; Wilberforce opposing the slave trade; John Howard working for prison reform; Watt inventing the steam engine; Richardson and Fielding writing the first novels, and Paley, Berkley and Wesley broadening religious thoughts were among the names in that period that stood for political expansion, personal freedom, the bettering of the condition of the masses, the elevation of the social tone and the spiritual uplift of the people.

Dr. Burton summarized the work of the eighteenth century thus: externally it perfected manners, it stood for the rights of man and it made straight the path of the Lord for the reforms and progress of the nineteenth century.

Organist Drake As Director.

The New Brunswick Choral Society, who have made a great reputation in the last few years rendering oratorios, of which Arthur G. Drake, organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, is musical director, will give Mendelssohn's oratorio, "St. Paul," Thursday evening, February 16, in that city. The society will be assisted by Miss Grace Longley, soprano; Estelle Hart, alto; Edward Strong, tenor; Frederick Wheeler, bass, and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Mr. Strong is to be the soloist at the Philharmonic concerts in Carnegie Hall the two preceding days. The chorus numbers one hundred and fifty voices, and the concerts are one of the social features of the season.

Elizabeth Times to Build.

Outgrowing its present quarters, work will be started on Monday, January 23, on a handsome new building which will be erected for the exclusive use of the Elizabeth Evening Times, on East Jersey street, adjoining the old Central Baptist church on the corner of Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth. The Times is four years old and has moved three times in search of a larger place. Last week a third Mergenthaler typesetting machine was added to the mechanical department and upon the completion of the new building others will be purchased.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM WINS FROM BUSINESS MEN

INTERESTING GAME OF BASKET BALL AT ASSOCIATION GYM. LAST NIGHT.

In a game which was interesting and at times fast, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated the team representing the Business Men of the association in a game on the local gymnasium floor last night, the score being 38 to 22. The features of the game were close guarding on the part of Letson, of the Business Men's team, and accurate foul shooting by Cahoone.

The first half of the game was decidedly close, the score being 12 to 11. In this part of the contest the Business Men were equal to their opponents, and at times in the games outplayed them. They seemed tired in the second part of the game and did not follow the ball as closely. Hand's shooting was another feature of the game, as was also Heicher and Spicer's playing for the Business Men.

This was the line up and score of the match: Y. M. C. A.—Smith and Hand, forwards; Cahoone, center; Scull and Utzinger, guards. Business Men—Spicer and Heicher, forwards; Browning, center; Letson and Clark, guards. Goals from the field—Heicher, 3; Browning, Spicer, 3; Smith, 4; Hand, 6; Cahoone, 3; Scull, 2. Goals from fouls—Cahoone, 8.

ROBERT A. MEEKER MAY SUCCEED HENRY I. BUDD

PLAINFIELDER BEING SUPPORTED FOR STATE ROAD COMMISSIONER.

With the Union County Republican organization, as well as the Plainfield Republicans, supporting him, there is every reason to believe that Robert A. Meeker, of this city, will succeed the late Henry I. Budd, of Mt. Holly, as State Road Commissioner. Mr. Meeker is now State supervisor of roads, a position next to that held by Mr. Budd and he is thoroughly conversant with all the details of the office, having worked with Mr. Budd for several years in looking after the State roads.

Another reason advanced why Mr. Meeker is the likely successor to Mr. Budd is that his work is well-known by Governor Stokes, who has the reputation of being in favor of persons who are especially fitted for State positions. Mr. Meeker also has the support of many State officials for the appointment and his candidacy seems to be particularly strong.

TRIBUTE TO MR. GINNA.

Colored Pastor Says His People Have Suffered a Serious Loss.

"In the death of Mr. S. A. Ginna, the colored people of Plainfield have sustained a serious loss. He was everywhere known as a true friend of the colored race. Twenty years of his busy life were largely devoted to their welfare, and many of them of all the denominations of our city have come under the influence of his teaching. In view of his profound interest in them and of the esteem in which he was held by the entire colored population, the family gives notice that every one who desires to do so may have opportunity to view the remains at his late residence on Watchung avenue, Wednesday afternoon between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 o'clock.

"Notice of memorial services to be held at Bethel chapel will be given in the near future.

"The Bethel chapel congregation and members of the Sunday-school are requested to meet at the chapel this evening at 8 o'clock.

"F. D. Tilden."

Mr. and Mrs. Caleen Celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Caleen, of Orchard place, celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday night, by entertaining a company of friends. The bride was Miss Eskeson, of Netherwood, and her bridesmaid, now Mrs. Ammonson, is the wife of the Danish consul at Copenhagen. Rev. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond married the couple in this city, January 15, 1885.

R. A. Meeker a Pallbearer.

State Supervisor of Roads R. A. Meeker will be one of the honorary pall-bearers at the funeral services of Henry I. Budd, State Road Commissioner, which will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock from the home in Mt. Holly. The interment will be at Camden. Officials from all parts of the State will attend the funeral

FUNERAL OF DR. PARKS

Services at Scotch Plains Today Largely Attended.

THREE PASTORS SPEAK

Had Been at Head of Baptist Church Ten Years, and Came at a Critical Period.

The funeral services of the late Rev. Dr. James Henry Parks were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Rev. Thomas Moore Smith, pastor of the church, was in charge of the services, assisted by Rev. G. M. Shott, a former pastor, and Rev. Enoch Fullaway, of Philadelphia, a personal friend of Dr. Parks. There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors who had known the divine for many years. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. Eulogistic remarks of the exemplary Christian life and faithful service of Dr. Parks were made by Mr. Shott and Mr. Fullaway, especially the latter who had known him a long time.

In the death of Dr. Parks Scotch Plains loses one of its most respected citizens and one who had been identified with the interest of the town for a quarter of a century. He was a member of the Board of Education, one of the organizers of the local branch of the Camden Building and Loan Association, an active member of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, for twenty-one years collector for Fanwood Council, No. 744, Royal Arcanum, and in many other ways served the village.

He was ordained to the ministry May 28, 1856. His active work began at once and continued until December 31, 1893, when he resigned the pastorate of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. During that time he led pastorates of the Baptist churches at Stamford, Conn, Bedford, N. Y., Pemberton, N. J., Manayunk, Pa., Norwich, Conn., Calvary Baptist, of Philadelphia, Linden Avenue, of Dayton, Ohio, and the Scotch Plains church, beginning his work there as pastor in January 1889, at a most critical time in the church history.

The church finances were such that the congregation was likely to lose its property. By the excellent work of Dr. Parks the members rallied and the property was saved. The church mortgage was reduced $2,000. In the year 1888 the church by the will of Matthias France Lee, became the residuary legatee of an estate estimated to be worth $150,000. This bequest resulted in a long drawn out legal contest, which tied up the estate for several years until a settlement could be made with the heirs and the church then received its legacy, which gave it the reputation of being one of the richest Baptist churches in the State.

Owing to his declining years, Dr. Parks resigned his pastorate December 31, 1893. He built a home for himself opposite the church which he called "Home Dawn," and said that he wanted to end his days among the people of his last pastorate. For several years his health had been failing, but his death was a surprise, as he was supposed to be convalescing from an illness.

The interment was in the Baptist cemetery, where Dr. Parks had selected a plot after his resignation as pastor. Only three former pastors of the church are now living, Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, of Pemberton; Rev. James S. Braker, of Lynn, Mass., and Rev. G. M. Shott, who still lives in the Manse, having resigned the pastorate but two months ago.

Local Lawyer in Murder Trial.

The murder trial of George H. Wasson for the killing of Charles G. Stratton at the East End Hotel, at Sea Side, Monmouth County, May 13, last, began yesterday at Freehold before Justice Jonathan Dixon. Isaac P. Runyon, Esq., of this city, is among the counsel representing the defendant, he having been engaged by Mrs. Wasson, mother of the accused, after the murder. The soldier friends of Wasson engaged Edmund Wilson and E. W. Arrowsmith, also well-known lawyers in this State. It is believed that the trial will be concluded today.

A Pupil of E. J. Myer.

Paul F. Handel, a vocal teacher of note, and a pupil of Edmund J. Myer, of New York city, whose writings on musical subjects have caused widespread interest, will open a studio here within a short time, when he will be prepared to take a limited number of pupils. He will also be prepared to fill engagements for musicals, concert and oratorio. Mr. Handel has a studio at Orange, where he has been eminently successful.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS AFTER AUTOMOBILISTS

FAVORS LEGESLATIVE ACTION AGAINST RECKLESS DRIVERS.

At the recent meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders held at Somerville, a resolution was passed requesting Senator Childs and Assemblyman Hoagland to favor any such legislation as will serve as a guard against reckless running of automobiles and confine them to the speed limit favored by law. The resolution even goes as far as to state that a penalty should be enacted. Messrs. Gibson, Whitenack and Hoagland were appointed a committee to draft a bill and do everything possible to push the matter. The members are also wrought up over the fact that many auto drivers have cars with spiked wheels which are a great detriment to the county roads. Some action in this respect may come up at a special meeting in the near future.

A communication from the Camden County Board in relation to the abolishing of the spring elections was on motion unanimously voted to the table.

The Board appointed Messrs. Baird, Philhower, Whitenack, Hoagland and Logan as a committee to contract for the replacing of the bridge over the Lamington River at North Branch that was washed away in the recent freshet.

LECTURED FOR BENEFIT OF THE CHILDREN'S HOME

REV. F. H. JACOBS DESCRIBES SCENES IN THE HOLY LAND.

Under the auspices of the Epworth Leagues of the local M. E. churches and for the benefit of the Children's Home, Rev. F. H. Jacobs, the evangelist, gave his illustrated lecture on his last trip to the Holy Land, in Vincent chapel, last night. This trip was taken by nearly eight hundred Sunday-school workers from this and other countries and was a most remarkable one in many respects.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snedgrass, pastor of the church, was in charge of the affair and he introduced Mayor James F. Buckle as the chairman of the evening. Mr. Buckle made a few remarks relative to the excellent work being done at the Children's Home, and told of the great need for the support of everyone in this worthy charity. He then introduced Mr. Jacobs, who by the aid of over one hundred excellent views taken by himself, took his audience to the Holy Land, describing the interesting scenes en route and explaining many historical spots in Palestine and throughout the trip.

The lecture was of special value to students of the Bible and Sunday-school workers, giving them a clear idea geographically and in detail of the many scenes and incidents in the life of Christ while on earth. He took his audience to Calvary and over the same ground travelled by the Savior and His apostles, explaining their mission as recorded in the Bible. He also disabused many minds of mistaken ideas regarding theories advanced by some and which are not according to the teaching of the Scriptures.

During an intermission in the lecture, a silver offering was received and a substantial sum was realized for the Children's Home. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Jacobs for the interesting and profitable lecture.

Cold Too Much for Him.

While a crowd of several hundred people watched him climb skyward, Clarence Mundy, of Manning avenue, made an unsuccessful attempt to place a new rope in the pulley on the city flag pole today. He succeeded in getting within six feet of the top when the intense cold so numbed his hands it was impossible for him to proceed. When he reached the ground his face was blue from the biting wind and it took him several minutes to recover fully.

Co. K Tickets Missing.

Either as a joke or as a theft one hundred tickets for the fair, which will be given by Company K at the armory next month, were taken from Rowley's drug store last week. There is not the slig htest clue as to the motive of the theft, or as to the person who took the tickets. The numbers range from 301 to 400, and the committee announces that none of the tickets included in the hundred will be honored at the door.

HUSBAND AND WIFE BURIED SIDE BY SIDE

DOUBLE FUNERAL SERVICES OVER BODIES OF MR. AND MRS. RANDOLPH.

With many relatives and friends gathered about the two caskets placed side by side and containing all that remained of the husband and wife who were not separated even in death, double funeral services were held last evening over the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph at their late home on West Second street. Two clergymen officiated, Rev. George B. Shaw, the present pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, a former pastor and one who had been the spiritual adviser of the devoted couple for many years.

The former read several verses of scripture after which he gave a biographical sketch of each of the departed and related several instances in their lives. The remarks made by Dr. Lewis were those of an associate, affording him an opportunity to speak in an eulogistic strain.

There were numerous floral tributes and they included a large set piece, the gift of employes at the Potter Press Works, with which Mr. Randolph was connected at the time of his death. The interment was made today in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Nathan and Edward Randolph, Fred Fairchild and Dr. F. S. Wells.

THREE-YEAR-OLD HOPEFUL STIRS UP NEIGHBORHOOD

MOTHER THOUGH HE HAD BEEN KIDNAPPED, BUT HE HADN'T.

While playing about his home at 644 South avenue, yesterday afternoon, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Waglow, suddenly disappeared and for nearly three hours the greatest excitement prevailed in the neighborhood. Mrs. Waglow, assisted by her neighbors, searched everywhere for the little fellow, but he could not be found. The last seen of him was when he was playing with a pet dog, and when after continued search he could not be located, Mrs. Waglow felt sure that he had been kidnapped.

She was about to ask the aid of the police, when her fears were greatly relieved in seeing the boy returning home, accompanied by his dog. When asked for an explanation for his absence, he said that he had followed a crowd of boys who were on their way to Hand's brick yard for a skate.

VISITED COMPANY K.

Former Captain McCarthy, of Co. E, Third Regiment, Among Those Who Attended Last Night's Drill.

The regular weekly drill of Company K, which was held at the armory last night, was witnessed by former Captain McCarthy, of Company E, Third Regiment. He was well pleased with the work of the guardsmen. Among others present were Major Dungan, of Somerville, Dr. Leonard and W. S. Angleman. All spoke highly of the proficiency of the company in the drill regulations.

Privates Jennings and Niles were reported to have successfully passed the examinations for non-commissioned officers, and will be awarded their chevrons this week.

Death of Martin Scribner.

Martin Scribner, aged eighty years, who was engaged in the manufacture of brick in North Plainfield over thirty years ago, died on Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Heeley, 100 Steuben street, East Orange. The funeral services were held from the above residence yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the interment was in Fairmount Cemetery, Newark.

Will Give a Social.

St. Mary's Guild, of St. Stephen's church, met last night at the home of the rector, Rev. A. S. Peck, 721 East Sixth street, and after electing two new members, made arrangements to give a social and entertainment on Monday night, January 23, at Mr. Peck's home. Each member is privileged to invite two friends.

Fell on Slippery Steps.

Stepping on some ice at the top of the stoop, Mrs. Mary I. Kell, of East Fourth street, fell heavily down the steps, and injured her side. She was assisted into the house, where she has been obliged to remain since on account of the accident.

OPENING OF EAGLES FAIR

Saengerbund Hall Well Filled With "First Nighters."

MANY ATTRACTIONS

Numerous Specialty Numbers Are Promised for the Week—The Committees in Charge.

With an exceptionally large "first night" crowd in attendance, the first annual fair of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, Fraternal Order of Eagles, began in Saengerbund Hall, last evening, and will continue during the week. It bids fair to be one of the most successful of the season as the attractions are numerous and a nightly change of programme has been arranged. The hall presents a very attractive appearance through the liberal use of flags and Eagle emblems in the decorations.

Dancing is one of the features and the floor was thronged all last evening. In addition there are numerous booths where various articles are for sale and book contests to engage the attention of the visitors. The former with their attendants are as follows: Fancy goods, Mrs. J. V. Beekman and Miss Mamie Clark; candy table, Miss Gertrude Geier; picture table, Miss Margaret Ryan and Miss Tessie Fay; refreshments, James Loughlin. Miss Edith Nelson and Miss Elsie Hone are contesting for a set of furs and Frank Matthews, of Westfield, and George Carroll, of Elizabeth, are rivals for an Eagle charm.

The most important number on last evening's entertainment programme was an exhibition of scientific bag punching given by Harry Dilts, of this city. There were several contributions of solos and for the remainder of the week other novelties will be offered, one of them the presence of the Elizabeth aerie with a full brass band, the night yet to be designated.

Among the specialties billed are George Carroll, of "Ah Boy" fame, from Elizabeth, in songs and dances; "Tony" Bender, the aspiring featherweight champion, of Elizabeth, who will box a limited number of rounds with his sparring partner; Michael Burke, of this city, the slack wire king, will display his aerial stunts; Carroll's Mandolin Club will dispense musical selections; Professor Rankin, the sleight-of-hand and flashlight artist; will perform; "Tony" Lapoli will sing baritone solos; Daniel Galbraith, of this city, buck and wing dancer, will execute fancy and intricate steps; the Liberty Quartette, of Elizabeth, and Jack Shepherd, the baton wizard, of the same city, will also be on the programme.

The committee which has general charge of the affair consists of Horace G. Adams, chairman; J. H. Adams, secretary, and Patrick Guinee, treasurer. Their assistants are M. J. Higgins, William Waglow, Frank McCabe, Harry Willbe, Fred Moore, Charles Strannenbach, William Sparks and Samuel Terry.

ARE TO BE ON MARTINE TRACT AND COST $6,500 EACH.

The Central Realty Company, recently incorporated in this State, and which controls the former Martine property, has just sold seven lots on Prospect avenue to C. I. Wagner, a New York builder and contractor. He proposes to erect at once on these lots four two and one-half story detached residences to cost about $6,500 each. There is now a decided boom in property in that section of the city and in addition to the four new houses, James C. Manning, the builder, has staked out the cellar for a new house to be built by him on Martine avenue in this same tract of land.

C. M. Meeker, the contractor, is making excellent progress grading and improving the various streets running through this property. It is expected that other new houses will be erected on this tract during the coming year.

After the games a collation was served and a social hour enjoyed.

TUCKER ON DEFENSE

Prisoner's Attorney Says He Will Prove an Alibi.

"IS NOT MURDERER OF MABEL PAGE"

Accused Will Not Attempt to Account For All Blood Stains on His Clothing—Court Accepts Knife as Evidence.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 17.—"All we ask of you, gentlemen of the jury, is fair play. Give us that and we will prove beyond all reasonable doubt that Charles L. Tucker is not the murderer of Mabel Page."

With these words Attorney Thomas F. Vahey opened the case for the defense at the Tucker trial here. He told the jury that the whereabouts of the defendant would be accounted for from the moment he left his home at noon on the day of the murder until he returned to his home the same afternoon. He would prove that a knife other than Tucker's was the weapon used. The defense would not attempt to account for all the blood stains found on Tucker's clothing, but if the government wished to prove Tucker guilty it should have established that the blood was from the body of Miss Page. The handwriting in the "J. L. Morton" address would be shown to be that of Miss Page. Witnesses would swear that the stickpin found in Tucker's coat, and alleged to have belonged to Miss Page, was owned by Tucker two years before the murder. The testimony of the medical experts called by the commonwealth was attacked, and Mr. Vahey said other experts would be called to disprove statements made.

An important decision was rendered today by the court, which, after hearing lengthy arguments by counsel, ruled that the introduction of Tucker's knife as evidence was competent and all evidence in relation to it brought out by the prosecution would stand. It has been the contention of the defense that the knife was secured in violation of the constitutional rights of the defendant, in that it was secured during a search of Tucker's home on a search warrant which called for the seizure of a graphophone.

The appearance of Tucker's mother on the stand was a feature of the day. She was composed and smiled reassuringly at her son, and his eyes rested on her from the minute he entered the courtroom until she left the witness stand twenty minutes later.

Mrs. Tucker's testimony related only to the visit of the officers at her house for the purpose of searching it previous to her son's arrest. She will be called later to testify as to the movements of her son on March 31.

Prisoner Killed In Jail Van.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—Locked in a prison van, eight inmates of the house of correction were dragged over a twenty foot embankment here, and Matthew Ackerman was killed and John Sharley was probably fatally injured. The others were severely cut and bruised. The prisoners were being taken from the house of correction to the site of the new municipal hospital, where they are employed. The roadway is elevated twenty feet above the surrounding soil, and the horses, becoming frightened, dashed down the embankment and the van rolled to the bottom.

Retrial For Burton.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The case of Senator J. R. Burton was decided by the supreme court of the United States dismissing the writ of certiorari to the circuit court of appeals for the Eighth circuit and reversing the verdict of the district court for the eastern district of Missouri on the ground that the payments to Burton were made in Washington. The district court was, therefore, reversed and the case remanded for a new trial.

COSSACK RAIDERS

Russian Cavalry Column Lost Three Hundred.

JAPANESE WAR STORES SET ABLAZE

Nogi's Victorious Army Enters Port Arthur—Surprised at Evidence That Stronghold Could Have Held Out For Months.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—A telegram from Siakhotan states that General Mischtschenko's raiding force, learning that five Japanese battalions had appeared near Tashikiow, retreated northward and succeeded in regaining the Russian lines. Their losses were about 300 killed or wounded, all the latter being brought away.

General Kuropatkin in a dispatch to Emperor Nicholas reporting the Russian cavalry raids says:

"The Japanese suffered heavily. The Russian losses during those two days were three officers killed and ten wounded and fifteen soldiers killed and forty-nine wounded."

The general adds that the cavalry captured a quantity of stores and prisoners and says that the Japanese stores at Yinkow were set on fire and blazed for nearly a whole night.

Late advices from the headquarters of the Third Japanese army at Port Arthur say that the victorious Japanese army has formally entered Port Arthur, and, a full inspection of the city having been made, it is evident that the surrender was not necessary, as there were 31,000 effective men in the fortress at the time.

The supply of ammunition was short, but it was not exhausted. Food was scarce, but private stores were not requisitioned by the military.

There is no difficulty in getting good meals in the city even now from the stores in private possession.

A portion of the fortress was capable of defense for months longer. It was the opinion of the noncombatants at Port Arthur that the surrender was unnecessary, as the troops were willing and able to fight to the bitter end.

General Stoessel was much blamed for what was characterized as a disgraceful conclusion of a splendid defense, which ended with the death of Major General Kondrachenko, who was loved by the soldiers and was the life of the defense.

Proposals for the surrender of Port Arthur were first made Dec. 29 at a council of war. General Stoessel was in favor of surrender, but some of his general officers were bitterly opposed to it. The regimental officers and the troops were not consulted.

The scenes following the surrender were disgraceful. Drunken soldiers filled the streets and refused to obey their officers. Many of them destroyed the guns upon the positions they had defended and came into the city without permission. The infantry loudly protested that the fortress had been given away, threw their rifles and ammunition into the harbor and proceeded to break into warehouses and loot and drink vodka until in a helpless condition.

Hay Invites China's Attention.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—China's attention has again been indirectly invited by the American government to the necessity for a faithful maintenance of her neutrality not only in her personal interest, but in the interest of the world's peace. Secretary Hay, on the receipt of the full text of Count Lamsdorff's note expressing Russia's belief that China's neutrality had been repeatedly violated, prepared instructions for the American charge at Peking directing him to make inquiry of the Chinese government regarding the situation. It is specifically declared that this action cannot in any way be construed as indicating that this government assumes responsibility for the charges made by Russia.

Coffee Crop a Failure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The coffee crop of Haiti is almost a failure, according to a report to the state department from Minister Powell. FAIR EXCHANGE.

A New Back for an Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across my back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

BANK DYNAMITED.

Lafayette Startled In Early Morning by Bold Robbery.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 17.—News reached here over the long distance telephone of a bank burglary at Lafayette, Ala., which, if the reports received are true is the greatest in magnitude committed for many years past in that section of the country.

The information came from Opelika, Ala., and is to the effect that the bank at Lafayette was dynamited between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday morning. It is said that the robbers secured $40,000. Officers, with accompanying posses, are scouring the country in the region of the crime, and the authorities of the state have been asked to keep a close watch for the fugitives.

The report says that at an early hour in the morning the residents of the little town were startled by a loud explosion, and an investigation developed the fact that the bank had been entered by burglars and nitroglycerin or dynamite used with terrific effect. Notwithstanding the fact that the explosion made a great noise, the burglars managed to make their escape, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon they had not been caught. It is reported that an examination of the wrecked vaults disclosed the fact that $40,000 had been stolen.

Lafayette is eighteen miles from Opelika, and a large amount of cotton and other business is done in the town.

An examination shows that the crooks were professionals. Every effort is being made not only by the police authorities of the town but by citizens to capture them.

JEROME'S WEAPON.

Dowling Law Has Closed New York Gambling Houses For Good.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Following the surrender to District Attorney Jerome of the gambling outfits belonging to Frank Farrell, Dave Johnson and Frank MacDougal, it was declared by counsel for the gamblers that Jerome has closed every gambling house in New York city and that they will remain closed.

The instrument which made so effectual action possible was disclosed by Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly, representing the gamblers, to be the Dowling law, enacted at the request of Jerome when he was trying to induce Jesse Lewisohn to testify against Richard Canfield. That law automatically releases from punishment any gambler who gives evidence against himself to the district attorney, but compels him to give such evidence.

Lawyer O'Reilly said:

"There will be no gambling houses in this city. The Dowling act has given the district attorney a weapon which he has used to close effectually every place in the city."

Twining Pleaded Not Guilty.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Albert C. Twining, former president of the Monmouth Trust and Safe Deposit company of Asbury Park, N. J., was arraigned before Justice Dixon in the supreme court, in Freehold, N. J., to plead to four indictments charging him with having misappropriated funds of the company to the amount of $45,000 and converting them to his own use. He pleaded not guilty and was released in $500 bail on each indictment. His trial was set for Feb. 2.

Negro Bishop Dead.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 17.—Bishop John Bryant Small, one of the best known negro bishops in this country, is dead at his home here after an illness of ten days. Bishop Small was born in Barbados in 1835. He came to the United States in 1871 and afterward joined the African Methodist Episcopal church. In 1896 he was elected by the general conference at Mobile, Ala., to the episcopate.

Ambassador's Wife an Art Worker.

VIENNA, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Bellamy Storer, wife of the American ambassador to Austria-Hungary, is among the most prominent and distinguished amateurs whose work is seen in the exhibition of art works which opened today at the rooms of the Vienna hegenbund here. The exhibitors include several archduchesses and archdukes and other members of the Austrian aristocracy.

Would Eliminate Arizona.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—By a vote of 30 to 24 the senate decided to consider the crosstown railway bill for Washington, but the measure soon gave place to the statehood bill. That measure was discussed for three hours by Messrs. Simmons and Heyburn, both of whom favored the elimination of Arizona from the bill.

Treasury Official Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Robert B. Armstrong, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of customs, has indicated to the president and to Secretary Shaw his purpose to resign to accept an important business position in New York. It is understood that Mr. Armstrong's resignation will take effect on March 4.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—By the expenditure of $195,160 during 1904 the Congregational Church Building society has built 120 churches and 45 parsonages, according to the annual report of that society. In fifty-two years the society has built 3,603 churches and 923 parsonages.

Independence For Porto Rico.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 17.—In the legislature here a bill declaring for independence under an American protectorate was killed. The bill was introduced by a member of the Unionist party, but the Republicans supported it, and it was defeated by Unionist votes.

A PARTIAL REPORT

Committee In Niedringhaus Case Partly Acquit Him.

BREWERS' CONTRIBUTION REGULAR

Investigators Did Not Report on Federal Patronage and Its Influence on Senatorial Contest. Ask For More Time.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 17.—Thomas K. Niedringhaus, the Republican caucus nominee for United States senator to succeed Francis M. Cockrell and Republican state chairman, "did not file a complete statement of the receipts of his committee" in the recent campaign, as required by law, but "no direct evidence has been offered to show that contributions to the Republican state campaign fund by St. Louis brewers were for the purpose of influencing legislation," according to a partial report of the senate investigating committee made last night.

The committee says it is not ready to report on federal patronage and its influence in the senatorial contest, and it asks for more time to investigate.

The partial report to the senate from its committee, which has been investigating the charge that Adolphus Busch and Otto Stifel, St. Louis brewers, had contributed largely to the Missouri campaign fund to influence state legislation and that these contributions had been turned in by Niedringhaus as an item of $21,297.51 contributed by himself, is signed by all members of the committee, including two Republican senators.

It is said that Representative Cook of Howell county testified at the executive session of the senate investigating committee that he had been promised "a good piece of money if he would vote for Thomas K. Niedringhaus for senator."

Representative Cook said:

"They tried to work me through Mr. Morrow, who is a particular friend of mine. Hallenbeck said the papers were prepared for Mr. Morrow to get an appointment in the pension office when I delivered my vote to Niedringhaus for United States senator. Mr. Morrow did not try to influence me at all, but Mr. Hallenbeck said I was a lover of money and there would be something good in it for me if I voted for Niedringhaus. I considered this a cash proposition. I voted for Mr. Kerens in the caucus."

Interest in the senatorial situation is at fever heat in all Missouri, as balloting in the legislature for a successor to Senator Cockrell is scheduled for today.

Depew and Weed Nominated.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Chauncey M. Depew of New York and Smith M. Weed of Clinton were nominated for the office of United States senator last night at joint caucuses held respectively by the Republican and Democratic members of the legislature. The Republican senators and assemblymen met in the assembly chamber, where Senator Depew's name was placed before the caucus and unanimously supported. In the Democratic caucus Mr. Weed's nomination was opposed by the friends of Judge D. Cady Herrick. Judge Herrick received 14 votes to Mr. Weed's 42. Today the two houses will vote separately on the nominations and tomorrow provide for the formal transmission of their choice to the United States Senate.

To Bar McMackin's Reappointment.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Robert Hunter, chairman of the New York city child labor committee, accompanied by V. Everit Macy of the national and state child labor committees, called on Governor Higgins and presented to him a report of that body designed to show that State Labor Commissioner John McMackin has failed to enforce the laws not only against the employment in factories of children under fourteen, but also regarding the protection of adult employees. The committee asks that Commissioner McMackin be not reappointed.

Paroled Convict Shot Himself.

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 17.—J. Ben Peoples, a former prominent contractor of Coshocton county, who had been paroled from the penitentiary, committed suicide by blowing off the top of his head because a warrant was about to be served for his return to the penitentiary on the charge of having violated his temporary release. Peoples saw the sheriff and a state detective approaching his house at Plainfield. Before the officers could gain entrance Peoples had killed himself.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 17, 1905.

Road Commissioner Henry I. Budd has passed away, but the fame of New Jersey's fine highways will live after him, a monument to his memory.

The higher license fever has struck Newark. The City Clerk has recommended that the liquor dealers be made to pay $500 instead of $250 for the privilege of being in business and a lively fight is in prospect.

Acting on advice given him by August Belmont, young Cornelius Vanderbilt has just cleared up $2,000,000 in various stocks. We can assure Mr. Belmont there is nothing the matter with our ears and anything further he might have to say will be given due attention.

Word comes from Havana, Cuba, that "Diavolo," who in private life is Dr. Clark, of Ridgewood, this State, was probably fatally injured while making his sensational "leap-the-gap" on a bicycle. Such accidents are not to be wondered at so long as men risk their lives daily at so much per risk and "Diavolo's" mishap is but another in the long list that has occurred since managers demanded death-defying feats for the edification of crowds which pay handsomely for the privilege. The public is at fault in every instance but since its clamor for these exhibitions cannot be stopped, it remains for legislative action to place the ban upon them.

TAX NOTICES.

Reminder to Delinquents Before List is Filed With County Clerk.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee is now sending out important notices to delinquent taxpayers, calling their attention to section fifty, revised tax act of 1903, which says: "On or before the first Tuesday in February in each year the Collector shall file with the Clerk of his county a list of all unpaid taxes assessed the preceding year on real estate in his taxing district."

After this list is filed, each delinquent is required to pay the City Collector twenty cents for tax release and twenty cents to the County Clerk for filing and discharge of lien. These notices are not required by law, but are given to avoid, as far as possible, the hardships resulting from inattention.

Funeral of Mrs. Vincent.

The funeral services of Mrs. Ann Vincent were held this morning at 11 o'clock from the residence of her son, Charles R. Vincent, in Fanwood. Rev. T. Moore Smith, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, conducted the services. A quartette comprising Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, contralto; E. E. Runyon, tenor, and Charles L. Lewis, bass, sang "Asleep in Jesus," "The Homeland," and "Hark, Hark, My Soul." The interment will take place at Erie, Pa.

Grand Jurors' Vacation.

The Union County Grand Jury adjourned yesterday to meet again on Thursday. It is improbable that the work will be completed this week, owing to several important matters to come up for consideration. It has not yet completed the investigation of the Wilcox Hallowe'en shooting at Westfield.

In Justice Huff's Court.

Judgment in favor of the plaintiff was rendered at Justice Huff's court this afternoon in the contract case of the Pennsylvania Rubber Company against John H. Stevens, of this city. William Newcorn represented the rubber company, which was sueing for the value of goods delivered to the blacksmith.

Thomas Dunphy, of the Pond planer gang, has returned to work after several days' absence due to an injured foot.

Charles Butt, of the Potter Press Works, has been discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital after undergoing medical treatment.

Robert Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, and Charles F. Meyer, Jr., of South Second street, have taken positions in the machine department at the Pedrick & Ayer shop.

The employes of the Potter Press Works presented a large floral tribute at the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph, last evening. Mr. Randolph had been in the carpenter department of the shop for five years.

Rumors afloat in Elizabeth declare that the Singer Company intends concentrating all its plants at the 'Port which would bring the force up to 10,000 employes. The concern operates a factory at South Bend, Ind., and another at Montreal, Canada, the latter providing the output for the Dominion, thus saving duty. The officials of the company are reticent in the matter and thus far the stories are purely speculation, brought about through the Singer purchase of the Worthington plant, adjoining the present big factory.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

Though as yet the ice crop has not equalled that of former years, the prevailing cold weather has been a great encouragement to the harvesters, who have now been at work for the last week. From appearances the ice will last on New Market pond for some time, and not only the harvesters are happy, but parties of skaters have and will take advantage of the excellent skating conditions. Hockey games are being arranged, and visitors from Plainfield, and nearby places, are thronging daily to the pond. Evening parties find the pond a source of much enjoyment, and the ring of skates on the smooth ice is heard almost continually. The ice is at present approximately eleven inches in thickness, and even if the weather should moderate, the work of ice cutting will not be interferred with for the time being.

Having voted down the proposed appropriation for a $2,0000 school building, Piscataway township finds itself confronted by the same situation which it was obliged to face six months ago when the New Market school house burned down. Not a bit of progress has been made, and it will undoubtedly be some time before any degree of change in the present state of affairs takes place. Either the people of the district will, and this course is being suggested, petition the board from the various districts requesting the erection of four school houses, or the matter will stand as it is indefinitely. The Board of Education having taken the necessary steps is now in a position where inactivity will be pardonable, and undoubtedly the natural result.

A new heater, a long felt need in the chapel of the Presbyterian church, will be installed within the next two weeks. The matter was considered at the meeting Sunday morning, and the money raised to cover the expense of the affair. The necessary amount was secured by subscription within about five minutes. The heater will be a hot air furnace adequate to heat the chapel, which has formerly been heated by a small stove.

While skating on New Market pond Saturday afternoon, Harvey Giles fell through the thin ice, and was with difficulty withdrawn from the water. He was brought to his home in a carriage, and apparently is suffering no bad results.

A pleasant event is anticipated for the social which will be held at Apgar's Hall on Thursdy evening, January 19. A large number of invitations have been issued, and in all probability there will be a large attendance.

At the conclusion of the prayer meeting at the Methodist church tomorrow evening, the last quarterly conference will be held. Rev. Daniel Halloran, the presiding elder of the district, will be in charge of the meeting.

The Home Missionary Society, of Elizabeth district, will hold its semi-annual meeting at the Methodist church tomorrow afternoon. Important business will be transacted.

T. J. Ronayne, ticket agent at the local station, has not resigned his position as was recently stated. He will continue to serve in his present capacity.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, of Hopewell, who have been visiting Mrs. Sarah Fisher, have returned to their home after a week's stay in this village.

The Owl Club, a local organization recently organized, will hold a smoker at its rooms on Friday evening.

NEW YORK SHOWS

MENELIK'S ANIMALS ENTERTAIN GOTHAMITES.

BLACK-EYE ARTIST IS GONE

Crime's Haunts Disappear Before City's Growth—The Countesses of Pittsburg — Huntington and "Hispanic Society."

NEW YORK.—By the time this letter is read I suppose that King Menelik's gift of animals to President Roosevelt may have been moved from this city to Washington.

Menelik is more correctly the negus of Abyssinia, and he is the head of the oldest continuously Christian nation in the world—though the Coptic faith of his fathers is rather a corruption of the doctrines that prevail farther west. Anyhow, he's a good judge of beasts. Menelik's zebra, which is to go with the other animals to the Washington zoological park, is called the biggest in the world. As the zebra is now almost extinct in Africa, where so little time ago it roamed by the thousands, the experiment is to be tried of crossing the animal with sturdy mares. The hybrid thus obtained promises to be valuable in subtropical climates where the horse is subject to disease. The half-zebra should be useful in the Tsetse fly districts of Africa.

The exhibition of Menelik's animals has coincided with the opening of the East side portion of the subway, which runs up pretty nearly to the Bronx park, where the pets have been boarding for the time. Not in all the world elsewhere is there such a fine animal boarding house. Something like a square mile of land is divided into spacious runs where even such wide ranging beasts as deer and elephants and bison are seen in something like natural conditions. The Abyssinian lion, the two ostriches, the two baboons of startling likeness to human beings, have attracted throngs. Ordinarily there are a few hundred people in the park of a week day, a few thousands on Sunday after church. Menelik's gift has recalled the throngs that for a few weeks after its arrival came to see little Miss Carnegie's gift, which is as nearly as possible her ideal of "the hairiest lion in the world."

New York children are well provided with free animal shows. Besides the wonderful collections in Bronx park the old Central park menagerie is maintained in fair size and condition; and in Prospect park, Brooklyn, a fine independent collection has grown up within ten years.

An Artist Mourned.

NEW YORK has lost an artist whom it deeply mourns; an artist whom in life it valued and rewarded, though it said little about him. He was Tom Keane, decolorator of "black" eyes. Tom was a wonder. He could take cases where a fist had violently collided with the muscles surrounding an eye, and so disguise it that only the most critical inspection would reveal the trouble. He had no fixed prices. The veiled lady who came to him in a carriage to conceal the effects of a husband's "carelessness," or maybe that of another lady, was allowed to pay a round price; the "professional gent" got off reasonably, all things considered.

Keane dropped into the business through being assistant to the first black eye specialist New York ever had. There are now three who do more or less at it, but Keane had the "call" and maintained an entire floor on Sixth avenue; his sign, covering the front of his rooms, was an object of curious interest to people who passed it by the thousand every day on the elevated trains. Suppose you were going uptown with a visitor from the country. You pointed out the Black Cat restaurant, Washington square, once the Potter's field, now the beginning of New York's most exclusive resident section and street; the Jefferson Market police court, the big dry goods stores the tree out of which Broker Hatch fell to his death when trying to escape a badger game, Tom Keane's sign—and so on.

Keane's establishment was a reminder of the fact that the Bowery is in these days peaceable enough beside the glittering Tenderloin, where the space of a mile to north and south and half that distance west from the center there is enough pure cussedness to keep the police busy 24 hours every day.

The Clearance of Trade.

CONSIDER the closing of the old "Tub of Blood." For years the dingy building had stood on the corner of Seventh avenue and Thirty-second street, in the midst of a tumble-down region hopelessly out of the range of real estate growth—it was supposed until the Pennsylvania station project was sprung upon the town and most of the land needed had been quietly bought up.

Many a bloody affray had happened in the old house, to give it an evil repute second only to that of the block of tenements known as "Hell's Kitchen." It might be thought that such things happened only in books; but the last day the hotel remained open, before the lease expired and the wreckers took down its worm-eaten beams, whispering their dark secrets, it was the scene of a murder—"just one more," you might imagine the spirit of the place, saying—when Henry Coakley, a gambler desperado, was killed by another of the same grim stripe in that sort of contest where the slowest to shoot is the quickest to die.

How do all the crooks live? You can see them any fine day as you go up Broadway, sunning themselves in front of the less reputable saloons between Thirtieth and Forty-second street. Curiously, these are the limits of most of the theaters, of a dozen fashionable florists, of high-class confectioners and other establishments that cater to women. The men behave on the whole rather better than less abandoned characters. They like to live in New York when not busy, and quickly return to the city after "jobs" 500 or 1,000 miles away. There is not enough robbery going on in this city to support them all. The police know them; Byrne's famous "dead line" still keeps them out of Wall street and the wholesale jewelry district on Maiden lane. But they have the Broadway habit. The "lecturer" of the "Seeing New York" coaches will sometimes indicate a group of them so that visitors may look upon them and wonder.

Somehow, the situation reminds me of Tangier, which I once visited, which is inhabited by 6,000 desperate criminals, the offscourings of all lands, in a population of perhaps 50,000; yet which is an orderly city, for the criminals have nowhere else to go if they offend against the Tangier code. So there is only one New York.

Countesses of Pittsburg.

IN THE spring, when the young nobleman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of heiresses, another Pittsburg girl will become a countess. She is Miss Elizabeth Howe, as well known in New York as in her own town. What interests the city is that her case affords the first accurate "line" since that of Miss Alice Thaw, who became countess of Yarmouth, upon the cost of a titled husband.

In the case of Miss Thaw the bride's mother took the unusual step of telling the Associated Press the facts of the nuptial arrangement. From her statement I figured that the young man was to receive a fund which he could not touch, and whose income was about that of a fairly successful lawyer, say $5,000 a year. No one supposes that this limits the cost of being a countess. The countess of Yarmouth received upon coming of age almost exactly an even million dollars, in addition to her share of the Hecla Coke trust, which is to be kept intact for years. Really she turned over only about one-tenth of her income for the personal use of her actor-husband.

By a curious coincidence the Howe marriage will furnish information almost as definite. The noble Count di Cini (pronounce it "de Cheenee") demanded $15,000 per year for himself, and the payment of his debts to the amount of $70,000. The Howe side refused. Di Cini flung away in a passion, but concluded to return and compromise upon $50,000 cash and a life annuity of $10,000, which at his age means a present purchase price of nearly $200,000. Such quarrels are not always so easily settled. A noble prince of France affianced to wed Miss Glendolen Caldwell, who has since become Marquise Moustiers and has fluttered the Catholic world by abjuring that faith, broke off the match because of his exorbitant demands were not met. "Do they think they can get a prince for the price of a German Graf?" this precious nobleman once remarked to his associates in a billiard room.

Huntington the "Hispanic."

WHAT is a "Hispanic society?" By waiting a little we may all find out; and I make the guess that it has to do with the cult of Spanish literature.

At any rate, Archer Huntington, adopted son of the late Collis P. Huntington, has now completed a gift of a million dollars for the beautiful building which the society is to have. The old railroad president had no children of his own. His adopted daughter became Princess Hatzfeldt after the humble fashion in which even the most haughty American can gain the name of princess. The elder son, Henry, has financial ability, and is concerned in the management of the Huntington properties. But Archer cares for nothing quite so much as for books and study. In his early days in California he laid the foundations of a knowledge of Spanish which is rarely matched by Americans.

Associated with Mr. Huntington in the society are Charles H. Tweed, Francis Lathrop, Isaac E. Gates and the Hillhouse brothers as charter members. The building is to be a beautiful Ionic temple near Riverside drive, with spacious grounds which represent the greater part of the expense. Not one of the founders has, so far as I know, any Spanish blood.

Woman Up To Date

The Resourceful Girl and the Loud Voiced Lady. A Spinster's Experiences With Man's Conceit

Who is the wisest and best of her sex?

The resourceful girl.

There are plenty of women who can accomplish results if they are given a lot of the finest material to work with; there are fewer who can do wonders with scant material, but the smallest number of all comprises those who can make almost any kind of success with what they have at hand.

Take the apparently small matter of "making a home." It's easy enough if you have a man back of you to pay the rent and sign checks, but when you are alone and can only afford one room, which must be your studio and workroom, your reception room and bedroom, your kitchen and dining room as well—what then?

The Way Out of Difficulties.

The ordinary girl would give up any idea of home and live in a hall bedroom in a boarding house where she could not receive her friends, but the resourceful girl manages both to live and to receive her friends in her little combination studio. What if the guest of honor is seated on the potato barrel artistically draped as a piano stool? He does not know or care. And if the highly ornate screen conceals a few pots and pans and a gas stove no one will be so rude as to pry. The box divan with its wealth of pillows is both wardrobe and bed, but who knows that? The artistic portiere does not conceal the entrance to another room, but merely the closet which the resourceful girl has converted into an ideal dressing room. And thus she lives at one-half the cost and in twice the comfort of the unresourceful maiden.

The Loud Voiced Creature.

I am wondering what process of regeneration the loud voiced woman will undergo in the next world, for surely the saints won't tolerate her in the midst of the eternal peace.

Whether you do or you don't wish it, you are simply forced to listen to her talk. Oftener than not it is about the most trivial domestic matters; sometimes, alas, it is about subjects which are of the utmost intimacy; hardly ever is it intellectual or even interesting. The street cars appear to be the ideal spots for such conversation, and all the passengers are the audience.

Sometimes, however, the fair speaker is not in ignorance of the carrying power of her voice, and you know it right away by the character of the conversation, such as:

"Ye-es, I really think they cook potatoes better at Delmonico's. I was there to lunch yesterday, and"—

"I saw a headdress like that at Mrs. Greatriches' ball. Such nice people, the Greatriches!"

And her hearers are duly impressed!

Masculine Conceit.

"I wonder if there are any limitations to masculine conceit," observed the sarcastic spinster. "I passed a man hobbling along on the ice, supporting himself in a painful manner with a crutch. Suddenly he made a misstep, and almost without thinking I stretched out my hand in pity, fearing he was going to fall. Just imagine how I felt when he recovered his balance and jauntily touched his hat, with a killing expression. But this is not the limit. The other evening in the car a very fat and sporty looking old gentleman, with one eye quite closed and a stout bandage over it, cheerfully ogled me out of his remaining orb all the way uptown!"

MAUD ROBINSON.

PRAYERS MISTAKEN FOR POKER TERMS.

Sounds That Resembled "Ante Up" Were Really Supplications for the Dead.

New York.—Detectives of the Eldridge street station will hereafter be asked to differentiate between the shouts of excited poker players and the sounds of prayers, as, according to the testimony in the Essex market court, they mistook the one for the other, thereby causing considerable expostulation in court.

A patrolman while in Chrystie street heard loud noises from No. 136 and told the precinct detectives that he believed "a big gambling game was on." The detectives hurried to the tenement house, and, after listening to the noise, raided the place.

Twelve men were found, all shouting and gesticulating. The sudden entry of the police threw them into confusion, and eight of them escaped. Four were arrested.

The police allege they found evidences of gambling in the shape of a set of dice and 22 cents which were on the mantel.

When arraigned in court Max Frank, in whose house the men were arrested, acted as spokesman.

"Your honor," he said, "my father died six months ago, and the Jewish religion says we must say 'Kaddish' for one year. All my friends and relatives came to my house each night and joined me in the 'Kaddish.'"

"'Kaddish?' What's that?" said Magistrate Pool.

"Kaddish," explained the prisoner, "means prayers for the dead. We were all bowed down in grief praying for my father when the police arrested us. I don't know why."

Detective Kramer took the center of the bridge at this point and in answer to questions said: "I heard loud shouting and sounds like 'ante up' and 'I win.'"

"Do you understand Hebrew?" asked the court.

He confessed he did not.

"Well, then," the court added, "you don't know whether these men were gambling or not. Men praying might shout 'Ante up' or 'Winnee' or 'Ikey' or anything else in Hebrew, and you might interpret it to mean some gambling term. I have to discharge them."

The detective was unable to speak before leaving the court, but spoke freely when he reached his station again.

CHILD ELOPERS WED AFTER A DARING TRIP

The Groom's Brother Coolly Falsifies the Bride's Age to Get Marriage License.

Cannesville, Ind.—Driving all night, crossing the Ohio in a skiff and completing their journey to this city by rail, two youthful elopers—Harry Reid, 19, and Victoria Welden, 15, both of Hebbardsville, Ky., were married here. Unwilling to wait until the girl was 18 and despairing of receiving parental consent they decided to elope.

The girl retired early at night and Reid came with a buggy at 11 o'clock after her parents were soundly asleep. They drove swiftly to the home of Reid's brother, Louis H. Reid at Stanley. Reid was told of the elopement and with E. W. Weddington agreed to accompany the couple to this city.

Louis Reid swore the girl was 19 and a license was granted without question. Clerk Webster, of the Ruston hotel, had been interested and the marriage was held in the parlor of the hotel by Justice Schradel. The girl admitted to the justice that she was only 15, but this was after the ceremony. She is pretty and does not look more than the 15 years she confessed.

Heard a Voice from Heaven.

Lexington, Ky.—By order of the chief of police Miss Minnie Johnson was arrested the other day. She stood with the Salvation Army in bare feet despite the frigidity of the weather. No charge has been placed against her.

Chief Reagan expressed the opinion that it was a discredit to the city to permit a woman to stand on the streets in bare feet. When questioned she stated that she had discarded shoes at the command of a voice from Heaven, which told her to imitate Christ by going about preaching barefooted.

Eggs Fresh Eight Months.

Tacoma, Wash.—A process intended to revolutionize the cold storage egg business has been perfected by two men. While the features of the process are kept secret, it is asserted that after eight months' treatment the eggs have been found as fresh as when they were packed away last spring.

AN INJURED HEROINE RIDES WILDLY FOR AID

Western Girl, Suffering Intense Pain, Saves Her Companion's Life by Desperate Gallop.

Whittier, Cal.—With a broken hip and her leg splintered by the kick of a terrified horse, Jessie Grey, a student in the Woodbury business college of Los Angeles, rode two miles over the hills to bring aid to Lester Seimon, her companion, who lay in the road helpless and unconscious from the kick of the runaway horse.

While they were climbing a hill in La Habra valley, east of here, the horse attached to the buggy became frightened and ran away. The horse slipped and the buggy started back down the grade. In his efforts to regain his feet the horse demolished the dashboard and overturned the rig.

Seimon sprang in front of the girl to shield her. One hoof crashed into his chest and another fractured his spinal column. He fell over unconscious, and as the vehicle was overturned the steel shoes of the horse lacerated Miss Grey's face, fractured her leg and broke her hip bone. As she raised herself from the road she beheld her companion lying as if in death. Believing him dead, she struggled to her feet and by a heroic effort limped down the road and called for help. In the distance she saw a sheep herder, but the man was unable to speak English and could not understand her. Finally, in despair, she pulled herself on to the herder's horse and rode down the valley at a furious pace. Two miles away she found men whom she told of the accident and help was hurried to the stricken boy.

WEDS FOUR TIMES; PAYS BIG ALIMONY.

A Millionaire Cattleman of Kansas Has Several Expensive Matrimonial Experiences.

Wicita, Kan.—George Theis, a millionaire cattleman and banker of Ashland, who was married three times to his first wife and divorced as often, was married again here a few days ago to Miss Jennie Michael, also of Ashland. Mr. Theis' matrimonial experiences have been as expensive as they have been numerous, and his first wife now lives as a princess in Kansas City. He was married to her when quite young, and two children were born to them. About five years after his first marriage his wife sued for a divorce, which was granted, together with judgment for $20,000. The money was paid and Mrs. Theis moved to Kansas City.

The children succeeded in bringing them together again, and they were again married about a year after the divorce was granted. Another separation came with a second divorce and a second $20,000. They were again reunited about two years ago with an elaborate ceremony in Kansas. Within six months, however, another separation came, and the third divorce was granted. No alimony was asked, but Mr. Theis voluntarily gave the divorced woman a draft for $20,000.

Mr. Theis became acquainted with a Miss Michael, a young school-teacher in the Ashland schools, and they arranged to marry in Wichita. After the ceremony here the couple left for St. Louis and will take an extensive bridal tour. The tour includes Winnipeg, Victoria and all points of interest on the Pacific coast, Mexico, Cuba and Florida, and return via New Orleans for Mardi Gras next spring.

Woman Fireman Smokes Like Man.

Harrisburg, Pa.—A woman fireman, who stokes boilers in the day and is relieved by her husband at night, and who chews and smokes tobacco, is one of the novelties at the public filtration plant in course of construction on Hargest Island, in the Susquehanna river, opposite Harrisburg.

This woman, who does a man's work, is Mrs. Annie Beixel, wife of Arthur Beixel, and between them they keep the engine going that pumps the water from the ditches and furnishes it to the concrete mixers.

Beixel and his wife occupy a small shed on the island, and before starting work in the morning the woman prepares breakfast and does the necessary housework. Her wages are collected by her husband, and both are pooled for mutual benefit.

Plenty of Flowers.

All the hospitals and almshouses in Berlin are regularly supplied with fresh flowers from the public gardens, while twice a week each of the national schools receives from 100 to 150 specimens of four different kinds of plants for use at botany lessons.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MRS. DUKE LEFT.

Union Square Hotel Proprietors Are Tired of Notoriety.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Brodie L. Duke, who is said to be under indictment in Texas and whose husband is claimed to be sane, although in the Amityville asylum, was ordered out of the Union Square hotel by Frank Schaefer, one of the proprietors. Mr. Schaefer got tired of having an army of private detectives around his place and told Mrs. Duke that she would have to move on.

Instead of moving Mrs. Duke locked herself in her room and refused to let Mr. Schaefer or any one else come near her. Earlier in the day she had had a Dr. Cook in to see her, and he had told the hotel people that she was on the verge of nervous prostration and must not be disturbed.

The hotel people were trying to figure out some way to get Mrs. Duke out when Dr. Maurice Sturm, the Harlem physician who has been a conspicuous figure in the Duke tangle, arrived at the hotel. He asked for Mrs. Duke, and a boy went to notify her of his presence.

The hotel people followed, meaning to see that the door was not locked again. When they got to the room, they found that Mrs. Duke had quietly left by the back stairs. She told a maid that she was going downstairs and that she would be back later.

One Mormon, One Gentile, as Senator.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Judge William M. McCarty of the supreme court of Utah, a witness called for the defense in the Smoot investigation, declared that there was a tacit understanding in Utah that one senator should be a Mormon and one a gentile. He said gentiles realized that if the Mormons should unite they could control and keep gentiles off the ticket and, therefore, gentiles were apprehensive until they knew whether they were to get Mormon support. The judge said it was his opinion that too much importance was attached to the church as a political factor and that as a matter of fact there was little interference.

No Room For Foreign Junk.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Gessler Rosseau, who has confessed that he is the man who attempted to blow up the steamship Umbria and the statue of Frederick the Great, will be brought to this city from Philadelphia within a few days. When spoken to on the subject of the Frederick the Great statue incident in Washington, he said: "I had no special reason for destroying the statue; but I believe there is no room in this country for any such foreign junk. The machine which went off there was loaded with twenty-six pounds of high power dynamite. That was enough for the purpose."

Fatal Wreck on Santa Fe Road.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 17.—L. L. West, an express messenger, was killed and thirteen persons were injured in the wreck of a northbound Santa Fe train near Derby. The injured persons all live in the west. Express Messenger West jumped and was killed. Messenger Shafer tried to jump, but a boxed corpse in the express car fell on him, crushing his breast. The train was running thirty miles an hour at the curve when the tender left the track, followed by the entire train of four cars, which fell down an embankment.

HELD BOYS' SOCIAL IN A CHURCH CEMETERY

Western Sunday School Scholars Enjoyed This Ghostly Sort of Amusement.

Aberdeen, Wash.—A cemetery seems a most unpropitious place in which to hold an evening party, yet a cemetery was selected by George Nye as the place in which to hold a social gathering, attended by 13 of his Sunday school pupils, and the boys enjoyed themselves exceedingly.

The originator of the entertainment, George Nye, issued invitations to his cemetery party with the object of testing the courage of the lads.

From those who accepted he selected 13 and took them to the cemetery late in the evening. It was a dark, rainy night, just the kind of weather for ghosts to enjoy promenades, and it is said by some that numberless shadowy, phantom forms could be plainly described gliding over the wet grounds and the moss-covered grave stones. Ghost stories galore were exchanged by the boys, who displayed great courage, notwithstanding the fact that some of the tales were extremely weird. After a lunch was served at the cemetery, Mr. Nye, accompanied by his 13 guests, returned to town.

HID HIS MONEY AND DIED IN SQUALOR.

An Old Hermit Gunsmith Concealed $5,120 in Bills in Crevice in His Little Work Shop.

Kansas City.—The sum of $5,120 has been turned over to the probate court by Charles Roll. The hermit goldsmith of 18 East Missouri avenue had hidden it in a crevice beneath the show case of his store, which he owned when he died.

Theodore Stock was the right name of the old hermit and miser, but he was known here as George C. Miller. Thirty-five years ago, on account of some domestic trouble, he left his wife and four daughters in St. Louis and came to Kansas City. He opened a little store on the corner where the big Nelson building is. Later he moved half a block west, and again moved to 18 East Missouri avenue. He died at the German hospital the other day.

Stock lived in extreme penury. He dressed poorly and ate barely enough to keep him alive. When he died it was supposed that he had saved considerable money. Charles Roll was appointed administrator of his estate and W. H. Corcoran, M. Bridges and William Hintche were appointed to help appraise Stock's property. They found $1,662 on deposit in bank, the stock in the store was worth only a few dollars, but in a very old and dirty purse hidden between the showcase and the table upon which it stood was found $5,120 in bills.

The heirs of Mr. Stock who will inherit his money are Sophia Stock, his widow, of Great Bend, Kan., and four daughters—Mrs. Lena Neins, San Jose, Cal.; Mrs. Louise Moses, Great Bend, Kan.; Mrs. Julia Easley, San Jose, Cal., and Mrs. Carrie Sears, Sedalia, Mo.

The little shop on Missouri avenue where Stock lived alone was filled with junk of all kinds. When friends found the aged man sick he was lying upon an old cot at the end of the shop and had had nothing to eat or drink for some time. He would not tell how long he had been in that condition.

Played Stud Poker in Short Pants.

Huntington, W. Va.—From a tip given the police by the mother of a boy belonging to a prominent family the police raided an alleged gambling establishment behind Will Damron's saloon and arrested five boys of 14 years and under, all of respectable families. When the police entered the place, they say, they found seven boys in knickerbockers playing "stud" poker dealt by "Finn" Wilson, who has long been suspected by the police of enticing boys to gamble.

Two boys escaped through a window, while the others were taken into custody and later released on bond given by their relatives. Wilson, in default of $500 bond, was committed to jail.

The parents of the boys arrested say they will resort to every means to have him receive the full penalty of the law.

Rich Miner Seeks Sisters.

West Chester, Pa.—Frederick Zahnd, of Colorado, once committed to the county prison as a pauper, has since his departure seven years ago "struck it rich" in the Colorado gold mines. He returned here last week in search of his three sisters, who were once unfortunate as he. He hopes to find them before he returns to the west. Zahnd is now owner of a mine which is yielding a large income for himself and father.

PARTY AGREES UPON KEAN FOR U. S. SENATE

AT CAUCUS UNANIMOUSLY SELECT HIM FOR RE-ELECTION.

The Republican and Democratic members of the Legislature caucused at Trenton last night on candidates for the United States Senate, and the Republicans agreed unanimously to re-elect Senator John Kean, there being no other candidates. The minority caucus developed a contest between former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark, and Col. Edwin A. Stevens, of Hoboken. Col. Stevens, having the unanimous support of the Hudson delegation, was chosen.

After the caucus, Senators Kean held a reception, which was attended by nearly all of the members of the Legislature, State officials and many guests who had come to Trenton for the inauguration.

FORMER P. H. S. PLAYERS DEFEATED BY 1905 TEAM

ALUMNI PROVED INFERIOR IN BASKET BALL TO PRESENT REPRESENTATIVES.

Better in team work and in accuracy, the undergraduates proved superior to the graduates, last night, and the Plainfield High School alumni found themselves lagging alone behind the representatives of their Alma Mater to the doleful strains of 27 to 10. It was a good basketball game, however, as the has-beens and "wunce-wuzzers" of the P. H. S. displayed remarkable agility in their old age, and though out of practice made the game far from a walk over.

Miner and Shepherd, of the alumni team, played a strong game, guarding well, while Gavett, of the present organization, had an epidemic of foul throwing. In this respect his accuracy made many points for his team, which were freely given by the numerous fouls which were recorded to the "would-be's."

This was the line up and detailed score of the match: P. H. S.—Thompson and Smith, forwards; Freeman, center; Gavett and Stutsman, guards. Alumni team—Shepherd and Long, forwards; Anderson, center; Manning and Miner, guards. Goals from the field—Thompson, 4; Smith, 6; Miner, 3; Manning, 2. Goals from fouls—Gavett, 5.

SNAP SHOTS.

Locomotive No. 638, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, made its initial trip by taking the Scranton Flyer to New York on Friday. This locomotive is one of forty new ones which have just been received by the Central Railroad, which were made by the Brooks Locomotive Works, of Dunkirk, N. Y. Each weighs 143 tons and have six large driving wheels and are built not so much for speed as for hauling long and heavy passenger trains over the steep mountain grades coming over the mountains from Wilkesbarre. They are built on the same plan as the Central's fast freight locomotives, but are not so heavy, the freight locomotives weighing 186 tons. The passenger engines are of a handsome design and are powerful. The fastest passenger locomotive on the Central is No. 581, which takes the "Queen of the Valley" Express from Allentown to New York city. This locomotive has run a mile in 38 seconds. Another feature of this locomotive is the fact that its speed to its fullest capacity has never been tested.

Governor-elect Edward C. Stokes, the fortieth State Executive since the adoption of the State Constitution, is the sixth bachelor to administer the affairs of State in New Jersey, says the Trenton Advertiser. The first Governor to assume the reins of office before taking a partner in life was Mahlon Dickerson, a Democrat. He was Governor from 1815 to 1816. Governor Dickerson was of English extraction and a lawyer of remarkable ability. He died at the age of eighty-two, leaving no descendants to inherit an immense fortune. Governor Elias P. Seeley, a Whig, was a bachelor. Governor Seeley was chosen Governor at a joint meeting in 1843 and held office one year. He died in 1846, in the fifty-fifth year of his age. Philemon Dickerson, a brother of Governor Mahlon Dickerson, also ascended to the executive chair single-handed in 1836, holding office only one year. He died in 1862. A period of sixty-two years elapsed before New Jersey again elected a bachelor Governor. Foster M. Voorhees was the next to set the feminine world aflame, asking, "Why doesn't he marry?" He is still single. David O. Watkins, another of New Jersey's political bachelors, became acting Governor of New Jersey when acting Governor Voorhees resigned to accept the nomination for Governor on the Republican ticket. Mr. Watkins was speaker of the House of Assembly at the time and thereby became the Governor. He has since married. Previous to the adoption of the Constitution and when New Jersey was a British colony, William Franklin, a son of Benjamin Franklin, was appointed Governor before he had reached his majority and while he was in college in London. This was in 1763, and upon hearing of his appointment he married and set sail for America. He was the last of the royal Governors.—Newark News.

AMUSEMENTS.

Every performance at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, of "Leah Kleschna" by Mrs. Fiske and the surpassing Manhattan Company is given before a large and brilliant audience. The Manhattan, in fact, is steadily crowded, by the very best class of theatre patrons that the metropolis can show, for there is no dramatic entertainment in that city that can compare with this powerful and original drama by C. M. S. McLellan, and there has been no dramatic company in New York in years that in high and diversified abilities could parallel the fine organization that Harrison Grey Fiske has gathered to support Mrs. Fiske. Several critics have declared, in fact, that there is no company in any European capital that is superior to the Manhattan Company, and when one reflects upon what such a statement means one arrives at an explanation of the great success of "Leah Kleschna" in such hands.

GREETED THEIR PASTOR

Church Members Give Reception to Dr. and Mrs. Chambliss.

AT FIRST BAPTIST

Affair Marks the Beginning of the Clergyman's Second Year With the Congregation—Large Attendance.

The second annual reception given to Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss by the members of the First Baptist church and congregation, last night, was in every way a social success. It also marked the beginning of the permanent pastorate of Dr. Chambliss, which was announced but a short time ago. A year ago Dr. Chambliss assumed the pastorate for one year, and at the expiration of that time at the earnest solicitation of his people he gladly consented to continue in his position for an indefinite time.

There was a large gathering of members of the church and the social features were fully enjoyed. During the hours of the reception the Sagamore Musical Club, under the leadership of Chester Briggs, discoursed a programme of lively airs, frequently responding to encores.

The Sunday school rooms, where the affair was held, were attractively decorated with flowers and palms and there were many cosy corners decorated with fancy draperies and small pillows. The small incandescent electric lights were shaded with various colors, while in the tea room the table was garnished with small banquet lamps. There were also used in smaller rooms for decoration numerous rugs and settees.

The reception was held from 8 to 11 o'clock and during those hours the Sunday-school rooms were thronged with people, including many out-of-town visitors.

Receivnig with Dr. and Mrs. Chambliss was their daughter, Mrs. G. H. Caperton, of Fire Creek, West Virginia; Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, and Mrs. Musson, Miss Ida Yerkes, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor-emeritus, together with the deacons, trustees and their wives.

Mrs. Oliver B. Leonard was the general chairman of the affair and under her direction were these committees: Refreshment—Mrs. Harold Serrell, chairman; Mrs. George H. Batchelor, Mrs. Stephen B. Joseph, Mrs. Walter O. Debbins, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. Zook, Mrs. George Robins. In the tea room Mrs. Hannah Flanders and Miss Ida Yerkes poured. Decoration—Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, chairman; Mrs. Charles W. Mc Cutchen, Mrs. Walter M. McGee, Miss Florence Marsh, Miss Pauline Denton, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Mrs. George White and Mrs. DeWitt C. Brokaw. Music—Mrs. Robert L. Lowry and Mrs. DeWitt C. Brokaw. Solicitation—Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. J. A. Powlison. Treasurer, Miss Susan Rafferty. The waitresses were Miss Helen Robins, Miss Bertha Manning, Miss Bertha Miles, Miss Bessie Ten Eyck, Miss Pauline Denton, Miss Bessie Flanders, Miss Marguerite Lee, Miss Wood, Miss Helen Armstrong, Miss Mabel Cook, Miss Katherine Miller, Miss Minnie Serrell, Miss Marguerite Serrell, Miss Josephine Serrell, Miss Velma Oakley, Miss Helen Adams, Miss Ada Fountain, Miss Annis Kinsman and Miss Eleanor Woodcock.

DESERVING TRIBUTE TO DR. PARKS' MEMORY

SCOTCH PLAINS BAPTIST CHURCH FILLED WITH RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

Deserving tribute was paid to the memory of Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks at his funeral services held in the Scotch Plains Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. The large edifice was filled with friends and neighbors. There was no funeral discourse, but remarks were made by Rev. T. Moore Smith, pastor of the church, who was in charge; Rev. G. M. Shett, a former pastor; Rev. Enoch Fullaway, a lifelong friend of Dr. Parks, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Mr. Mulford, of All Saints' Episcopal church.

Mr. Moore in speaking of Dr. Parks, said that no one gave him a more cordial welcome when he assumed the pastorate of the church and he felt better for his acquaintance with him. Mr. Fullaway said: "My friendship with him was that of an elder brother, for thirty years his spiritual help has been with me. He is not dead and to the dear ones who are left I say it will only be a short time when there will be a grand family reunion.

The floral tributes completely covered the casket, the several societies of the church, as well as Fanwood Council, Royal Arcanum, Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, Exempt Firemen's Association and friends all sending flowers. During the service a quartette comprising Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, contralto; R. Wilson Derby, bass, and E. D. Cutting, tenor, sang "He Leadeth Me," "The Lord is Mindful of His Own," "How Firm a Foundation," and "Forever With the Lord."

The pall-bearers were from the church—David Hand, A. D. Beekon; F. W. Hoppell; from Royal Arcanum—J. E. Ruth, John Robinson and John Bernman. Interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church.

WARREN TOWNSHIP WANTS GRADED SCHOOL

QUESTION OF APPROPRIATING MONEY TO BE DISCUSSED SATURDAY.

The question of appropriating more money for school purposes in Warren township will be agitated at a meeting of taxpayers to be held in Fairview Hall, Mt. Bethel, on Saturday night. A vote will also be taken to give the township authorities the privilege of raising an increased amount. Among the speakers secured for the meeting are Judge L. H. Schenck, S. S. Swackhamer, Esq., Prof. Krebs and Dr. Richard Meidenke. They will speak in favor of increasing the annual appropriation.

The amount now allowed for school purposes in the township is insufficient, allowing teachers the small salary of $35 a month. The idea is to increase this at least $10 if possible. Another desired improvement is that of establishing a graded school, something that the township has never had. This will necessitate the erection of a new school with vastly improved conditions. The opinion seems to be that the township will vote more school money and will be in favor of a new school building.

Library Call Heeded.

The first fruits of the library's recent attempts to secure local historical matter are the complete reports of the Muhlenberg Hospital, handsomely bound. These were presented by the hospital to the library. There have also been received the last report of the city treasurer, and the last report of the committee on streets and sewers. This is just the sort of material that the library wants to secure, and it is hoped that all city officials, and secretaries of societies, etc., will interest themselves sufficiently in this matter to see that complete files of the reports of the committees or secretaries which they represent are on file at the library.

A SPECIAL ELECTION

Bill to Fill Assembly Vacancies Passed Yesterday.

DATE FEBRUARY 7

Introduced by Mr. Duffield Measure is Quickly Adopted by Both Houses.

Under suspension of the rules, Assembly bill No. 18, amending the general election act so that elections to fill the vacancies in the Assembly in Union and Sussex counties can be held without entailing the expense of a primary election, was railroaded through the Legislature at a short session held yesterday morning before the inaugural ceremonies.

The House met at 11:30 and Assemblyman Duffield immediately introduced the bill, which, on motion, was reported without reference, advanced to second and third readings and passed by a vote of 52 to 0.

In advocating the immediate passage of the bill Mr. Duffield said that while no written opinion had been received from the attorney general that official had rendered a verbal one that the House had no discretion in the matter, but must issue writs of election, the constitution being mandatory. It, therefore, became necessary, he stated, for the Assembly to issue the writs to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Assemblymen-elect George H. Embree, of Union county, and Jackson R. Decker, of Sussex county.

Speaking further, Mr. Duffield stated that it had been discovered that primary elections would have to be held in order to comply with the requirements of the election law, which would make the choice of new assemblymen a very expensive matter to the counties affected. So, he said, the bill had been introduced to meet the difficulty. He explained the act and stated that it had no provisions whatever but those intended to solve the present emergency. He asked that the typewritten copy be made the official copy, and that the bill be passed at once under suspension of the rules, which was done.

The House then issued writs of election fixing February 7 as the date for holding the elections to fill the vacancies. The bill and the writs were immediately sent to the Senate and at 11:30 a resolution was adopted that when the House adjourn it be to Friday.

The Senate was called to order at 11 a. m., and Assembly bill 18 coming from the House, Mr. Bradley moved that the rules be suspended and the bill be placed on final passage. The motion prevailed and the bill passed unanimously. Mr. Horner, Rep., explained that he thought it was conferring too much power on the county committee, but being an emergency bill, he consented to vote for it.

MOODY RETIRES FROM COUNTY CHAIRMANSHIP

DEMOCRATS ELECT JOHN L. CROWELL TO DIRECT AFFAINS IN UNION.

Following the unsuccessful efforts of the Union County Democrats to elect their ticket last fall, considerable dissatisfaction was expressed regarding the head of the county executive committee, John L. Moody, of Cranford. This dissatisfaction has resulted in his retirement from the committee and the election of John L. Crowell, of Rahway, in his place Everyone admits that Mr. Moody worked hard for the success of the ticket, but a division of opinion of the methods employed in the last campaign caused a split in the leaders of the party and Mr. Crowell was chosen.

Just what effect this will have for the present among the Democrats at this end of the county is not known, for it was generally conceded that they favored Mr. Moody. It is understood that the meeting of the county committee a few nights ago was a lively one. With the reorganization of the committee no doubt new plans will be adopted for the future work in the county.

An Unexpected Visit.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of East Front street, are entertaining their daughter, Mrs. G. H. Caperton, of Fire Creek, West Virginia. She gave her parents a surprise by unexpectedly coming North in time to attend the reception given them at the First Baptist church last night. Mrs. Caperton's husband is a very prosperous coal operator at Fire Creek, being the owner of five mines.

TRACK INSPECTOR KILLED

Peter Mohan Meets Death on Central's Tracks at Dunellen.

STRUCK BY EXPRESS

Had Been Employed by Railroad for the Past Thirty Years—Leaves Widow and Seven Children.

Stepping from behind one train directly in front of another, Peter Mohan, one of the best known residents of Dunellen and widely acquainted in this city, was struck and instantly killed on the New Jersey Central just east of the Washington avenue crossing shortly after 6 o'clock last evening. The body was found a few moments later with the skull crushed and limbs broken, having been thrown to one side, thus escaping the wheels.

Mohan was fifty-thee years old and for the past thirty years had been employed by the Central as track inspector. He was just about to go on duty last evening and was hurrying toward the Dunellen round house when the accident occurred. Several friends noticed him waiting for a train to pass and recalled afterward that a fast express had dashed by at about the same moment. Mohan was extremely careful about punctuality and it is thought in his eagerness to be at his station on time that he failed to notice the approach of the second train.

As a Dunellen citizen he was widely respected and the Central numbered him among its most faithful employes. Surviving him are a widow and seven children, most of the latter being in their majority. He was a brother to Owen Mohan, the well known Dunellen marshal, who is also a railroad man, having charge of the Dunellen section gang.

The county physician viewed the body last night and granted a burial premit. The funeral services will be held from his late home Friday at 8:45, and from St. John's R. C. Church, Dunellen, at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

WANT UNIFORMITY IN BUILDING LINES

MATTER UNDER CONSIDERATION BY MAYOR AND STREET COMMITTEE.

In view of the activity in building in the business section of the city, Mayor J. F. Buckle and R. I. Tolles, chairman of the street committee, are interesting themselves regarding the question of building lines. One of the first cases to come up is that in reference to the improvements which W. R. Codington proposes to make to his brick building on West Second street, near Park avenue. Unfortunately, the Common Council has not generally defined by ordinance building lines in the business section and it is now a matter which calls for prompt action if there is to be a uniformity in the construction of new buildings or the remodelling of old ones.

Mr. Codington is planning to extend his building toward the street a distance of about four feet. This would not be on a line with the Martin buildig, adjoining, but it is believed it will be nearer an imaginary line which will probably be made permanent. It will be up to the Common Council to define a line for the new building to be erected by The Plainfield Trust Company, and the other new buildings to be erected alongside of it on Park avenue, as well as others that may be built on West Second street. The Mayor, as well as Mr. Tolles realize the importance of establishing proper building lines to govern all future work, both new and old, and no doubt the matter will receive early attention on the part of the Common Council, as there will be considerable building during the coming year.

Provisions of this kind were made for East and West Front street, between Watchung avenue and New street, especially at the request of L. L. Manning, who will erect a new building corner of West Front street and Central avenue, but there are other streets in the business part of the town not affected.

—The case of David Arthur against George Hartfelder, on contract, is returnable before Justice Smalley on Friday morning at 10 o'clock. W. G. DeMeza rperesents the plaintiff and F. J. Blatz is the lawyer for the defendant.

M'ALL BIRTHDAY PARTY

Delightful Event at Home of Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth.

FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK

Interesting Accounts of the Work in France Given by Miss Alletta Lent and Mrs. Frank Kelley.

In accordance with the annual custom and in observance of the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the McAll Auxiliary work in Belleville, Paris, by Dr. McAll, the members of the Plainfield branch gave a delightful birthday party yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William B. Wadsworth, of West Eighth street. There were about 150 members and friends of the auxiliary present to enjoy a most excellent programme and the social features.

It was thirty years ago that Dr. McAll inaugurated the work which has resulted in the accomplishment of so much good throughout France, and the American Auxiliary is a large contributor to this work. During the afternoon Miss Aletta Lent, of New York, and Mrs. Frank Kelley, of Elizabeth, gave most interesting accounts of the work in France, telling of the urgent needs and of the progress being made at the various missions. Miss Lent and Mrs. Kelley are both directors of the American Auxiliary and Miss Lent is also treasurer of the New York auxiliary. An excellent report was also given by Mrs. F. G. Mead, president of the local auxiliary, of the work at Limoges, France, where the Plainfield members are supporting a mission.

After the addresses there was a charming musical programme. Mrs. William L. Saunders sang a solo and there were vocal selections by Mrs. George S. Ring and Miss Hubbell. Mrs. George A. Strong accompanied on the piano.

Following the musical tea was served. Those presiding at the table were Mrs. Isaac W. Miller, Mrs. F. O. Herring, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, assisting in the dining room were Miss Elsie Harman, Miss Helen Harman, Miss Helen Lee, Miss Matie Wadsworth, Miss Ethel Miller, Miss Louise Jenkins, Mrs. Frank B. Clark and Mrs. Arthur Murphy.

In sending out invitations to the birthday party, small envelopes accompanied each, the recipient being supposed to contribute something toward the work of the auxiliary. From this source about $100 was received. During the affair Mrs. William M. Stillman distributed literature telling of the work.

It is the wish of the members that all those attending the party yesterday be present at the monthly meeting of the auxiliary held the first Wednesday in each month at the Public Library.

NEW DISTRICT MAY SOLVE SCHOOL PROBLEM

PISCATAWAY BOARD MAKES APPEAL TO STATE AUTHORITIES.

The Piscataway township Board of Education has sent a letter to the State authorities at Trenton, requesting that a division be made in the school district, the boundary of which will be the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The request is that all pupils living north of the Lehigh Valley tracks, that is toward the borough of Dunellen, shall be allowed to attend school permanently at Dunellen.

This, as the citizens of New Market hope, may prove a solution to the school problem which is at the present time puzzling the township. If the pupils, who live on the other side of the track attended school at Dunellen, a smaller school could be built in New Market, which would accommodate the remainder of the children. It would cut down the expense which led to the open meeting and widespread discussion a short time ago.

Kaltenborn's Coming.

Without doubt the finest instrumental concert of the season will be given as the last of the Miller course at the Casino, tomorrow evening, when that splendid organization known as the Kaltenborn String Quartette appears. The programme is to include quartettes by Haydn, Tschaikowsky, Schubert and other great masters. Solos for violin, 'cello and viola, trios, duos, etc., will make up a great list of pieces. The assisting soprano soloist, Miss Duthie, has a voice of great range and purity of tone.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER PERHAPS FATALLY HURT

GEORGE B. TENNANT SUSTAINS FRACTURED SKULL IN STREET BRAWL.

George Bremner Tennant, a postgraduate student at Yale who is widely known in Plainfield, having taught in the Cedarcroft School on Park avenue for three years, and whose home is in Waterbury, Conn., is in the Yale Infirmary at New Haven dying of a fractured skull. His eyes are blackened and his condition indicates that he is the victim of an assault. The case is surrounded with mystery. The only man known who can tell anything about it is R. Harman Ashley, an assistant instructor in chemistry.

Tennant and Ashley live in No. 722 West Divinity Hall, on the Yale campus. At 12:30 Sunday morning a Japanese student who rooms across the hall heard a commotion and, looking out, saw Ashley and another man leading Tennant into his room.

The janitor was not allowed to enter the room Monday. Yesterday a closed carriage took Tennant to the Yale Infirmary. An examination of his room revealed bloodstains on his bed. To the janitor Ashley said that Tennant had fallen on the ice and hurt his head. He did not explain the bruises on his face and eyes. The janitor declared that Ashley's eyes were also blackened.

Roomers in East Divinity Hall at midnight Saturday heard the noise of a brawl in College street, near the hall. They heard threats to kill and blows struck. There was also a sound as of a body falling. Then they heard the sound of parties scurrying through the court-yard of the dormitory, and all was silence.

Today it was learned that Tennant and Ashley came out of the Cafe Boulevard, a student resort, shortly before midnight Saturday. They met some unknown parties, and there was a street fight near the cafe.

Ashley refused to make any statement.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR ROAD COMMISSIONER

MEEKER NOT THE ONLY ONE WHO SEEKS THE APPOINTMENT.

According to news despatches sent out from Trenton, candidates for the appointment to succeed the late Henry I. Budd, State supervisor of roads, are already numerous. In addition to Robert A. Meeker, of this city, who is regarded as the most likely successor, there are three other Jerseymen who are seeking the office.

One of these is Assemblyman Benjamin D. Shedaker, of Burlington, who announced himself as a candidate for the office at the expiration of Mr Budd's term, which would have been this spring. He comes from the same county as Mr. Budd did, and as the latter has held the position ever since it was created, in 1895, it was considered that Mr. Shedaker had a chance of succeeding him.

Former Assemblyman Joseph B. Crispen, who represented Salem in the Legislatures of '97 and '98, and was the author of the bill which permitted the erection of trolley poles in front of property without the consent of the owner, which was passed to meet a case in East Orange, is another candidate who thinks that the place should go to South Jersey. Monmouth has a candidate in former Assemblyman Samuel W. Kirkbridge, of Asbury Park. Mr. Kirkbridge has many warm supporters and is considered a formidable candidate.

The office is considered a desirable one, and it is for three years, at $2,500, and the work is congenial.

Taylor, George Stillwell, Lewis A. Thompson, John G. Gaston, John J. Kline, Nelson Y. Dungan, James L. Griggs. Organization was effected thus: President, J. N. Vanderbeek; vice president, John G. Gaston; cashier, William H. Taylor.

A Floating Rumor.

Former Senator Charles A. Reed denies the report from Washington that he is interested in a submarine boat. Perhaps the rumor was started from the knowledge that Reed is an expert worker under the surface.—Newark News.

BALL PLAYERS ARRIVE

First of Coming Season's Local Team Now in Town.

OTHERS ON THE WAY

Advance Guard Consists of Pitcher McCabe and Second Baseman Mundy, Both of Pennsylvania.

The advance guard of the new base ball team that is to represent the Plainfield Baseball Association on the diamond this season, arrived here yesterday. They are Charles Mundy, second baseman, of Wilkesbarre, and McCabe, pitcher, of Wilkesbarre and Shamokin, Pa. They at once joined the Y. M. C. A. and will, together with Beisel, formerly of Brandywine, Pa., also a pitcher, will commence training to get in condition for the opening game to be played the last of April or the first of May.

McCabe, who is expected to do most of the twirling, provided he proves his reputation, which is of the best, is a tall, muscular chap, built on the lines of an athlete. Last season he won most of the victories for his team at Shamokin and in Wilkesbarre. He has a generous assortment of deceptive curves, that have always fooled the best batsmen, and is considered one of the best fielding pitchers in the semi-professional class.

Mundy has been playing second base for the Wilkesbarre team for several seasons and is rated as one of the fastest men in the infield, besides being especially strong with the stick. He had a batting average of about 300 last season. He is also reported to be an exceptionally fast base-runner.

Manager Woolston expects several more players here within a few days and they will begin to get in shape for play. He expects to have Brown, now of the Bloomsbury State Normal School, for first base, and his record is of the best, both as a baseman and a hitter. The majority, if not all of the members of the team, will come from Pennsylvania, and they have not been engaged without a good knowledge of their ability.

In nearly every one the players are heavy stickers, something that was lacking in last season's team, and with this advantage they are fast fielders. Manager Woolston in getting his team together will engage the players by the month and in addition to playing here on Saturdays and an occasional mid-week game, they will probably play away from home on Sundays. As the other players arrive here Mr. Woolston will announce the fact.

An idea of the ability of McCabe, the pitcher, can be learned from the fact that he defeated the All-Cubans, the Philadelphia Giants, Wilmington and many other teams of equal strength last season. Both he and Mundy are much pleased with Plainfield and believe that they will like it here. Aside from playing ball the team will be otherwise engaged here at their trades.

An Epidemic of Measles.

The local physicians report quite an epidemic of measles among the children in the public schools and the school physicians have been kept busy of late watching for the first symptoms of the disease. In some cases among the young children, the physicians have sent pupils home for a few days to await developments, rather than cause a general outbreak of the disease. The trouble is confined almost entirely to the youngest pupils in the schools.

Completes a Medical Work.

Dr. H. Worthington Paige, of New York, a son-in-law of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of West Seventh street, has just completed an interesting work on diseases of the lungs, bronchi and pleura. Dr. Paige has been practicing in the New York hospitals for several years and is a lecturer of note on theory and practice of medicine in the New York Homoeopathic Medical College and Hospital.

Well-Known Contractor Dead.

John Rehill, aged sixty-nine, died at his home in East Somerville, yesterday, from Bright's disease. Years ago, with several brothers, he conducted a large contracting business, and had handled numerous contracts in Plainfield. A son and two daughters survive. The funeral will be held Friday.

No Respecter of Persons.

The common malady, the grip, has taken a good hold of the carrier staff of The Daily Press office, among those detained at home being Leslie Hamilton, of Verdon street; Pierson Bailey, of Duer street; Allen Dimon, of Lincoln place, and Augustus Stephany, of Summit avenue.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The coal that TenEyck & Harris sell is noted for being clean, and giving the most heat with the least possible waste. Try it and be convinced.

If Dudley Miller, the Park avenue druggist, compounds your prescriptions you can rest assured that they will contain pure drugs and the prices will not be exorbitant.

When in need of jewelry, silver or goldware, clocks, watches or diamonds, go to Charles E. Vail's store in Park avenue, and you will find a selection easy and the prices right.

Wiring for electric bells or electric lights easily proves worthless in a short time unless it is done in a thorough and a proper manner. W. H. Pope, the North avenue electrical contractor, guarantees all work he undertakes.

When you want good meat, go to the Grandview Meat Market, under the management of George Egel. There you will find the best cuts in all kinds of meat. Game and fowl in season are superior to all others at the Grandview market.

C. M. Nagle holds down an attractive corner at West Front street and Grove street with one of the best druggist establishments in the city. All his prescriptions are put up by graduate pharmacists, and are correctly and properly handled.

Buying a good cigar is like buying a suit of clothing—it must be the best every time. Eggerding's cigars are all good, yet he charges no more than others do for inferior grades. His store is located on Park avenue and is replete with smokers' materials.

J. W. VanSickle needs no introduction to Plainfield buyers. All who have known the pleasure of trading with a good butcher, have known VanSickle. It is indeed a treat to be able to know that what you get is good whether your order it in person, or over the wire.

Some persons can never save money and that is one of the principal reasons why the Dime Savings Institution is a great benefit to the community. It not only helps one to save their earnings, but a liberal interest is paid on all accounts. Better open an account today and begin the saving habit.

For a perfect delivery system of the best milk that can be procured in the county, William Lindsay is not to be excelled. His dairy products are recommended by physicians in preference to others. The business is aptly conducted, and a telephone call to the farm will bring an order of fresh milk promptly.

What's the matter with that necktie of yours? It was evidently not bought of Greer & Greenwood. They handle the most tasteful colors and styles. It doesn't pay to wear gentlemen's furnishings which attract attention because of their bad taste. Get your things at Greer & Greenwood and you will be rightly guided.

The credit system for securing clothing as inaugurated by Manager Adelberg, of the People's Credit Clothing Company, East Front street, has no disagreeable features and does not make the buyer chafe under the worry of paying. No security is needed and terms are always made to fit the occasion. Better open an account now as hundreds of others are doing.

It is the little details in a big establishment that make it popular and I. H. Boehm's department store on West Front street is an example. It has been a favorite place with the buying public for many years because courteous treatment, full values and prompt service are never found wanting. Proprietor Boehm is one of Plainfield's best known business men and it needs but a visit to his establishment to learn the reason.

If you trade with S. Schauer & Co., the West Front street grocers, you will find it very easy to save money. A glance through the firm's advertisement will give you a good idea of the large stock carried and the prevailing low prices. Besides extra trading stamps are given with nearly every purchase, making it easy to fill up a book. The quality of the goods sold at this store cannot be surpassed and you will find the meat department just the place to get choice cuts of beef at attractive prices.

FRANCIS LYNDE

AUTHOR OF OUR NEW SERIAL

THE GRAFTERS

THE BEST STORY OF ITS KIND PUBLISHED IN RECENT YEARS

Mr. Lynde has written some of the strongest of American novels, and into most of them he has put some thought problem, has taught some lesson, but never in a way that has detracted from his story as a story. So it is with "The Grafters." It is an expose of the ways of unscrupulous politicians, of whom we have heard so much in the past year or so.

The very theme of the story pronounces "The Grafters" a strong story, and to the theme is added an abundance of "go," a charming romance, many hair-raising incidents, and unsual literary merits. It is the kind of a story in the perusal of which the reader will always be looking for the next installment.

The opening chapters of this strong story will appear in these columns within a short time. It will pay you to watch for them.

MONTE A WINNER.

Feature at New Orleans Was Defeat of Ascot Belle In Third Race.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18.—Favorites fared as badly on a fast track here as they did in the deep going of a few days ago. Lineal and Monte were the only decided choices to finish first. Homestead, who was out to the last ounce to win the fourth race, closed in the betting on even terms with Lady Chariot, but the mare carried more money, having been backed down from fives. Summaries:

First Race.—Darius, first; Sadducee, second; Dalesman, third.

Second Race.—Lineal, first, Harpoon, second; Judge Saufley, third.

Third Race.—Monte, first; Ascot Belle, second; Montebank, third.

Hunt Fox on Foot or Horseback?

BARRE, Mass., Jan. 18.—L. W. Campbell of Woonsocket, R. I., took a long chance at a fox in the Moose brook region at the opening of the Brunswick Fur club winter hunt, and P. A. Dowd of Worcester took the fox at long range in the rear legs, but the animal got away. There were six hunters out. More are expected at the annual meeting to see whether the Brunswick Fur club shall change into a hunt club or keep its present policy of laying in wait for foxes on foot.

The Reprobate Win Suspected.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—The judges are investigating the third race at Oakland, which was won by The Reprobate. Albemarle, on her recent form, was the legitimate favorite, but went back in the betting, closing at 3 to 1. The coup was on The Reprobate. Opening at 4 to 1, his price was hammered down to 8 to 5, and several of the bookmakers held him out entirely. The Reprobate won easily by half a dozen lengths. Lady Kent beat Meada for the place.

Waswift at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Waswift was the only successful favorite at Ascot. The track was soft, but not muddy, and several of the outsiders found it to their liking. Emperor of India won the best race of the day by a neck from Hans Wagner.

Surprises at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 18.—The bettors had rather a bad day of it at Essex park. Wild Irishman and Ethics were the only winners whose victories put money in the pockets of the form players. The two surprises were Voltaic and Billy Moore.

Maid Shot by Coachman.

DANBURY, Conn., Jan. 18.—Helen Sheridan, forty years old, a maid in the family of Edward Stone, a dry goods merchant of this city, was shot and instantly killed here by John Andersen, Mr. Stone's coachman. Andersen picked up a revolver which lay upon a table in a room in which both were, and while he was examining the weapon it was discharged. The bullet struck Miss Sheridan in the head, and she expired at once. Andersen gave himself up to the police.

Would Steal Canada Away.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Lord Minto, former governor general of Canada, speaking at Minto, near Hawick, last night, on the proposed colonial conference and the question of preferential treatment, said Canada could not wait forever, and if she received nothing but a bucket of cold water she would be justified in saying there were other opportunities before her. The United States was seeking reciprocity with Canada in the hope of stealing her away from Great Britain.

WHY FORTRESS FELL

General Stoessel Interviewed on Leaving Nagasaki.

LOSS OF METER HILL A DEADLY BLOW

Defender of Port Arthur Said: "It Is Not True That I Dissented From Decision to Surrender; We Had No Hope of Relief."

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A Nagasaki dispatch says that General Stoessel, who left that port yesterday with his family for Odessa, when interviewed before his departure, said:

"The capitulation of Port Arthur occurring on New Year's day was merely a coincidence. The loss of Two Hundred and Three Meter hill and the subsequent capture of forts, combined with the deadly marksmanship with the terrible eleven inch shells, the depressing effect of the death of General Kondratenko and the fearful increase of scurvy, really fixed the time of capitulation. It is quite untrue that I dissented from the unanimous decision of the final council of war. Our final urgent requests for relief were never answered. As regards parole, I distinctly discouraged any concerted action. Every officer decided for himself. Generally commanding officers stuck with their men and chose imprisonment. Most of the naval officers also chose captivity, many probably being influenced by the fear of impending court martial."

There were actually surrendered at Port Arthur between nine and ten thousand soldiers and sailors, of whom many were unfit for duty. The sick and wounded numbered 16,000. Fifty per cent of the officers of the garrison were killed, and only 28 (probably per cent) went through the siege unscathed.

The fortress could have held out for some time longer but for the fire of the Japanese eleven inch howitzers, which destroyed the food depots, the workshops and the ammunition stores and made the repair of the defensive works impossible.

Interviews with other Russian officers revealed great bitterness against and denunciations of Admiral Alexeieff for his failure to properly fortify Port Arthur and "his cowardly flight" by the last train from the fortress. They say the torpedo boat destroyers that escaped before the surrender carried all the regimental and naval colors to Chefu. The junior officers denounce the incapacity and folly of the government in entering upon the war and declare that all the men who return to Russia from Port Arthur are revolutionists in spirit. These opinions were openly expressed in the presence of General Stoessel, who remarked: "Let them talk. They have earned the right to think as they please by braving untold deaths for our country."

A Mukden report details an attempt of a strong Japanese detachment of infantry, cavalry and artillery to cut off the column of General Mischtschenko's cavalry as the latter retired northward.

The Japanese under cover of a mist outflanked the Russians. A battle ensued, the Russian artillery with the column inflicting heavy losses on the Japanese at short range and then retiring. The Russian losses were five officers and forty men killed or wounded.

The Russian protest against the imputation that General Mischtschenko's cavalry violated Chinese neutrality, even if—of which there is at present no evidence—they crossed the Liao river above Newchwang, claiming that a small strip on the west bank is distinctly reserved as included in the sphere of hostilities.

Russia's Thanks to Hay.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Russia, through Count Cassini, has expressed her thanks to the American government for its prompt action in calling to China's attention the charges that her neutrality was being violated. The Russian ambassador received a note from Secretary Hay acknowledging the communication of Count Lamsdorff and informing the ambassador that the American government had promptly called China's attention to the charges and expressed the fervent hope that China's neutrality as well as her administrative entity would be faithfully preserved.

Run on Buffalo Bank.

BUFFALO, Jan. 18.—A run was started yesterday on the Citizens' bank, lasting only for the day, due, according to President Joseph Block, to the sending out of anonymous letters stating that "depositors would serve their interests by withdrawing their deposits" and possibly to the withdrawal of large sums of money by brewers which they sent around to saloons for the purpose of cashing pay checks of railroad men.

Mormon Senator's Defense.

END OF AUTOCRACY

Hebrew President Prophecies Its Fall.

ROOSEVELT CHAMPION OF HUMANITY

Board of Congregation Delegates Have Done Great Work In Helping Jews In Russia—Were Aided by President.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—"The overthrow of Russian autocracy will be the last echo of the voice of Kishineff."

This was a prophecy in passing over the subject of Jewish civil and religious rights in America by President Samuel Woolner of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in making his report to the nineteenth council of the organization assembled here. He advised united effort to oppose possible future immigration legislation which might be inimical to Jewish interests. Speaking of the work of the board of delegates on civil and religious rights, President Woolner said:

"While the Kishineff protest was not officially the work of our board of delegates, yet our chairman, Simon Wolf, was one of the workers who, together with the late lamented Leo N. Levi, framed this historical document and stirred the American citizens to indorse it in righteous wrath. The overthrow of the Russian autocracy will be the last echo of Kishineff.

"More than a year ago our board of delegates met in Washington to lay before the president of the United States and the department of state the continued disregard on the part of certain foreign governments of the passport when presented by American citizens of Jewish faith. So successful has this informal petition been that the matter has been brought officially before the new Russian minister of the interior, from whom the whole world now expects a favorable recommendation to the czar.

"The interpretation of the immigration laws, which often works hardships to Jewish immigrants, has, through the agency of Chairman Wolf, often been modified in favor of the victims of religious persecution. There is no doubt but that the immigration question will soon require the combined wisdom of the American Jews to prevent the framing of national laws which might prove inimical to the Jewish immigrant."

In the course of his report President Woolner styled President Roosevelt "champion of humanity."

Editors Criticise Pennypacker.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—The Pennsylvania State Editorial association at its annual meeting here adopted resolutions criticising Governor Pennypacker for his reference to the press in his recent biennial message to the legislature. Dietrick Lamade of Williamsport, the retiring president, made an address, in which he said that he hoped to see the day when no public officer, no matter how high his office, will dare to suggest for the members of the association the ducking stool, the assassins' pistol or annihilation at the request of six citizens.

AN ORDINANCE

To provide for the appointment of Commissioners of Assessments to assess damages and benefits under and by virtue of the act entitled "An act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," approved April 7, 1890, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

UNFAVORABLE TO HOOKER.

Report of Bar Association Made Public at Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 18.—The New York State Bar association last night rounded out the first day of its twenty-eighth annual meeting with a reception at the Fort Orange club in honor of Hon. William Lindsay of New York city, formerly United States senator from Kentucky and later chief judge of the highest court of that state.

This session of the association is made more than ordinarily important and interesting by reason of the report of the grievance committee upon the accusations against Warren B. Hooker of Fredonia, Chautauqua county, a justice of the supreme court in the eighth judicial district, whose name was involved by postoffice department officials in the so called "postoffice scandals."

The accusations were called to the attention of the association by the bar association of Jamestown and were referred to the grievance committee, whose report is, on the whole, unfavorable to Justice Hooker, and the subcommittee's recommendation is that "a further investigation be had by the legislature before a tribunal having compulsory process."

SWAYNE VOTE TODAY.

House Agreed to Settle Impeachment Case at Once.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—With an agreement reached to vote on the Swayne impeachment articles at 3:30 this afternoon the debate in the house was carried on at high pressure for more than five hours. Mr. Grosvenor furnished the text for a very vigorous speech by Bourke Cockran by the reading of a letter from Judge Pardee of New Orleans declaring that politics was at the bottom of the impeachment proceedings. The fact of a judge transmitting such a letter, Mr. Cockran declared dramatically, was "a monstrous spectacle."

Mr. Grosvenor asserted that there was no ground presented for impeachment in the report of the committee. The other defenders of the Florida judge during the day were Messrs. Lacey of Iowa, Nevin of Ohio, Moon of Pennsylvania and Crumpacker of Indiana. Mr. Lamar of Florida closed the debate for the day, reviewing the sentiment of his state and the record of Judge Swayne. He declared there was ample ground for impeachment.

Talbot Case to Be Aired In Court.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—The controversy between Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of central Pennsylvania, and Rev. Dr. I. N. W. Irvine has taken a new turn, and it is probable that the whole affair will be aired in the civil courts. Dr. Irvine has filed notice of a suit for slander against Bishop Talbot, asking damages. The papers were served on the bishop when he came to this city to preside at the meeting of the general committee on Sunday school instruction.

Not Body of Mrs. Silk.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 18.—The unidentified body recovered from the hull of the steamer Glen Island, burned on Long Island sound, is not that of Mrs. Rosa Silk of this city. When the body was recovered an envelope bearing her address was in the clothing. Mrs. Silk's son Isaac went to claim the body, but he was convinced it was not that of his mother. In the opinion of a New York surgeon the body is that of a man. Members of the Silk family now are mystified over the disappearance of Mrs. Silk.

Second Cabinet Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The second cabinet dinner of the season in honor of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt took place last night, with the secretary of the treasury and Mrs. Shaw as hosts. BARGE CANAL ACT.

Entire Question Referred For Attorney General's Opinion.

BRACKETT RESOLUTION DEFEATED

Senator Grady Said Canal Bonds Under Present Conditions, If Offered For Sale, Would Be Taken Up Many Times Over.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 18.—For over two hours the senate debated the proposition to ask the attorney general's opinion on the validity of the barge canal act and after considering several substitute measures defeated Senator Brackett's original resolution by a vote of 30 to 19. This resolution, originally introduced last week, requested the attorney general to decide whether the canal law infringed the section of the federal constitution protecting navigable waters.

When Senator Brackett called for the adoption of his resolution Senator Cassidy of Watkins offered an amendment referring to the attorney general the entire question of constitutionality. He maintained that the act contained many questions which could not legally have been submitted to the popular vote. Senator Hill of Buffalo championed the cause of the procanal people, declaring that the amendment was not germane and that the attorney general should be asked only one question at a time.

"We quite understand," remarked Senator Grady, "that all this smoke and fuss and fun is a part of the campaign." He imputed to the supporters of the Brackett measure bad faith, asserting that their course was only a cloak for a general attack upon the whole canal proposition, which would culminate as soon as the opposition forces had had time to confer and arrange their plans in a bill for its repeal. Replying to a question of Senator Raines, Senator Grady declared that, far from doubting the validity of the canal bonds under present circumstances, he would guarantee that if they were offered for sale today within twenty-four hours they would be subscribed for ten times over.

Senator Brackett suggested that if the procanal men wanted the improvement as a check upon the railroads, as had been implied, with a portion of the $101,000,000 they could construct a railroad across the state which would be a more effective check than twenty canals.

Niedringhaus Elected Senator.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 18.—Thomas Kay Niedringhaus of St. Louis received a majority of the total vote cast in both houses of the Missouri legislature for United States senator to succeed Francis M. Cockrell. The total vote was: Niedringhaus, 90; Cockrell, 80; Kerens, 1; Bittinger, 1. Representative Grace, who introduced the resolution that resulted in the appointment of a committee to investigate the campaign contributions of Thomas K. Niedringhaus and who was accounted an adherent of R. C. Kerens, seconded the speech nominating Niedringhaus.

Claim Against McLaughlin Estate.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A claim against the estate of Hugh McLaughlin amounting to $600,000 has been filed in the surrogate's office in Brooklyn by counsel for former State Senator Michael J. Coffey. The claim is said to be a sequel to a suit brought some time ago against Hugh McLaughlin, James Shevlin and John McCarty for $600,000, alleged to be due to Coffey as his share in the profits on the sale of the Nassau Railway company to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company.

Carnegie to Make Losses Good.

OBERLIN, O., Jan. 18.—Gratifying news was received by the students of Oberlin college when President King announced that all moneys which had been lost by students through the failure of the Citizens' National bank, which closed its doors at the time the alleged Chadwick forgeries were discovered, would be paid on presentation of the passbooks. Andrew Carnegie, he said, was the man who was doing this.

Mountain Car Jumped Track.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Jan. 18.—A cable car loaded with seventeen miners for the Excelsior mines jumped the track when halfway up the mountain near here. Fifteen of the seventeen were seriously hurt, and two, Samuel Hilton and Thomas Vance, will probably die. The accident was caused by the cable catching under a fishplate.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 18, 1905.

The New Brunswick Daily Press, on Monday, celebrated its semi-centenary, having been founded January 16, 1855, as the "Daily New Brunswicker." It afterward became the Daily Fredonian, the present name succeeding it in 1900

Governor Stokes' inaugural address is a document that is not a simple combination of words calculated to please the mind of the reader, but back of every declaration is a truth that must be admitted. It is the expression of the opinions of a business man, who gives broad consideration to common sense ideas and looks financial emergencies squarely in the face. His suggestion of the ways to meet these emergencies is clear and may be easily understood by every one who reads them. There is no equivocation, no avoidance of the facts, no expressed disposition to dodge issues. Every proposition in which the people are vitally interested is met more than half way and dealt with from the standpoint of a man who has made a careful study of conditions affecting the present as well as the future interests of the people of the State, of which he has been elected chief executive officer.

IN THE SHOPS.

Edwin Langley, of Essex street, has resumed his former positon at the Potter Press Works.

William Mesher has resumed his position at the Potter Press Works after a week's detention at home by illness.

Elwood Sebring, of the borough, who has been connected with Levering & Garrigues' Dunellen plant, has been transferred to the New York offices.

P. T. Hoffman, of the borough, who is at the head of the stock department in the C. and O. Works at Garwood, is taking the civil service examination at Brooklyn today for book-keeper on the Panama canal construction work.

Included in the exhibits at the automobile show in Madison Square Garden is one shown by the Rushmore Dynamo Works, of this city, consisting of powerful auto search lights. It is in charge of Mr. Rushmore and several assistants and has attracted a great deal of attention.

Negotiations which have been pending for several months, closed yesterday with the purchase of the Stephenson Car Works at Elizabeth by the J. G. Brill Co., of Philadelphia. Affairs at the works for the present will go on unchanged but in the near future the plant will be enlarged and many more men taken on.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" has scored a success, which gives Augustus Thomas three comedy triumphs in as many consecutive seasons. First "The Earl of Pawtucket," next "The Other Girl" and now the charming and exceedingly amusing set of complications which he has devised in Mrs. Leffingwell's misplaced boots. Francis Wilson is in his third week in the greater laughing success, "Cousin Billy," at the Criterion Theatre. Even in his palmiest comic opera days he never delighted his audiences more than he does now in this rattling comedy. Ethel Barrymore enters upon the last fortnight of her wonderfully successful engagement at the Hudson Theatre. Maude Adams, who is playing to the capacity of the Empire Theatre at every performance of "The Little Minister," has decided in view of the enormous success she had again made in that play to add a fifth week to the four originally allotted to it. Sir Charles Wyndham and Mary Moore have a very delightful offering at the Lyceum Theatre in Henry Arthur Jones' comedy, "The Case of Rebellious Susan."

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Robins, of Norwood avenue, have been entertaining Brooklyn relatives for a few days.

Ralph L. Morrow, city editor of The Daily Press, is detained at his home on East Fifth street by illness.

J. V. F. Dilts, of South avenue, is visiting relatives and friends at his former home at Flemington, after an absence of nine years.

BOARD EXPENSES COVERED BY FEES

MATERIAL IMPROVEMENT IN LAWS REGULATING ARCHITECTURE.

Material improvement in the architecture of New Jersey is being wrought by the increased stringency in the State laws governing the practice of architecture, according to statements in the annual report of the State Board of Architects, which was filed with former Governor Murphy and will be read with interest by Plainfield architects.

The report holds that it is not easy to point out specifically what benefits have accrued to the people of the State from any particular law, but it is certain that the status involving architects has shut out many incompetents, and its enactments has had the effect of making architects more careful in their work because of the fact that any certificates to practice may, under the law, be revoked if its holder is guilty of incompetency, dishonesty, gross carelessness or neglect.

It is stated in the report that many persons applied for certificates to practise who claimed they were practising March 24, 1902, the date of operation of the present law, and for this reason maintained they were entitled to the legal certificates without an examination. This evil was remedied by an amendment enacted by the Legislature of 1903. This amendment provides that if an applicant for registration is satisfactory to the majority of the board he may, upon payment of an additional $15, receive a certificate autherizing him to practise the profession of architecture.

The board says its income from fees has been sufficient to defray expenses, which at this time amount to about $2,500 a year. The amount received in fees is about $3,000 a year.

William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., at the regular meeting last night, in addition to the transaction of routine business, planned for an elaborate programme for next Tuesday night, when the Council will entertain Somerset Council, of Plainfield. There will be a musical programme and a social time promises to be a feature of the event. This is one of the events in the life of the local council which is looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure, and one which is always appreciated by the Plainfielders who turn out in large numbers.

Among the letters uncalled for at the New Market postoffice are ones addressed to Louis Cardin and Mrs. Michael Maretsky.

The Governor's Memory.

Among those who witnessed the inauguration of Governor Stokes at Trenton, yesterday, was S. St. J. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, a warm, personal friend of the executive. BRAIN TORTURE OF A DYING MAN

THINGS A SELF-DESTROYER MAY SEE AS LIFE PASSES.

BEGGED WIFE TO SAVE HIM

Story Told by Edward King, Who Sought to End Life—Says He Will Never Try It Again.

Newark, N. J.—"When I found I was dying, a million thoughts flashed through my mind in a second; 30,000 little devils, each bearing the image of my wife, danced in ecstacy before my eyes. I never imagined such torment before. And then there came a sudden desire to live. I craved life and sight, and promised myself to lead another and far better life if only I could breathe the pure air of health and freedom again. Gradually I began to lapse into unconsciousness, and the next I knew was when I awakened in the hospital."—Statement of Edward King, formerly treasurer of the Monumental theater, Baltimore, who attempted suicide by asphyxiation at this place in the Palace hotel.

Young King's desire to end his life came about through a quarrel with his wife, which ended in their separation ten days ago. The story is told by the young man himself:

"One day, almost two years ago, a beautiful girl appeared at the box office and purchased two orchestra seats. We passed a pleasant word or two and at the matinee the next afternoon she appeared again. I fell in love with her at first sight.

"The next time she visited the theater I invited her to dine with me. She accepted and I then learned for the first time her name. She was Miss Frances Hill, of No. 503 Washington avenue, Elizabeth. She was visiting friends in Baltimore. Our acquaintance soon became an affair of the heart and, when I proposed, Miss King accepted. We were married on April 15, 1903.

"Everything went well until two weeks ago when Frances brought home a young woman, whom she introduced as Miss Horton. The next day Frances told me Miss Horton was on the stage and wanted her to enter the profession. I protested and thought that she had forgotten all about it until last Friday week. On that day she went out at 10 a. m., and when she did not return by noon I started to look for her. I have been searching ever since.

"On Thursday, when my grief knew no bounds, I decided to kill myself. I tried to borrow a pistol, but no one would give me one. Then I decided to go to the Palace hotel and turn on the gas. I went there and registered, but then my nerve failed me. I went to sleep, but the night was one of horrible dreams. I was crying all the time for Frances.

"When I woke up the dawn was just appearing. I looked out of my window and saw tiny drops of rain falling in the street. All was dark and uninviting. 'I'll do it now,' I said; 'I cannot stand this fearful strain any longer.'

"I wanted to make death doubly certain, so I stuffed the cracks in the door and window and even plugged the keyhole. Then I turned on the gas and lay down to await the summons of death.

"It was not long before everything began to grow dark before me. I felt the gas filling my lungs and quietly overcoming me. Then little devils began to dance before my eyes. All the time I was thinking of Frances. Her face seemed somehow to be hidden in each of the little devils. I tried to reach out and embrace her, but my every muscle was paralyzed. I could not move. To add to my agony the images seemed to mock me in scorn.

"I cried 'Frances, Frances, save, oh, please save me,' but it was no use. Oh, how I regretted what I had done. The desire to live was rekindled in my soul, but I was helpless. Life was so near, but yet so far.

"These few minutes seemed an eternity. Struggle as I would I could not release myself from the terrible grip of death that was fast settling over me. All at once I began to fall. It seemed to me as if I was dropping through space. All the time Frances was getting further and further away from me, until she was finally lost to view.

"The next thing I knew I suffered intense pain in my chest and lungs, and finally awoke to find myself in the hospital. I am glad that I did not die, and now if I can only find Frances my happiness will be complete. I shall never attempt to kill myself again."

TUCKER MURDER TRIAL.

Six Hours Taken Up With Testimony of Writing Experts.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 18.—The sharp cross examination of Attorney General Parker relieved the monotony of expert handwriting testimony at the trial of Charles L. Tucker, charged with the murder of Mabel Page, at the criminal court here.

For six hours handwriting experts were on the stand illustrating their points on a blackboard, pointing out to the jury on many of the exhibits what they considered complete characteristics of the handwriting of either Miss Page or Tucker and answering or attempting to answer sharp and sarcastic questions put to them by Mr. Parker.

Colonel Edward B. Hay was recalled by the defense, and he said that from his investigations of the handwriting Mabel Page wrote the Morton note. The fact was further brought from the witness with considerable difficulty that his method was to search for similarities and that, although he found characteristics of Tucker's handwriting in the Morton note, he did not mention them to the jury. The answers made in a number of instances caused much merriment to the spectators, who crowded the room. Tucker exhibited great interest in the questioning of Mr. Parker, and his resentment of the attorney general's treatment was very apparent.

Why He Was Removed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Commissioner Draper of the state education department has removed C. C. Parker, superintendent of Indian schools on the Tonawanda reservation, in the counties of Erie, Genesee and Niagara, for the reason that several checks were sent Parker from the state department in payment of expenses for the maintenance of the Indian schools. Among these checks was one for Fanny C. Poodry, an Indian woman employed as teacher. Parker indorsed the name of Miss Poodry on the check himself and obtained payment thereon. He made no return therefor to Miss Poodry.

Mitchell's Defense In Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The unusual spectacle of a United States senator explaining on the floor of the senate charges made against himself in a court of law in his own state was witnessed in the senate when Mr. Mitchell of Oregon spoke of the indictment recently returned against him by an Oregon grand jury. The senator had not previously appeared in the senate since the indictment was returned, and he was received by his fellow senators with many evidences of good will. He was much affected, his emotion at times being such that he read his statement with great difficulty.

Student With Fractured Skull.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 18.—George B. Tennant of Waterbury, the Yale postgraduate student who is lying critically ill at the Yale infirmary as the result of an alleged street fight on Saturday night, was resting about the same last night, there being no change either way in his condition. It was stated by Tennant's physicians that the young man's skull is fractured.

Sutherland Senator From Utah.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 18.—Former Congressman George Sutherland has been elected United States senator to succeed Thomas Kearns, receiving the full Republican vote in both houses of the legislature, voting separately. William H. King, former congressman, received the six Democratic votes.

INCOMPATIBILITY OF TEMPER

How One Diplomatic Wife Gave Her Husband Hints.

"When most people marry they take each other too seriously," remarked the thoughtful woman. "They are duly impressed with the fact that marriage is divine, so much so that they forget its human side. After two people have bumped along the rocky road for awhile and prayed and wept and fumed in private over its tribulations they often finally give up in despair and pronounce marriage a failure.

"Half the time the trouble is with their dispositions. They can't get the right key to each other. Can you blame them when they have only known each other for a few months? And yet the unreasonable part of it is that the man expects the woman to understand him as if she had lived with him all her days, and she retires into her shell with her pride crushed to earth if he fails to mind-read her every thought. When he asks, 'What is the matter?' her answer is, 'Nothing,' which helps along his mental denseness a good deal. She simply won't tell him."

One Woman's Plan.

A young married woman I know had a rather difficult disposition, but also—thank heaven!—a sense of justice and of humor. She was perfectly willing to let her husband see as many of the cards in her hand as it was necessary in order that he might put up a good game. After awhile she lived in hopes that he might be clever enough and play a straight, winning game without a peep at her cards, but meantime she was helping him to learn.

So when they had a falling out on a frosty evening or morning she would leave a letter hanging from the gas jet, and on his return from business he would find it there. The letter stated in terms succinct and often humorous just what had started her side of the quarrel. Then after he had digested the contents and made mental notes thereon she would float in, serene and beaming, and he would profit by the knowledge gained in the direct way.

HELEN [illegible]

ON A [illegible]H PINNACLE.

Erected by the People of Chili and Argentine Republic as a Token of Peace Between Two Countries.

San Francisco.—On a pinnacle of the Andes mountains, 14,000 feet above the level of the sea, on the boundary line between Chili and the Argentine Republic, stands a heroic statue of the Christ. The erection of this statue is to commemorate the signing of a treaty between the two countries by which it is agreed to settle all disputes arising from any cause by the process of arbitration. The inscription at the base of the pedestal tells the story.

The pedestal is of granite, symbolizing the world. The gigantic bronze figure of the Christ rises 26 feet above it and is visible in all directions for many miles.

The story of the events which led to the erection of this statue is an interesting one. For a generation there had been a dispute between Chili and the Argentine Republic in regard to the land bordering on the straits of Magellan and also as to the boundary line high up in the mountains between the two countries.

At last the difficulties between the two nations reached such an acute stage that the most active preparations were made for war. Large armies were raised and navies equipped. The cost of all these preparations was enormous and threatened to bring financial ruin upon both nations. Both countries were drained of their resources and business was at a standstill.

The British ministers at Santiago and Buenos Ayres had been watching the trend of events with no little anxiety and almost at the moment when hostilities were about to begin urged that arbitration be tried first, in order, if possible, to avoid the horrors of a long and cruel war.

The state departments of Chili and the Argentine Republic agreed to this and selected the king of England to act. The facts were laid before King Edward, who, after giving them careful attention, wisely gave his opinion that the territory in dispute should be divided between the two nations. His decision was received with great satisfaction and the war was averted.

Then it was suggested that a treaty of arbitration to last for five years be signed. This was agreed to and such a treaty is now in force.

Both the people of Chili and those of the Argentine Republic want no more war. Both countries are again prosperous. The armies of each nation are being reduced almost to the limits of a police force. Some of the great warships have been sold; others have been turned into merchant vessels for the carrying trade between South America and South Africa.

Peace reigns, and as the people look up at the great statue of the Redeemer they see the outstretched hand which seems to be imparting the benediction of heaven, and vow that that peace shall never be broken.

The Magic Mirror of Japan.

The "magic mirror" of Japan is a disk of bronze, usually from six to eight inches in diameter. It is silvered on the front, which is a little convex, and there is a raised pattern on the back, which is rather concave. The polished pattern is generally a landscape, flowers, animals, or Chinese characters. It is not visible in the front of the mirror, but when strong sunlight is reflected from the front of the mirror to a wall or screen the pattern of the back is visible on the screen in bright lines on a black ground. Prof. W. E. Ayrton, F. R. S., with Prof. John Perry, F. R. S., was the first to give the true scientific explanation of this magical effect. It seems that the design on the back alters the convexity of the front, making it flat, in fact, along the lines of the pattern. Consequently the light reflected from the front is not dispersed at these points of the design, and they appear brighter on the screen.

Big Chunk of Gold.

One of the largest gold nuggets ever found in Colorado was recently picked up at the Snowstorm placer, in Park county, between Alma and Fairplay. It weighs 120 ounces and has a market value of $2,000.

A MARVEL IN LIFE-BOATS.

Little Egg-Shaped Vessel Has Just Completed a Voyage Across the Atlantic.

New York.—Lying at the tug company's wharf at St. John's, N. F., is the lifeboat, Uraad, Capt. Ola Martin Brude. The Uraad is a marine curiosity and before long will be on exhibition in New York, for which port she will sail in a short time.

She has just been sailed across the Atlantic in the hope that she would be able to reach the Mississippi and the St. Louis exposition before the fair closed.

Capt. Brude built his boat to win the prize of a million francs offered by the French government for a lifeboat which would reduce to a minimum the loss of life in marine accidents.

It was to prove his boat's seaworthiness that Capt. Brude made the voyage across the Atlantic. In construction the Uraad is egg-shaped, 18 feet long, 8 feet wide and 8 feet deep. She carries a single mast near the pointed nose, to which a little lateen sail is hoisted. In the center of her oval deck is a small tower for observation purposes, while near the stem and stern are two hatchways just large enough for a man's body to enter, and these are closed from the inside, making the little craft absolutely water-tight. She is built of steel one-eighth of an inch thick, is 4.75 tons gross and her hull is perfectly oval. She is steered by an ordinary tiller from the inside, as it would be too dangerous to attempt standing on her sloping decks, especially in a heavy sea.

The voyage across was a stormy one, says the Herald. Aalesund was left on August 7 and the boat was just a hundred days in reaching here. When about six weeks out the mast snapped off, and the little boat was tossed about in heavy seas, but not a drop of water entered the hull. She floated on top of the highest waves like a barrel. On Wednesday morning she sighted Cape Spear, and later several Petty Harbor fishermen towed her into that place.

A NEW STATUE OF MILTON

It Was Unveiled by a Descendant of the Poet's Friend and Patron.

London.—It was a particularly appropriate selection, that of Lady Alice Egerton, to perform the task of unveiling the new statue of Milton in Cripplegate. Lady Alice, who is the wife of the earl of Egerton, is also a descendant of that earl of Bridgewater who was Milton's stanch friend and patron.

It was for the entertainment of his family, a very numerous one, consisting of not less than 15 children, that the "Masque of Comus" was written. The story was founded on an incident in the life of the eleventh daughter, herself a Lady Alice Egerton. And when it was first performed at the earl's castle at Ludlow it was she who was cast for the lady.

The associations of the family are not only closely connected with the life of the poet, but with Cripplegate church, in which he found a final resting place, and near which his new statue stands. The earl who lived in Milton's day was a regular worshiper at St. Giles, Cripplegate, and often helped ring the same bells which pealed forth joyously the other day when the statue was uncovered. The town house of the Bridgewaters stood on the site now occupied by Cripplegate institute, not far from the church, and it is supposed that Milton took up his residence in the parish that he might be near his powerful friend.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

SLATED FOR CHOATE'S JOB

Rumor Says Whitelaw Reid Is to Be the American Ambassador to London.

Washington.—Persistent rumor in official circles has it that Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, is to succeed Hon. Joseph Choate as American ambassador at the court of St. James early in the year.

If this rumor is well founded, and there is every reason to believe that it is, the appointment will round out a life of unusual activity and variety. The able editor of the Tribune has filled many positions both in public and private life. During the civil war he served on the staffs of Gen. Thomas and Gen. Rosecrans. Previous to that he had engaged in journalistic work as legislative correspondent at Albany, as Washington correspondent and as a war correspondent. During the sessions of the Thirty-seventh congress he was the clerk of the military commission of that body, then as librarian of the house of representatives. In 1866-7 he left the public service and engaged in cotton planting in Louisiana. Since 1868 he has been connected with the New York Tribune in one capacity or another, and during the same time has served as American ambassador to France and declined a similar appointment to Germany. He is not unknown in London official circles, having represented this country as special ambassador both at the jubilee of Queen Victoria and at the coronation of King Edward.

As an author and writer he is widely known both by his editorials in the Tribune and the number of books he has contributed to American literature.

The Friends of Congressman Landis Are Seeking a Senatorial Toga for Him.

Delphi, Ind.—Among the possible successors to Senator Fairbanks in the United States senate is Congressman C. B. Landis, now representing the Ninth Indiana district in the lower house.

Congressman Landis has a host of friends pushing his senatorial boom. This is especially true in newspaper circles, in which he is so well known, having been engaged in journalistic work from the time of his graduation from Wabash college, at Crawfordsville, in 1883, to the time of his election to congress in 1897. During that time he was editor of the Logansport Journal, and later of the Delphi Journal. In 1894 he was chosen president of the Indiana Republican Editorial association, and has been prominent in that organization for several years.

Congressman Landis is a native Ohioan, but has resided in his adopted state the greater part of his life. He was born at Millville, O., July 9, 1858. His present home is in this city.

A Curious Custom.

A curious custom has been celebrated at Klin, near Moscow. All the marriageable girls in the town lined up in the principal square decked out in their simple finery, many of them also having with them the stock of linen, household and personal, which forms part of their dowry. The young men contemplating matrimony then walked down the serried ranks of beauty as they moved toward the church, and selected the girls of their choice. A formal visit to the parents to arrange details was then made in each case, and a date fixed for the ceremony.

Japanese Ship Names.

In view of the periodic discussion about the appropriate naming of warships, it is of interest to learn that Japan has christened her big battleships after great mountains and the small war vessels from some well-known natural features of the country. It may also be mentioned that at the end of the name of every Japanese ship is either the termination "kan" or "maru." "Kan" means war vessel and is applied, of course, only to the emperor's fleet. "Maru," which means round, is applied to merchant vessels—why, it is difficult to say.

A WEDDING KNOT TIED AT 1 A. M.

HAD A HARD TIME FINDING A CITY PREACHER.

ELOPED FROM PENNSYLANIA

An Obliging Hotel Clerk Helped Them Out and Lost the Rent on One Room—Married by Hotel Chaplain.

New York.—Nursed back to health and strength through a long illness by a blue-eyed, brown-haired girl, Frank S. Dewes, 24 years old, of Phoenixville, Pa., proposed to Miss Jessie M. Jarrett, 20 years old, of Jeffersonville, Pa., who was his nurse, and when parental objection was encountered took matters in his own hands and they eloped.

The couple came to New York as fast as steam could carry them. After three hours' of heart-breaking delay they were married by the Rev. Dr. H. M. Warren at one a. m. in the office of Manager R. L. Smith, of the Hotel Barthoidi, Twenty-third street and Broadway.

Supplied with only a small traveling bag, the couple stepped from a train in Jersey City at ten o'clock in the evening. In a secluded nook on the ferry boat the broad-shouldered young man pleaded, encouraged and exhorted his fair companion. Hurrying out of the ferry house, the couple jumped into a cab.

"To the Little Church Around the Corner," said the man.

The parsonage of Dr. Houghton was reached in record time, but when the cab drew up to the curb the prospective bridegroom met with another obstacle. Miss Jarrett's courage oozed away at the crucial moment, and she shrank back into the furthest corner of the vehicle.

"Oh, Frank," she murmured, faintly. "I don't—let's wait. I'm trembling all over."

The man's sterner nature asserted itself.

"Come, darling, come. Don't be a baby, Jessie."

"I'm not a baby," spiritedly retorted his companion.

Reluctant and trembling, she was coaxed to the door, where immediate hopes of matrimony were dashed by Dr. Houghton, who said that it was 11 o'clock and that he made it a practice never to marry people after nine p. m.

Back to the cab hurried the couple. A few minutes later Clerk Lancaster, of the Hotel Bartholdi, was startled by a young man who rushed up to the desk and stated rather incoherently that he wanted to stop at the hotel with a young lady; that they were not married but that they wanted to be.

When the clerk recovered from his astonishment he gave them separate rooms. With the small traveling bag between them they disappeared in the elevator. In a few moments it came down again and the young couple presented themselves at the night clerk's desk.

There was a moment of silence and then the young man blurted out: "Say, is there any way we can get married right off quick?"

The clerk bethought himself of Dr. Warren, the chaplain of all the hotels of New York. With a word of hope to the girl, who now seemed as anxious for the ceremony as she had previously been reluctant, he jumped into a telephone booth and called up the minister at his home, No. 48 West Ninety-fourth street. The chaplain was not in and a messenger was sent post haste to the masonic lodge, where he was thought to be. He could not be found, but at one o'clock he returned home. He started at once for the Hotel Barholdi.

The bridegroom fairly dragged the chaplain into the office of R. L. Smith, where the knot was tied hard and fast, sealed with a kiss and celebrated with a bottle of wine, the latter at the expense of the manager.

Inquiries by the chaplain prior to the ceremony brought out the facts that she was a trained nurse and that he was the business manager of a prominent firm in Philadelphia. Then Mr. and Mrs. Dewes approached the hotel register.

"Boy," said the clerk, "show this couple to No. 84."

Early the next morning, after breakfast, the couple started off in an automobile cab for the Pennsylvania station on their way back to Philadelphia.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

In the Juvenile league games at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this afternoon the Whittier School and Leal's School second teams will contend.

Paul R. Collier, manager of the Plainfield High School basketball team, will probably leave school in a few days, and go into business. Collier has not been playing with the team lately, but his services as manager have been valuable, and will be missed.

Harry G. Thompson, of the Plainfield High School basketball team, who has been unable to play with his team of late on account of an injury sustained to his knee, was in the game with the alumni Monday evening, and hopes to be able to play this afternoon in the Interscholastic League.

In both the Interscholastic and the Juvenile basketball leagues, good games will take place this afternoon. In the latter especially, the rivalry is strong and the Leal's School team. Leal's won the first game early in the season and the P. H. S. will have no chance of winning the championship of the city if defeated in this game. The line up of the two teams will probably be: P. H. S.—Smith, Bentley and Thompson, forwards; Freeman, center; Gavett and Stutsman, guards. Leal's School—Chapman and Howard, forwards; Jewett, center; Manning and Lyman, guards.

For the purpose of electing captains and the members of the teams, the senior class at the Y. M. C. A. met last night, and effected the organization of the association basketball league. The league is composed of four teams, selected in the most even manner, in order that they should be well matched. A complete league schedule of games will be arranged, and the teams will compete for the gymnasium championship. The captains who were selected last night are Paul R. Collier, Arthur Aalholm, William Sebring and Stryker Hoagland. The choice of the teams under these captains was as follows: Collier—Scull, Gilmore, Calcen, Jacot, Templin, Shepherd and Neal; Sebring—Cahoone, Utsinger, Cuttingsworth, McNaughton, Beiter, Ferrin and Van-Middlesworth; Aalholm—Hand, Collins, Bentliff, Hansen, Beisler and Russell; Hoagland—Smith, Koons, French, Dyke, Sampson and Mundy. The plans for the league are in the hands of the physical director, and the affair will be conducted according to the regular rules governing league play. It will in all probability start next week, and will be continued for the rest of the gymnasium season.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club's team will roll in the Central Jersey Bowling League against the Jersey City team at the latter's alleys tonight. The match is one which was postponed from last week.

Among the names recently added to the entry list in the Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament, are Harry Gilmore and Lewis Wilise. The matches will start tonight on the local alleys promptly at 8 o'clock, the entries being open until that hour. Each contestant in the match will be obliged to roll six games, two being rolled tonight, and in all probability the tournament will be completed this week.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Rahway Baseball Association is already planning for a successful season. The grounds in Rahway will be enclosed and a stronger team than that of last season will be engaged. Mertens will probably pitch.

Charles H. Denman will undoubtedly continue to manage the Westfield team, this season, despite his announcement to the contrary. With the opening of the season, Charlie will be seen on the player's bench directing affairs in his own peculiar quiet manner.

Mike O'Neil, formerly of the St. Louis Nationals, who it will be remembered pitched one game for Plainfield against Westfield, and lost, last season, has retired from baseball and is now living at his home in Pennsylvania. His brother is still catching in the major league.

Manager Woolston, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, is much in favor of opening the season here, if possible, with the Columbia University team the last of April or the first of May. It is believed that no better attraction could be secured for the opening. Billy Lauder has been engaged to take charge of the athletic department at Columbia at a regular salary.

Tribute to Mr. Ginna.

The Vulcan Detinning Company, of which the late Stephen A. Ginna was president, adopted the following minute at a meeting in New York yesterday: "With profound regret we learn of the premature death of our president and fellow director, Mr. Stephen A. Ginna. He endeared himself to us all by his charming personality, by his intelligent, faithful, untiring and unselfish devotion to the interests of our company, thereby winning for himself the highest esteem and regard of his fellow members and making the loss a personal bereavement."

Broken Bottle Cut Tendon.

Slipping on icy steps with a milk bottle in his hand, Eli Dufford, an employe of William Lindsay & Co., sustained a painful injury Monday afternoon. The bottle was broken as the result of the fall, and the pieces of glass entered his knee, cutting a tendon. A physician was summoned, and it is believed that all the particles of broken glass were removed. The injured man was one of Lindsay's drivers, and will be laid up for some time, though the accident is not expected to cause any serious complication.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Plainfield Trust Company directors will meet tomorrow and elect officers for the coming year. Undoubtedly the present officers will be re-elected.

—The fame of the White Label brand of canned goods is world-wide. Neuman Brothers are the local sellers and they place their own guarantee as to their excellent qualities.

—The dancing class to begin tomorrow night at the Young Women's Club, promises to be most successful. All desiring lessons are invited to join. Terms, twelve lessons $1. Babcock building.

Willcox Indicted?

According to a rumor which, of course, cannot be verified until the accused are arraigned to plead in open court, one of the four indictments returned by the Grand Jury, shortly after noon Monday, was against Harold N. Willcox for the shooting of fifteen-year-old John Darling at Westfield on the night of October 31 last. There are stories to the effect that the Grand Jury, after hearing all the evidence produced before it, differed somewhat as to the sort of an indictment that should be returned. It is said that an indictment has been found, but whether for murder or manslaughter cannot be positively known until the accused is arraigned to plead to the indictment found against him.

Funeral of C. B. TenEyck.

The funeral of Cornelius B. Ten Eyck, who died at his home on Norwood avenue, Monday, was held last night from his late residence, a large number of friends and relatives attending. Among those present were fifty members of the Carpenters' Union, of which he was a prominent member. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck officiated. The body was buried in Hillside cemetery this morning, the pall bearers being John T. Case and Messrs. McNab, Wilcox and Mills. There was a large floral tribute from the union.

Tried for Non-Support.

The case of Overseer Lewis D. Walker, of Piscataway township, against John Lenore, charged with not supporting his wife and three children, was tried before Justice von Minden at New Market, this morning. After hearing the evidence, the justice made an order compelling Lenore to give $4 a week to the overseer for the support of the family. In case of his failure to do so, he will be confined in the county jail. He promised to go to work and make the weekly contribution for his family.

LITERARY.

The political warfare of the immediate future, in the United States, will be between Conservatives banded together and Radicals banded together. The two kind of minds will no longer be found in the same organization. The wreck of the Democratic party, as it has been constituted for more than a decade, was necessary to this development. That wreck is now apparently complete. To attempt resuscitation would be time and effort wasted.—John W. Ryckman in The Era Magazine for January.

I will not say roses spring spontaneously to perfection in California, but it is a pleasure to labor where one's efforts meet with such ready response. Roses of my own planting have made such growth in these few years that they exceed anything I had formerly known and on those established before I came, from my chamber window now I watch the buds unfold not looking down on them but up, up,—from a tree above the chimney's height they laugh mockingly at me and smother the boughs in their embrace.—Debora Otis in Sunset Magazine for January.

One of the most conspicuous contributors to The Metropolitan Magazine for February is the Honorable Paul Morton, Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Morton has a word to say about the newer and greater Annapolis, anent the improvements and enlargements at the United States Naval Academy. Under the title of "Making Business Fighters for Uncle Sam's New Navy" many phases of the life at Annapolis, the place of the institution in our military equipment and its prime importance in the making of an efficient navy are picturesquely handled. Many striking illustrations round out the article.

The block system in its perfection simply reduces the opportunity for error to a minimum, by substituting a rigid system based on a time limit and by concentrating responsibility upon one man only—the engineer man. It is sometimes objected to the block system that the increased dependence on mechanical contrivances tends to shift from the employe that acute sense of personal responsibility which we call discipline. The argument is false. Perfect discipline is, of course, the ultimate goal. But the point is here. We never can get perfect discipline on American railways and we can get the block system, which even with the grade of discipline now enforced will produce measurable safety. All available means to enforce discipline, which can be enforced, are now enforced.—From Leslie's Magazine for February.

Readers of The Smart Set have learned to look upon the complete novel that appears in each issue of that magazine as the biggest event of the month in fiction; but even the most enthusiastic reader will be happily surprised by the story in the February number. Beyond a doubt "The Eavesdroppers," by Arthur Stringer, will prove one of the sensations of the year. The story deals with the careers of two daring criminals—a man and a woman—whose astonishing adventures the reader follows with breathless interest. From the very opening sentence the tale becomes one of rapid and exciting incident, and, moreover, it is written with that literary distinction which always characterizes Mr. Stringer's work. Different as "The Eavesdroppers" is from such fiction as "In the Bishop's Carriage" and "Raffles," it combines all the interest of those stories with a movement and intensity entirely its own.

New Rope in Flag Pole.

After several attempts, Clarence Mundy succeeded in putting the new rope in the city flag pole this morning, an achievement which was unusually difficult on account of the cold wind. It took almost two hours for the climber to reach the top of the pole, and to the hundreds of spectators who watched from the sidewalk, it seemed that he would never accomplish the task.

A TRIBUTE TO MR. GINNA

Eulogistic Address at Funeral Given by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie.

"A USEFUL CAREER"

People From All Walks in Life Attend the Services at His Late Home on Watchung Avenue Yesterday.

The home of the late Stephen A. Ginna on Watchung avenue, was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends, yesterday afternoon, when the obsequies of this beloved citizen were held. There were present persons from every walk in life, those of the humbler class uniting with those of higher station in a common sorrow over the loss of one who was dear to them. There was a large representation from Bethel chapel, where Mr. Ginna worked so faithfully for twenty years, and where his death will be keenly felt. The entire first floor of the beautiful home was occupied with friends and neighbors, showing the highest appreciation of the memory of a prominent citizen, one who had lived a life of great usefulness.

The display of floral tributes was beautiful, including over fifteen large wreaths of galax leaves, lilies-of-the-valley, roses and other flowers. Perhaps one of most touching tributes was a pillow of roses given by the servants and employes about Mr. Ginna's home. This occupied a point of honor. The casket was completely covered with a pall of smilax upon which rested a cross of orchids. The tributes came from associations of which Mr. Ginna was a member and from business associates, many of whom were present.

Rev. J. G. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Ginna was a member, had charge of the services, which were opened with the reading of Scripture selections. The church quartette, comprising Miss Grace Carroll, contralto; Miss Davis, soprano; Mr. Greinert, bass, and Rhys Thomas, tenor, sang "Lead, Kindly Light." Mr. Zelie then read other Scripture selections, which was followed by the Apostle's Creed in which those present joined. An earnest prayer was then offered by Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel.

Mr. Zelie then spoke as follows:

"Them that honor me I will honor."

"The Scriptures are full of words which express for us the feelings and thoughts under whose influence we come here to this home today. Yet none seem fitter than these to express what is behind all the outpouring of affection and sympathy which our city witnesses today. Behind all the honor which our people are moved to pay lies the sense of that life-long honor which this friend and brother had paid to his God and Father. That is the background against which this life appears to us today. Against it he had lived and moved and had his being. He had sought first the Kingdom of God and His Righteousness and all these things had been added unto him. Human hearts are never so deeply stirred—nor moved together as they are by the consciousness of what is divine and when a human life is stirred by that consciousness then it is stirred indeed.

"A man may do many things for his fellow-men, but the greatest that he ever does is what somehow makes them think of their God. The highest gladness and virtue of a life is that which exists not all by itself but has the power to make us to think of God as its source. The honor which we bring here today could not be what it is, so abundant, so spontaneous, if we could not feel that it was all bound up with the honor of our Father which is in Heaven. Them that honor me I will honor.

"I do not think that anything could be dearer to the heart of our brother and friend than to realize that his life has had this affect upon his fellow-men—God in Christ was the background of his life. The Kingdom of God was in his heart and all the things that he did for his city, his church, his home were enfolded by the greater devotion which replenished them all, his devotion to the Kingdom of God. That is why his life was so rich and why today we feel nothing wanting in his influence.

"The few words which can be spoken here today cannot sum up or express all that is in many hearts. We have ceased to expect that. There are too many lives each with its own testimony to bear, for one to do that for all. Below all the loving service which all of us knew there went on a world of secret kindnesses in obscure lives and places. Our community was full of these things and they are known to those who are blessed by them and to our Father which is in Heaven. I cannot but be impressed by thinking how wonderfully rich this life was in its relationships. Those are what make a life rich, the relationships into which it enters. What makes a life poor is what it refuses to enter into them, refuses to establish them. As we look back on Mr. Ginna's life, outwardly so quiet, his is one of the things that strikes us first and most deeply, the richness and variety of his relationships. We do not realize perhaps that they are not entered into without great cost. To-day we see them yielding up from every side love and gratitude and we wonder perhaps at the good fortune which had made a life to be like this. If we could have seen them at the beginning we might have seen the sacrifices of his own pleasure and convenience. Only so are such relations made. No life enters into them without cost and labor and devotion. All those costs were paid and we heard nothing of them. How good it is to think that up to the very last he was still establishing them while keeping up the older ones in full force.

"And he never said his day was done. He seems never to have thought that it was done. He had not retired, he had not retreated, and he had no thought of having done his share. His hope was that he might keep on doing it and so even to the last he was still giving himself to generous plans and services. Was not this what our Lord meant by more life and more abundantly? It had been his to the very end. If there had been premonitions of the end, if his thoughts unknown to others had turned that way all that we knew was that he made the more haste to redeem the time.

"Many interests which filled and occupied his life and made it larger crowd into our thoughts for recognition today. But save perhaps his own home none were nearer to his heart than the care and service of that well-ordered congregation of Bethel chapel which has had for twenty years the best he had to give from whom is now taken away a life whose departure must change the look of this world for all of them. Sunday was his day and his church, his chapel and his home had for years received from him on that day an almost military faithfulness. A few weeks ago we heard him joyfully sum up the work of twenty years as we celebrated with him that anniversary. If there had been hardships or sacrifices from him in those twenty years of toil we heard nothing but only of the joy with which the work for the people he loved had gone forward. He seemed to look upon it all as his privilege. Not only his church but his city had reason to rejoice in those twenty years of his guidance for the people who had come as strangers to this city. In those years no one can say how many times that congregation had changed for all over the land today are scattered the lives that he had touched and the lives he had influenced, lives that must have taken with them memories of him which have both restrained and inspired them in the battle of life. They had come strangers to Bethel chapel and in him they had met at once the best that our city had to give. We hear much of the great enterprises undertaken for the race which had his life-long interest, but here in our own city had been going on with his constant help for twenty years an enterprise of the same spirit as the greater ones with the same ideals and the same practices of order and soberness and dignity. Many lives had been refashioned and influenced by it. Its power and example has gone into it and changed the life of other churches. It was a home where men and women who were strangers and alone had found shelter and they had gone out from it to bear all the rest of their lives the marks of its influence. The increase of his own affairs never unsettled or changed his devotion to its interests. Who shall speak for all those faithful hearts who had looked to him and not been disappointed, who had depended upon him and not been ashamed, who had known such generous service at his hands? May God continue these same ideals and may those who are left stand closer resolved that things shall be the same.

"And the city. It has a tone and character peculiarly its own. It has a tradition to sustain, it has a kind of life to live. We may say that that tradition is that men should not do just as they will with their own lives, that they shall not say too proudly what is mine is mine, that they will not demand each for himself his full and absolute right, but that each shall gladly surrender much for the good and help of all and that none shall press his full right to the very end. To all that tradition Mr. Ginna brought much. By those principles he freely and gladly lived. He helped

To Succeed Dr. Snodgrass as Pastor of First M. E. Church.

A MAN OF ABILITY

Second Announcement That Dr. Charles Parsons, of Newark, Will be Pastor of Grace M. E. Church.

Announcement has just been made semi-officially of the successor of Rev. Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. Church, who recently resigned his charge to accept the pastorate of the M. E. church at Perth Amboy, the same to take effect after the meeting of the Newark Conference. The congregation of the local church has extended an invitation to Rev. Abel O. McCrea, now pastor of the M. E. church at Ridgewood, to become its pastor after Dr. Snodgrass leaves. As this is the largest church of the denomination here, more than usual interest is manifested in its pastor.

Mr. McCrea is about thirty-five years old, has a wife and one child. He has been preaching about twelve years. He is a graduate of Dickinson College and Drew Seminary at Madison. Among his first pastorates was at the M. E. church, Roselle. Afterward he was pastor of Grace M. E. church, Staten Island, for six years and is now located at Ridgewood, where the denomination has a very strong church.

Mr. MrCrea is known to be a man of ability, a magnetic preacher, and one particularly genial. During his ministry he has been eminently successful both as a preacher and as a pastor, and he is considered a worthy successor to Dr. Snodgrass, whose work here has been one of steady progress. There is general regret that the present pastor is to leave, for during his stay he has endeared himself to the hearts of his people and he has performed a most excellent work. However, there is much rejoicing to know that the work will be continued by an able and talented minister.

Accompanying the announcement as to the successor to Dr. Snodgrass, is one regarding the successor to Rev. Dr. E. L. Harp at Grace M. E. church. Since Dr. Harp's retirement, the pulpit has been filled by Rev. R. E. Diffendorfer, a student at Drew Seminary. Owing to his studies he will not be able to continue this pastorate, and after the conference Rev. Dr. Charles Parsons, who is now living in Newark, will succeed him.

Dr. Parsons is a man of great ability. His last charge was at the First M. E. church, Minneapolis. He has also been pastor of St. Paul's church, Newark, and the Hanson Place M. E. church, Brooklyn. He is full of vigor and power and it is predicted that he will do a good work in this field. As in the case of Mr. McCrea, Grace church has extended an invitation to Dr. Parsons to become its pastor, and with the concurrence of the Bishop, of which there seems to be no doubt, he and Mr. McCrea will be appointed to the local churches.

BIG HOUSES ASSURED.

Demand for Seats for All Three Performances of "Oshkosh at Home."

Crowded houses are assured for both the evening performances of "Oshkosh at Home" on Friday and Saturday evenings. Owing to the demand for seats it was decided to give a matinee also on Saturday afternoon. The matinee will be in all respects exactly like the evening performance. It is to be given with the idea of giving the children a chance to see the show, but grownups are also welcome.

Plainfielders will be very much surprised when they see the new Casino stage. Complete new scenery has been ordered to meet the Oshkosh requirements, in fact, it has been painted in accordance with the needs of the show. New border lights have been set in and new drops ordered.

A Ginna Memorial Service.

A service in memory of Stephen A. Ginna will be held at Bethel chapel Sunday afternoon, January 22. All those who have ever been connected with the school are cordially invited to be present. The exercises will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock and the members of the school are urgently requested to be in their seats at that time.

Kaltenborn's Tonight.

The famous Kaltenborn String Quartette, of New York, appears at the Casino this evening in a superb programme. All music lovers will doubtless take advantage of this opportunity of hearing this famous quartette.

ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES ALREADY LOOMING UP

COMMITTEEMEN OF BOTH PARTIES BESIEGED FOR APPOINTMENTS.

Hardly had the special election legislative bill been rushed through both houses at Trenton Tuesday, setting aside Tuesday, February 7, as an election day for the purpose of choosing an Assemblyman from Union and one from Sussex County, than interested parties began to talk of there already being a number of candidates in the field. The committeemen of both parties are being besieged with "influential friends" of the candidates, looking for appointments.

Prominently mentioned for the place on the Democratic ticket is former Assemblyman Joseph T. Hague. No one seems to have heard of any one else on the Democratic ticket. On the Republican ticket, the names of Ellis B. Meeker, John F. Brown and Charles N. Codding, Randolph Perkins, mayor, and Lloyd Thompson, clerk, of Westfield, are heard. It seems to be the opinion that Mr. Perkins will be the choice of the Republicans. The nominee will be decided upon tomorrow night at a meeting of the Union County Republican Committee to be held at Elizabeth.

HIGH SCHOOL WORSTS LEALS IN BASKET BALL

WHITTIERS ADVANCE TO FIRST PLACE IN JUVENILE LEAGUE.

The players of the Plainfield High School basketball team placed themselves on a tie which their rivals from Leal's School in the interscholastic league yesterday afternoon by defeating them by the score of 27 to 14. It was in every respect a well-earned victory, won by superior team work and remarkable accuracy in goal-shooting.

Captain Thompson, who has recently returned to the ranks of the players, was the star of the contest, eight goals being his record for the game. Bentley and Freeman were also good, while Stutsman saved many a point, which Leal's might have scored, but for his excellent guarding. Chapman and Jewett were in the game for Leal's with a vengeance, and it was not because Leal's did not play well that the P. H. S. won. It was purely because they played better. At the end of the first half the score was 16 to 6.

The line up and detailed score of the match was as follows: P. H. S.—Bentley, Smith and Thompson, forwards; Freeman, center; Stutsman and Gavett, guards, Leal's School—Chapman and Howard, forwards; Jewett, center; Lyman and Manning, guards. Goals from the field, Thompson, 8; Bentley, 2; Gavett, 2; Chapman, 2; Howard, Jewett and Manning. Goals from fouls, Chapman, 2; Thompson, 2; Gavett. Referee, Dr. W. K. Browning. Umpire, Spicer.

On the same battle ground the Whittier School advanced to first place in the Juvenile basketball league by defeating the second team of Leal's School by the score of 12 to 8. This game was equally hard fought, and was notable for fast playing on the part of Alpaugh and Woodnull for the Whittiers, and Underhill and Rowland for the Leal's team. At the end of the first half the score was 6 to 0. The line up was as follows: Whittier—Briggs and Loughlin, forwards; Alpaugh, center; Woodnull and Fountain, guards. Leal's—Underhill and Rowland, forwards; Miller, center; Lawrence and Glenney, guards.

Buys Front Street Property.

The property located on East Front street between the properties of Powilson & Jones and Woodhull & Martin, has been purchased by the latter firm and it will eventually be improved. The land adjoining the Woodhull & Martin store is of peculiar value to the firm, and the deal means that if another building is erected thereon to take the place of the present old structure, it will be in keeping with the firm's modern structure, one of the finest in the city.

Gallia Postoffice to Go.

Official notice was given the local authorities yesterday that the postoffice at Gallia, or Mount Bethel, as it is familiarly known, will be discontinued after Feb. 15. The district will be supplied from the Plainfield office by Rural Mail Carrier Nelson Peterson. While it will not lengthen his route any, it will add a large number of residents to his list.

WILL NOT NAME MEEKER

Former Senator Hutchinson to Be Road Commissioner.

ACTION BY STOKES

Nomination Will be Sent to the Senate for Approval Monday Night.

According to an official report sent out from Trenton today, Governor Stokes will send to the Senate next Monday night the nomination of former Senator Elijah C. Hutchinson, of Mercer county, as State commissioner of public roads, to succeed Henry I. Budd, deceased.

Under ordinary conditions the nomination would be referred and then reported back before it was taken up for confirmation. By an unwritten law, however, in every case where a former Senator is named for an office requiring the action of the Senate he is confirmed immediately. This course will be followed Monday night and the nomination will be ratified as soon as it is presented to the Senate.

The term of the commissioner is three years and the salary $2,500 a year. New Jersey, with about 1,000 miles of improved roads, leads the union in highway betterment, so that the position is an important one.

This appointment will bring to Mercer county another State department head, making four in all: State Treasurer Briggs, Quartermaster General Donnelly and Librarian Henry C. Buchanan, besides the road commissioner.

Senator Hutchinson was born in Windsor, Mercer county, August 7, 1855. He is engaged in the flour business in Hamilton township. He was elected to the Assembly in 1895 and during his term served on some of the important committees. In 1898 he was elected to the Senate and in 1901 was re-elected.

In the session of 1903 he was president of the Senate.

It was generally believed in Plainfield and throughout Union county that the appointment would come to Robert A. Meeker, of this city, who is the present State supervisor of roads and who is in every way fitted for the place. Hutchinson announced several months ago that he wanted the office and said that he would be a candidate at the expiration of Budd's term.

Ten Years for Wasson.

George H. Wasson, formerly a soldier at Sandy Hook, who was convicted on Tuesday of manslaughter for the killing of Charles G. Stratton at the East End Hotel, at Seaside, May 13, 1904, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Jonathan Dixon to ten years in State prison at hard labor. Isaac P. Runyon, Esq., of this city, was one of the counsel engaged to defend Wasson. In pronouncing sentence, Justice Dixon said that the jury's verdict implied that the shooting had been done with no intention on the part of the prisoner to either harm or kill Stratton.

Mrs. Larew Asks Damages.

The trial of Mrs. Margaret Larew, of this city, against the Sebring estate to recover damages for a fractured leg, the result of stumbling over a coal hole cover located in front of the Sebring property which adjoins the Babcock building on West Front street, is now on at Elizabeth. Yesterday the petit jury, before whom the case is being tried, visited the scene of the accident to investigate conditions. Mrs. Larew is represented by G. W. V. Moy, Esq., and Codington & Swackhamer represent the Sebring estate. The case may be concluded today.

FRANK L. SCHOONMAKER WEDS MISS GRACE EATON

BRILLIANT CEREMONY WITNESSED BY SEVERAL HUNDRED GUESTS.

Several hundred guests attended the wedding yesterday afternoon of Frank L. Schoonmaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, of this city, and Miss Grace L. Eaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Llewellyn Eaton, of New York, which was celebrated in the Collegiate church, Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street. Roses, lilies and growing plants ornamented the space about the pulpit and the chancel, and made a pretty setting for the ceremony.

The bride, who was gowned in white satin, appliqued with point lace, was attended by Mrs. Lewis M. Waring, of this city, and Mrs. Witherbee Black, as matrons of honor, in white chiffon cloth and lace, with coats of pale blue taffeta; by her sister, Miss Ruth Eaton, as maid of-honor, in pink chiffon, with which she wore a pink hat, and by these bridesmaids: Miss Bety Collamore, Miss Madeline Evans, Miss Louise Vanderhoef, Miss Evelyn Ellison, Miss Mona House, of Texas, and Miss Helen Judson, arrayed in frocks of pink and white chiffon. Miss Gretchen Schoonmaker and Miss Margaret Luce were flower girls.

Frederick Bull was the best man, and the ushers were J. Frederick Byers, William O. Clark, Lewis E. Waring, Charles W. Fisk, Hastings Arnold, Henry Lowe, George S. Oliver and Frank T. Reamer.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a diamond pin in the design of Prince of Wales feathers, which she wore, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Among the guests were relatives and friends from this city, local society being largely represented at the ceremony and the reception which was given afterwards at the home of the bride's parents in West Seventy-third street, New York.

The bride is a popular member of the younger society set in New York, and is also a favorite in local society. Mr. Schoonmaker has resided here some time, where he has been prominent in society. He is an ardent automobilist, and has been active in the affairs of the Plainfield Country Club, as well as many social events.

IONA CELEBRATES ITS TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY

POPULAR COUNCIL ENTERTAINS MEMBERS AND STATE OFFICERS.

In celebration of the twelfth anniversary of its organization, Iona Council, No. 14, Degree of Pocohontas, entertained a large gathering of members and visiting delegations in its rooms last evening. The affair proved an enjoyable one in many respects and served to show what prosperity the council has had since its beginning, the prospects for the future being unusually bright.

Many of the prominent State officers were present, among them being Great Pocohontas Wardell, of Jersey City; Great Prophet Estelle Reagan, of Paterson; and Great Keeper of Records Sarah Reilstab, of Trenton. All made addresses and in addition encouraging remarks were made by Past Great Pocohontas Lavinia Holstein, of this city. The welcoming address was made by William Newcorn, Esq.

The programme provided included selections by an instrumental trio composed of the Misses Violet and Clara Hallard and Archibald Hallard; recitations by Ruth McCarthy; a pleasing vocal duett, "A Japanese Love Song," by Evelyn and Albert Manley, in Indian costume; recitations by Miss Josie Murphy, who made her usual distinct "hit;" and piano selections by Miss Margaret Boehm and Miss Violet Hallard. Refreshments were served at the close and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair comprised Mrs. Charles Dodwell, chairman; Mrs. Emily Hallard, Mrs. Andrew Mattox and Mrs. Sadie Bowman.

—When it comes to a choice of other coffees and the special grade, fresh roasted Java and Mocha sold by Neaman Brothers, there should be no hesitancy. The latter makes the best beverage every time.

Mrs. W. A. Brundage, of Oneida, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of East Front street.

SEMI-ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Women's Home Mission Societies Meet at Dunellen.

A PROFITABLE SESSION

Interesting and Instructive Programme Characterized Gathering of Elizabeth District.

Attended by delegates from societies in all parts of the district, the first semi-annual conference of the Elizabeth District Women's Home Missionary Society was held at the Methodist Episcopal church, of Dunellen, yesterday, and was characterized by unusual reports of prosperity. In all branches of the work, in the larger and in the minor societies, this condition of affairs seems prevalent, and it was with immense gratification to all who were in attendance.

There was a business meeting in the morning which was opened by a devotional service led by Rev. W. S. Newson. Following the service, Rev. S. K. Doolittle, of the Dunellen Methodist church, made a welcoming address. It was responded to by Mrs. E. Clark, Jr. The usual routine business of the societies followed, after which Mrs. C. S. Blaine made an address. Miss Effa C. Ham, of Cranford, addressed the societies on the topic "What is Your Difficulty." Her talk was an exceedingly interesting and instructive one.

At the conclusion of this service, a light lunch was served by the women of the church. The afternoon session began at 1:30, and was characterized by the attendance and speeches of the conference officers, Mrs. Charles S. Woodruff, of Bloomfield, and Mrs. Hedley Robert Woodward, of Montclair. The discussions were universally entered into, and the meeting was in every respect a general one.

Mrs. Woodruff opened the afternoon session by a Bible reading, and this was followed by conferences' pledges and a silver offering, conducted by Mrs. Woodward. A general discussion on the subject, "Valuation of Supplies," and "Day of Prayer," followed this number of the programme. A feature of the meeting was a learned address by Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, who spoke on the topic "The Privilege of Giving."

Rev. Mr. Randolph's talk was one which will be long remembered by those who were privileged to hear it. He spoke at length of the good which is accomplished by systematic and reasonable giving, emphasizing especially the privilege rather than the duty of giving.

Following this address Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, of this city, sang a soprano solo, which was much enjoyed. "Our Young People'" was the subject of the exercise conducted by Mrs. F. S. Work, of this city, in which other members of the societies took part. Unique and attractive was the number which followed, entitled "A Telephone Exercise." It was delivered in a pleasing manner by Miss Frances Rittenhouse and Miss Helen Edgar, of this city. In connection with this exercise, Mrs. MacDonald sang another solo.

These are the officers of the Elizabeth District Home Missionary Society:

President, Mrs. C. S. Woodruff, Bloomfield; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Hedley Robert Woodward, Montclair; treasurer, Mrs. John McNaughton, Plainfield; district officers, president, Miss Carlton, Elizabeth; vice president, Mrs. R. A. Miller, Plainfield; secretry, Miss Mary V. Moore, Elizabeth; corresponding secretary, Miss Effa Z. Ham, Cranford; treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Bloom, Frenchtown; mite box secretary, Mrs J. C. Pierson, Plainfield; secretary of literature, Mrs. S. K. Doolittle, Dunellen; secretary of young people, Mrs. F. S. Work, Plainfield.

Joe, the Turk, Speaks.

Joe, the Turk, a prominent figure in Salvation Army affairs, who has been for many years a worker in Constantinople, Turkey, was the speaker at the Salvation Army hall last night, and addressed a large audience in a stirring and inspiring manner. Dressed in the costume of the Turk, Joe attracted much attention and a large crowd gathered around him while he sang on the street corner, and followed him into the hall, where he told stories of his life.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Helen Ashley, (Hunt) who is a Plainfield young woman, has been contracted by the mangement of the Charles Dickson Company in Herbert Hall Winslow's newest comedy, "The Simple Life," as leading lady. The company is booked to appear at Jacob's Theatre, Elizabeth, on Saturday afternoon and night of this week, Jan. 21. The many friends from Plainfield who witnessed Miss Ashley as "Josephine" in "The Imperial Divorce" recently at the same theatre will see her in "The Simple Life." The above is a picture of Miss Ashley who has made a success of every part she has attempted during her career, and her present role was written expressly to show her off to the best possible advantage. Her splendid presence, superb acting and rich and correct costume will prove quite a pleasant revelation to the audience.

Racing In Mud at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 19.—What was the most promising card of the meeting was spoiled by heavy rains, which thoroughly soaked the track. There was not much business for the bookies. Main, favorite in the opening event, made all the running and won easily by three lengths from Good, who beat Carthage six lengths for the place. The third race was sweet for the bookies. Toscan and Moonet were heavily backed, but were beaten by Incense, a 10 to 1 shot.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—At Oakland, with Claude out of the way, five accepted the issue for the $1,000 handicap. The race was marred by a poor start, W. R. Hanna Elias Takes Stand In Own Defense.

AGED ADMIRER PAID HANDSOMELY

Negress, Defending Suit of John R. Platt to Recover $685,000, Tells Her Story—Testified to Giving $162,000 Without Voucher.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Hanna Elias, the negress sued by John R. Platt for $685,000, took the stand in her own defense here. She told in the boldest manner of her relations with Platt. She lifted her veil as she mounted the stand, looking around the courtroom with her bold stare.

During two and a half hours of questioning and cross questioning the negress maintained perfect composure and sang froid.

One of the startling pieces of information revealed by her was that shortly before the attaching of his property in connection with the present action she had drawn $162,000 in cash from the Lincoln National bank and given it to Patrick Dugan, an upholsterer, who had worked for her at various times. She had asked for no receipt and had received none.

"Mrs. Elias," Mr. Black, in opening, said, "describe how you first met Mr. Platt."

"I first met him about nineteen years ago at Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. We went to the 'French Madam's,' in Thirty-first street. Then he gave me $500, said I was a nice girl and told me to go to 'Pop' Miller's and he would take care of me."

"Did he give you any money while you were there?"

"Yes. Sometimes $800, sometimes $1,000. Lots of money."

"What did he call you?"

"Irene. He said he had known a girl by that name down south."

"Did you have servants?"

"Yes."

"Did he ever give you more than $1,000 at a time?"

"Yes. Sometimes $2,000. He was very kind to me."

"Did he advise you as what to do with the money?"

"Yes. He told me to put it in a savings bank, as he couldn't mention me in his will because of his relatives."

"Did you ever lose track of him?"

"Only when he went south. When he came back he would put an advertisement in the newspapers. It would read: 'Bessie—Tell me where you are. Popper.' Then I would answer by putting in an advertisement reading: 'Popper—Dime Savings bank at 8:30. Bessie.'"

"Now, how much did you pay for the house at 138 West Sixty-eighth street?"

"Eighteen thousand five hundred dollars."

"Why did he want you to move from the Fifty-third street house?"

"Because it was so objectionable."

"Why?"

"There were so many colored people in the neighborhood."

"Why did you go to the Central park west house?"

"Well, Mr. Platt wanted me to move there because nobody lived opposite."

"Did he look at the Central park west house?"

"Yes. He said it wasn't worth $45,000."

"Is that what you paid for it?"

"Yes."

"What else did you buy?"

"No. 166 West Seventy-second street, for $49,500."

"Why did you move from 236 Central park west?"

"Because of the notoriety brought on by Andrew H. Green's death."

"How about Mrs. De Craft?"

"Well, Mr. Platt came to my house in Lenox avenue very early one day in February, 1904. I said to him, 'Why, popper, what are you doing here so early?' and he said: 'The devil's to pay. Mrs. De Craft has told my brother Isaac all about it.'"

"Did he tell you he had a wife?"

"Yes, and two daughters, one of whom was in Nebraska."

"What did Mr. Platt have to do with your divorce from Matthew Davis?"

"He told me to get an absolute divorce and he would pay for it."

Boys Started Cotton Fire.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 19.—Several boys at Fort Gaines, Ga., with the view of imitating the farmers who burned some cotton on the streets of that town a short time ago, secured matches and set fire to a cotton warehouse. The fire burned rapidly, and eleven bales of cotton were consumed before it was got under control. One residence caught fire from sparks, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

Chinese Leper at Large.

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—A Chinaman who walked into the office of the Boston board of health here was found to be a leper by the physicians, and he was sent at once to Callup's island, in the harbor, where two other cases of leprosy are being treated. He gave the name of Yee Yong and said that for five years he had lived in Newburyport. Physicians in Newburyport, he said, had asked him to come to Boston for examination.

Mrs. Langtry's Latest Success.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—At Terry's theater last night Mrs. Langtry made a successful reappearance in London in "Mrs. Dering's Divorce." Her acting shows continued improvement. She wore charming dresses and in the last act a daring but effective headgear, consisting of a wreath of vine leaves, with bunches of silver grapes hanging at either side.

DOUGLAS SUCCEEDS.

Great Fall River Strike Ended Through Him.

TEXTILE WORKERS GO BACK TO MILLS

Both Sides Regard Outcome as a Victory—Governor Will Investigate Matter of Margins and Submit His Conclusions.

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—The strike of the cotton mill operatives at Fall River, which affected about 25,000 persons and which has been in progress for six months, to the great hardship and suffering of Fall River's people, has been settled through the mediation of Governor William L. Douglas. Under the terms of an agreement accepted by both manufacturers and operatives, at a conference held at the statehouse, the strikers will return to work at once under the 12½ per cent reduction against which they struck last July and with no discrimination because of the strike.

No rate of wages was established, but it was agreed that Governor Douglas shall investigate the matter of margins between the cost of cotton to the mill owners and the selling price of the cloth and submit his conclusions as to an average margin upon which the manufacturers are to pay a dividend of 5 per cent on wages earned from the present time to April 1.

Both sides regard the outcome of the deliberations as a victory.

The strikers' committee expressed great satisfaction with the terms of settlement, believing that the evident spirit of the manufacturers to pay, at least until April, a dividend or increase, should the margin reach the figure which Governor Douglas will fix, is an indication that the mill owners will aim to lay down such wages as will not be incompatible with reasonable profits for the mill stockholders.

The manufacturers, on the other hand, feel that their contention that they are now paying as high as conditions warrant will be established by the governor's investigation.

Governor Douglas, in a statement issued after the conference, expressed especial pleasure that the manufacturers had accepted even a modified form of arbitration and said that he felt assured that the arbitration seed now planted would grow in a few years to a point that would prevent a recurrence of "these demoralizing and pitiful strikes."

The news of the settlement of the long pending mill strike was received at Fall River with great enthusiasm. Within half an hour of the time that the news first came to the city of a settlement the streets were crowded with men and women giving every manifestation of joy. The rejoicing was particularly marked among the nonunion employees, who, however, had lent support to the strike. These have been among the principal sufferers from privation, as they have been dependent upon the souphouses, while the union members have received strike benefit money.

Experts Testify In Tucker's Defense.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 19.—Expert testimony occupied the entire time of the court during the session of the Tucker murder trial, and with the exception of about twenty minutes surgeons were on the stand. Without exception these latter testified that a knife thrust into a body at an angle described by Medical Examiner Meade could not possibly touch the azygous vein. Each of the medical experts also stated that the knife shown them, a duplicate of the one owned by Tucker, would not have made wounds similar to those found on the body of Miss Page, the reason ascribed in every case being that its broad back would leave a heavier impression in the flesh.

Smallpox at Lawrence.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 19.—Health officials are making a thorough investigation to locate other possible smallpox cases in this city, following the discovery that four persons have received the infection from W. H. Newsholme, a passenger on the steamship Cymric, which arrived at Boston two weeks ago. Newsholme came here from Boston and has since been living here with his sister, Mrs. Joseph Turner.

Raisinger's Father Attempts Suicide.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Jan. 19.—Benjamin Raisinger, father of Frank Raisinger, who is to be hanged on Feb. 15 for the murder of his wife, attempted to hang himself at his farm, about five miles from here. He was cut down by a farm hand. Mr. Raisinger declared that he would not live to see his son executed. The young man's mother is critically ill.

Two Held For Shafer Murder.

BEDFORD, Ind., Jan. 19.—Frank Evans and William Elmer Browning, laborers, were arrested today on warrants sworn out by John H. Underwood, an attorney, charging them with the murder of Miss Sarah C. Shafer on the night of Jan. 21, 1904. The men deny the charge.

HOOKER'S ACTS DISAPPROVED.

State Bar Association at Albany Decides Against Fredonia Judge.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The alleged acts of Warren B. Hooker of Fredonia, a justice of the supreme court of New York in the Eighth judicial district, in connection with appointments and rental transactions in the postoffices at Fredonia and Dunkirk, Chautauqua county, were formally "disapproved" by the State Bar association in annual meeting here last night after a sensational and turbulent meeting characterized by almost unprecedented attendance of members and lasting more than four hours.

The association defeated a resolution offered by Frederick W. Hinrichs of Brooklyn referring the matter to the legislature and calling for the appointment of a committee to formulate charges against Justice Hooker. The findings of fact of the grievance committee were adopted by the association by an almost unanimous vote.

CARNEGIE PAYS LOSSES.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Placed With Pastor Cadmus at Elyria.

ELYRIA, O., Jan. 19.—Andrew Carnegie has placed $15,000 in the hands of Rev. W. E. Cadmus, pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, to be distributed to the depositors who lost their money in the failed Citizens' National bank of Oberlin as a result of the Chadwick loans.

Mr. Carnegie said in a letter to Mr. Cadmus to use the money among the depositors who had placed their savings in the Oberlin bank and also to investigate among the students at Oberlin college and learn the amount they lost. When this is done, it is understood more money will be forthcoming.

Judge Steele of Oberlin will appoint a committee to investigate the most worthy cases. Mr. Carnegie has also given Mr. Cadmus $3,000 to reimburse the Oberlin Young Men's Christian association.

Three Sudden Deaths In Family.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Three sudden deaths within the past twenty-four hours have occurred in the family of Thomas Meehan, well known in the commercial circles in Chicago. Word has reached the family that James Meehan, the youngest son, had died at Kankakee. A few hours later the mother, Mrs. E. Meehan, was taken ill with heart disease at a railway station here and died after being taken to Mercy hospital. Later a telegram was received that Thomas Meehan had died in Denver, where he went last week for a vacation.

A New Back for an Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across my back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

SWAYNE IMPEACHED.

House Adopted Twelve Articles Against Florida Judge.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The house of representatives has adopted the twelve articles of impeachment against Judge Charles Swayne of the district court of the northern district of Florida, which had been presented by its special committee of investigation. The speaker was authorized to appoint seven managers to present the case to the senate and conduct the impeachment proceedings before that body.

This action was the culmination of a debate which has been in progress for over a week and which has developed partisan feeling and personal vituperation. The first vote—that to table the first three articles, those relating to the falsification of expenses—went against Judge Swayne by the narrow margin of five votes. This was regarded as the test vote, as the charge regarding expenses was the only one concurred in by the members of the committee signing the minority report. The motion to table these articles was lost—160 to 165.

The last time the house voted to present articles of impeachment was in 1876, when it voted the impeachment of W. W. Belknap, secretary of war under President Grant.

The debate was chiefly notable for the closing arguments in the case. That for Judge Swayne was made by Mr. Gillett (Cal.) and that for impeachment by Mr. Palmer (Pa.). Mr. Gillett made an earnest plea for the judge, and Mr. Palmer spoke strongly for purity on the bench and for impeachment.

BOLTED TO KERENS.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 19.—The bolting of six Republicans on the first and two more on the second ballot from the ranks of Thomas K. Niedringhaus, Republican caucus nominee for United States senator to succeed Francis M. Cockrell, resulted in no choice for senator in a joint session of the legislature. With the exception of one, who cast his ballot for D. Pettijohn of Linn county, all the caucus bolters voted for Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, who was the strongest opponent of Niedringhaus in the caucus.

On the first joint ballot John Bittinger, the oldest member in point of service in the house, and five other Republicans bolted to Kerens, giving Niedringhaus 87, Cockrell 83 and Kerens 6.

On the second ballot two more men bolted Niedringhaus, one going to Dr. Pettijohn and one to Kerens, leaving Niedringhaus eighty-five votes. Those who bolted to Kerens were John Bittinger, Glover Branch, F. R. Cook, C. E. Elliot, James Roach, Oliver Grace and George Hatsfeldt. Hatsfeldt switched to Kerens on the second ballot, while E. M. Kirkham bolted to Pettijohn.

Last night Mr. Niedringhaus received the following telegram from Congressman Bartholdt:

"You have stood ordeal nobly and fairly won the prize. The party is prouder of you than ever. Heartiest congratulations."

A RUSSIAN CRISIS.

Socialists at St. Petersburg Spurring on Strikers.

INDUSTRIAL QUARTERS ARMED CAMP

Patrols of Soldiers and Police Surround Works—Great Strike Stops Work on Third Pacific Squadron For Far East.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 19.—The strike situation is becoming very grave. Last night there were 58,000 men out on strike, and the movement is spreading to the big cotton mills, which employ over 50,000 operatives. Meetings have been called for today, at which the Socialistic Democratic leaders will use their utmost endeavors to convert the strike into a vast political demonstration, which at the present crisis might have most serious developments.

The authorities are adopting every precaution to avoid an outbreak, but the Socialistic Democrats are spurring on the strikers, and there is great danger of a collision with the troops, which would be almost sure to be followed by red flag demonstrations, accompanied by great bloodshed.

The city is full of sensational rumors, and rioting is generally expected. In conjunction with the Epiphany celebration, which will occur today, the meetings of the strikers will make the day a critical one for the police. Thus far, however, the strike has preserved a purely economic aspect. The great industrial quarters of St. Petersburg, which is the pride of modern Russia, presents the appearance of an armed camp. The idle factories are surrounded by cordons of police, and patrols of infantry march about the snow covered plains.

The strikers are led by a priest named Gopon, who is idolized by the workmen and who represents them in negotiations with the employers.

This is the first great strike in northern Russia. Hitherto the workmen have been unorganized, and previous strikes in St. Petersburg have not involved more than 10,000 men. The strike leaders claim to have funds enough to hold out for a month. But this is doubted, and the lack of money and the privations of winter and perhaps government interference are expected to make the strike short and sharp. The strikers, who at first declined the offer of financial support by the Socialistic Democrats of Moscow on the ground that they wished to sharply differentiate the walkout from a political movement, are reported to have accepted the Moscow contribution.

The strike has an important bearing on the war in the far east, as every day's delay in completing government contracts at the iron works means the loss of precious time in the starting of the third Pacific squadron.

"My Friend, Mr. Taggart."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 19.—William Jennings Bryan was the guest of Thomas Taggart, chairman of the national Democratic committee. Before leaving for Washington last night Mr. Bryan said that he had spent the day with "my friend, Mr. Taggart." "I can't see wherein the Democratic party needs any reorganization," said Mr. Bryan. "I have said all along that the Democratic party cannot be a conservative party. It must be radical—that is, radical if compared to what many easterners would make it." He added that the real friends of the party would be in control four years hence.

Shot as Burglar Suspect.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Lewis Betsch, a young man of twenty-three, died in a hospital here, having been shot down by Policeman Anthony F. Muldoon, who suspected him of being a burglar. Under oath and fully convinced that he had but a few hours to live Betsch denied the policeman's story that he had been discovered in front of a store, the window of which had just been broken, and said he had been calling on the young woman he was engaged to marry. The young woman denied that he had visited her.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 19, 1905.

The special election which Union County will have to hold to fill the Assembly vacancy caused by the death of George Embree, will cost the tax payers from $5,000 to $7,000. The expense will be burdensome but the legislative action calling for it was the best way out of the difficulty.

The Daily Press will shortly begin the publication in serial form of "The Grafters," one of the best stories of its kind ever written. It is from the pen of Francis Lynde and is of absorbing interest from the first to the last chaper. Those who are fond of a story which has plenty of "snap" and "go" in it, should not miss reading "The Grafters."

Union County seems to have the right man for the place made vacant by the death of State Commissioner of Roads Budd. He is Robert A. Meeker, of Plainfield, who has been deputy commissioner for several years, and is thoroughly familiar with the work of the department. His experiences in road building has extended over many years, and he is rated as an authority on the subject.—Elizabeth Journal.

While Newark and Elizabeth are saying all sorts of things about the trolley facilities furnished by the Public Service people, Plainfield is sitting back in the full enjoyment of a service that is without question the best that it has had since the days of John Adelmann. The greater part of it is due to the efforts of Division Superintendent Philip Maguire, a Plainfield young man who knows what Plainfielders want and is giving it to them.

REALTY CONVEYANCES.

Transfers of Plainfield Real Estate as Recorded in the County Clerk's Office at Elizabeth.

The following real estate conveyances have recently been recorded in the Union County Clerk's office at Elizabeth:

Voehl, northwesterly side East Sixth street, 484 feet northeasterly of Berkman street, $11 Harriet Hubler et al. to Joseph J. Stiles, easterly side road passing William Hand, corner Frazee Hetfield, $1; Joseph J. Stiles to Hubert H. Shutt, same as last, $800; Thomas S. Davis to Harriet Hubler, same as above, $250; William Lunger et ux. to Frederick A. Weber, Second street, corner James I. Compton, $1; B. Frank Cortell, sheriff, to Susan L. Clapp, southerly side Prospect avenue, 150 feet easterly of Central Baptist church, $2,400; John V. E. Vanderhoef et ux. to William Jeffery, East Second street, 50 feet northeasterly of Edward C. Mulford, $1; Improved Building Lot Association of N. J. and Pa. to William Pine, lot 9, block C, "Map of Rockview Heights," $123; Improved Building Lot Association of N. J. and Pa. to Carsten Christianson, lot 8, block L, "Map of Rock view Heights," $123.

The following contracts have also been filed:

Sarah W. Laing with George Wiegand, entire work new building, East Front street, $4,880; T. R. VanZandt et al. with R. F. Rapp, entire work grain elevator, etc., Park avenue, $12,000.

IN THE SHOPS.

Joseph Loughead, formerly of the Plainfield Auto Garage Co., left yesterday for Charlotte, N. C., where he will erect several large turbine engines for a concern in that city. He will be gone three months.

The reason for the slump in work at the Millikin Bros. plant in Staten Island, where several Plainfield men are employed, is the scarcity of steel The company has been unable to secure a sufficient amount of the material to keep its full force in operation. This is why the 150 mechanics were laid off last week and the wages of the laborers reduced twenty per cent. The slackness in work will probably not be permanent. As soon as the supply of steel arrives the men will go to work.

to make that tradition of life amongst us and he helped to sustain it. Through lives like his that tradition grows strong and it has become gracious and men and women come here to form their homes under the protection and inspiration of such a tradition. His life has made this a better place for us all to live in, for children to be born and grow up in, for work to be done in. The city flag hangs at half-mast for one of the first of its citizens. The city sorrows! May all the rest of us think that it depends upon to decide whether the same kind of life for which he stood shall go on. He had given all he had to give to it. It is our best memorial of him to give as generously.

"We glory in the midst of our sadness in what he was to his church. We know not how to go on without him. We shall miss him at every turn, his counsel, his character, his friendship, his quick sympathy with every good cause. We thank God for the years that have been ours of his love and faithfulness, and we cannot speak now as if all had come to an end. It is not ours to remember to speak of, to use for our encouragement as we stand on the threshold of each new undertaking. Our life has been richer in the church because of him. It will be a more sacred life because of his memory. His life has been woven in with all that has been done and his memory shall be like his presence. His thoughtfulness for his church lasted to the very end of his consciousness and strength. Freely he had received, freely he had given and we can say of him no truer thing than that he knew how to abound.

"He had not been one of the forces of this world that scatters. He had drawn and centered many. He was central to many lives, and it was this dear home, next to his God, that had centered him. It was here that he had lived beautifully and increasingly. It was here that he had taken strength for all the other relationships in these that were dearest and closest. It was from this home that his love had ever flowed and it is each to this home and to those who remain in it to stand hereafter closer together if that may be, helping each other bear this great sorrow that we all come today to bring from our varied friendships of so many degrees our sympathy for those who wear the heaviest of all this burden. May the consolations of God not be small to them. The bitterness, the sting of death is not here, for the sting of death is sin, unreadiness for God, but thus husband and father has lived to Him and He has now come to the fulfillment of all the long blessed years of this home and its love.

"More easily spoken of are all these relationships, but this most sacred one of his own home which most fills all these hearts here today how shall we speak of it. God grant that through the long days to come that the strength which made this husband and father strong to love and protect and save them these many years may make their strength sufficient to this day as they move on through the remaining years to join him in the home above."

At the conclusion of Mr. Zeile's remarks, the quartette sang "I Heard a Voice." After all had been given an opportunity to view the remains, the interment took place at Hillside cemetery. The pall-bearers were John B. Dumont, John Leal, L. N. Lovell, S. S. Guion, A. W. Duxbury, Samuel Beardsley, Alex. Gilbert and Dr. O. L. Jenkins.

The Spring Campaign

Now in full swing. New seasonable goods fresh from the mills are arriving daily. What is true of nature is true of Dry Goods, viz.: the Spring Season, the most attractive and welcome of the entire year. Our latest showing of Spring goods far surpasses that of previous seasons. Ladies of good taste may now revel in the delights of a most bewildering assortment of the most fascinating Wash Fabrics. Some of the most charming conceits of fashion are offered in Printed Organdies, Crepe Pitites, Pino Crepes, Crepe-de-chines, Silk Mulls, both plain and dotted, etc. The newest novelty Ginghams and Seersuckers are largely represented. A full line solid colored linens for Shirt Waist Suits also included.

A rich profusion of bewitching White Goods, all strictly new and beautiful beyond description. Small effects predominate. All styles are exclusive and will not be found elsewhere. As the choicest patterns of foreign goods cannot be duplicated we suggest an early selection.

New Embroideries and Laces. We believe them the prettiest we have yet shown. Patterns shown are a departure from the old conventional designs and will appeal strongly to people of refined taste. Prices are more reasonable than in former years. The showing of All Overs is larger and better selected than ever. Our facilities for displaying these goods are unsurpassed. A cordial invitation is extended to all to inspect this superior display.

Especial attention is called to our line of "Webb" Table Damask. These are highly desirable goods with the best of reputations. We show a large number of grades varying in price from 75c to 2.50 per yd. with napkins to match. You can buy these to no better advantage in New York city or Philadelphia. The truth of this statement we can demonstrate if you afford us the opportunity.

Our new Spring Woolen Dress Goods will be opened this week. Watch for our announcement. The year of 1905 is to be a most strenuous one. Its strenuosity begins this week.

This is in every sense the peoples store. It's mission—To serve this community with best goods at the fairest prices. Upon these lines we solicit your business.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

With the residential districts of Plainfield steadily approaching this borough, a noticable advance on all sides is being made within the Dunellen boundaries toward the erection of buildings. Both for dwelling, business and investment purposes, the vacant property found about is gradually becoming marked out either for residences or for mercantile business houses. The property is particularly desirable for the erection of dwellings of small size With the rent of most houses at a high figure, the popular investment, not only for old residents but for new arrivals, is to buy and to build, and the past statistics and present real estate figures show that the coming season will be a record breaker in this respect. The ground is now broken for the erection of twelve new houses, and plans are being considered for several other building schemes. As far as can be learned, none of the arrangements which have been made at present, include any large business transactions.

Meeting at the conclusion of the regular church service and after the successful conference of the afternoon preceding, it was but the natural result that the Fourth Quarterly Conference of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal church last night, should have been the success which it was. Being the occasion on which reports of the committees, presidents and secretaries of societies are received, it was exceedingly gratifying to the officers and congregation at large to hear that financially and otherwise, the Methodist church has just completed one of its most successful fiscal years. Under the careful and diligent administration of the pastor, Rev. S. K. Doolittle, the beginning of another church year finds the church better prepared to meet the usual requirements and expenses, and better equipped to further its work.

The funeral services of Peter Mohan will be held from his late home tomorrow morning at 8:15 instead of 8:45 as stated in the notice yesterday. The mass in St. John's church is to be at 9 o'clock.

The annual meeting of the Township Committee will be held this afternoon at the poor farm, the feature being the usual yearly dinner which is provided by Mr. Hummer.

Dr. Baldwin, formerly of this borough, but now of Newark, who has been confined to his home by a severe attack of typhoid-pneumonia, is at present much improved.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry, who has been confined to his home by illness, is now much improved, and will be able to fill his pulpit on Sunday.

Among the new houses which will shortly be started in this borough, will be one on Front street, to be occupied by Mrs. Mary Cortell.

If the weather permits, there will be a hockey game between two rival local teams on New Market pond tomorrow afternoon.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The annual meeting and election of company and department officers was held by the Fanwood Borough Fire Department in the company rooms Tuesday night. The reports of the several officers showed the company to be in a flourishing condition. During the past year the indebtedness on the fire house was cancelled, and a number of new members have been added to the roll, the no exemption law, which went into effect last year not seeming to interfere with the growth of the company in the least, although other volunteer departments throughout the State are claiming that the law will be the death knell of the volunteer departments in the small towns. Much of the success of the borough department is due to the members' active work for the interest of the department. To be a resident of Fanwood invariably means membership in the fire company. The department itself is well equipped, consisting of a truck and hose cart, the borough having enjoyed fire hydrants and city water for a number of years past. Altogether the borough is justly proud of its department and well they might be, for it is the equal of any of the departments in the State in towns much larger than the borough. The following officers will be at the helm during the year: Department chief, Charles Sheelen; first assistant, John Uhler; second assistant, Charles Bartell Loomis; company officers: President, H. P. Robinson; secretary, B. R. Compton; treasurer, William M. Maxim; foreman, William M. Maxim; first assistant, Augustus Sheelen; second assistant, S. G. VanHousen; H. P. Robinson delegate to Firemen's Relief Association. The meeting was the 165th of the company.

A public funeral of one who has been closely identified with the town's interest for a number of years, always bring together old familiar faces of them, who have long since moved away and apparently lost their interest in the town. The obsequies of the late Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks, held Tuesday afternoon, were attended by many former residents, who, during their residence here, had been identified with the deceased, either in the church or as a neighbor.

"Dick" Harvey, whose puzzling delivery, when in the box for the Scotch Plains team, several years ago, did much to win the fame and prestige the locals then had, is still in the game, having been elected several days ago, president of the Hudson River League. "Dick" has a host of friends in town who are still interested in him and wish him success in the game.

An old fashioned country dance was held last night at the home of Albert Hyno, near Alton. Naylor's orchestra furnished the music. At midnight refreshments were served, after which dancing was again resumed and continued until a late hour. A number from town were present as well as guests from Plainfield, Westfield and Rahway.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., celebrate its tenth anniversary tonight. The entertainment committee has prepared a pleasing programme in honor of the event. Delegations from Franklin and Somerset Councils, of Plainfield, will be present.

William E. Collins, who has been a member of the Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum for several years, serving during the past year as grand guide, has resigned his position.

The Eagle fair, being held in Saengerbund Hall every night this week, is being well patronized by the local young people.

August Sheelen still holds the lead in the Suburban Club's bowling tournament. The tournament closes Saturday night.

The local bowling team roll match games tonight with the Westfield team, on Lee's alleys.

The Amity Club holds its weekly reading and study meeting tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Dannie Sofield received an injury to his ankle while out at school recess yesterday morning. He was carried home by some of his playmates.

The funeral of Mrs. Jacob Wagner was held at her husband's home this afternoon. The burial took place in the local cemetery.

Albert Manning has given up his anticipated visit to Florida for this winter.

—The Harrisburg, (Pa.,) Independent says: "Miss Clair Giant sang all of her numbers exquisitely. She possesses a soprano voice of great power, yet sweet and sympathetic." She will be one of the artists who will entertain in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course on Monday evening next.

Jan. 22: "How to Win Souls For Christ"—John 1, 40-46.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

There is no substitute for the personal presence in persuading men to any course of action. The human voice is effective not only by reason of its marvelous qualities of sound and its flexibility, adapting it to the expression of all emotions and sentiments and shades of meaning, but the personal element in it makes it the most wonderful of all the bodily powers.

No two persons speak exactly alike. The phonograph has brought out the fact that we easily recognize other people by the voice, but that few persons recognize their own voice when the record of their speaking is put in the machine. There are implications of great moment lying under this simple statement of fact.

The important item for us is that we each have a power all our own and in some particulars different from what any one else has, and this inward nature can be exerted through the voice most effectively in influencing others. Personal contact has power over men.

No other agency ever has taken the place of this personal persuasion. Call it magnetism or any other term you please, the fact remains that if you want a person to do anything you can best succeed if you get close to him and bring your own nature into contact with his thought and will and desires.

Here lies the secret of all eloquence in speech. It is the soul talking through the lips and shining through the eyes. If bodily contact and proximity convey diseases it is equally true that spirits communicate their qualities to those who come under their influence.

If we would have power over men and mold their opinions and shape their actions we need to be guarded in what nature we have ourselves, since like begets like. We must be right or we cannot give the right impulse to others.

We have in this first chapter of John an example ever fresh for study of the power of personal influence and of the best manner in which to use our opportunities. There is no long argumentation made in any of these cases, but the plain statement of the fact of what one has seen himself. There is the most careful discrimination in regard to those that are approached. There is no promiscuous proclamation of the fact then first realized by Andrew that he had found the one whom he had long desired to find. He goes straight for another whom he knows to be like minded with himself. They have understood each other in days past, and Andrew knows Simon is as earnest a seeker for Messiah as he is himself. He wastes no time or effort. He goes for Simon. He simply says, "I have found him." He brings him to Jesus. That is all he can do. Simon must do his own seeing and believing. So with every one of the others.

What then do we learn from this incident? "How to win souls for Christ." First, find Him yourself; then go for those you know are desiring to find one like Him. Tell them the simple fact of what you have found. Then you can show them where He is, and if they will go that way you can rely on the Master to do all the rest. We cannot save them. At the most, we can only show them where Jesus is to be found. They can become acquainted with him as truly as you have. Rely on them and Him to do the getting acquainted. Respect the rights of other souls and of the Master to form their own fellowships.

Sufficient Unto the Day.

We sometimes ask ourselves if we shall be willing to die or should we be willing to live in hopeless suffering or should we be willing to put the fire to our darling ambitions? It is easy to answer such questions. We determine the future by the present. If today we do today's duty, tomorrow we shall be able to do tomorrow's duty. If today we are willing to have hard duties laid on us, tomorrow we shall not decline tomorrow's hard work. If today we are willing to live for God, on some tomorrow we shall be willing to die for him. Today we do not receive dying grace, for God does not call us to death. Today He calls us to life, and therefore He gives us living grace. Tomorrow He will call us to death, and tomorrow He will give dying grace.—"At Dawn of Day."

Peace, Obedience, Faith.

John Ruskin in counting up the blessings of his childhood reckoned these three for first good: Peace. He had been taught the meaning of peace in thought, act and word; had never heard father's or mother's voice once raised in any dispute nor seen an angry glance in the eyes of either nor had ever seen a moment's trouble or disorder in any household matter. Next to this he estimated obedience. He obeyed a word or lifted finger of father or mother as a ship her helm without an idea of resistance. And, lastly, faith. Nothing was ever promised him that was not given, nothing ever threatened him that was not inflicted and nothing ever told him that was not true.—Rev. J. L. Hurlburt, D. D.

Sure to Come.

Christians need to have more faith in that pregnant little word "after," says a writer in Forward. How much it might mean to every soul of cheerful patience, hope and courage! So many blessed things are sure to come when we have waited and prayed for them until God's time is ripe! Truly, it is as that lifelong optimist among poets, Margaret E. Sangster, sings:

After waiting, after prayer,
After pain and toil and care,
After expectation long,
Lo, the bright fulfillments throng!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 22.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—How to win souls for Christ.—John 1, 40-46. (Led by the lookout committee.)

The winning of souls for Christ is the best of all services that we can render for Him, for our fellow men and for ourselves. "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." This is the testimony of Daniel, the prophet, and Solomon says, "He that winneth souls is wise." No service rendered for Christ is unimportant or shall go without its reward, but Christ died to save the souls of men, and hence it can be readily seen that this is the supreme service that we can render to Him. It makes His work on the cross effective. The soul is a man's most valuable possession, and if we help save it we do him the greatest possible benefit. And, last of all, we ourselves receive stars in our heavenly crown in proportion as we lead souls to Christ and eternal salvation.

The winning of souls being of such tremendous importance, it is well for us to ask how to do it. And this question can be answered in no better way than by studying the methods of those who have won souls for Christ. This is the answer of the topical reference. There we have a picture of two soul winners. Andrew, having found the Christ, sought his brother Peter and led him to Him. And when Jesus found Philip and he had obeyed His command, "Follow me," "Philip findeth Nathanael and saith unto him, We have found Him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." Philip invited Nathanael to "come and see" Christ. He accepted the invitation. He came and saw and heard the Master and accepted Him as "the Son of God and the King of Israel."

The method used in both these instances was a simple yet an effective one. Let us notice its characteristics and follow it in our efforts to win souls for Christ.

1. Andrew and Philip found Christ themselves before they sought to win others to Him. The soul winner must always be one who has found Christ himself. He only can be a true guide who has traveled the way himself. The blind are not good teachers of the blind. We must be saved before we can seek the salvation of others.

2. Andrew and Philip realized that Peter and Nathanael were without the Christ, yet needed Him. Men are lost till Jesus finds them. Let us strive more and more to realize the lost condition of men and their need of Christ; then we will be coming into a position where we can lead them to Christ.

3. Andrew and Nathanael sought Peter and Philip. "He [Andrew] first findeth his own brother Simon." To find he must have sought. "Philip findeth Nathanael." Personal work is the most successful method of winning souls for Christ. Seek those in whom you are interested, and you will probably find them willing to come.

4. They held Christ before them. "We have found the Messiah." "We have found Him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." Hold up Christ, and He, lifted up, will draw men unto Him.

From Secretary Hay's Pen.

When the international Christian Endeavor convention was held in Washington a few years ago the "convention hymn" was written by Hon. John Hay. Because of this, as well as for its merit, the following poem of his will have large interest to Christian Endeavorers:

DEFEND US, LORD.

Defend us, Lord, from every ill.
Strengthen our hearts to do Thy will.
In all we plan and all we do
Still keep us to Thy service true.
Oh, let us hear the inspiring word
Which they of old at Horeb heard!
Breathe to our hearts the high command,
"Go onward and possess the land!"
Thou who art Light, shine on each soul!
Thou who art Truth, each mind control!
Open our eyes and make us see
The path which leads to heaven and Thee!

A Young People's Pastor.

There is such a strong note of common sense in the recent action of the Congregational church of Lee, Mass., that we are glad to give prominence to the suggestive and the commendable action. An assistant pastor has been chosen there who will have special charge of the Young People's work, including the Junior Christian Endeavor society. Rev. Henry Wilds Smith, a graduate of Princeton college and Union seminary, is the new young people's pastor. We wish him godspeed in his work and hope that other churches able to do so may make the same generous provision for their young people.—Editorial Page Christian Endeavor World.

In Massachusetts.

More than a thousand delegates were present at the recent state convention in Haverhill. Massachusetts won a 10 per cent increase banner. It came from Kyoto, Japan.

The First Baptist society of Worcester last year gave to missions $1,282.30.

The state union voted unanimously to have a field secretary.

In Japan.

The Endeavor, published in Kobe, Japan, has this item, which is helpfully suggestive, in a recent issue: One Endeavorer, Mr. Furuhashi, is spending his summer vacation touring among the churches in Okayama teaching the Christians to sing better. It is a timely service and truly Endeavor-like in form and spirit.

Feminine Snapshots

What Women Are Saying and Doing

Queer creatures are women—at least some women! Not long ago one of the richest women in the world, of course an American—one, too, who has made her immense fortune herself by her own shrewdness and strict attention to business for over thirty years—shot off a set of opinions on the subject of the feminine sex engaging in commercial enterprises. "A woman's place is at home with her family. She has no business to go into business. Every woman without exception ought to learn to cook," said this astonishing feminine person, whose practice for a quarter of a century had been the direct opposite of such preaching. It looks—it really does—as if this woman, who has accumulated her own millions, were jealous of a possible woman rival in the business world, so is trying to keep the rest of her sex out of the field in which she has beaten all but a few even of her men competitors. Then there is another woman, a stunning figure on the professional stage. Madam has also accumulated a noble fortune, lives in splendor and rides in her own automobile. Besides that, she has also enjoyed the inestimable privilege of supporting a husband in luxury for twenty years. She, too, bejeweled and surrounded with everything that money can buy—won, mind you, every dollar, by her own exertion—lifts up her voice in a dismal howl against women who enter the money earning ranks. She herself has earned more money than one man out of a million is able to do, yet she wrings her hands and fairly sobs over the shame, the misery and the pity of woman's going out to work for money. They are incompetent creatures, to begin, going out to work for money, says she, and if they only wouldn't do it men would support them all. If this successful woman knew or cared anything at all about real industrial conditions she would know it was only because men could not support them any longer that women entered the money earning field. It looks as if the stage lady also were trying to keep possible sister rivals out of her field.

Every woman ought to have a gymnasium suit to wear at home when performing work requiring special strength and activity. It would do away with half the weariness resulting from doing heavy work in woman's ordinary dress. The sense of lightness and ease felt in wearing such a costume no woman knows until she has tried it.

If you have some worthy object of attainment in view never yield to discouragement concerning the outcome, no matter how long you have to work and wait for results. Every good thing comes by and by.

"I would not for any consideration hurt anybody's feelings," says Mrs. Fanny Hallock Carpenter, president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Don't do things you are ashamed of; then you can never be caught at it.

Perfect health of the body consists in being unconscious of it.

Here is a pertinent remark from the Chicago Legal News: "It seems strange that women can be lawyers, doctors and ministers and yet, according to the laws of many states, do not know enough to vote."

At last that noble Roman of a woman, Moll Pitcher, who shouldered her slain husband's musket and fought at the battle of Monmouth, is to have a monument. The heroine of the Revolution is buried at Carlisle, Pa., and while her grave is well known, it has hitherto been unmarked in any way. Now, however—fitting monument to the brave old girl—a large cannon is to be set up by the citizens of Carlisle at the head of her grave. The United States war department donates the cannon.

Every woman who can work ought to do so. The obligation is on her as a human being to do something useful.

A girl lately wrote a long letter to an editor complaining that she was not happy. Who is?

Living, loving, learning—that is how to go through life, helping as we go others all along the way.

Is it not about time for women to blow up for good and all that old hypocritical pretense of so many that they don't have to work for a living, but just do it so as to have something wherewith to put in the time? Where this is really the case people don't say anything about it. When I hear a woman say she only works for entertainment I always think of the lady who once told me she kept boarders "for company." At the same time it was notable that she charged the highest market price for the meagerest food and accommodations. The thing for women to be ashamed of is that they do not do any work. Useful occupation is noble and praiseworthy. Every individual owes it to the race to engage in it.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

ROTHSCHILD FAMILY

SON OF HOUSE STUDYING FINANCE IN UNITED STATES.

Little History of the Founding of This Portentous Jewish Clan, Rise from Ghetto to Highest Eminence.

We are having as visitor in this country at the present moment Baron Alphonse Rotschild, who has come over to study American banking methods. It has been the custom of the house of Rothschild to send their young men abroad that they may become familiarized with foreign methods, but this is the first time we have been honored. A bit of compliment to the financial progress made by this country.

A most interesting house is the house of Rothschild. Once, inhabitants of a continental Ghetto, they to-day are kings of finance, controllers of fabulous wealth, their name probably as well nown as that of any potentate. An article in The Idler describes their rise from obscurity to fame, after this fashion: "The members of a despised community, who lived everywhere on sufferance, they became the friends of princes, the patrons of statesmen, the arbiters, even, of war and peace."

They are Jews. Jews that have made money and that have given it away with boundless liberality. It was in Frankfort-on-the-Main they began operations on a large scale, a city than which it would seem there was none other in Europe where a Jew would have less chance to rise. In the "Judengasse," to which the Frankfort Jews were restricted, the race was held down with heaviest limitations; they were forced to wear badges, and on their houses distinctive shields were placed—Rothschild means red shield. The founder of the house was Mayer, son of Rabbi Amschel, dealer in old coins and curiosities. It was desired that Mayer become a rabbi, but his tastes led him to prefer business life and he entered a banking house in Hanover. Later he returned to the Judengasse, and, like his father, became a dealer in curiosities and old coins.

He won the title of "Honest Jew," and this reputation, as well as his experience in banking, led to the bestowal of favor upon him by William IX., the landgrave of Hesse, who appointed him his financial agent—"court Jew." That the confidence was not misplaced was subsequently proved beyond doubt. At the time Napoleon's troops were about to invade Hesse-Cassel, William gave the whole of his fortune into the keeping of the "court Jew." Rothschild hid the treasure in vaults beneath his house in the Judengasse. The soldiers plundered the Jews' quarters, too; and, in order to save the treasure of another, the "Honest Jew" allowed his own house to be despoiled without opposition. On the return of William the wealth was restored to him and interest paid for what time it was in use.

THE OLD HOUSE IN FRANKFORT.

Mayer Rothschild was able at his death (1812) to bequeath to his five sons an immense fortune and a great business. He left also this advice—that they remain faithful to their religion, united in business, and that they consult their mother before engaging in an enterprise of importance. The mother lived to the advanced age of 96 years, so attached to the Judengasse that she refused to leave it. Tradition does not say whether or not the sons called her into frequent counsel, but if so it must have entailed some trouble, for one son settled in Vienna, another in London, one in Paris, one in Naples, and only the eldest remained in Frankfort. This son, Anselm, was a typical Rothschild, "a man of unusual penetration of judgment, devoted to business, scrupulously observant of his faith, and exceedingly charitable."

Year by year the Rothschilds rose in importance, their various European houses consolidated in a union of great strength. Their large capital enabled them to aid various states from time to time, and their rewards for these services added greatly to their wealth. The Napoleonic wars was an ill-wind that blew them good, and they were able to assist, with eventual gain to themselves, different countries whose finances had become exhausted in the periods when Napoleon would not cease from troubling. As the first capitalists by whom government loans were issued, they are looked upon as the founders of the modern stock exchange. Later, as the credit of the government rose, the Rothschilds began to employ their capital in promotion of joint-stock enterprises. As political factors they have been of marked importance; have sometimes been enabled to obtain official news before the rulers of the countries interested were informed.

"Probably on the theory that ignorance is bliss."—Judge.

BOX HELD KING'S HEART.

Very Interesting Old Relic in the Cathedral Church at Rouen, France.

Paris.—In the splendid cathedral church of Rouen is a suite of three or four rooms containing what is known as the "tresor." This is a collection of very valuable and interesting relics, forming quite a little museum, to which admission may be obtained for the modest fee of 25 centimes. To an Anglo-Saxon quite the most interesting article in the collection is the plain leaden casket in which was buried the heart of the famous King Richard Coeur de Lion, who, it will be remembered, was slain by a bolt from the crossbow of Bertrand De Gourdon at the siege of the castle of Chalus. His body was buried at the feet of his father in the abbey of Frontrevault, near Tours, but his heart, incased in two leaden caskets, was placed in the Cathedral of Rouen, "the faithful city." The exact place of the burial seems to have been forgotten in the passage of centuries, but it was rediscovered in 1840, placed in a new coffer and reburied in the choir.

HISTORIC LEADEN CASKET.
(It Held the Heart of the Famous Richard Coeur de Leon.)

The inner case is in comparatively good condition, the inscription being perfectly legible after the lapse of all these centuries. The Latin is somewhat peculiar, and it is curious to find that at a period when art-working in metals was at an advanced stage the engraver of the inscription on the coffer which was to contain the heart of such a high and mighty potentate did not take the trouble to ascertain what space he required for the king's name, so that he had to carry over the terminal letter to the next line. It is noteworthy too that Richard is styled "Regis Anglorum"—"King of the English," not "of England"—while no mention at all is made of Normandy or Aquitaine. The box is nearly one foot long, eight inches wide and five inches deep.

CANDIDATE FOR A TOGA.

Congressman John J. Esch May Succeed Quarles as Senator from That State.

La Crosse, Wis.—Of the several men who are being mentioned as possible successors to Senator Quarles, who will retire next March as a result of the stalwart victory in Wisconsin, none are more favorably known throughout the state than Hon. John J. Esch. It is said that Gov. La Follette favors State Chairman Connor for the place, but many of the governor's friends are in favor of Congressman Esch, and he is a likely winner in the senatorial race. He allied himself with the La Follette forces in the closing days of the last campaign, and worked hard for the election of the stalwart ticket. He resides at this place and represents the Seventh Wisconsin district in the lower house, where he is now serving his second term.

Easy Money for Prima Donnas.

Singing for phonographs seems to be as high-paid musical exercise as there is. A phonograph company has offered a prima donna, who sings at the Metropolitan opera house this winter, $14,000 for four songs. That is $6,000 as soon as the songs are sung and $2,000 a year for four years as a reward for not singing into any other machine. Great and many are the meats of income of a goddess of grand opera. She could live splendidly on what she can get for using a pill, a perfume, a piano, or a phonograph.

Pensioning Railway Employes.

The Pennsylvania railroad has a system by which aged employes are retired on a pension. This is a liberal method of providing for men of advanced years who have served the company long and faithfully. Three employes have just been retired after faithful service of 42, 45 and 48 years, respectively.

A Checking System.

In Thibet nearly every public office has two incumbents. One is supposed to be a check on the other. But sometimes this dual authority does not work well—in war, for example.

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth. 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

A NEW UNSINKABLE BOAT.

Many Requirements Have Been Met by the Invention of a Danish Engineer.

Washington.—Unsinkable life boats are numerous, yet when the test comes these unsinkable boats do not fulfill their requirements. The navy department and the life saving service are just now interested in experiments which are being made with the Englehardt unsinkable life boat, the invention of Capt. Englehardt, a Danish marine engineer.

The Englehardt boat is said not only to be unsinkable, but is collapsible and can be stowed in small space on the decks. Few of the great passenger carrying steamships are able to carry sufficient boats for lack of room.

The ordinary boats in case of accidents are liable to be stove when being lowered, or when lowered to be overcrowded and swamped. The Englehardt collapsible boats, it is claimed, combine the requirements of economy in space with the utmost carrying capacity.

Should emergencies arise the Englehardt boats need not be launched. Only the lashings have to be cut, and when the ship has sunk the boats will be found floating on the water like rafts. Two men or boys can, in a few seconds, extend the sides of the boats simply by lifting in the cross beams and thus converting the raft-shaped boat into a life boat that will hold bread, water tanks, oars and supplies enough to support the passengers a considerable number of days.

The invention is a pontoon-shaped boat of wood or iron and filled with kapok, in water-tight cushions, which are placed in water-tight compartments. Kapok combines the greatest floating capacity with the best weight and will sustain from 30 to 35 times its own weight in water.

The boat has a superstructure which can be folded up or erected, the whole surrounded by a fender also filled with kapok, in water-tight cushions. In extending the boat, the oars are released, an oval-shaped thwart supplied with cross-thwarts will slide into position and stanchions and other parts drop into their places automatically. The mechanism is simple and not easily put out of order.

The boat, according to advices received at the department of commerce and labor, from Ernest L. Harris, commercial agent at Eibenstock, Germany, has been subjected to exhaustive tests and has successfully withstood all of them.

PROGRESS OF PEACE

EUROPE AND AMERICA FAVOR ARBITRATION MEASURES.

Prospects Abroad and at Home of Settlement of International Difficulties by Other Means Than Sanguinary War.

The war in the far east continues to rage furiously; after ten months of unexampled horrors, neither combatant seeks to put a period to the conflict. It may be said that the situation shames our twentieth century civilization; but we must not expect too much from our age, and a marked development of certain political tendencies suggests that even the Russo-Japanese contest may not prove an unmixed evil to the world at large. The protagonists will emerge from the struggle with a real appreciation of the tragedy of war; they will seek peace and ensue it; and nearly all the remaining great powers are showing laudable anxiety to control the factors that make for strife at home or abroad. We cannot ignore the pacific tendency of the times when we reflect that Russia has been at war for the greater part of a twelvemonth, and no power in Europe has taken sides in the contest. Had Europe held a Napoleon Bonaparte there would have been fighting from the shores of the Atlantic to the present theater of operations; but while the two great powers have been locked together in a life-and-death struggle, Europe has been arming herself with treaties of arbitration, the modern form of insurance against war.

Perhaps Great Britain and France have had most to say about the maintenance of European peace, and in the ratification of the Anglo-French treaty by the French chamber of deputies, the sober citizen of either country must find matter for sincere gratitude to his government. It is an open secret that many forces were opposed to the Anglo-French convention. Germany feared it; Russia was covertly hostile; the forcible-feeble policy of the vatican was directed against the arrangement through the medium of the discredited royalist party; and the Combes cabinet was in such stormy waters that some Jonah had to be thrown overboard to lighten the ship. As it happened, Gen. Andre sufficed, but it may be said, without fear of contradiction, that the action of the chamber was by no means a foregone conclusion.

We have seen an arbitration treaty signed by Portugal and Great Britain, and though much has been made of the long-standing friendship between the two countries, it is well to remember now that relations between London and Lisbon were strained nearly to breaking point in the early nineties, when many questions arising in Africa threatened to develop serious trouble. There was no definite breach, but the Portuguese themselves have a proverb that says: "Peace with a cudgel in her hand is war." These difficulties were encouraged by interested parties, who realized that Portugal without British protection was in danger of losing her political life, and that Great Britain without a friendly Portugal had certain difficult complications to face in the Mediterranean in times of trouble.

Even with reference of the Baltic tragedy to arbitration, under the terms of The Hague convention, is a triumph for the peace party, and it must be left to history to do credit to the high restraint of English statesmen, who, at a moment when they might have destroyed Russia's poor remains of seapower, allowed them to proceed upon their ill-starred way, and refused a chance that no less scrupulous country would have hesitated to seize. If opportunism were the strongest factor in British foreign politics, the Baltic squadron would lie "full fathom five" where the fishermen of the Algarve coast look out over the Atlantic waters.

People who speak with authority declare that President Roosevelt will endeavor to signalize his second term of office by a treaty of arbitration with England, and by encouraging a further conference at The Hague, that shall cover a larger ground and take a more decisive step towards the substitution of international tribunals for the unsatisfactory arbitrament of the sword.

As soon as Russia and Japan can bend their swords into sickles, there will be but one great predatory power left in Europe, a power that is forced to trouble the international waters for its better fishing, and forced to fish that it may live. Happily for Europe, the German danger is recognized and to some extent discounted; indeed, there are shrewd observers who hold that the most of Europe's precautions are taken in view of Germany's possibilities of offense and capacity for intrigue.

"Peace, justice and the Word of God," says Ruskin, "must be given to the world, not sold."

SPORTING NEWS.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Winning the first and last games in the contest with the Roselle team in the Central Journal Bowling League, Westfield tied for first place Tuesday night with the Roselle team, each having won now 13 and lost 4 games.

The first matches in the Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament were begun last night, and all the competitors rolled three games. The scores were comparatively low and were as follows: Neal, 93, 133, 131; Dayton, 94, 122, 121; Betsel, 151, 133, 121; Wiltse, 144, 148, 127; Satphen, 145, 111, 162; Koons, 169, 150, 141. This gives Koons the highest score so far and the best average.

Handicapped by the fact that their own bowling balls and shoes were not delivered at Jersey City, the members of the Park Club team were defeated by the team representing Jersey City two games out of three in the Central Journal Bowling League last night. The match was rolled at Jersey City, and through some mistake the bowling box of the local pin hitters failed to put in an appearance. In the second game only the Parks defeated the Jersey Cityites by a margin of 76 pins. The other games went with ease to the home team, the first by 88 pins and the third by 72 to the good. None of the scores were exceptionally high, though in many cases the bowling was steady. Barlow and Townsend tied for high honors on the Parks, each rolling 182. Capt. Ball's score was a good average. 193 was the highest mark reached by the Jersey City bowlers, this score being made by Griswold. The following is the result of the match:

FRANCIS LYNDE

AUTHOR OF OUR NEW SERIAL

THE GRAFTERS

THE BEST STORY OF ITS KIND PUBLISHED IN RECENT YEARS

Mr. Lynde has written some of the strongest of American novels, and into most of them he has put some thought problem, has taught some lesson, but never in a way that has detracted from his story as a story. So it is with "The Grafters." It is an expose of the ways of unscrupulous politicians, of whom we have heard so much in the past year or so.

The very theme of the story pronounces "The Grafters" a strong story, and to the theme is added an abundance of "go," a charming romance, many hair-raising incidents, and unusual literary merits. It is the kind of a story in the perusal of which the reader will always be looking for the next installment.

The opening chapters of this strong story will appear in these columns within a short time. It will pay you to watch for them.

MRS. ANDRIEDE LOSES

Fails to Recover Damages From the Sebring Estate.

THE CASE UNUSUAL

Plaintiff Claimed She Had Been Injured in Fall Over a Coal Vault Cover.

The action of Mrs. M. L. Andriede, of this city, seeking to recover damages from the Sebring estate for injuries she sustained by a fall in front of the Sebring property on West Front street, on December 5, 1902, when her leg was fractured, was concluded at Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon, and resulted in a victory for the defendants, represented by Codington & Swackhamer. The plaintiff was represented by G. W. V. Moy, Esq. The jury was out but a few minutes, returning with a verdict in favor of the Sebring estate.

Probably one of the strongest points made by counsel for the defense in closing the trial, was the production of a letter, written to Charles P. Sebring on January 5, 1903, by Mr. Moy, in which he was informed that his client, Mrs. Andriede, had had a fall in front of the property in question and had fractured her leg. The letter referred to the walk being covered by ice and snow, but nothing was said about the vault covers, one of which was supposed to have caused the fall.

Counsel for the defense claimed that the vault covers were as good as could be purchased and that in concrete walks they are used in ninety-five cases out of one hundred and that they are generally used in Elizabeth, Newark and New York. On Monday Codington & Swackhamer obtained an order from the court to have the jurors visit the scene of the accident and inspect the vault covers. This was done and W. T. Kirk, who put the covers in the walk, was a witness testifying that they are the best obtainable. They are a half inch high with a bevel edge. The case attracted unusual attention as the result was looked upon as a precedent that might be established in future actions of a similar character.

When the suit was started against the Sebring estate, the plaintiff's name was Miss Margaret L. LaRue, of 441 East Ninth street, but she afterward married, her present name being Mrs. Margaret L. Andriede.

SCOTCH PLAINS JUNIORS HAVE AN ANNIVERSARY

DURING EXERCISES H. R. THORN, OF THIS CITY, IS PLEASANTLY SURPRISED.

The tenth anniversary of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Scotch Plains, was appropriately observed last night. Beside a large attendance of its own members, the council had as guests large delegations from both Franklin and Somerset Councils, of this city. The entertainment committee had spared neither expense or work in making the observance a most notable one in every way. At the close of a short business meeting, the members and their guests spent several hours together, listening to phonographic selections and speeches, while enjoying cigars and refreshments.

Past Councilor Harvey R. Thorn, of Franklin Council, has in a number of ways in the past been brought very close to Twilight Council in junior work, the local members desiring to express their appreciation of him, decided several weeks ago to present him with a solid gold fountain pen, upon the occasion of the Council's anniversary to Mr. Thorn, and he responded in a short speech of thanks.

Twilight Council was instituted January, 1895, and now numbers nearly forty members, which is a good enrollment considering the limited field of its work.

Campaign Pole Comes Down.

The Republican banner pole, opposite The Daily Press office, was cut down this morning by William Hand & Son. The pole was used during the last campaign to support a Republican banner, the only one in the city, and as it will be four years before another campaign, the City Committee thought best to remove it.

LOUIS MACK DIES FOLLOWING AN OPERATION

WELL-KNOWN LOCALLY AS MANAGER OF THE OLD WEST ENDS.

Louis Mack, well-known here where he had many friends, died at his home in Somerville, yesterday, following an operation on Tuesday. He was a woollen manufacturer, having been connected with that industry at Somerville for many years. He was a son of Adolph Mack, president of the Raritan Woollen Mills. He is survived by a wife, who was a Miss Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chambers, of Somerville, and one son.

Mr. Mack is best remembered by the baseball fans of the old Crescent and West End days. He was manager for the Somerville team, which was such a strong rival to the famous Crescents managed by Thomas H. Keller. Mr. Mack was a true sport and took great interest in the National game. He was prominently identified with the best interests in Somerville and was well liked by all. He was a staunch Republican and during the last campaign he was one of the leaders of his party.

SPECIAL ELECTION BILL DOES NOT GO FAR ENOUGH

FLAW IN LEGISLATIVE ACT MUST BE REMEDIED.

The discovery was made yesterday that the bill passed at the opening session of the Legislature to enable Union and Essex Counties to elect Assemblymen in place of Messrs. Embree and Decker, does not go far enough. Another bill covering the situation has been prepared and this it is hoped the Legislature will rush through next Monday night so that the election may be held on the day set by the act passed last Tuesday.

The latter act simply waived the primary election act which is supplementary to the general election law and under it the nominations can be made by the different political parties by any method they may choose. The act does not, however, affect the provision of the general election act. As the election is ordered by the Legislature for February 7, and there must be thirty days' notice given the people the impossibility of complying with this provision is immediately apparent. The provisions of the general election act must be waived by a new bill or the election of an Assemblyman cannot be held.

The general election law provides, further, that the certificates of nomination must be filed with the County Clerk fifteen days preceding an election. This would mean that the time limit for doing so would expire next Monday. It would be impossible for the several political parties to get their nominations made and the provision will be waived in the new bill.

HIGH SCHOOL WON.

Defeated Westfield H. S. in First Hockey Game of the Season on Hyde's Pond—Score 8 to 0.

The first game of hockey for the Plainfield High School this season was played on Hyde's pond yesterday afternoon and resulted in a victory for the local team over the representatives of the Westfield High School. The score was 8 to 0, a decisive victory, and one which showed the superiority of the P. H. S. in every detail.

The teams lined up as follows: P. H. S.—Craig, Douglass, Conway and Smith, forwards; Brakeley, coverpoint; Reid, point; Briggs and Lapsley, goal. W. H. S.—Welch, Collins, Dingley and Stern, forwards; Ferris, coverpoint; Gilpin, point; Jackson, goal. Goals from the field, Craig, 3; Smith, 2; Douglass, 2; Conway.

Flomerfelt Case Postponed.

The trial of Jacob Flomerfelt for manslaughter, which was to have come up in the Somerset County Criminal Court at Somerville next Monday, has been indefinitely postponed because of the illness of Mrs. Frank D. Cramer, one of the chief witnesses for the State. Prosecutor Griggs says the case will be called Monday and if Mrs. Cramer's health seems anywise improved a date may be set. Flomerfelt is accused of killing his brother-in-law, Frank D. Cramer, at North Branch, about a month ago in a quarrel resulting from Cramer's abusiveness to his wife.

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL MEETING

Work of the Past Year Outlined in Detailed Reports.

DIRECTORS ELECTED

President Cahoone Submits Interesting Facts and Makes Suggestions for the Future.

Completing a year, which in several respects has been one of the most successful in the history of the organization, the annual business meeting of the local Y. M. C. A. was held last evening. It was largely attended by officers and members and was made up mainly of reports from the various departments.

Following Scripture reading and minutes of the last meeting, Stephen A. Cahoone, president of the association, read his annual report, a general account of the year's work in the different departments, complete and decidedly interesting. A decrease in the membership of the men's classes, both in the physical and in the spiritual departments, was, Mr. Cahoone said, an exception to the report that the work for the year of 1904 was successfully conducted. Though in general membership, an increase in membership is noted, it is because of the attendance in the boys' department. An eighteen per cent. decrease in the membership for the year of 1904 over the year of 1903 is the one thing which detracts from the unconditional success of the past year. In direct connection with the decrease in membership, there is a consequential decrease in membership receipts, therefore a deficiency in the treasurer's receipts over 1903. "It is in the men's department," said the president, "that the great improvement is needed. There should be at least 500 men in the association, beside the boys, instead of but 318."

The president went on further to speak of the necessity of economy, and mentioned the respects in which economy is now practiced in the association. As a great assistance to the association in a financial way, the speaker referred at some length to the work of the women's auxiliary. Organized in 1903, with a charter membership of seven, it is now, though the youngest, the largest and most successful women's auxiliary in the State. Its work during the last year, which really marks the first year of its existence, is an omen at once encouraging to the directors of the association and gratifying to the members of the society themselves.

Educational work, the physical department, the boys' work, and the religious organizations of the Y. M. C. A., were all given prominent mention in the president's report. Mr. Cahoone congratulated the new physical director, F. A. Henckel, upon his work in that department and commended also the efforts of the boys' work committee and Secretary Kenneth Robbie. Particularly mentioned in connection with the religious work was the organization of the noon-day Bible classes at the shops. This feature, conducted and started by the Y. M. C. A., has grown rapidly until it now has reached a degree where for the last year the total attendance at the shop Bible classes was 2,365.

Mr. Cahoone touched briefly on the regular Sunday services in his report, covering the religious department, referring especially to the work in foreign missions, toward which $337 has been appropriated to further the Y. M. C. A. work in Madras, India. From this he passed on recording briefly the other attractions which the association offers, including the entertainment courses, camp life, and other valuable privileges. In concluding, Mr. Cahoone spoke with great emphasis on the devoted personal work of the general secretary, J. H. Manning.

Following the president's report, the secretary read the report of the women's auxiliary, which embodied to a great extent what was included in the one previously read. All the reports, though more in detail, were substantially covered by the report of the president. For the membership committee, J. A. Powlison read the report.

G. M. Rittenhouse's report on the religious work was an interesting and an explicit one. All branches of the work were adequately covered. On behalf of the physical department, F. A. Henckel read a thorough outline, not only of the work which he himself has conducted during the four months which he has been with the local association, but also of the work conducted by his predecessor. He referred to all the classes, twelve in number, which are now in existence in the physical department, and spoke

BOUGHT FURNITURE VALUED AT $200 FOR $10

NOW PLAINFIELDERS ARE MADE DEFENDANTS IN A SUIT.

Through their counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Sheerer & Crown, a Newark furniture firm, have brought suit against Max Michaelson and Louis Levine, both of this city, for $200, the value of furniture bought and then sold by them, knowing they had no right to. The case will be heard before Justice Mosher next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

According to the plaintiffs the furniture was procured for them by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayers, of West Front street, on the installment plan, and was almost immediately sold by them to Michaelson and Levine for $10. These two, it is alleged, have made a practice of securing goods in this way and then retailing it, with the full knowledge that the ownership rests with the merchants. Sheerer & Crown and other Newark houses have lost hundreds of dollars in this way and should they prove their claim, numerous other suits on the same lines are to be instituted.

MR. SIDES, 39, AND LONELY DESIRES TO CORRESPOND

HE LIVES IN SOMERVILLE AND HAS A PREFERENCE FOR BLONDES.

If anywhere in Plainfield there is an attractive looking woman not over thirty, blonde preferred, who has enough leisure time to begin a correspondence, she will confer a favor upon W. H. Sides, of Somerville, thirty-nine years of age, tall and of dark complexion. He is in deadly earnest about the matter, so much so that he advertises the fact in the want columns of today's Daily Press and triflers are warned that Mr. Sides means business. Just why he has cast a longing eye on Plainfield for a fair correspondent remains a secret, unless it is because for a town of its size Plainfield is "all to the pinks and roses" for the right kind of girls anywhere from sixteen to sixty, brunette or blonde, tall or short or any other requirement that may suit male admirers.

Neither does Mr. Sides say that matrimony is his object but of course that is obvious. If he has looked over Somerville's list of unattached femininity and believes that attractive looking women below thirty of the blonde type are among the missing, the local supply is never known to have become exhausted. Perhaps the lone Somervillian wants to invade the Dunellen field where the wail of the young women that young men who would make good husbands are as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, is still echoing through twenty-one counties.

SLANDER SUITS OFF.

Morris Abrams and the Silberts Settle Their Differences Amicably.

The slander suits brought by Morris Abrams against Marcus, Matilda and Anna Silbert, and against Carl Silbert, which were to have come up in the Supreme Court at the next term, have been settled. The defendants furnished retraction, paid the counsel fees and the costs. William Newcorn was the lawyer for the plaintiff, and H. C. Runyon represented the defendants.

There was at one time a countersuit for slander brought by Lee Slonim, a relative of the Silberts, but this case was settled some time ago. Craig A. Marsh represented Slonim against Abrams, who retained Mr. Newcorn as his counsel throughout the entire proceedings.

Former Local Pastor Buried.

Several members of the German Lutheran church in this city, of which he was the pastor at one time, attended the funeral service over the body of Rev. Henry Theodore Duensing at his late home on Twenty-third street, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Duensing was born in Germany seventy-six years ago and came to this country in 1849. After teaching in the public schools, he served as pastor of German Lutheran churches at Philadelphia, New Rochelle, Tamaqua and Brooklyn, as well as Plainfield. He leaves a widow. Their golden wedding was celebrated at their home on Liberty street, June 22, 1903.

Mrs. Adams, of Duer street, is detained at her home by illness.

KALTENBORNS WIN FAVOR

Popular Quartette Delights Large Audience at Casino.

MISS DUTHIE, SOLOIST

Their Appearance Marks Conclusion of Series Arranged by William E. Miller.

Before an audience that completely filled the Casino, the last of the series of concerts under the direction of William E. Miller, was given last night by the Kaltenborn Quartette, assisted by Miss Lena Duthie, soprano. As successful as the preceding concerts were, this one was even more so and the fine programme presented was thoroughly enjoyed. The large audience was very appreciative and each number was received with deserving approbation. The quartette comprised of Franz Kaltenborn, first violin; John Spargur, second violin; Gustave Bach, viola, and Louis Heine, violoncello, received possibly the greatest attention, but the excellent work of Miss Duthie was not slighted. From her first numbers to the last, she aroused her audience to hearty applause.

Those who have heard the quartette before were not disappointed in the slightest degree in its work of last night. The several numbers were carefully selected and as for the rendition there was nothing left to be desired. There was a delightful charm in the music as given on the stringed instruments that held the attention of everyone. It would be difficult to select any one number as being better than the other, for all were so uniformly given and the interpretation so perfect that the most exacting critic could have little choice.

The programme opened with one of Tschaikowsky's selections in D major, Op. 11, by the quartette, in which the full strength and tone of the instruments were heard at their best. Miss Duthie then sang three numbers, "L'Estasi" (valse), by Arditi; "Still wie die Nacht," by Bohm, and "Vainkas Song," Stutzman.

The next two numbers, "Reverie," by Vieuxtemps, and "Czardas," by Hubay, by Mr. Kaltenborn, won great applause. This master of the violin displayed that rare ability for which he has so long been noted. The second number was a difficult one, but he rendered it with ease and precision.

Another selection by the quartette was one of Schubert's compositions in D minor, Op. (Posth), in which the sweetest harmony was heard. Miss Duthie then sang Faust's "Le Parlate D'Amor," "Cuttin' Rushes," by O'Neil, and "Afton Water," by Hume, and in all three her voice was delightful, there being sufficient strength and sweetness. She was obliged to respond to an encore and she sang that favorite selection, "Comin' Thro the Rye."

Another feature of the programme was the selections "Adagio," by Goltermann, and "Gavotte," by Popper, given by Mr. Heine on the 'cello. He at once won his audience by his fine execution and he was obliged to respond to an encore.

The programme was concluded by one of Haydn's compositions, "D major, Op. 76, No. 5," by the quartette, in which the same high standard in rendition was maintained. Altogether the concert was considered one of the best of the winter season. William E. Miller accompanied Miss Duthie on the piano in a most satisfactory manner.

New Colored Congregation.

Williams, a new colored church has been organized in this city, and a place has been leased at the corner of North avenue and Berckman street, where there will be preaching every Sunday morning and night and Sunday-school sessions will be held in the afternoon. SUES TO RECOVER FROM FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST

MRS. HUGO WEIGMANN WANTS $1,000 ON UNPAID MORTGAGE.

Mrs. Hugo Weigmann, of West Front street, has through her counsel, W. L. Hetfield, Sr., brought suit in the Court of Chancery, to recover $1,000 on an unpaid mortgage held against the First Church of Christ. It is expected that the case will be tried at the May term of court. The defendants are represented by Codington & Swackhamer.

Payments on the mortgage, which was executed in 1895, were made for several years, when they stopped. There was prior mortgage on the church property of $3,000 held by the estate of Andrew K. Stewart, and it was in the payment of half of the face of the first mortgage that Mrs. Weigmann became interested, she loaning the church $1,000. Afterward the trustees of the church transferred its property to the American Christian Missionary Society, of Cincinnati, subject to all incumberances. Papers in Mrs. Weigmann's suit have been served on Rev. Phil Parsons, the present pastor.

ANNUAL PIANO RECITAL AT THE HARTRIDGE SCHOOL

PUPILS ACQUIT THEMSELVES CREDITABLY BEFORE PARENTS AND FRIENDS.

The annual piano recital at the Hartridge School by pupils of Miss S. A. Palmer, of the school faculty, was held yesterday afternoon. It was largely attended by friends and parents of the pupils who performed most creditably. Each one showed steady improvement under the approved methods taught so efficiently by Miss Palmer and hearty applause was accorded the rendition of each number.

In part first this programme was given:

"Evening," "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat," Esty Foster; "Spanish Dance," Alma McCormick; "Song Without Words, No. 49," "Witches Dance," Gladys Chase; "Aragonaise, from Cid," Francis Foster; "Arlette," Evelyn Butts; "Star of the Sea," Gladys Brooke; "Twilight Reverie," Edith Foster; "Impromptu, No. 3," Mai Rivers.

This was part second of the programme:

"May Queen Gavotte," Arthur Wills; "Loure, from 3d Suite," for 'cello, Dorothy Burke; "Berceuse," "Novellette," Virginia Fox; "Impromptu," Dorothy Brooke; "Habeniera, from Carmen," "Shadow Dance," Alice Ross; "Prelude, No. 15," Grace Otteson; "A Merry Sleighride,"—Kinder Symphony.

BLAMES 'PHONE CO.

Jacob Wagner, of South Plainfield, Says Blasting for Poles Led to His Wife's Death.

Jacob Wagner, of South Plainfield, has through his counsel, Winfield S. Angleman, decided to institute a suit against the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company, claiming that the death of his wife was due to dynamite blasting by the company near his home. Mrs. Wagner died Wednesday morning, following a severe attack of heart trouble, produced, it is claimed, by the blasting which was a part of the work in erecting poles through the township.

It is claimed that prior to the blast which damaged Mr. Wagner's home considerably and also frightened Mrs. Wagner, she had no trouble with her heart. After that she was under the care and treatment of Dr. M. J. Whitford.

EGEL REMOVED THE FENCE.

Now His Tenant Brings Suit to Recover $200 Damages.

Conrad Egel, of the borough, has been cited to appear in Justice Von-Minden's court at New Market next Wednesday morning, as defendant in a suit for $200 damages brought against him by John M. Tschudi, of Piscataway township. The plaintiff alleges that while he was a tenant of Egel's on a place near New Market, the latter dropped around one day and carted off a chicken house and a quantity of fencing which should have been left intact according to the lease. Because of the fence being removed, Tschudi was unable to pasture his cows and he was otherwise inconvenienced. The plaintiff is represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

WANT A CITIZENS' TICKET

Borough Exempt Firemen Backing a Strong Movement.

A LEADER'S STATEMENT

Declares He and His Associates Will Exact No Pledges From Mayoralty Candidate.

Backed by the members of the Exempt Firemen's Association, a decidedly strong movement is on foot in the borough to place a Citizen's ticket in the field for the coming election. In the past week it has gained ground steadily and it is only a matter of time when the candidates will be announced. For the mayoralty several are being considered and it is the purpose of the leaders in the movement to secure a man who will in every way prove a strong head to the ticket and through his personality aid in carrying it through.

One of the leading members of the association, who was at one time an officer in the disbanded volunteer department, told a Daily Press reporter in an interview yesterday that it was the intention of the organization to exact no pledge from its candidate, other than that he would give the volunteers the preference in making fire department appointments, should he be elected. He declared that the members want recognition, asserting that it has been denied them since the change in affairs and that if the old fire fighters were placed as call men, it would add to the efficiency of the department.

Asked as to whether there was any truth in the rumor that if the exempt firemen succeeding in electing their candidate and secured a majority in the Council, they would dispense with the paid department and revert to the volunteer method, he declared emphatically that they would not. He asserted that such a move had not been contemplated and there was no desire on the part of any of them to effect any change of so important a nature.

In casting about for mayoralty timber, the firemen have never ceased to abandon hope that Robert Clark, Jr., who was their champion in the Common Council, would accept the nomination. Mr. Clark has announced each time he was waited upon that he would not consent to have his name used but constant pressure has been brought to bear upon him and there are many who believe that he may yet accede to their wishes. As a member of the council, Mr. Clark was an active worker and he never failed to do all he could for any cause he believed to be in the right. As a business man he is quick of perception and keen in judgment and the firemen are not the only ones who believe he is the man to succeed Mayor Smalley.

With the Republicans, agitation is also rife and Mayor Smalley is being urged to accept another nomination. His friends believe he is just as strong as ever and all are anxious to have him head the ticket once more. Charles W. McCutchen has also been mentioned in this respect and he has a strong personal following.

DRAWN OUT CASE OVER PROPERTY IS SETTLED

CORMACK CAULFIELD AND ANDREW BOVORENSKY REACH AN AGREEMENT.

The case of Cormack Caulfield against Andrew Boverensky over the title of property in Westfield, has been settled after dragging through the courts since November, 1903. The trial was set down for Wednesday at the chancery court, but amicable settlement was made on Monday.

John S. Dahl was the original plaintiff in the case, which was afterward transferred to the chancery court, with Caulfield as complainant. The amount sued for, $280 and costs, was a small one considering the length of time during which the case has been pending trial. It involves many complications, having been temporarily disposed of in 1903, when judgment was given against Boverensky. Some time previous to this trial, however, the title of the property had been transferred, and since that time a trial in the court of chancery has been pending. William Newcorn represented the original plaintiff and Caulfield, while the lawyers for the defense were Codington & Swackhamer.

AMUSEMENTS.

A new attraction was presented at the Liberty Theatre last Monday evening in Tom W. Ryley's production of George Rollit's comedy, "The Money Makers," which made a big hit in London last spring. The principal roles are played by Ida Conquest, Lillian Thurgate, Daisy Atherton, Emily Rigl, Cyril Scott, Brandon Hunt, Eugene O'Rourke and Edmund Lyons. The piece is staged in three acts and two scenes and is sumptuously mounted. The story is a most humorous one. Two girls, played by Ida Conquest and Daisy Atherton, are engaged to poor young men and are anxious to marry. They plan a "get-rich-quick" scheme and open a tipping bureau to impart inside information on the races. They advertise, receive a barrel of money and send out a "tip." They soon find themselves in the hottest kind of hot water, which involves their sweethearts. They have "tipped a scratched horse" and their victims clamor for the blood of the "Major," their nom de tip. On this foundation Mr. Rollit has built up a lot of funny complications which are only straightened out by a rich uncle who stands the losses with the information that the newspapers made a mistake—the scratched horse really ran and won. "The Money Makers" is humorous and well played.

SPORTING NEWS.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The best average yet gained in the Y. M. C. A. tournament was made by Captain Koons, of the association team. For three games his average was 154.

Of the Park Club bowlers, Captain F. O. Ball holds the highest place among the local pin-hitetrs. He is fifth on the list of those in the Central Journal Bowling League whose averages are best.

The next bowling in the Y. M. C. A. championship tournament will take place on Wednesday night. The contests will then be finished. There are six entries in this tournament, for which first, second and third prizes will be given.

At the present time the Park Club bowlers stand next to the last in the Central Journal Bowling League. The first teams are Westfield and Roselle, which are tied for the highest honors. Twenty games have been played in the league so far and two more will be rolled tonight. The local team will be the hosts this evening and their visitors and competitors will be the Newark Bay five. At Elizabeth the team representing the county seat and Jersey City will contest for bowling honors. With tonight's game the first round is completed in the fact that every team in the league will by tonight have met every other team. Twenty more games remain to be played and the teams will all meet again before the season closes.

BASKET BALL.

The Y. M. C. A. Business Men's team will play a game with the Passaic Business Men on the local team's floor on Monday evening. If possible a double-header will be run off.

The tie in the Interscholastic League between the Plainfield High School and Leal's basketball teams will be played off on February 8 at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. This game will decide the city scholastic championship in basketball.

Thompson distinguished himself brilliantly in the game with the Leal's School team on Wednesday afternoon. He was in the play all the time, and though guarded by one of Leal's best players, Manning, he threw eight goals. The school is fortunate in having Thompson back to play with them.

There will undoubtedly be a game arranged between the P. H. S. team and the alumni of the school for some date in February. At the last game the alumni were defeated, and they are desirous of turning the tables by another game. Manager Collier said that without question the game could be arranged for February.

The Plainfield High School basketball team will play a game with the team representing the East Orange High School at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. This will be one of the P. H. S. team's best games. They were defeated at East Orange, therefore the local players will try especially hard to win on their own grounds.

Railroads Consolidate.

The Rockaway Valley Railway, from Whitehouse Station to Morristown, a distance of twenty-four miles, has been consolidated with the Speedwell Lake Railroad, and the two will hereafter be known as the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad. Peter LaTourette, of Whitehouse, remains in charge as superintendent, and the road will be conducted under the former Rockaway company management. It is the intention to extend the road to Flemington, about twelve miles from Whitehouse, in the spring, making direct connections for Trenton and Philadelphia. On the Morristown end the road will be extended to Whippany, to connect with the Erie Railroad for New York city.

Another Monster Monopoly

It Fattens on the Wages of the People

EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE begins, in its February issue, another public service, in its way, as important as the revelations of "Frenzied Finance."

The Beef Trust is a gigantic burglar, which has broken into every home in America and commits robbery each day of the year.

The Beef Trust's robbery of the people has been more arrogant and shameless than even the crimes of "Frenzied Finance," which Mr. Lawson is revealing with such awakening power. Every dinner table in our whole country has been made more costly by the pitiless coterie of plundering gentlemen known as the Beef Trust.

CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL, of Chicago, one of the soundest and most brilliant of American editors, begins in the February number of a series of articles which will lay bare to the bone the astounding details of this universal and long-endured larceny.

He shows how the Beef Trust has fastened its unyielding grip on the natural food supply of America, and how it taxes both the producer on the prairies and the consumer in his home.

He shows how the Beef Trust, insatiable and defiant, has jeered at the laws, has terrorized great railways, has taxed more commodities than all other trusts combined, and plans to control the price of every food product grown in the United States.

These articles will startle and stir the nation. The Lawson chapters on the crimes of "Frenzied Finance" are their only parallel in current literature.

Mr. Lawson's articles will continue in each issue of Everybody's.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 20, 1905.

The plum tree under which Generals Stoessel and Nogi negotiated the capitulation of Port Arthur promises to be remembered in history along with the apple tree under which General Lee surrended to General Grant at Appomattox.

There are but few instances in which a United States senatorship is handed out to a man as willingly as it was passed out to Hon. John Kean last Monday night. And the pleasing part of the incident is that it went to the right man in the right way.—Trenton State Gazette.

It is to be regretted that such an admirable institution as the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. should have to note a decrease in its membership during 1904 With public spirited and philanthropic citizens at its head it has become one of the best organized in the State and has a building that is equalled by few others. It is open to the men of the city; they are welcome to make use of it and while it seeks to uplift the moral side, it aims to better the physical and at the same time offers clean, wholesome amusement. It is aimed to have the membership reach 500 during the coming year and even that figure is small enough where there are so many young men who desire to better themselves by improving mind and body.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Men's Club, of Grace church, will hold its next meeting on Tuesday, February 14 at which time some entertainment will be provided for the members.

Rev. E. E Roberson, of the M. E. church, Bound Brook, will preach at the Monroe Avenue church Sunday morning in exchange with the pastor, Rev. George Mooney.

Rev. George Mooney, of the Monroe Avenue church, preached at Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, yesterday, in observance of a day of prayer among colleges.

The Boy's Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church met yesterday and considered the subject of "What Mission Work Means." There was a large attendance of boys.

Increasing audiences at the Christian church testify to the growing interest. The subject tonight will be: "Why Does Not God Kill the Devil?" Tomorrow night: "Whom Shall we Fear?"

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, county president of the W. C. T. U., will speak at the Young People's Association meeting in the First Baptist church tonight. The subject will be "Temperance".

In the calendar notices for the Crescent Avenue church, last week, the regular prayer meeting was given for tonight. Instead it should have been the first lecture of the Young People's Association on "Study in Japan," will be given, and will continue for about eight weeks.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—In the list of fresh vegetables at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow will be Boston and romaine lettuce, radishes, brussels sprouts, water cress and new potatoes.

—The Fortnightly Whist Club which was to have been entertained last night by and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue, postponed the event for one week owing to the fact that some of the members are ill with the grip.

Ten Days Sale.

The Plainfield Surprise Store, 324 West Front street, commences a ten-days sale tomorrow morning of clothing, furnishings, shoes, hats and caps. They have engaged the New York Salvage Company to manage this sale and have marked down their stock to less than half its original value. Their advertisement on the second page of this issue will interest you.

Fred MacDonald, the four-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacDonald, of 54 Chatham street, is quite ill with pneumonia. Mrs. MacDonald is also ill with the grip, and Mr. MacDonald has just recovered from an illness.

also of the basketball, bowling and social interests which make the gymnasium life attractive.

O. S. Rogers presented the boys' work committee report, one which, as President Cabcone said, was one of the most important features of the Y. M. C. A. work. In no other department has the increase been as great, both in numbers and in finances. Six hundred and sixty five boys attended Bible classes during the year of 1904, and in conferences, entertainments and physical work the boys have made themselves the most conspicuous and the most prospering factor in the association. Mr. Rogers mentioned specially in this report a $2,000 bequest from the late James Clark, to be added to the fund for the boys' building which the association hopes some day to have.

Curtis Thorp, the treasurer of the association, reported the financial condition to be as follows: Receipts for the year 1904, $9,453, which in addition to a sum of $1,000 which was borrowed, makes the net receipts $10,453; total expenses, $10,309, which, considering the amount owed on the loan, leaves a deficiency of $850. Over $600 of this amount have been promised in personal subscription, however, which leaves the association in debt about $200 This sum, it is expected, will be subscribed.

The vacancy committee presented these names to the secretary for the Board of Directors to fill the positions of those whose terms expired this year: M. R. Ackerman, Harry Gee, A. C. LaBoyteaux, H. M. Maxson and O. S. Rogers. J. W. Gavett was nominated to fill the place formerly occupied by G. S. Clay, while the others were renominations. F. R. Stevens was nominated to fill the position made vacnat by the resignation of W. S. Tyler. Motion was made, seconded and carried unanimously that the secretary cast a ballot for the appointment of the above as directors. Before concinding the meeting motions were carried expressing the thanks of the association to the orchestra and to Fred VanKps, banjo soloist, for their services, and to The Daily Press and the Courier-News for their courtesies and assistance.

PERSONAL.

Daniel G. VanWinkle, of New street, has been kept at home several days with the grip.

Mrs. Maze Edwards is detained at her home on West Seventh street with an attack of the grip.

Dr. J. W. Noble, of Hong Kong, China, is visiting Dr. E. G. Curry, of the Babcock building.

Mrs. Amanda H. Klein, of Watchung avenue, is very ill at her home with nervous exhaustion. Dr. A. H. Dundon is in attendance.

—Seven artists will entertain in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course on Monday night.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

There is some question in the minds of the officials as to the truth of the report which was given out that the Board of Education, of New Market, had sent a petition to the State authorities requesting that the pupils living north of the Lehigh Valley Railroad be allowed to attend school at Dunellen. They believe the petition may be a "bluff" to arouse the New Market people who are opposed to the $20,000 appropriation. In either event there is a school law, which states that in case New Market does not provide suitable accommodations for the school pupils, County Superintendent Willis can send them to Dunellen at the expense of New Market. The regular rates, $12 per year for primary and $16 for grammar school pupils, would be charged in that event. It is possible for the Dunellen schools to accommodate a large number of additional pupils, though the employment of another teacher would be necessary if New Market pupils were received. When consulted yesterday by a Daily Press reporter, Theodore Day, the district clerk, said decidedly that he had received no petition from the New Market board regarding a transfer of pupils.

Investment in Dunellen property must seem to some financiers a profitable one, judging from the number of sales both for the erection of building and for real estate transaction, which have recently taken place in the borough. Among the sales for investments is recorded the purchase of the Wynkoop house on Walnut street, by Henry Wrage, of Flemington. It is not definitely known to what use the property will be put.

Regular monthly business of a routine nature was transacted at the meeting of the Board of directors of the building and loan association, held last night at the office of the secretary. Reports of the various committees were received and show that the organization is in a good condition.

The dance conducted in Apgar's Hall, last night, was a decided success. From the large number of invitations sent out nearly all attended. It was one of the most pleasing social affairs of the season.

Frank Fletcher, Jr., who has been detained to his home by illness, is now much improved and will be able to be about in a few days.

Miss Edna McGloughan, of Lakeville, Conn., is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Sarah Fisher, of this borough.

Mrs. W. R. Hetfield, of this borough, has recently returned from a week's visit with relatives in Orange.

Among those whose names are on the sick list is Mrs. Lewis Schneider, who has been suffering from the grip.

Mrs. Mary F. Coriell, who has been sick at her home on Walnut street, is slightly improved.

Mrs. H. J. Swackhamer, of this borough, is entertaining out-of-town relatives.

CZAR ESCAPED DEATH

St. Petersburg Ceremony Disturbed by Flying Shell.

SHOTS HIT THE IMPERIAL CHAPEL

Missiles Came From Battery of Artillery Drawn Up In Salute When Emperor Performed Rite of Blessing the River Neva.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 20.—The festival of the Epiphany, the blessing of the waters of the Neva, had just been concluded by the head of the Russian church, when simultaneously with the salute fired from the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress either a rain of bullets or a shrapnel shell swept over the little chapel built over the frozen Neva in front of the Winter palace, where Emperor Nicholas and every member of the Romanoff family were participating in the service. The czar had a marvelous escape.

There is no doubt that the missiles came from a gun of the Bourse battery which was loaded with grape. Some of the bullets actually struck the little open chapel in which his majesty was standing, cut the staff of one of the standards and fairly riddled the basement windows of the palace, killing a policeman outright and wounding an officer and three marines.

Had the gun been aimed a little lower the charge of grape might have wiped out the whole Romanoff dynasty.

Performing the annually recurring blessing of the waters of the Neva with all the accustomed brilliant ceremonial, the emperor wore the uniform of the famous Preobrajensky regiment. He looked in excellent health and walked with an elastic step and smart military bearing and greeted each regiment with the salutation, "Good morning, my children," to which the soldiers and sailors replied in stentorian tones, "Good health to your majesty," while the band played the national anthem.

A temporary pavilion had been erected on the frozen surface of the river, as the annual custom is, and here the emperor as head of the church officiated at the ceremony of blessing the waters. When it was concluded salutes were fired, the signal being given by a gun in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul.

The missiles went high, entering windows of the splendid row of salons along the water front, from which the empress, the ladies of the court and the members of the diplomatic corps, including Ambassador McCormick, Secretary Eddy and Second Secretary Blass, and all the high dignitaries of the state, army and navy were witnessing the glittering spectacle below.

Fortunately the bullets passed over the heads of all present, striking the opposite wall and clattering down on the parqueted floor of the white salon.

The emperor when he heard the details of the occurrence said it was a great pity that the ammunition of the battery included a field charge instead of being entirely blank. The populace, massed behind the troops and police, was wholly unaware of the occurrence. The white smoke caused by the salutes and the hazy weather over the river prevented them from seeing the bursting of the shell. The ceremony was regarded as uneventful till the cause of the policeman's death was known.

The missiles which entered the Winter palace made clean holes, each about two inches wide, through the double upper windows of Nicholas hall.

Subsequently the emperor had luncheon served in the state dining room. During the reception Emperor Nicholas greeted Ambassador McCormick with his accustomed cordiality, and the ambassador conveyed to his majesty President Roosevelt's personal greetings and wishes for a happy New Year, which the emperor said he was happy to receive.

It is reported in official circles that the grapeshot was fired from one of the guns of the Seventeenth battery of the First horse artillery of the guard, the most aristocratic corps in the Russian army.

For a Russian sovereign to fall by the hand of an assassin is no new thing in Russian records, but that the emperor should narrowly escape death by a shot from his own artillery while he was engaged in a solemn religious rite, surrounded by priests of his church, is so difficult to realize as to be almost incredible, yet this is what has just happened at the capital, and the Russian public is left wondering and mystified.

Russia on Verge of Revolution.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The London papers this morning and their St. Petersburg correspondents take the gravest view of the internal conditions in Russia. The majority express the belief that yesterday's incident was a premeditated attempt on the life of Emperor Nicholas and maintain that the strike is much more a political than an industrial movement. In short, they consider that every sign makes it apparent that the empire is on the verge of a revolution.

Sympathetic Strike Feared.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—A St. Petersburg dispatch this morning says that the strike situation is causing much uneasiness there. Indications of its spreading toward a general sympathetic strike are apparent. Determined efforts are being made to call out all the factory workers in St. Petersburg, numbering several hundreds of thousands, including the employees of the Russian Westinghouse company.

Want Nothing to Do With New Mexico

PHENIX, Ariz., Jan. 20.—The Arizona legislature has passed unanimously a joint resolution protesting against statehood with New Mexico in any form and saying territorial government forever was preferable.

DEFENSE OF SMOOT

Women of Utah Testify Before Senate Committee.

SENATOR GOT EXCELLENT CHARACTER

Witnesses Said They Would Not Vote For a Polygamist—Practice Dying Out In Utah—Mormons "Size Up" Well With Gentiles.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Two prominent gentile women of Utah, one a member of the legislature that elected Mr. Smoot a senator, were witnesses in the Smoot inquiry before the senate committee on privileges and elections. Both women gave Smoot an excellent reputation and testified that they would not vote for a polygamist. The counsel for Senator Smoot have exhausted their list of witnesses here, but expect several witnesses yet to arrive in time for the hearing.

John W. Hughes of Salt Lake, editor of a weekly paper, testified that the sentiment among gentiles was that President Smith was a fanatic in religion, but that he was thoroughly honest and was keeping the church out of politics. He believed the gentiles thought it was best to let polygamy die out, as there were few polygamists left. He had made an investigation into the number of polygamists in Salt Lake City and found that there were only seventy-four men, nearly all of them old, only two being under fifty years of age.

Mrs. Mary G. Coulter of Ogden, a gentile and the wife of a physician, testified in regard to political affairs. She was a member of the legislature that elected Mr. Smoot a senator. She said she went unpledged, but was glad to abide by the result of her party's caucus. Before voting for Mr. Smoot, she said, she ascertained that he was not a polygamist.

Speaking of the Mormons in political affairs, she said they "sized up" very well with the gentiles. Polygamous relations were never flaunted by the Mormons, said Mrs. Coulter, and the young Mormons particularly were opposed to the continuation of polygamous relations. As a member of the legislature she said she was asked by as many gentiles as Mormons to vote for Mr. Smoot.

On cross examination Chairman Burrows asked if it would have made any difference in her vote for senator if she had known that a majority of Mr. Smoot's fellow apostles were polygamists. Mrs. Coulter replied that possibly she might have voted for Mr. Smoot, because many gentiles welcomed the opportunity of showing that their antagonism was not directed against the church, but merely against the people of the church known as polygamists. She said further that she would not vote for a polygamist.

Mrs. W. H. Jones of Salt Lake City, who said she went to Utah at sixteen years of age as a bride and who has been prominently connected with the Liberal and Republican parties in Utah, testified that neither she nor Senator Smoot had joined the Silver Republican party and said that both of them "had too much sense."

On cross examination the witness said she did not believe a polygamist could be elected to office by either gentiles or Mormons.

FAVORITES WENT DOWN.

Trapper, Derby Candidate, Barred From Future Racing.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20.—Heavy rain made the track muddy. Each favorite went down in turn and the books reaped a harvest. Lord French, at 50 to 1, just managed to last long enough to win his race. Trapper, regarded by many as the best of the Derby candidates thus far shown, was a strong favorite in the fourth race, but performed so poorly that the stewards ordered the refusal of his entry in future for inconsistency. The colt will be allowed to fulfill his stake engagements. Summaries:

Second Race.—Merry Acrobat, first; Decoration, second; Misanthorpe, third.

Third Race. — Lord French, first; Fruit, second; King Rose, third.

The Cantonese tried to take away the meat rations of the Pechili faction, and the latter defended themselves with capstan bars, marlin spikes and sheath knives. They were engaged in a terrific encounter when the police arrived. Hardly a man in the crew of twenty-four escaped injury. One was removed to a hospital with a skull fractured by a capstan bar. He will probably die. Another was badly stabbed.

TUCKER'S DEFENSE.

Murder Trial at Cambridge Drawing to a Close.

SEVERAL POINTS MADE FOR PRISONER

Friend of Accused Testifies as to Blood Stained Clothing—Civil Engineer's Evidence Helped the Defendant.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 20.—With the expert testimony concluded the defense in the trial of Charles L. Tucker for the murder of Mabel Page called witnesses to testify as to the prisoner's whereabouts on the day of the murder, his personal appearance on that day, the manner in which blood came upon his knife and the ownership of a pin claimed by the commonwealth to have been stolen from the Page house, but which the defense claims was owned by and in the possession of Tucker over two years ago.

The question of the ownership of the pin occupied a considerable portion of the day, and, although the witnesses invariably during direct examination selected the alleged Page pin as one similar to that worn by Tucker, not one of them on cross examination would make the positive statement that the pin was Tucker's.

The attempt of the defense to account for the human blood found on Tucker's knife and on his overcoat resulted in the calling to the witness stand of Bryan Fish, a friend of Tucker's, who testified that the defendant cut his finger with a knife while in a Boston theater on the Saturday preceding the murder. On Tucker's lap at the time lay the defendant's overcoat in such a position that blood from a cut could have dropped on the spot where the expert found blood stains.

A map showing the route traveled by Tucker on the day of the murder and the Page home was shown by Henry S. Adams, a civil engineer. The most significant feature of his testimony was the statement that there were swamps in the path which the prosecution claims Tucker took in a "short cut" to reach the Page house. Witnesses had before sworn that Tucker's appearance was neat and his shoes free from mud, and the defense attempted to bring out that such could not have been the case had the defendant passed through the swamp located in the route described by the state.

Entertained Diplomatic Corps.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained sixty members of the diplomatic corps at dinner at the White House last night. The golden table service was used, conspicuous among the pieces being a long mirror plateau in the center of the table filled with Brazilian orchids, ferns and lilies of the valley, which formed the feature of the floral decorations of the table. A section of the Marine band played during the evening. President Roosevelt took the Baroness Mayor des Planches, the wife of the Italian ambassador, to dinner, while Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps, escorted Mrs. Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt's dress was of black net pailatted with smoked pearls.

TESTIMONY TAKEN IN A SUIT ON CONTRACT

MRS. CARMAN WANTS C. D. BOICE TO PAY A $133 JUDGMENT.

Before Supreme Court Commissioner Isaac P. Runyon, this morning, testimony was taken in the action on contract of Mrs Anna Carman, administratrix, against Charles D Boice, both of Dunellen. The defendant was brought before the commissioner on a petition for discovery, the purpose being to ascertain whether he is able to pay the amount of judgment, $133, together with added interest and costs. Justice vonMinden represents the administratrix.

The action is for the recovery of a meat bill which the defendant contracted with the late William H. Carman, when he was in the butcher business at Dunellen. Last summer the plaintiff obtained judgment against Boice in Justice Rogers' court, New Market.

The first of the week Justice von Minden will appear before the Chancellor and ask that an order be issued setting apart a certain portion of Mr. Boice's earnings until the claim is paid. At the same time he will ask for a similar order in the case of Mrs. Anna Sisty against Miss Emma Perrine, also of Dunellen. The latter is a school teacher in Jersey City and testimony was taken in this case two weeks ago before Commissioner Runyon. At that time Miss Perrine stated that her salary of $1,000 a year was just sufficient to keep her mother and herself, but the Chancellor will be asked to set apart a portion of her earnings to pay Mrs. Sisty's claim for rent which the defendant, it is said, guaranteed would be paid by her brother-in-law for a house he occupied at Dunellen and which is owned by Mrs. Sisty.

There are now four living ex Governors of New Jersey, George T. Werts, John W. Griggs, Foster M. Voorhees and Franklin Murphy. Inasmuch as the Governor's term is three years and the State constitution prohibits a Governor from succeeding himself, it is plain that the mortality among former Governors is pretty high. The Governors of the last thirty years who have passed away, after leaving more or less of an impress upon the State's history, were Joel Parker, Joseph D. Bedle, George B. McClellan, George C. Ludlow, Leon Abbett and Robert S. Green. These were all men of known ability. Besides McClellan, who had been a Presidential candidate, some of the others had high ambitions, notably Abbett, whose dreams encompassed the Presidency. Abbett was the greatest politician of them all. He had a great hold on the people, but is his eagerness to get into the United States Senate he built up a system of boosism which afterward caused his political destruction. In half a century only two Governors have been chosen for a second term—Joel Parker and Leon Abbett. Parker was Governor first during the latter part of the Civil War period, and his fellow Democrats had to call upon him again in 1871 to save the State from becoming Republican. Robert S. Green intervened for three years between Abbett's first and second terms. Parker, Bedle, Ludlow, Abbett and Werts were Supreme Court justices either before or after being Governor, and Green was a vice chancellor when he died. Within the thirty-year period mentioned all of the Governors were lawyers, excepting McClellan and Murphy, and during that time the Republican Governors were Griggs, Voorhees and Murphy.—New York Tribune.

Union Co. Republican Com. Meets Only to Adjourn.

THE ELECTION MUDDLE

Legislature at Monday Night's Session is Expected to Do Away With Conflicting Provisions.

The members of the Union County Republican Committee who met at Republican headquarters, Elizabeth, last night, to make provision for the special Assembly election, accomplished little or nothing. An adjournment was taken subject to the call of the chair and it is believed that another meeting will be held not later than Tuesday when arrangements will be made for holding primaries, a county convention and election. For the purpose of saving as much expense as possible the convention will be held at Republican headquarters, Elizabeth, instead of in one of the theatres there and all the details will be arranged with a view to economy.

The Legislature when it convenes on Monday night is expected to make such changes in the act for the special election as to cut out all conflicting provisions, one of which is that the ballot boxes cannot be opened within six months after an election. Another conflicting provision is that the names of the nominees must be filed with the County Clerk ten days before election and this would not be possible under existing conditions.

Governor Stokes yesterday afternoon signed Assembly bill No. 18, providing for the special election to fill the two vacancies in the Assembly. The writs of election in the two counties of Union and Sussex were ordered on Tuesday after the act was passed and notice has been given to the county officials affected. It was stated at the Capitol yesterday that the bill as passed does not accomplish all that was desired and that another act might be passed Monday night. The desideratum of the special legislation was to abolish the great expense of an election conducted under the regular election law. The bill, as passed, simply removes the necessity for nominating candidates according to the provisions of the general primary law, and gives the county committee the authority to provide the method for making the nominations.

Those prominently mentioned as candidates on the Republican ticket in Union County are Mayor Randolph Perkins and Clerk Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, and William T. Kirk, of this city, has also been mentioned. It is the opinion, however, that a Westfield man will get the nomination as the vacancy occurs in that town.

The Democratic County Committee will meet at Elizabeth next week and that party's candidate will probably be Joseph T. Hague, who, it is said, is not adverse to accepting the nomination again. Joseph Gunn, of Springfield, has also been spoken of.

H. F. Rerbach, a special messenger from the Secretary of State's office, arrived at Elizabeth this morning at 11 o'clock and served the writ of election on County Clerk Calvert. From Elizabeth he went to Sussex county, where he will perform similar service.

TO PRODUCE "FAUST."

Local Talent to Assist Edward Waldmann in Giving Drama at the Casino.

Further plans for the production of the drama "Faust" by the members of Wetumpkah Tribe, I. O. R. M., were discussed at the regular meeting Thursday night, and a rehearsal was held. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Waldmann, of New York, under whose direction the affair will be produced, were present and had charge.

The production, which will be given on January 30 and February 1, will include in the cast local talent. These are the parts in the production as Mr. Waldmann has selected them: Joseph Martin as Valentine; E. Mortimer Slater, Jr., as Brander; Walter Emmons, as Frosch; Louis Schermerhorn, as Wagner; Miss Lotta Willard as Ratterline; A. E. Willard as Young Faust; Mrs Willard, as Marguerite; Mr. Waldmann as Mephisto, and Mrs. Waldmann as Martha.

Ground Hog Day.

Ground hog day will fall on Wednesday, February 2, and those who believe in the annual custom of this animal, will be on the watch to see whether he shows himself or remains in his quarters.

Grand Jury Adjourns.

The Union County Grand Jury adjourned yesterday until Monday. There is every reason to believe that the jurors will be in session all of next week, if not longer.

VANNESS WANDERS ON THE WITNESS STAND

ANSWERS VAGUELY WHEN QUESTIONED BY HIS COUNSEL.

"Count" John K. VanNess, of this city, appeared Thursday before Vice-Chancellor Emery as defendant in the matter of a suit brought by George W. Marsh, administrator of the estate of the late John R. Marsh, wandered so much in his replies on the witness stand, that after an all-day session, the action which is brought to foreclose a $3,500 mortgage on his farm, scarcely advanced beyond the initial stage.

VanNess admits the mortgage, but insists that several cash payments, for which he took no receipt, have been paid on it. When questioned by his counsel, W. S. Angleman, he became so vague and wandering in his replies that the judge had to interfere repeatedly. It is said that he is a paralytic, and is at times not entirely responsible. His statement that he borrowed a certain sum of $25 from John R. Marsh while the latter was sick in bed, was flatly penied by Mr. Marsh's son, George W. Marsh, who described very different circumstances under which the loan took place. The son had to admit that his father's accounts had been very irregularly kept, and that he made notes any where he happed to be, a favorite place being his barn door.

The greater part of the afternoon was taken up with testimony by many witnesses from this city and Westfield, introduced in an attempt to show that the defendant had always born a good reputation for honesty and truthfulness. Little was proved as none of the witnesses had ever heard the subject under discussion.

An adjournment was taken to February 14 in the afternoon.

Illingsworth Not Guilty.

The trial concluding yesterday afternoon, a jury returned with a verdict of not guilty at 10 o'clock this morning in the case of Denton and William Illingsworth, of Raritn, charged with murderous assault on Theodore Crater, fireman at the Somerset woolen mills. The three enaged in a souffle outside the mill and in the struggle William Illingsworth was shot in the knee by Crater, but not before he had been badly beaten. Prosecutor James L. Griggs conducted the trial for the State against Crater and must now act in the same capacity against the Illingsworth's on Crater's charge.

Experimenting With Lights.

For the purpose of demonstrating the advantage of a cluster of incandescent lights over a single arc light, the electric light department of the Public Service Corporation is planning to place such a cluster at the corner of Park avenue and West Second street. The action is the result of a desire on the part of many persons to introduce arc lights in the business section. The Public Service Corporation believes that the same brilliancy can be obtained with a number of smaller lights at less cost.

Fire in Shoe Store.

Fire from an unknown cause broke out in the shoe shop owned by Max Busel, on West Second street, last night, and proved a difficult one to handle. The neighbors managed to extinguish the flames, and the department was not called out. As it was damage amounting to about $75 to the building was caused. Chief Doane was summoned to the scene of the fire after it was put out, and made a careful examination of the building. The house is owned by Mrs. Hibbitts.

Revival services will be continued at Monroe Avenue church on Monday' Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights of next week. On Tuesday night Rev. Ralph B. Urmy, of the M. E. church, Morriston, will preach. The interest in these services is increasing and are proving profitable and helpful.

Will Start Work Soon.

Work on the new State tuberculosis sanitarium to be located near Glen Gardner, is expected to commence February 1. The contractor will report there on that date and will bring with him 200 men and forty horses, ready to begin operations.

Hedden's Good Work.

The carriages before and after the performance at the Casino last evening were handled expeditiously by Frank Hedden. There were ninety in all and not the slightest jam occurred despite the narrow confines of Arlington avenue.

MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT?

Grand Jury Said to Have Found Bill Against Wilcox.

OPINIONS DIFFERED

Declared That Jurors Were Greatly Divided in Their Views of the Case's Disposal.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, January 21—It is rumored here about the Court House that the Grand Jury concluded this week its consideration of the Harold M. Wilcox case and that after much discussion and a number of ballots a true bill was found for manslaughter. It is also rumored that several jurors were favorably impressed with certain evidence brought out tending to show that the shooting of the Darling boy on Hallowe'en night was accidental and were inclinded not to bring in any indictment against Wilcox, while other jurors were strongly in favor of bringing in an indictment for murder. Still other jurors were in favor of a middle course, and these latter, according to rumor, were in the majority when the vote was taken.

If the rumor is correct the result will be as many lawyers anticipated when the shooting took place, as in their opinion the accounts of the shooting seemed to lack the elements of a criminal homicide.

The penalty for manslaughter is a fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment at hard labor not exceeding ten years or both. The criminal law also says that anyone who shall kill another by misadventure or in his own defence shall be guiltless and totally acquitted and discharged.

It is said that the lawyers for Wilcox, among whom is R. V. Lindabury, of Newark, will endeavor to show that the killing of the Darling boy was one of misadventure and that therefore under the statute, Wilcox should be held guiltless and totally acquitted and discharged.

If the rumor as noted above of the finding of an indictment by the Grand Jury is correct, the trial will doubtless be one of the most interesting and hotly contested ever held in this county and the result eagerly awaited by both the friends of Wilcox and those who think him a criminal.

FOR NEW BUILDING.

Warren Chapel Now Has $13,000 on Hand for Proposed Structure.

Thus far about $13,000 has been secured for Warren chapel's new place of worship proposed to be erected on Watchung avenue corner of Fairview. Plans were originally prepared for a stone structure with two rooms, one for church services and the other for Sunday-school; but when estimates were made the cost was found to be so far in excess of the probable subscriptions that these plans had to be abandoned.

At present the committee in charge is undecided whether to follow the original idea, or build one room which would serve both purposes. The unpleasantness which might have arisen from the proximity of this chapel building to the First Presbyterian church has been happily avoided and the best of feeling prevails.

For a Worthy Purpose.

For the benefit of that worthy institution, the Netherwood Fresh Air Association, an excellent entertainment will be given at Y. M. C. A. Hall on Tuesday night, January 24 There will be music by the Sagamore Musical Club, and in addition there will be vocal selections by the Oranhyateka Quartette and Miss Helen Mar Wilson, reader, humorist and impersonator, will assist in the entertainment. It is hoped that generous patronage will be accorded the entertainment.

Will Present Colonel's Medal.

Col. D. F. Collins, commanding the Second Regiment, will make his annual visit to Co. K Monday, Jan. 23, at which time he will present to Sergeant N. R. Hert the gold medal, known as the Colonel's medal and given to the enlisted man in the Second Regiment making the highest score at the State expense on the day set apart to the different companies. Sergeant Hort's score was 153 out of a possible 150.

Past Sachem's Degrees.

For the purpose of receiving their degrees as past sachems, Messrs. Leichtentritt, Armstrong and Clark, of Wetumpkah Tribe, I O R. M., will attend the district meeting at Cranford on January 31. It is expected that there will be a large gathering at this meeting which will be an important one.

OSHKOSH SCORES AGAIN

The Club's "At Home" in the Casino One Big Success

AUDIENCE DELIGHTED

Songs, Dances and Marches Accompanied by Music and Costumes Chase Dull Care Away.

In the main room of the Oshkosh district school, otherwise the stage of the Casino, the members of the Oshkosh Glee Club, fifty in all, were distinctly "at home" last evening, and treated an audience which tested the building's capacity to a faithful and inspiring picture of the classes at "work." Fun, fast and sometimes furious, music, tuneful and original, fancy dances and intricate marching together with costumes that were decidedly fetching, made up a programme that sounded the death knell of ennui the moment the curtain arose. In point of detail and smoothness of action, it even surpassed last season's "International melange of song and dance," as delightful an amateur production as ever graced local boards.

Arranged in two parts, the first of which depicted the typical district school room, ample opportunity was afforded talented Plainfielders to display their abilities and expectations were more than realized. As "Professor Joshua Switchem," the monarch of all he surveyed, Leighton Jenkins presided over the crowd of unruly pupils and gave a neat bit of comedy acting that placed him above the novice class. There was no overdoing and he seemed to be more "at home" than anyone else. Comprising the district educational committee, Mrs. Harry B. Lovell, Clifford Mc Gee, Elmer E. Runyon and William N. Runyon made up a comedy quartette that was laughter itself and which spread beyond the footlights. When they were not wrangling among themselves, they were frightening everybody in the room out of what knowledge they possessed by asking questions that would have floored a Yale professor.

Harry R. Burt was clever as the dunce but it remained for Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart to make the hit of the performance. As "Lillie May Whitewash," whose complexion belied her name, she sang and danced breezily and without burlesquing, abted the "pert culind gal" in a way that would have turned anyone of Ned Wayburn's minstrel misses green with envy. "I May be Crazy But I Aint No Fool" was the title of her song and while it was not as tuneful as her "Goodbye Miss Liza Jane" of last year, it permitted her to make use of the droll dialect she has mastered and the audience seemed loath to let her go. She was encored repeatedly and obligingly responded each time.

Pretty effects were introduced in a "Poet Song" by James Dodd and a "College Song" by Willard Wadsworth, each soloist being aided by a picked chorus. They were lougly applauded and were among the to-be-remembered features. Other numbers in the first part were given by Mrs. Joseph M. Shellabarger; Miss Madeline Ubler and Harry Butler, whose voices harmonized prettily in the rendition of "You Mustn't Pick Plums From My Plum Tree;" and a quartette comprised of Messrs. Draper C. Bartlett, E. Maxwell Honeyman, George L. Schoonmaker and Charles Barlow.

In the second part, the school was "on parade," giving what the programme described as "A Friday evening in American history." There were five different scenes, each one a specialty number depicting periods in the sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth centuries, the musical numbers and costumes corresponding with the time. The first was a forest fantasy in which William N. Runyon as an Indian chief, sang wierdly while a band of braves circled about him; the second, a band of Puritans with Mrs. George S. Ring leading in the singing of a very staid but catchy song; the third, a gathering of men and women in Colonial attire which danced a minuet; the fourth, a merry group of young men who accompained Draper Bartlett in singing "Julia," first in the original and then with words fitted for Mr. Shellabarger's benefit, the while dancing with noticeable precision, and fifth, a general assemblage in which the entire cast, garbed as soldiers, marines and Red Cross nurses, led by Miss Hubbell, skipped over the best selections of the evening in a medley that brought the curtain down on a vociferously applauding house.

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION

Police Believe Gardner Knows About Morey-LaRue Fire.

ACTED STRANGELY

Two Brothers When Questioned at Headquarters Strengthen Chief Kiely's Theory of Arson.

While the local fire department was still fighting a small but dangerous blaze in the Morey & LaRue laundry plant on East Fourth street, shortly before 9 o'clock last night, the actions of George and James Gardner, brothers, aged twenty-one and seventeen, led to their being taken in custody by Chief Kiely on suspicion of knowing the cause of the fire. When questioned at police headquarters, George told a straight story and was released, but James was held, though on what grounds the chief is not ready to state. It is believed he knows more about the blaze than he cares to tell and will be detained while a thorough investigation is being made.

The alarm for the blaze was turned in from box 13 by Patrolman O'Keefe, who was told of it by two young men, since believed to be the Gardners. When the department arrived, thick, black smoke was pouring from all sides of the structure, a three story affair, but the trouble was located on the ground floor in the rear. A large pile of clothes was burning and the flames had spread to tables and furnishings and also the floor. The chemical engine and one hydrant stream were used with good effect and the flames were soon extinguished with a possible loss of $150, covered by insurance. There was nothing to show that the origin had been anything but incendiary and Chief Doane's report bore out Chief Kiely in his suspicions.

The Gardner boys are well known to the police although James has no record with them. George has been in court on numerous occasions and at one time his father dropped dead just after the boy had been sentenced for a long term at Elizabeth. James has been employed at the laundry and both he and his brother were noticed on the scene when the firemen first arrived. Both were acting in a manner to attract attention and they were watched by Chief Kiely for some time before he took them in charge.

What reason they could have had for complicity in the fire is not known, although it was said today that a small amount of change had been taken from one of the cash drawers in the laundry office.

MRS. POTTER DEAD.

Was Mother of Editor John A. Potter, of the Cranford Chronicle.

Mrs. Sarah M. Potter, wife of William H. Potter, of Mt. Pleasant, and mother of John A. Potter, editor of the Cranford Chronicle, died this morning after an illness of two months. She was the daughter of Robert C. Vail, of Mt. Pleasant, and was born and always lived at that place. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church for many years. She is survived by a husband, a daughter, Miss Mabel Potter, and Editor, John A. Potter.

The funeral services will be held from the late home Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and interment will be at Rahway.

In the City Court.

Drunk and disorderly conduct brought five persons before Judge Runyon this morning at the city court. Sentence was suspended on George Stelle, Nelson Ford and John Halpin, while William Strexer and John Waldron were fined $5 The former was a friend of John Halpin, and when he was arrested, made a disturbance John Brown and Mary McCarthy, who were arrested yesterday for stealing and selling coal, were fined $5 each, and Wilbur Brown, a brother of the former, who was to appear for the same offense, will be summoned tomorrow. The buyers, Max Busel, Kittie Ballowitz and Martha Probasco, also appeared this morning, and sentence was suspended.

A Social Of Days.

A social of days, at which the attendants were costumed to represent the days of the week, was held in Grace M. E. church last night, under the auspices of the Epworth League. It was largely attended and was an interesting affair. There were about forty-five, who were dressed in novel costumes, cleverly representing the days of the week and special holidays. Refreshments were served in the latter part of the evening.

LOCAL WOMEN'S AUXILIARY LEADS STATE SOCIETIES

INTERESTING FACT BROUGHT OUT AT SPECIAL BUSINESS MEETING.

Acting upon a special summons for the purpose of considering the resignation of Mrs. Kenneth Robbie as secretary, the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., met yesterday and transacted important business. In accordance with the usual custom, there was a meeting of the executive committee previous to the regular meeting, at which Mrs. Robbie's resignation was accepted, and in her place was appointed Miss Eleanor Sherwin. The executive committee received four applications for membership, all of which were accepted. The subjects to be considered at the regular meeting were decided upon, and the executive committee adjourned to the parlor, where the society convened.

Though the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held in November, the report of the president, Mrs. H. M. Maxson, was read yesterday.

Mrs. Maxson mentioned in her report the fact that in 1903 the auxiliary was organized with a charter membership of seven, and that it now stands not only the strongest, but the largest women's organization auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. in the State. This, Mrs. Maxson said, is worthy of special mention considering the fact that the local society is the youngest in the State. A detailed account of the work done through the year was included in the report, and the fair and other transactions of the society were explicitly referred to in the president's report.

These were chairmen of the various committees who were appointed yesterday by the president: Devotional committee, Mrs. G. H. Babcock; membership, Mrs. J. Harry Manning; flower and sick committee Dr. Martha Stillman; social committee, Mrs. G. M. Rittenhouse.

The president made further reports with regard to the receipts of the auxiliary fair, which was held in November. From the $900, which was the net profits of the fair, $300 has been paid by the auxiliary toward the electric lighting plant of the association. Mrs. Maxson stated that amounts, small and large, still continue to come in from the fair sales, both from articles which are still on sale and from commission on other effects sold at the bazaar.

An important business transaction, which will be appreciated by many, was the vote to buy a portable organ to be used at the shop meetings. The next regular meeting of the auxiliary will take place on February 13, and will be open to the public. The feature will be a lecture on the subject "Opportunities of the Auxiliary," by Miss Chapman, of Montclair, an auxiliary worker for many years.

Funeral of Michael Nugent.

Funeral services over the body of Michael Dugent were held in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock this morning, with Rev. Father Delehanty in charge. The attendance was very large and included delegations from the Ancient Order of Hibernians and St. Mary's Holy Name Society, of which he was a member. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Edward Connors, Thomas Burke, Frank Burke, Edward Connolly, Bernard Brady and Martin Reagan.

George E. Hall's Plans Accepted.

George E. Hall, of this city, chairman of the finance committee of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association at the executive committee meeting Thursday, presented plans for raising funds for extending an advanced line of work through securing personal subscriptions. The plans were approved, and the work will start immediately. The meeting of the executive committee at which Mr. Hall's report was presented was held at the Hotel Windsor, at Trenton.

Furthering Building Plans.

J. Fred MacDonald, of East Front street, who has been improving his store property adjoining his residence, has decided to extend the building out seven feet on East Front street, and build the entire front of brick, still leaving the store on the first floor and using the two upper floors for flats.

Compelled to Wear Uniforms.

It is reported that according to a new postal regulation all rural free delivery carriers are now obliged to wear uniforms similar to those worn by other letter-carriers in towns and cities. At the local postoffice no official notification of this new order has been received.

THE PISCATAWAY SCHOOLS

Taxpayers in a Discussion Over Township's Needs.

THE FACILITIES POOR

Those Opposed to New Building at New Market in Favor of Erecting Others Elsewhere.

The question of providing school facilities for the children in Piscataway Township, is agitating the taxpayers very much. The recent proposition to erect a $20,000 high school at New Market, which was defeated, has been followed by a general discussion of the township's needs. It will be remembered that at the school meeting the proposition was $20,000 or nothing, and the amount was voted down. There are many who believe that could they have voted on some smaller amount, or had plans for the proposed school building been submitted, the proposition would have been carried.

The taxpayers who are against the high school idea at New Market are in favor of establishing a school near Gallagher's Corner and another one at South Plainfield, thus doing away with the present method of compelling children to go from Gallagher's Corner and Dewey Park to New Market for their schooling. To be sure they are transferred in a stage, but this is quite an undertaking when the number of required trips are considered, and besides many parents object to having their children cross the railroad tracks, even in a stage. The distance is considered too far and if a school can be located near Dunellen it would save the township much expense.

The condition at South Plainfield is almost as bad as at New Market. There are nearly as many children in the school there as in New Market and the residents feel the need of increased accommodations. They say that they are willing that New Market should have a new school, one that will meet the required needs, but they want a fair division and think that New Market taxpayers should be willing to help them out as well.

Many are antagonistic to the attitude taken by County Superintendent Willis, who, they claim, planned the action taken at the school meeting. One prominent resident at New Market in speaking of the affair yesterday, said that if the school board had had plans prepared by Plainfield architects, who know how to conform to the school laws, and had presented two or three propositions from which the taxpayers could have made a choice, the new school for New Market would have been granted. It was the apparent determination to spend $20,000 at New Market that caused so much opposition.

The school board endeavored to hold a meeting a few days ago, but there was not a quorum present. It is now proposed to have a meeting soon, and prepare for another school hearing when the matter can be properly voted on. A new schoolhouse will have to be built at New Market within the coming year, as the present accommodations are not adequate as a permanent place for holding sessions, although it fills the bill very well as temporary quarters.

SUNRISE EXPRESS WRECKED.

Twenty-five Injured by Run-off at Durham, N. H.

DURHAM, N. H., Jan. 21.—Twenty-five persons were injured, four seriously, by the wreck of the Sunrise express from Sydney, C. B.; Halifax, N. S., and St. John, N. B., on the western division of the Boston and Maine railroad, in this town, when the passenger cars leaped from the rails on account of a defective rail and piled up in the stone culvert at one side of the track.

The locomotive, the baggage car and one Pullman remained on the rails. The rest of the train, consisting of a smoking car, a Pullman and two day coaches, left the tracks.

The most seriously injured were: Miss Belle Donald, Hampton, N. B.; the negro porter of Pullman car, who refused to give his name, bruised by being thrown through a car window; Albert Hall, Portland, Me., fatally injured; Charles Dunn, Jr., Portland, Me., head and hip injured.

The others who received injuries necessitating medical attendance were: George C. Reed, Island Falls, Me.; Mrs. Samuel Clark, New York city; Caleb Cue, Rockport, N. B.; W. J. Grindle, Bangor, Me.; George Kavanaugh, Cambridge, Mass.; John McGinnis, Boston, and Mrs. Allan Howard, Fredericton, N. B.

About a dozen others received cuts and bruises or minor injuries from the sudden stoppage.

The train left Halifax at 8 o'clock and St. John about 6 o'clock in the evening. The express was late when it passed Durham, a station at which it does not stop, and was running nearly fifty miles an hour.

Practically every one on board was shaken up, and upward of fifty received bruises and minor injuries.

Miss Gomez Only Winning Favorite at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21.—Miss Gomez, who won the first race with some difficulty, was the only winning favorite. Nicol rode Jake Sanders skillfully in the second race, but the colt was unequal to the final demand upon him. Falernian, who followed him to defeat, was never a contender in his race. Summaries:

First Race.—Miss Gomez, first; Flying Charcoal, second; Ghats, third.

Second Race.—Lieutenant Rice, first; Jake Sanders, second; Omealca, third.

Third Race.—Knowledge, first; Rachel Ward, second; Cataline, third.

Fourth Race.—Foxmead, first; Monaco Maid, second; Ahola, third.

Fifth Race.—Ahumada, first; John Peters, second; Belle of Portland, third.

Sixth Race.—Lou M., first; Mr. Jack, second; Swedish Lady, third.

A Close Finish at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 21.—Big fields and several very close finishes were the features of the racing at Ascot. The finish between Lady Kispar, Lady Mirthful and Mae Flecknoe was so close that hardly any two spectators agreed as to the order of finish. After deliberating for several minutes the judges placed them as named. Neither had more than a nose advantage over the next horse. Two favorites won.

Toscan and Ben Heywood.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 21.—The going at Essex park was still heavy, but the racegoers have apparently learned the mud runners, as three favorites and a strongly played second choice finished first. Toscan and Ben Heywood, at odds on; Jack Young, at even money, and Lansdowne, at 2 to 1, brought home the money for their backers.

Heavy Plunge at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—There was a heavy plunge on Morita at Oakland in the opening race, but True Wing won easily. Cousin Carrie was a strong favorite in the third. Hulford, however, came fast in the stretch and won by a length and a half.

Columbia Defeated Cornell.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Columbia defeated Cornell in an exciting basket ball game here last night by a score of 23 to 17. Near the end Cornell braced considerably, but could not overcome Columbia's lead.

An Interstate Wage Conference.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 21.—The resolutions committee of the mine workers convention has reported favorably on a resolution seeking to enlist the active co-operation of all national officers in the endeavor to bring about an interstate joint wage conference composed of the central and southwestern competitive districts, including the state of Iowa. The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Hanged Herself With Gas Tube.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 21.—Despondency, brought on by fast failing eyesight, caused Miss Jeannette Wheeler, eighty-seven years old, to hang herself at the home of her nephew, William S. Wheeler, with whom she lived, here. Persons in the house missed Miss Wheeler and on going to the attic found her dead body hanging from the end of a gas tube, which had been tied to a rafter.

Shot For Pulling Wrong Cord.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 21.—For pulling a fare register cord instead of a bell cord in trying to stop a street car Charles Jacobs, a negro, was shot and probably fatally wounded. It is said E. J. Broadfoot, conductor of the car, did the shooting.

Sudden Death In Court.

SMOOT TESTIFIES.

Senator From Utah Before Committee of Inquiry.

DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF ANY CRIME

Has Been a Mormon All His Life, but Not a Very Active One—Stated That a Plural Marriage Was a Violation of Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Interest in the Smoot investigation before the senate committee on privileges and elections was stirred by the unexpected determination to put Senator Smoot on the stand in his own behalf, without waiting for other witnesses now en route from Utah. The senator was under direct and cross examination all day and frankly answered most of the questions asked. He acquitted himself excellently and appeared to make a favorable impression on the members of the committee.

The examination of Senator Smoot related to matters immediately connected with church policy and his duty toward the church as compared with his duties as a senator. He said he had not taken any oaths that would interfere with his loyalty to his government. His recollection of the endowment house ceremony was indistinct, he said, but he was sure there were no obligations taken to avenge the blood of the prophets upon either "this nation" or "this generation," as had been testified to by witnesses for the prosecution.

"It is charged that the president of the Mormon church and a majority of the twelve apostles now practice polygamy and some have taken plural wives since 1890. Have you any knowledge on that subject except that produced here?"

"I have not."

"It is said these things have been done with the knowledge and consent of Reed Smoot."

"That is not true."

"It is said that plural marriage ceremonies have been performed by apostles."

"Not to my knowledge."

"Do you know that by reputation?"

"Not until I saw this testimony about Brigham Young performing that one in Mexico."

"It is charged that many bishops and other high officials of the church have taken plural wives since the manifesto."

"I have not heard of it except those mentioned in the testimony."

"It is said that all of the first presidency and apostles encouraged polygamous cohabitation. Do you?"

"I do not."

"That they countenance it. Do you?"

"I do not."

"That they honored and rewarded by high office and by distinct preferment. Have you ever upheld any man for any office in the church because he was a polygamist?"

"I have not."

"You have been a Mormon all your life?" asked Mr. Tayler.

"Yes, sir, but not a very active one," replied the senator. He explained this by the statement that he never had held any office of importance until 1895. He said he had faith in his religion and that his faith had increased and his convictions deepened since he became an apostle. Of his faith in his parents Senator Smoot said impressively, "No man ever had a better mother in the world than I had." It had been brought out previously that Senator Smoot's mother was a plural wife.

Chairman Burrows again interrupted and refreshed Senator Smoot's mind with the statement of President Smith that he has had eleven children by his five different wives since the manifesto of 1890. "Remembering that, what is your answer?" concluded Senator Burrows.

"I could not say that he has lived with those wives."

"But he says so himself."

"It is a violation of the law," concluded Senator Smoot.

His Partner a Myth.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Frank Brewer of the brokerage firm of Brewer & Co. took the stand at the hearing of the bankruptcy proceedings of Munroe & Munroe before Commissioner Alexander here. He repeated his testimony that he had never seen his partner, McDearmid. "Did you ever talk to your partner over the telephone or have any correspondence with him?" asked Lawyer Maurice Untermyer. "No." "Do you know of his physical existence?" "I do not." "You don't know whether he is a person or a myth?" "No, I don't. I am told he exists."

RIOTOUS MOB ON NEVA'S BANK

Workmen Issue a Petition to the Emperor.

WERE NOT ALLOWED TO PRESENT IT

Text Sets Forth That Life of Workmen Under Present Conditions Has Become Intolerable—Says, "We Are Poor, Persecuted, Burdened With Labor Beyond Endurance; Limit Has Been Reached; Death Is Preferable."

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 21.—A great popular uprising, started by strikers from the iron and steel works, government shipyards and other industries, has taken place on the right bank of the river Neva, in this city, beginning near the Baltic works. It spread throughout Vassili Ostroff (Basil island), where the markets for purveyors of household supplies are situated.

Shoppers fled before the mob, and the marketmen attempted to close their stalls before the storm broke, but some of them were not quick enough to save their property.

The crowd, composed of strikers, is being hourly augmented.

A detachment of the Moscow guards regiment was called out owing to the threatening attitude of 500 strikers at Shapchal's tobacco factory. The employees of the factory decided to join in the strike movement. The factory is closed.

The crowd proceeded to a bookbinding establishment, where the employees also joined in the movement. The strikers are freely making threats of violence. The police present do not interfere, but in any case they would not be capable of controlling the agitation in the proportions it has now attained.

Troops are held in readiness at various points for any emergencies.

All the government works, notably the cartridge factories and later the entire state industrial colony on Vassili Ostroff, ceased work, and in the afternoon markets and shops were closed.

A fight occurred when some of the men employed in a rubber factory attempted to enter it to resume work. The strikers attacked them at the gates and prevented them.

Strikers broke into several factories, including the government printing works of the Academy of Science, situated on Vassili Ostroff. They forced the employees of the works to join them. The management, acting upon the advice of the police, allowed them to quit in order to avoid further disturbance. A crowd of 1,000 persons remained outside the works.

The men employed in a large spinning mill at Sangalli-Kolinkin ceased work this morning and joined the strikers.

The hope of settling the strike, which already embraced 100,000 workmen from the government yards and factories and other great industries, virtually vanished when it was announced that the minister of the interior and the minister of finance both declined to receive a deputation from the striking operatives.

All the bakers and all the printers have struck work. The printers notified the managers of the newspapers that they would not report for work until their demands were granted.

Altogether 174 works in St. Petersburg are closed through the strike. The management of the Putiloff Iron works, where the trouble began, have posted notice ordering the employees to receive the pay due them today and resume work. This is an ultimatum, and there is apprehension of a conflict. Military patrols around the works have been re-enforced. No newspapers are expected to appear today, a majority of the printers in the city having joined in the strike, and great anxiety is felt regarding the attitude of the railway and telegraph servants, whose defection would disorganize the whole country. The civil employees at the arsenal and government printing works have struck.

The following is the text in part of the strikers' petition to the czar:

"We, workmen, inhabitants of St. Petersburg, of all classes, our wives, children and indigent parents, come to you, our sovereign, asking for protection. We are poor, persecuted, burdened with labor beyond our strength. We are insulted, treated not as men, but as slaves, who ought to bear their cruel fate in silence. We have suffered, but we are being plunged deeper in the mire and deprived of our rights.

"Uninstructed, stifled by destitution and injustice, we are perishing. We have no strength left. Sire, we have arrived at the extreme limits of endurance. We have reached the terrible moment when death is to be preferred to a continuation of our intolerable sufferings. We have left our work and informed our employers that we will not resume until our demands are conceded. We have not asked much. We have asked but for means of livelihood, without which life is a burden and labor continual torture.

"Any of us who dared raise his voice in the interests of the people of the working classes has been thrown into prison or transported. Kindness and good feeling have been treated as a crime. The bureaucracy has brought the country to the verge of ruin by a shameful way. It is luring it to its downfall. We have no voice in the heavy burdens imposed. We do not know for whom or why this money is wrung from an impoverished people, and we do not know how it is expended. This state of things, contrary to divine laws, renders life impossible under present conditions.

"We pray your majesty graciously to receive our demands, which are inspired by a desire for your majesty's and our welfare and the consciousness of the necessity of escape from an intolerable situation. Russia is too great and her needs are too varied and numerous for officials only to rule. National representation is indispensable, as only the people themselves know the country's real needs.

"Order and swear that our demands shall be satisfied, and you will make Russia happy and glorious and inscribe your name forever in the hearts of our people and their posterity, whilst should you repulse and reject our prayer we will die in this square before your palace. We have nowhere else to go. Only two paths are open to us—either toward liberty and happiness or to the grave. Should our lives serve as a holocaust for suffering Russia, we shall not regret the sacrifice, but shall bear it willingly."

The petition was to have been presented personally to Emperor Nicholas. A deputation of workmen endeavored to see his majesty at Tsarskoe Selo and appeal to him to come to the Winter palace Sunday to be present at an immense demonstration of the industrial classes. It was planned to have all the workmen in St. Petersburg, headed by their leader, the priest, Gopon, in full gorgeous canonical garb, march to the palace and assemble in the great parade ground in front to present the petition.

This morning the Russian capital is seemingly on the verge of an incipient revolution, thousands of workmen are parading the streets, and agitators and fanatics are busy sowing the seeds of discontent and half the city in darkness and without fire protection owing to walkouts. The situation is hourly growing more tense. The authorities have decided to adopt energetic measures to preserve order, prevent rioting and overawe the violent minded, at the same time seeking to placate the striking workmen by offering satisfaction of their demands in so far as they are just and reasonable, thus acting with combined firmness and moderation.

The government has augmented the garrison of the city with 2,500 cavalry and 1,000 infantry from Tsarskoe Selo and filled the streets, especially in the disaffected quarter, with heavy patrols of soldiers.

The refusal to permit a delegation of workmen to present a petition to Emperor Nicholas at Tsarskoe Selo has made it known that the great demonstration planned for Sunday, with its unlimited possibilities for an outbreak, will not be permitted to take place.

It is reported that Father Gopon, the leader of the workmen, had been quietly spirited away from his bodyguard and taken into custody, in furtherance of the plan to disorganize the elements that are threatening the peace of the city.

The authorities believe that by these steps they have the situation well in hand and announce that they expect a peaceful solution of the problem.

The situation had entered on an acute stage, and the strike has assumed an open political phase.

In the midst of the fever of excitement over the strike situation the incident at the Winter palace is attracting secondary consideration. Grand Duke Sergius Michaelovitch in his report shows that the caisson of the battery contained charges of grape in readiness for a possible street riot emergency, which was introduced into a gun in front of the saluting charge. The gunners are under arrest, and their antecedents are being examined. Captain Davydoff, commanding the battery, was arrested, and it is stated that he immediately committed suicide with a revolver. His lieutenant, it is said, also committed suicide afterward.

The military authorities are inclined to believe that the incident was the work of two men, one of whom inserted the missile while the other trained the gun. An eyewitness has reported that he had seen a cannoneer carefully training the gun, but Grand Duke Sergius has stated that the gun must have been pointed downward, as the charge struck the ice, richochetting, and two balls entering the imperial pavilion. One ball also pierced a palace window, others striking the facade of the palace or actually flying over the palace and dropping around the statue of Alexander I. in the palace square beyond.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Demand For Goods Well Maintained.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Progress is more rapid in manufactures than in distribution, but this is largely due to the effect of unseasonable weather at some points and the unsettled feeling in the south, where the collapse of cotton prices has retarded collections and caused many cancellations. That production is maintained by mills and furnaces may be taken as evidence of confidence in the future. Iron and steel plants lead in activity, with woolens the feature in textile fabrics.

Settlement of the protracted labor struggle at Fall River is encouraging, but the industrial atmosphere is disturbed elsewhere, although, on the whole, there is less than the customary idleness for this season. Prices of newly opened lines of woolens are higher, as was to be expected in view of the position of the raw material, but consumption is not curtailed. Similar strength in footwear has restricted business, buyers in the Boston market placing few contracts.

Railway earnings for January thus far show a gain of 2.3 per cent. Foreign commerce at this port is also better than a year ago, the last week showing gains of $1,555,889 in value of imports and $292,986 in exports.

Despite gold exports and withdrawal of government deposits, the local banks have strengthened their position, rates declining to the lowest point since the specie outgo began in October. Bank exchanges at New York for the week were 50.7 per cent larger than in 1904, while at other leading cities the gain was 10.5 per cent.

Grain is not responsive to spot influences, but fluctuates irregularly according to speculative operations, which are fairly large. Foreign demand for wheat is light, and domestic mills continue to produce much less flour than a year ago. Western receipts of 3,521,434 bushels of wheat compare with 4,230,126 in the same week last year, and exports from all ports of the United States were only 707,622 bushels, flour included, compared with 2,755,340 in 1904 and 3,415,146 two years ago. Arrivals of corn were 2,731,304 bushels against 4,986,168, while Atlantic coast exports of 3,246,715 bushels made a very favorable comparison with 1,223,727 for the same week last year.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for January amounted to $6,029,412, of which $3,389,692 were in manufacturing, $2,531,136 in trading and $108,534 in other commercial lines. Failures for the week numbered 335 in the United States against 358 last year and 24 in Canada compared with 33 a year ago.

DEFENSE IS CLOSED

Tucker's Trial at Cambridge Evokes Great Interest.

MOTHER OF PRISONER FAILS HIM

Could Not Identify "Page" Pin on Witness Stand—Mrs. Tucker and Accused Son Burst Into Tears Together.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 21. — Events of extraordinary interest followed in rapid succession at the murder trial of Charles L. Tucker, and the climax came a few minutes before court adjourned, when Mrs. Alfred Tucker, the mother of the prisoner, failed to identify as the property of her son a stickpin which the prosecution claims was stolen from the Page home after Mabel Page was murdered.

Other witnesses had declared that Tucker had worn the pin for two years before the murder.

Mrs. Tucker was handed two stickpins by counsel for the defense and asked if she could identify either of them as the property of her son. One of the pins was what had been known as the "Page" pin and which was found in Tucker's pocket after his arrest. The other pin was one introduced in the case by the defense. Mrs. Tucker looked at the pins for a moment and then, handing her questioner the pin purchased after the murder, said she thought it was the property of her son. The "Page" pin she put down on the witness stand in front of her.

Father, mother and brother, other relatives and friends were called to the stand by counsel for the defense to establish an alibi for Tucker and to identify as his property the alleged "Page" pin. It was while Mrs. Tucker was on the stand that the prisoner showed the first real emotion since his arrest on the charge of murder.

Simultaneously mother and son burst into tears, the mother sobbing hysterically. This occurred when counsel asked Mrs. Tucker to identify her son's yachting cap.

The witness said that on the morning of March 31, the day Mabel Page was murdered, her son arose about 8 o'clock, had breakfast with herself, his father and grandmother and at the request of Mrs. Tucker went to work on the lawn. At 11:15 o'clock she called her son in to dinner, which he finished at 11:30. Charles then went up to his room, where he put on his black suit and overcoat and derby hat. He came downstairs at 11:50 and left the house, remarking that he was going for a walk. At 4:20 o'clock he returned home, dressed as he was when he left the house at noon. He appeared in good humor and kissed his mother. That evening he went out again, returning home at midnight.

Walter Tucker knew nothing of his brother's movements on the day of the murder. He said that the "Page" pin was very similar to one he had seen his brother wear.

The presentation of evidence by the defense is practically completed, and it is quite probable that today will see the beginning of the summing up of the case.

Strike May Be Averted.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—A strike of the freight trainmen in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company on the lines east of Pittsburg and Erie has been delayed if not entirely averted by the presence in this city of Grand Master P. H. Morrissey of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. There appeared to be better feeling on both sides last night, and although the situation has not materially changed it is less acute. At the meeting the situation was again gone over. No new propositions were made, and the situation stands practically as it was, but the conference will be resumed today.

Guests of Kaiser Wilhelm.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Emperor William gave his annual diplomatic reception last night. Ambassador and Mrs. Tower were present. The Americans presented to the emperor and empress were Lieutenant Commander William L. Howard, the naval attache of the embassy, and Mrs. Howard; Mrs. Frank B. Wiborg and daughter Sara, and Miss Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis.

Workmen Quit Hoodoo Building.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 21.—Because of a series of twenty-one accidents since the erection of the Columbus Savings and Trust company's skyscraper, commenced last fall, and horrified by Alfred F. Smith, a bricklayer, plunging to death yesterday from the ninth story, all workmen on the structure have quit, saying the building is "hoodooed."

Hillsboro Devastated by Two Fires.

HILLSBORO, Tex., Jan. 21.—Fire has destroyed an entire block of business houses, entailing a loss of $30,000, with partial insurance. A fire last Friday night destroyed property valued at $25,000, and the two conflagrations leave the town practically devastated. The fires, it is believed, were of incendiary origin.

Notice the price of automobiles has 'ris. Awful glad we got ours before the change came.

Silas Dewey Drake, of real estate fame, has come forward with the request that the Piscataway township officials erect a $10,000 school at Lincoln. Silas Dewey's modesty is exceeded only by his ability to get his name into print.

The railroading of the Union and Sussex special election bill through both houses seems to verify that "the more haste the less speed." At the present rate conflictions are bobbing up the tangle will not be straightened out this side of July 4.

For the idea of the affair and its arrangements, as well as its conducting, entire credit is due Joseph M. Shellabarger, who worked unceasingly to make the "at home" a success and had the satisfaction of knowing it was. He wrote a large part of the words and music, drilled the participants and assumed the hardest tasks without flinching. Associated with him in the preparation and working otherwise as business manager, was George B. Ring, who for many weeks past has devoted his time caring for details and who was a factor in making the production so pleasing. Henry L. Hall was the efficient stage manager; George L. Schoonmaker, the assistant leader; Harry B. Lovell, the secretary; Harry R. Burt, the director of dances, and William E. MacClyment, the director of the orchestra and the composer of some of the music, including the "Oshkosh District School" march, which set everybody to whistling or humming.

The complete cast of characters was made up of the following:

Miss Elizabeth Hess, Leighton Calkins, Harry B. Lovell, Draper C. Bartlett, Mrs. J. M. Shellabarger, James Dodd, Miss Madeline Uhler, George Dupee, Miss Helen Hess, Miss Mary Hubbell, Louis Williams, Max Honeyman, Miss Titus, Arthur Peck, Harry Butler, Miss C. Hyatt, George L. Schoonmaker, Mrs. George S. Ring, Charles Barlow, Miss Fleming, Willard Wadsworth, Mrs. H. L. Hall, A. Willis West, Owen Fleming, Ray McGee, Duncan Buckley, William Rushmore, Harry McGee, Charles Dupee, Morris Dumont, Harry R. Burt, Clifford McGee, Elmer E. Runyon, Mrs. Harry B. Lovell, William N. Runyon, Miss Reinhart and Fred Goddard.

At the close of the first part, everyone of the young women were remembered by their friends with floral tributes, the soloists being exceptionally fortunate in this respect, leaving the stage with their arms full of American Beauties, carnations and violets.

T. R. and George W. VanBoskerck, O. G. Waring and Howard Huntington were the ushers and James Fleming, Kenneth Phillips and Morris Timpson acted as programme boys. A second "at home" will be given as a matinee this afternoon and the concluding performance will take place this evening.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Parson's Statement.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In the light of the notice published in The Daily Press of yesterday regarding the case of Mrs. Weigman vs. The American Christian Missionary Society, concerning the First Church of Christ, of this city, we beg to be allowed to make a request and statement to the general public. We wish to make this statement in behalf of our ministry and congregation owing to the following facts which give the above mentioned article a tendency to create prejudice, which, no doubt, was not intended by either the editors or the writer. In the first place, because of the public notice recently given to our evangelist and revival services in the local press. In the second place, on account of the fact that the case in question was brought in October and has lain untouched before the courts until the present time, instead of being a recent service as intimated in the article of yesterday. In the third place, because the twin case to this one was brought several years ago and never came to trial, having been dropped by the complainant. We hoped to escape publicity and desire to avoid newspaper controversy, and earnestly request the people to withhold judgment until the case has been decided upon by the court. Feeling that we may ask this much in justice we beg to remain,

Respectfully,
Phil. A. Parsons,
Pastor First Church of Christ.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

Within the last week, and for the next two weeks a determined effort has and will be made to secure the delinquent taxes, which according to the collector are astonishingly large. Notices seems to have no effect, and there are yet many who have paid no attention to the fact that their taxes are due. Part of the sums owed by local residents are for extended periods, and according to Collector Day have been standing unpaid for a long time. Notices will again be served, and within the next two weeks delinquent taxpayers will be vehemently requested to make a settlement before the close of the current year. On February 1, taxes that remain unpaid will be recorded at the county seat, and the real estate will be required by law until the delinquent taxes and incidental expenses are paid. It is the custom of the collector not to publish the list of delinquents until every opportunity for settlement has been given.

Celebrating the anniversary of her fifteenth birthday, a delightful party was given to Miss Susie Lowrie, at her home last night. It was attended by a number of her young friends. The evening was pleasantly spent with games, music and dancing, and refreshments were served at a late hour. Among those present were Janette Lake, Enid Fonda, Stella Kick, Susie Lowrie, Walter Low, Paul Brakeley, Robert Lowrie, William Giddis and Alice Apgar. Miss Lowrie received many presents and congratulations from her friends.

A hockey game between the Underwood and the Alis teams, of Plainfield, has been arranged to be played on New Market pond this afternoon. The former team is the one which defeated the New Market team a week ago. There will also be a game, if the ice is strong enough to permit, between the local team and a Clinton avenue aggregation.

The regular pastors will fill their pulpits in the local churches tomorrow. Rev. Mr. Casselberry, who has recently recovered from an illness, is able to be back with his congregation at the Presbyterian church, and Rev. S. K. Doolittle will preach at the Methodist church.

An enjoyable musical was recently given at the home of Mrs. F. B. Bach by the members of the music class. Chopin's works were the subject of the afternoon and it was an interesting meeting.

Mrs. A. S. Coriell, who has been suffering from a fractured collar-bone which she broke by falling several weeks ago, is reported to be getting along nicely.

David Teston, railroad section foreman at New Market, will discontinue his residence in New Market on February 1. He intends to go to Bound Brook.

Miss Underwood and Miss Shannon, of Junction, have been the guests of Mrs. J. C. Gardner, of this borough.

Mrs. Edward Hart, of New York, has been visiting her brother, William Jennings, of New Market.

F. Percy Vail and family are wintering in New York. They expect to return to their home shortly.

Mrs. Hannah Roantree, who has been suffering from a severe attack of grip, is slightly improved.

Charles Coriell has been confined to his home for a few days by illness with grip.

Fred Wilcox was out yesterday for the first time since his illness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local bowling team go to Dunellen Tuesday night to roll a return game with the Dunellen team. The locals have won two straight games, but Dunellen claim they will have a team out Tuesday night that will defeat them.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching, by the pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, at 10:45; B. Y. P. U., 7:15 p. m., followed at 7:45 by the evening service.

Several new electric lights have been put on Terrell road from the trolley to Front street. This is an improvement which has been needed ever since the trolley line was opened.

John Patterson, a former resident of this place, but for a number of years past an attendant at the State Hospital, Morris Plains, is reported as being critically ill at his home.

William Collins, of Brooklyn, has been spending a few days with his son, William E. Collins, "Corona Villa," the borough.

The Westfield bowlers failed to put in an appearance for the game with the local team on Lee's alleys Thursday night.

Miss Ann Osborn, who has been a resident here for the past year, has removed to her former home in Newark.

Mrs. Frank Perry, of Plainfield, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry Schreiner, of Mountain avenue.

The Bible study class held its weekly study meeting last night in the Methodist church.

The bowling tournament of the Suburban Club will finish tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The freeholders of Middlesex County, in connection with those of Morris County, are about to urge the passage of laws that one half of the cost of stone roads shall be borne by the State and that there shall be a tax of $10 levied on automobiles.

The Township School Board seems to be in a predicament in order to know what the people want in the matter of a new school building at New Market, it being difficult to obtain the majority's wishes.

Henry Hummer, the steward of the township poor farm, entertained the township officers Thursday. Municipal matters pertaining to the benefit of the township were discussed.

It is alleged that Senator Jackson, of this county, has renewed his bill to put county officials on a salary.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thorne will spend tonight and tomorrow with friends in Somerville.

Public worship at the Baptist church tomorrow will be at the usual time, 10:30 and 7:45.

No Freight Car Advertising.

Beginning January 1 the officials of the New Jersey Central put a stop to the growing practice that shippers had of placarding freight cars loaded with merchandise until they looked like circus bill-boards. Agents are now required to remove all such advertising before the cars leave for their destination

Not in Favor of Consolidation.

As the proposition to consolidate Netcong in Morris with Stanhope in Sussex county, would mean loss of about $350,000 of taxable property to Sussex county, it being strongly opposed bo those living in the latter county.

—Your taxes are not rebated for the time your house is tenantless. Probably the law assumes that you are a good advertiser.

Ban on Profanity.

According to the Washington, (Warren county) Star, a Bethlehem, Pa., man swore over his telephone at "Central," recently and the company immediately removed the telephone.

—The Union County petit jury adjourned on Thursday after the case against the Sebring estate was tried, and it will reconvene on Monday and complete its work for the term.

Miss Mattison, of the Board of Health office, has been detained at home this week with the grip.

CHARTREUSE MONKS

A LITTLE OF THE STORY OF THE CARTHUSIANS.

Exiled from France, the Order Is Now Firmly Established in Italy and the Liqueur Being Made in Spain.

The monks of La Grande Chartreuse are most widely known as manufacturers of the far-famed Chartreuse liqueurs. They belong to the Carthusian order, an order of great austerity and industry. It was more than eight centuries ago the founder, St. Bruno, established the body in France, in what was then the wilderness of the Grand Chartreuse, and, with short interruptions, his order has continued to dwell there in severe monastic life. But now France has turned them out, bag and baggage, and elsewhere must they seek retreat for the contemplative life—and a favorable locality for the manufacture of wine that has been the source of their large wealth. It is said the profit from the sale of their liqueurs has been $2,000,000 a year, half of which the pope required them to surrender towards the support of the French national college and various French institutions in Rome. It is doubtful if they again will be able to amass riches as easily as in the past, for now the French government, in addition to expelling them from their long established territory, enters the field as a competitor, it already having begun the manufacture and sale of the liqueur in Chartreuse. But the monks are making their famous wine at Tarragona, Spain, and adding to their old mark a special label which declares that the product comes from the original manufacturers, from the holders of the real secret of the making of the cordial.

The Carthusians are the only monks belonging to a great order that has not had to be reformed; they seem in some mysterious way to escape the pitfalls into which so many of their brethren slipped. Mrs. Jameson thus describes the appearance of the men of this order: "Their spare diet, their rigorous seclusion and their habits of labor, give them an emaciated look, a pale quietude, in which, however, there is no feebleness, no appearance of ill-health or squalor; I never saw a Carthusian monk that did not look like a gentleman."

They are brothers of silence, allowed to speak to one another of a Sunday afternoon, on certain feast days, and during a weekly walk taken outside the convent walls. The Carthusian dwells "in a solitude within a solitude," each having his own little cell and garden; the cell contains a workroom and a sleeping-room, and in the latter the solitary eats and performs his devotions. On Sunday they assemble at a common table. They assemble in the choir three times on ordinary days —in the morning for a sung mass, for vespers, and at 11 o'clock for matins. The night office with the monks in their long white robes raising slow chanting praise, is singularly solemn and impressive; a scene even a careless observer will not soon forget.

A MONK'S CELL

The costume affected by this order consists of a tunic with sleeves, over which is a long white garment, and a hood, either hanging down the back or else worn on the head; on the rare occasions when they travel, a hat and cape are donned. They wear no linen.

Though the exiled Chartreuse monks are to make their wine, for awhile at least, in Spain, the order has been established in a new home near Pisa, Italy. In beautiful Abbey of Farneta, bought some time ago by them at a cost of $500,000. Attached to the Abis is a large tract of ground, which it is considered will be sufficient support to the institution. Here have already come together over 300 monks, who, after the edict of exile from France, were temporarily dispersed to monasteries in France, Spain, Switzerland and Italy.

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

BODILY GRACE.

Any Woman May Become Lithe and Easy of Movement.

In America we have not yet learned to give proper attention to our bodily movements. We are apt to think that if we are comely in the face nothing more is needed. There is no greater mistake. The woman who carries herself in a graceful, noble, queenly way will attract admiring notice wherever she passes, while nobody will look at a merely pretty girl who slouches awkwardly along beside her.

In France the streets and parks abound in groups of rare and classically graceful groups of statuary. The people, even the poorest working women, have these exquisite models of grace and poise before their eyes always. In course of time they unconsciously imitate the grace of the marbles. Moreover, the tiny French maiden is trained from the time she begins to walk to move her feet and hands gracefully.

Abolishing Round Shoulders.

A common disfigurement is round shoulders, with the accompanying hollow chest. A woman simply lets the muscles of her chest slide down in front upon her stomach, making no persistent effort to sit and stand braced up as a lady should. The results are three—round shoulders, a hollow chest and a large stomach. The tendency to unsightly and ruinous slumping must be taken heroically in hand. To begin, let the round shouldered girl sleep without pillows. If she has acquired the very bad habit of sleeping half in a sitting posture, let her take the props away, one at a time, gradually lowering the head till she can lie upon the bed comfortably with her whole body stretched flat, or, if she must have a pillow, let it be a hair one, thin and flat. Feather pillows are heating and bad to bury the face and hair in.

An admirable exercise for filling out the chest and flattening the back is this: Stand erect, weight poised upon the front of the foot. Extend your arms in front of you, as in the picture, palms together. Next, rise upon your toes, take a deep, slow, full breath. Exhale this breath slowly, and as you do so bring your arms up over the head and down behind your back. The dotted circles will show how this is done. Let your heels descend till they again bear your weight. Repeat this a number of times, always with the deep breathing and rising upon the toes. It will lift the body and limber marvelously the stiff, ungainly muscles of the shoulders and back of the neck.

Calisthenic Dancing.

Education in dancing is greatly neglected in America. There ought to be in girls' schools a set of dancing exercises planned carefully with the view to cultivating lightness and limberness. Skirt dances, high kicking, bending the body from the waist, can be easily performed to the accompaniment of music, which lightens the spirits and makes amusement out of work. Even ordinary dancing lessons may be depended on to make girls graceful of step and movement.

The most graceful and beautiful women the world has ever seen were those of ancient Greece. Every woman there was trained in childhood to take part in athletic games suited to her sex, also to dance in rhythmic motion. Clumsy and ungainly movement on the part of a woman partook of the nature of sin.

A woman can make no greater mistake either than to conclude she is too old to dance or to learn gymnastic exercises. The stiffer a woman's joints and muscles are the more need she has of limbering exercises. Let her get a move on.

Proper Sitting Posture.

When some people sit down in a chair they plunk into it as though they were a side of dressed beef, with not a bit more life or lightness about them than that. The right way is to let yourself down easily, lightly and gradually into the seat. Don't lean upon your arms when you sit down or rise. Do not sit upon your backbone either. Sit squarely upon the great muscles at the back of the hips, with the thigh bones at right angles to the spine. This is the only graceful and hygienic way to sit. Maintain this attitude, with the chest up and spine straight, and you will present always a graceful picture. Lolling upon the backbone makes the back ache and causes spinal trouble.

Hard Work!

Not long since a rich society woman "went into business," as was heralded from one end of this happy land to the other. COMMUNICATIONS, PETITIONS, ETC.

From the Morris county Board of Chosen Freeholders, as follows:

December 14, 1904.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen: At a regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Morris, held this day, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The improved State aid and county roads in this State are very extensive, and have been a considerable tax on the respective counties of the State wherein said roads are located, and the policy of road improvement is still favored, and the several counties are likely to be further burdened in that behalf; and

Whereas, The extent of such improved roads is such that the annual cost, maintenance and repair thereof to the several counties is a large item of county expense, and is fast becoming a burden; and

Whereas, The policy of road improvement is not in its nature a local benefit simply, but a general and commonwealth improvement benefitting the people as a whole; therefore be it

Resolved, (1) It is the sense of this body that one-half of the cost of the maintenance and repair of the State aid and county roads of the several counties of this State should be borne by the State and paid out of the revenues thereof.

(2) That the Senator and Assemblymen of this county be and they are hereby earnestly requested to use their best efforts in an endeavor to bring about the necessary legislation to place one-half of the burden of the maintenance and repair of the State aid and county roads upon the commonwealth where it of right belongs.

(3) That the respective Boards of Freeholders and governing bodies of the several counties of this State, be and they hereby are earnestly urged to join in the effort to bring about the legislation aforesaid, and to instruct their respectivve Senators and Assemblymen accordingly.

(4) The clerk of this board is hereby directed to transmit to the governing bodies of the several counties of this State a full and true copy of this resolution. Signed,

O. H. Bennett, Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder King received and referred, with the approval of this board, to the legislative committee, when appointed, the clerk of this board to so notify the Morris county board.

From the Camden county Board of Freeholders as follows, viz.:

Camden, N. J., Dec. 23, 1904

To the clerk of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county:

Dear Sir: At a conference of the members of our Board of Freeholdersr, representing the country districts, they unanimously decided to have a bill introduced at the coming session of the Legislature to abolish spring elections; and desiring to secure the support of all sections of the State to this end, I have been requested to communicate with the clerks of the various county Boards of Freeholders, and request them to bring the matter to the members' attention, asking them to make any suggestion as to any matter they might feel to be advisable to incorporate in the bill.

Trusting this will be of interest to your members, and that we may hear from them. I remain,

Yours truly,
Fred. W. George,
Clerk of Board of Chosen Freeholders of Camden county, N. J.

On motion of Freeholder Swain it was ordered that the same course be taken as with the communication from the Morris county board.

From Charles R. VanHouten and others a petition as follows:

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Your petitioners, Charles R. Van Houten, Alonzo Crawford and William C. Crane, respectfully represent to your honorable body that the fence along the northerly side of Morris avenue, in Union township, extending easterly from the Rahway river bridge, encroach upon the roadway so that there is not now room, without inconveniencing the public, for the Morris County Traction Company to lay its street railroad tracks.

Your petitioners are informed that Morris avenue is a county road, and under the control of the Freeholders.

They therefore request your honorable body to take such proceedings as will give the public the benefit of the full width of the roadway, Morris avenue, at the place aforesaid.

Signed,
Charles R. VanHouten, Alonzo Crawford, William C. Crane, per C. R. V. H.

Dated January 5th, 1905.

On motion of Freeholder Woodruff received and referred to the county road committee and county attorney.

From Americus Council, O. U. A. M., No. 25, as follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 17, 1904

S. R. Ryno, clerk of Union county Board of Freeholders:

Our motive in holding this conference is the presentation of a beautiful American flag to that institution. I write you, so as to get information as to what course to pursue so as to accomplish that purpose. If you will kindly write me and give me the desired information you will greatly oblige,

Wm. H. Garrison, Rec. Sec.,
No. 954 East Grand street,
Elizabeth, N. J.

After several motions had been made, withdrawn or reconsidered, it was finally ordered that the communication be referred to the members of the Court House Commission.

NEW BUSINESS

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a committee of five (5) be appointed by the director to look after the legislation affecting Union county in the coming Legislature.

On motion of Freeholder King the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Krouse, King, Adams, Cady and Meisel.

On motion of Freeholder King it was ordered that the resolution laid over at last meeting, relinquishing control of the county road in the city of Summit, be taken up for consideration.

It was read in full by the clerk as follows:

Whereas, The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union have heretofore, to wit, on the 18th day of April, 1889, in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act to enable Boards of Chosen Freeholders to acquire, improve and maintain public roads," approved March 19, 1889, and the supplements and amendments thereto, acquired, improved and maintained a certain public road located in the city of Summit, and hereinafter described: and it being the sense of this board that control of said road should be relinquished; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union do hereby relinquish control of the aforesaid road, which is described as follows: Beginning at a point in the center line of Springfield avenue where the same intersects the boundary line dividing the township of Springfield and the city of Summit; thence running in a general westerly direction along said line of Springfield avenue, its various courses thereof through the city of Summit to the center line of Morris avenue in the said city of Summit; thence running southwesterly, westerly and northwesterly along said line of Morris avenue, its various courses thereof, through the said city of Summit, passing by the house of John Kelly and the Methodist church to the center line of Springfield avenue in said city of Summit; thence in a general westerly direction along said line of Springfield avenue, its various courses thereof, through the city of Summit, to and ending at the intersection of the center line of said Springfield avenue with the boundary line dividing the city of Summit and the township of New Providence; and be it further

Resolved, That a certified copy of this resolution, duly cetrified by the clerk of this board, be filed in the office of the county clerk; and that the map now on file be changed accordingly.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, and on rolle all they were adopted by the following vote, viz.:

Ayes—Director Hubbard and Freeholders Adams, Chandler, Cladek, Connoly, Darby, Jensen, King, Kline, Krouse, Marsh, Meisel, Murphy, Robison, Scudder, Wahl, Westphal and Woodruff—18

Nays—Freholders Cady and Swain—2

Freeholder Connoly inquired as to what disposition was to be made of resolutions laid over at the last meeting, and which provided for relinquishing control of certain county roads in the cities of Elizabeth and Rahway.

Freeholder Cladek moved that further consideration of the resolutions which referred to county roads in Rahway be laid over, which was so ordered.

Freeholder Swain moved that the resolution relinquishing control of West Jersey street, Bayway, etc., in Elizabeth, be taken up for consideration, which was duly seconded. Freeholder Kline said that as the members from Elizabeth were attending their first meeting, and were not familiar with the matters under discussion, he would like to have the resolution lie over one month.

Freeholder Swain thereupon withdrew his motion, and further consideration of the resolution was laid over one month.

The director then announced the appointment of the following standing committees for the ensuing year, viz.:

The "LIGHTNING" WHITE WASH Sprayer and Force Pump, No. 28.

Patented June 24, 1902.
Will Fit any Pail or Bucket.
This is the only Spray Pump that will properly spray White Wash without clogging. It will do much better work than can be done with a brush, especially on rough surface, as the force with which the material is applied causes it to penetrate the small crevices and openings, thus making a complete and perfect job. It is constructed of heavy galvanized iron, with brass tops and valves, a material that is effected by the poisonous arsenites used in different formulas for spraying fruit trees, vines and shrubbery. It is made with large air chamber and has ball valves, the pressure being held in the air chamber and on the hose, so that the nozzle throws a continuous spray and is not affected by the upward stroke. The operator is enabled to keep a constant pressure on the nozzle with little exertion; will throw a continuous stream 60 feet high and one of usual value for washing buggies, windows, extinguishing fires, sprinkling lawns, flowers, spraying trees, etc. The stirrup is made of steel and the pump is provided with the best hose and two nozzles. It is very neat in appearance, being nicely painted.

LOBSTER PARTIES ARE TOO CRUEL FOR IOWA.

Secretary of Humane Society Would Not Stand for Boiling Them Alive.

Webster City, Ia.—"Lobster parties," recently the social fad in Iowa, are languishing, and just because some one was indiscreet enough to invite Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, secretary of the Iowa Humane society, to join in the joys of the entertainment. The "lobster party," as an Iowa product, contained some features that may be regarded as unique. Each guest brought along his or her lobster and then the party made merry around the fire while the green sea creatures turned pink in boiling water until ready to be served. The sole duty of the hostess was to provide the fire, the kettle or boiler and the dressing. The guests did the rest.

This horrified the humane secretary. "The very idea," she said, "of boiling a lobster alive and watching its sufferings, too. Who ever heard of such cruelty in Iowa? They may do that sort of thing in New York, but never in Iowa as long as I am alive."

"THE VERY IDEA," SHE SAID.

There was a tone in Mrs. Jones' voice that caused the participants in the party to think. Lobsters cost from 50 cents to $1 each in Iowa, and with a justice's court attached it made the entertainment rank with bridge whist for expense—and that ended it.

The news traveled swiftly, and many prospective parties were called off at once. Now the dealers are wondering what they will do with the many lobsters they ordered while the fad promised to make business boom.

BRAVE BLUECOATS AFRAID OF PRESENT.

Member of Chicago Force Gets Unappreciated Gift from an Admirer.

Chicago.—A mysterious package was received by Operator McDermott, of the Maxwell street police station, last week and spread terror by reason of a peculiar scratching sound which could be heard in the bundle. Mr. McDermott thought of clockwork bombs and infernal machines; but, calling the officers around him, he gingerly untied the string.

A wooden box was revealed with a slide top. The slide was pulled back and Mr. McDermott and the officers jumped back, as a vicious, snapping head emerged from the box, followed by a sinuous, scaly body.

The bellicose little stranger proved to be a young alligator which, it is said, was sent to Mr. McDermott by Miss Sadie Vivian Duffy, a Chicago school teacher, who spends her winters in Florida. Every year she sends Mr. McDermott some strange animal and the young alligator is the latest addition to the collection, which includes a monkey, a parrot, a beaver and a one-legged ostrich.

The visitor from the south keeps the station in a state of commotion and has extracted several toothsome morsels from the hands of the policemen.

Mr. McDermott declares he will present his little saurian to some of his friends when they are not looking.

BEGGAR PLAGUE IN A MISSOURI TOWN.

Joplin Has So Many Back Door Callers That a Convention of Mendicants Is Suspected.

Joplin, Mo.—Joplin is overflowing with beggars. They are as thick as if coming to hold a convention, and they have canvassed the city from East Joplin to Fairview cemetery and from Turkey Creek to the Newton county line.

Beggars are conceded to be pretty crafty, but those who infest Joplin have excelled all records with their stories of misfortune. It is natural to suppose that when so many of the back door fraternity reach a city no larger than Joplin they would divide it into districts so that no two would cover the same ground, but they have not done this, and as a result the busy housewives have had to spend a large portion of their time responding to raps upon the back door.

"It is startling the number of horses that die just as they reach Joplin," said a woman. "Within three days three different children have been to my kitchen.

SPORTING NEWS

DIAMOND DUST.

It now looks as though Somerville will not have a representative ball team this season.

Jacoby, who made such a fine record last season pitching for the Bangor, Pa., team, will be found in the Connecticut State League this season.

Reports indicate that Ray Egner, who pitched great ball for the Trenton Y. M. C. A., last season, will again be found with that team this year.

Manager Frank Burke, of the Elizabeth Stars, is not saying much, but it is even money that he will have a strong team at the 'Port during the season.

Manager Woolston, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, is gradually closing contracts for his team. He expects several new players in town next week.

George L. Duquette, the well-known baseball pitcher for Madison last season, will manage and pitch for the Dover team this season, while Ernest L. Jones will manage the Madison team. Both teams are in the Lackawanna League.

The pleasant and almost spring-like weather of the past few days has made the fans enthusiastic about baseball. It is a little too early to think about games yet, although there is more than ordinary interest in the prospects for the coming season.

Already plans are being formed at Washington, Warren County, for the team that will represent that town in the Lackawanna League. Badgley will be the principal pitcher. The baseball fever is also running high at Phillipsburg, which will be in the new league.

Louis Wiltse, the Baltimore pitcher, who lives in the New Madison, now visits the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium nearly every day, getting himself in condition for the coming season. He says that he never felt better. He and Betsel, who will probably be seen on the Plainfield team, often meet in practice.

The former members of St. Mary's Baseball Club are anxious to get back in the game and want to join the proposed new league. It is doubtful whether two teams would be a success here. It is understood that St. Mary's club proposes to use a semi-professional battery with the rest of the team as amateurs.

The fact that practically all of the players who will be on the Plainfield team this season, will live and work here, is sure to lend additional interest. While they will be strangers they will be looked upon as Plainfielders. It is proposed by the management to develop its own stars. It is believed that the team will be one of the strongest in the State.

BASKET BALL.

In the report of the Physical Director of the Y. M. C. A. at the annual meeting, Walter Cabeone was commended for his business like management of the Y. M. C. A. basket ball team.

Leal's will go into hard training for the next two weeks in order to put up a good fight for the game with the Plainfield High school team on February 8, which will decide the city scholastic championship. In the Interscholastic and Juvenile leagues for next week, these games are scheduled: The N. P. H. S. team in the former, and the Y. M. C. A. juniors and P. H. S. seconds will contend in the latter.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament for the individual championship of the association, will be rolled off Wednesday night.

The Park Club bowlers have no further games in the Central Journal bowling league until Thursday January 26, when they will roll a game with the Elizabeth team, at Elizabeth.

In three games the Y. M. C. A. bowling team was defeated by the team representing the Suburban A. C., last night, on the latter's alleys. The scores in the games were as follows: Y. M. C. A.—606, 607, 658; Suburban A. C.—744, 883, 798. High scores were made by Day and Sheelen, of the Fanwood team, each rolling a 208.

GOLF.

The Plainfield Country Club will hold its annual meeting for the election of officers in February, at which time plans for the coming season will be made.

The trustees of the Hackettstown Institute are looking for suitable grounds upon which to lay out a golf course, the game being very popular among the students there.

—Neuman Brothers make a specialty of strictly fresh country eggs. They are received at the store every day.

—Firemen Wm. Addis and Sylvanus Hoffman were stationed at the Casino last night on the alert for any trouble during the Oshkosh performance.

SNAP SHOTS.

He was a tall, slim, colored man from Plainfield, dressed in black clothes, and wore a black felt hat. He sallied into the smoking room of the Central Railroad depot and seated himself beside an expressman, a rather short white man, who wore overalls and a light overcoat. The colored man did not notice the white man. He was wrapped up in himself, when a question from the expressman woke him up and caused fifteen minutes of talk, as humorous as anything that might be given by a black and white comedy team.

"Are you working?" was the question of the expressman, who is since sorry he spoke. In fact it was the only sentence he uttered. Afterward he just kept nodding his head between times, very uneasy.

"Is I workin'?" said the colored man in a low tone. "Is I workin'?" he repeated, raising his voice. "Dat's a nice question for a gentleman to ask another. Dat's an insult. Is I workin'? Why, I was borned workin', I'se worked in de cotton field, in de corn field and now I works in Plainfield. If you eber meet me at Westfield or any oder field don't you eber ask me dat question again.

"Is I workin'? I'se been workin' for de last forty years; yep, ever since I wus born, and my mammy worked before me in de South. I come down here to Elizabeth on business and when I come into dis depot in a quiet way, you ask me 'Is I workin'. I don saved some of my money and I don guess I hab enough to live on if I don't want to work. I don guess I hab enough money to buy and sell poor half white trash like you. I has a man workin' ebery day for me dat I pays $1.50 a day; some men have 100 men workin', others 1,000—but dat makes no difference; I hab one, and he works ebery day. I come down here and you wants to know 'Is I workin'. You makes me so mad I can't see."

On the opposite side of the smoking room sat two drummers convulsed with laughter.

"Is I workin'?" continued the colored man. "There sits Lawyer Coddington, from Plainfield. I'm a citizen of dat town. I don't know de lawyer, but you just ax him weder or not 'Is I workin'. He is a gentleman from my town. He's a lawyer, and we colored folks go to him when we is in trouble and give him as much of our money as we can spare, to get us out of trouble. Der's going to be trouble here if you eber ask me dat question again, 'Is I workin'?' and dere's de lawyer who will plead my case. You understand dat," said the colored man, looking directly at the expressman. "'Is I workin'?' You make me so mad I can't see," and he threw open the door and walked out upon the platform.

"What do you think of that?" said one passenger.

"A bird," came the reply. "No fool nigger, that; guess you had enough, old man," at which the expressman bolted out of the door in an opposite direction from that taken by the colored man from Plainfield.—Elizabeth Journal.

N. P. H. S. LOST.

Defeated by Crack East Orange High School Basket Ball Team.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team journeyed to East Orange yesterday and was defeated by the crack High School team of that place in a game characterized by extremely rough play on both sides. The final score was 49 to 8.

The borough boys feel greatly encouraged over their showing, since the Plainfield High School, in its game with East Orange, was beaten by a much larger score. The feature of the game was the close guarding of Webster. The line up of the borough school was: Meuck and Peacock, forwards; Woodland, center; Hand and Webster, guards.

Mr. Williams, a general missionary who has the plans in charge for a new church congregation in the East End, states that they have not been formulated as yet and that no building has been leased as was announced yesterday. Owing to illness, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of East Seventh street, who was to have led the temperance meeting at the First Baptist church, last night, could not attend, and her place was taken by a member of the Young People's Association, under whose auspices the meeting was held.

J. B. Oakley, superintendent of a mission at Elizabeth, had charge of the meeting at Reform Hall, Thursday night, which was largely attended. After a spiritual and earnest Gospel temperance talk, several children, which Mr. Oakley brought with him from Elizabeth, sang and gave recitations.

Nearly one hundred men have signified their desire to join a Men's Club to be organized at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. A short constitution has been drafted and will be submitted at the next meeting of the club to be held within a few days. It is proposed to have four or five meetings a year, each meeting to be addressed by some speaker of established reputation in his chosen field.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Angerbauer on West Third street. About fifteen members attended and arrangements are being made to hold a apron sale and sociable in the church parlors on March 2 and 3, Thursday and Friday evenings and afternoons. After business was suspended all enjoyed a social time and refreshments.

IN MEMORY OF MR. GINNA

Impressive Services Conducted at Bethel Chapel.

MANY ADDRESSES

Pastor of Crescent Avenue Church and Others Pay Tribute to the Devoted Christian Worker.

Gathered together in affectionate remembrance of the life of the late Stephen A. Ginna, members of the Crescent Avenue church congregation and its chapels met at Bethel chapel yesterday afternoon in a memorial service, which overflowed with the expression of love and tenderness for the departed superintendent. It was especially appropriate from the fact that it was in this division of the Crescent Avenue church work that Mr. Ginna was particularly interested, and it is this chapel which will miss him most.

Not only by his financial support was Mr. Ginna dear to the hearts of the church and Sunday-school at Bethel chapel, but his diligent and tireless religious work was an inspiration and a help to all who came in contact with him. These facts and many others significant of his religious life, were brought out in the addresses at the gathering, and not only by the pastor of the home church, but by the representatives of all the fond Sunday-schools and chapels, were fond recollections given and affectionate tributes spoken.

Leander L Lovell was in charge of the service, which opened with singing by the school. Afterward Rev. Frederick D. Tildon, pastor of Bethel chapel, led in prayer. At the conclusion of the prayer, an address was made by Frederick H. Andrews, superintendent of the Warren chapel Sunday-school. Second only to the Bethel chapel, Mr. Ginna devoted much of his time and help to Warren, and both from a personal standpoint and as a representative of the church and Sunday-school, Mr. Andrews spoke of the great loss which his death means to those in whose minds his memory will always remain dear. In Mr. Andrews' and in other addresses, the predominant thought was of the great good which a man in a position such as Mr. Ginna occupied, is capable of, and of the steadfast and unfaltering manner in which Mr. Ginna took advantage of his opportunity. Mr. Andrews said there are many men whom the chance of doing good is given, but there are few who have the broad mind and the large heart which moved Mr. Ginna in his philanthropic career.

Among the others who spoke similarly were Henry C. Squires, superintendent of Hope chapel Sunday-school; George A. Strong, superintendent of the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school; William D. Murray, superintendent of the primary department at Crescent Avenue; Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, and Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church. All these speakers were intimate friends of Mr. Ginna and each referred with sorrow to the recollections which to themselves and to their several departments are especially dear. The tributes of all the speakers were characterized by a generality which spoke volumes for the universal love and esteem which Stephen A. Ginna won from all with whom he was associated.

Following Dr. Zelie's address, Mr. Lovell made a brief summary, adding to and emphasizing many of the remarks which had been made upon the Christian character of the one in whose honor the memorial service was held. The singing of another hymn by the school marked the conclusion of the service. Two resolutions of condolence, one presented by Rev. Mr. Tildon, and the other from Warren chapel, read by Mr. Andrews, were approved and ordered by a unanimous vote to be sent to Mr. Ginna's family.

PROPERTY PURCHASE CAUSES MANY CHANGES

PARK AVENUE BUSINESS MEN SECURING NEW QUARTERS.

As a result of the purchase of several business properties on Park avenue by Charles W. McCutchen, necessitating the removal of a number of merchants, some have secured other stores, while others are still looking for a place to locate. All of the tenants will have to vacate by April 1.

Among those who have secured other stores are Mefford Giles, who will occupy W. R. Codington's building on West Second street, near Park avenue; M. C. Dobbins, the cigar manufacturer, who has secured the store adjoining his present place, which is owned by Boice, Runyon & Co., and recently occupied by H. H. Smith, who conducted a dairy and poultry store. Mr. Smith recently gave up the business here. Mr. Dobbins will probably move about March 1.

William Randolph, the barber, has leased one of the stores in Charles H. Hand's new building on Watchung avenue, near the trolley station, and will take possession when it is completed.

A. H. Enander is planning to erect a building on his Watchung avenue property, the first floor of which he will use for his business and the upper part for residential purposes. Thomas Walsh has not disclosed his plans, neither has Andrew Johnson, who occupied a portion of a store with Mr. Enander.

It is Mr. McCutchen's purpose to tear down all of the old buildings and erect modern structures. While the plans for the new buildings are not yet definitely decided upon, it is the owner's intention to build stores at least eighty feet deep and they will be provided with all modern improvements. The upper floors will be used either for offices or flats.

WILLIAM H. POOLE DEAD AFTER A YEAR'S ILLNESS

WELL-KNOWN OAK TREE RESIDENT PASSED AWAY SATURDAY.

William H. Poole, aged fifty-five years, for a number of years a resident of Oak Tree, died at his home at that place Saturday morning, after a year's illness with a complication of diseases. Mr. Poole was born in St. Louis, but he lived the greater part of his life in Brooklyn, where for twenty-five years he was superintendent of the painting department of what is now the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. He was also a member of Franklin Council, Royal Arcanum, of that city, for twenty-five years, and he was an active member of the Hendricks Street Baptist church, Brooklyn, serving as a trustee, treasurer and deacon.

After moving to Oak Tree he united with the Park Avenue Baptist church, this city. He was engaged in the carriage painting business at his home and was a highly respected citizen. Mr. Poole leaves a wife and two sons, one in Philadelphia and the other Rev. George Poole, until recently pastor of the George's Road Baptist church, near New Brunswick. He resigned that charge to accept another one.

The funeral services will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock from the late home. Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will be in charge, assisted by Rev. R. H. Baker, of Mt. Holly, who was pastor of the Hendricks Street Baptist church, when Mr. Poole was a member there.

Another service will be held tomorrow morning from 475 Central avenue, Brooklyn. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery, Brooklyn.

THE SPECIAL ELECTION

County Committees Now Completing the Arrangements.

PRIMARIES THURSDAY

Legislature at Session Tonight Will Rectify Irregularities of the Original Act.

Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, has been authorized to make the arrangements for the Republican primaries and convention to nominate a candidate for the Assembly, to succeed the late Assemblyman Embree, and it is now thought that the primaries will be held on Thursday and the convention at Republican headquarters, Elizabeth, on Saturday afternoon, while the election will be held on Tuesday, February 7.

As previously stated the Legislature at its session tonight in Trenton, is expected to rectify some irregularities in the special act calling for the election. These things must be changed to permit the election. Some of the provisions to be overcome will be that allowing the officials to open the ballot boxes in less than the prescribed time fixed by law, also waiving the specified time required in which to give legal notice of such election and a few other minor details.

Some of those interested feel that the Legislature was in a great hurry to adopt the special act and they say that a little more time would have caused no inconvenience and would have served the purpose just as well. Chairman Coyne will issue the call this week for the primaries and convention, and give such other information as is necessary. It is not compulsory that primaries be held in every district and for the purpose of lessening the expense as much as possible, it will be arranged probably to have one primary in each place. This would answer the purpose and be far less expensive to the county.

Chairman Coyne has appointed these committees to serve for the ensuing year: Executive—Hamilton F. Kean, C. H. K. Halsey, W. F. Hall, Dr. W. H. Lawrence and James White. Finance—C. H. K. Halsey, James E. Warner, J. Kaufman and Andrew McCardell. Committee on meetings—Charles N. Codding, George Rowland and William Newcorn.

The Union County Democratic Committee met in Elizabeth Saturday night, there being a full representation. Instead of asking the chairman, John L. Crowell, to arrange for the primaries and convention, a committee, comprising Mr. Crowell, Fred Zoir, Robert McAdams and Robert Tuttle, was appointed to make these arrangements and it was decided not to do anything until after the Legislature meets to take some action regarding the deficiences in the special act providing for the election.

It was the opinion of all at the meeting that the special election could have been avoided and his expense saved, if a conference between the two parties had been held. J. V. F. Dilts and Andrew Nolan, of this city, attended the meeting on Saturday night.

Legal Lights Will Banquet.

The annual dinner of the Union County Bar Association will be held in Old Delmonic's, now known as Cafe Martin, on Broadway and Twenty-sixth street, New York, on Saturday night. There will be a number of toasts, commencing with this one by the president, Craig A. Marsh, Esq., of this city: "He Did Look Afar Into the Surface of Time. All's Well That Ends Well" Among the other speakers will be Hon. J. Franklin Fort, Hon. Benjamin A. Vail, Richard V. Lindabury, Hon. Gilbert Collins, Allan H. Strong, Esq., John K. English, Frank Bergen.

Norwood Club to Give a Dance.

In accordance with their usual custom the members of the Norwood Club will give a dance this season, but contrary to precedent, will conduct the affair in Somerville. A hall has been engaged at that place and the date set for the dance is February 13, Lincoln's birthday. The committee has already issued a large number of invitations, and it is expected that a special car will be chartered to go from here. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Walter McNaughton and Howard Mason.

Attended Reunion.

Albert and Chris Uzinger, of the borough, members of the Silver Bay Jolly Club, who have been spending their summers at Silver Bay, Lake George, joined other members of the club at a reunion held at the Marlborough Hotel, Saturday night. There were about eighteen members present.

WORSHIPPERS DRIVEN OUT

First M. E. Congregation Bested by a Small Bat.

ADJOURNED TO CHAPEL

Lights Turned Down and Windows Opened, But Intruder Refuses to Leave the Church.

Making its way into the main auditorium through an open door or window, a small bat of the variety often seen flying about electric lights, flew backward and forward over the heads of the congregation in the First M. E. church last night and soon had the worshippers in a mild uproar and finally driving them out. Every effort was made to "shoo" it away but all to no purpose, and in desperation Dr. Snodgrass called upon the congregation to follow him to Vincent chapel, where the service was continued without interruptin.

The bat was noticed by several in the congregation before the opening hymn was announced and by the time the full attendance had gathered it was almost impossible to do anything because of everybody watching its flight. First it would fly around the ceiling and then with a swoop would descend almost upon the heads of the worshippers and not a few women became decidedly nervous. From amusing it became annoying and in a last attempt to get rid of the creature, the windows were opened and the lights turned down. This plan met with total failure as the bat was still there when the lights were turned on. The preliminary service had then been gone through with and Dr. Snodgrass perceiving it would be impossible to preach decided to leave the trouble maker in possession of the church and finish the service in Vincent chapel. The bat is still in the church today but a determined effort is being made to get it out before the next regular gathering.

The patrons of Music Hall were often bothered in this way several years ago, a bat getting in at one time and remaining almost through an entire season, often attracting more attention than what was going on on the stage.

SERIOUSLY INJURED BY FALL FROM TROLLEY

ONE BROTHER GOES TO HOSPITAL, OTHER TO POLICE HEADQUARTERS.

Leonard Mayhood, of Orange, and his brother, Samuel Mayhood, of 1707 West Front street, fell off a trolley car late Saturday night, while in an intoxicated condition. The former, who was not injured to any extent, was taken to police headquarters by Patrolman O'Keefe and sentence was suspended on him this moring by Judge Runyon.

Samuel Mayhood received a lacerated wound of the nose, and is suffering from concussion of the brain, with a possible fracture at the base. He was taken on the trolley car to the Watchung avenue stand, where the ambulance picked him up and took him to the hospital. Although his condition is considered serious, the man remains conscious. He is thirty-two years old, married and a tanner by trade.

Eagle Fair Closes.

With another record breaking crowd in attendance, the fair of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., in Saengerbund Hall closed Saturday night. It was unusually successful from several points of view and the net proceeds will be at least $600. The different contests of the week closed Saturday with the following winners: Eagle charm, George Carroll, of Elizabeth; set of furs, Miss Elsie Hone, of this city; set of harness, Hugo Maul; carving set, J. NEGROES' TRIAL PUT OVER Counsel for Christmas Eve Slashers Makes the Request.

ONE LAWYER OBJECTS

Flomerfelt Case Also Postponed, and Charge of Assault Against Russel Hazard Now on Trial.

On the ground that they were not prepared to go on with their side of the case, S. S. Swackhamer and William G. DeMeza, counsel for four of the colored men implicated in the Christmas eve slashing affray in the borough, asked for an adjournment of the matter when it was called in the Somerset County Criminal Court this morning. The prosecutor accordingly set trial down for next Monday on all five, despite the objections of Counsellor Winfield S. Angleman, who represents Thomas Henderson and who was fully prepared for his defense. The court declared that it had been surmised that the lawyers had agreed upon the postponement between themselves but this was not so as there had been no conference.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Frank D. Cramer, the trial of Jacob Flomerfelt, charged with manslaughter, was also put over and will be heard February 13. Flomerfelt beat his brother-in-law, Frank D. Cramer, because of the latter's abuse of his wife, and he died within a short time as a result. It is understood Flomerfelt will claim self defense.

These two cases being removed, the trial of Russel F. Hazard, of North Plainfield, charged with assault by E. Frank Vail, of Plainfield, was called and is now going on. Hazard and Vail were tenant and landlord respectively and the trouble came about through differences in a rental matter. Hazard is being defended by S. S. Swackhamer and it is thought the case will go to the jury early this afternoon.

In the case of Sylvanus Carkhuff, William Ashton and Albert Niles, charged with prison breach, a nolle pros was granted the first two and the indictment holds good against the latter. This was done after a consultation between Judge Schenck and the Prosecutor. It was believed the State's evidence was not sufficient to convict in the case of Carkhuff and Ashton. Carkhuff is serving a six months' sentence in the county jail for wife beating and Ashton has pleaded guilty to assault and battery.

Howard and George Robinson, charged with assault and battery on David Yost, proprietor of Germania Hall, Somerville, retracted. The former pleaded guilty and the latter nolo vult. The young men are from Sweeney's Crossing, Hunterdon county. They will be sentenced Friday.

Tea in Honor of Sister.

Mrs. William H. Rogers, of Central avenue, gave a tea yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, in honor of her sister, Mrs. David H. Davis, of Shanghai, China, who is visiting her for a time. Mrs. Rogers and her sister received, and Mrs. George H. Babcock and Mrs. David E. Titsworth poured tea in the dining room. There were about fifty guests and during the afternoon Mrs. Davis gave a most interesting talk of her mission work in Shanghai, telling of the life and customs of the natives and exhibiting a number of curious. After the informal talk there was a social time.

Grist From City Court.

Arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on charges of drunkenness, sentence was suspended on Joseph Kelly and Cornelia VanLiew, the latter colored Robert Hart, of Scotch Plains, brought up on a similar charge, was released upon signing the pledge to refrain from the use of whiskey for one year. The judge recommended an entire swear-off, but Hart refused to give up beer. The case of Lawrence Kerwin, who was ordered to appear on a charge of assault brought by John Ward, was adjourned one week upon the failure of the plaintiff to appear.

"The Peer of Them All."

Speaking of Miss Helen Mar Wilson, who is to appear at the benefit entertainment in Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow for the benefit of the Netherwood Fresh Air Association, the New York Herald says: "We have had some superior readers at various times in our city, but in child dialect and dramatic impersonation Miss Wilson is the peer of them all. Her entertainment was a genuine pleasure to both young and old." The Sagamore Musical Club will also appear. Tickets may be had at Schreiner's and Hodge's.

SMASHED A BIG WINDOW WHEN REFUSED A DRINK

THOMAS M'GRATH AND "DUBLIN JACK" DO AN EXCITING TURN.

Charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct which led to considerable trouble, Thomas McGrath, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, having been arrested Saturday night on complaint of Michael F. Watson, a saloon keeper in the West End. It was in Watson's place that the disturbance occurred, and both McGrath and his brother-in-law, commonly known as "Dublin Jack," were implicated in a "rough house."

McGrath and his companion entered the saloon at about 8 o'clock in a drunken condition, and Watson refused to give them more to drink. They left and returned a little later again demanding drinks. Hot words followed upon Watson's refusal to serve them, and McGrath went outside and smashed a large plate glass window with a tin pail. There was a struggle before the offenders were driven from the place, and immediately after Watson telephoned police headquarters, and the patrol wagon was sent out. By the time the wagon, in charge of Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Overbaugh arrived on the scene of the disturbance, McGrath and his brother-in-law had fled. They were run down in the vicinity, however, and in a mix up which followed "Dublin Jack" escaped. After a brisk fight, McGrath was put in the wagon, and brought to headquarters.

When on trial this morning, McGrath had little to say in defense of himself, except that he did not know what he was doing, and acknowledged the charges brought by the saloon keeper. He was fined $5, and promised to pay for the damage done. No action was taken against the other disturber.

CONTINUED SUCCESS FOR THE OSHKOSH CLUB

CONCLUDING PERFORMANCES GREETED BY LARGE AUDIENCES.

Continued success marked the matinee and evening performances of the Oshkosh Club at the Casino on Saturday, the company playing to a crowded house each time. Each number on the programme was received with generous applause and appreciation and encores were the rule. After the afternoon performance, Charles J. Fisk entertained the club at supper in the Casino and this was the occasion for a happy feature of the affair. At the conclusion of the supper, Harry L. Hall, the efficient stage manager, presented to William E. MacClymont, a handsome loving cup, to be suitably inscribed. Mr. MacClymont responded with a few pleasant words in accepting the gift, which was a mark of appreciation for his untiring services as director of the orchestra and for his compositions, which helped to make the show a success.

The Oshkosh two-step, the music rendered by the "Hayseed Quartette," and the Indian dance were composed by Mr. MacClymont and they were among the hits of the programme.

The two closing performances were given entire without a hitch or break of any kind. Among those who were especially well received was Miss Reinhart in her clever impersonation of a colored girl, the duett by Miss Uhler and Harry Butler, and all of the dances in part second, encores being called for in each number. At the close of part first each member of the club was remembered with a floral gift.

Hunt Club's Chase.

The riders in the chase of the Watchung Hunt Club, though few in number, enjoyed one of the best runs of the season on Saturday afternoon. The course led toward Metuchen, turning just this side and checking at Oak Tree. The last check was made at Park avenue near the Lehigh Valley tracks. Those who attended the hunt were Miss Holly, Miss Noe, C. E. S. Bellows, R. A. Cheabbeare, Dr. M. O'M. Knott and Master Robert Bellows. Next week the chase will start at Plainfield avenue and Eighth street.

Next Assembly Dance.

The next assembly dance to be held at the Casino in February will be one of the most elaborate of the series. It will be a Martha Washington affair and the guests will carry out that idea in dress.

MRS. BETTMAN INSANE

Final Chapter in Troubles of a Fanwood Couple.

STRAIN TOO MUCH

Friends Call for An Examination and Her Commitment to State Hospital Follows.

Another chapter in the marital troubles of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bettman, of Fanwood, was added Saturday when the latter was committed to the State Hospital at Morris Plains, the committing physician being Dr. Hinkley, the well known specialist of Newark, for a number of years the head of the Essex County Institution for the Insane. The commitment was no surprise to those who have known and followed the family troubles of the couple for the past two years. During the past year Mrs. Bettman's friends have known that at times she was subject to temporary fits of insanity, especially after the husband and father took the son and refused to let her have or see him.

Mr. and Mrs. Bettman, who were married in Texas while Mr. Bettman was on a business trip through the southwest about seven years ago, upon their return north settled in Fanwood. For a time the couple lived harmoniously and to all outward appearances were happy and contented. Both took an active part in the work of the Baptist church, although not members.

Nearly three years ago Mrs. Bettman suddenly left home and started with her child for her home in Galveston. Mr. Bettman, it is alleged, attempted to have her stopped in New York and examined as to her sanity. The woman was held, but soon convinced the law that she was sane, and was only returning to her home because of her domestic troubles. The couple patched up their troubles in some way and Mrs. Bettman, accompanied by her little one, resumed her journey to Texas. After a few months' residence there she concluded to return North and compel her husband to support her and the child. She was refused admittance to the home, but learning that her husband was employed by a cement company at Perth Amboy, proceeded there and demanded that he do something towards her support. She finally took up her residence in Jersey City, but in a short time again met her husband and demanded that he at least take the child and support it, as she found herself unable to do so. The couple came to an agreement, the father taking the child and sending it to relatives in New York State for a time.

The truce was only a temporary one, however, as Mrs. Bettman again returned to the borough and insisted upon seeing the child and being furnished with a home. This, it is alleged, was refused her. After several trips had been made friends became interested and it was found necessary to bring the domestic troubles before the borough authorities as the wife and mother claimed support from the borough. A consultation was held and after a week's time it was believed that a final solution was to be had of the domestic troubles. Mr. Bettman agreed to return the child to its mother, pay her passage by boat to Galveston and give her a certain sum of money, she in return promising those interested that she would return to her home and remain there. This she failed to do, as she was only away a short time when she again returned North, it is said, taking up her residence in Newark. The husband, tiring of the constant bickering, began proceedings for divorce several weeks ago. The wife put in a defence and claimed, it is said, that she had been threatened if she fought divorce proceedings, the husband would change the charge to a more serious one. The Chancellor has not announced as yet a verdict in the case, but the blow was final, and the woman's mind gave way entirely.

Several days ago during one of her spells, it is alleged, she began destroying the bric-a-brac and furniture in the Newark boarding house. This and her hallucinations led her friends to ask that she be examined as to her sanity. The result was as her friends had feared, the constant strain for the past two years had proven too much for her and she had become insane.

FRANK CROKER DEAD

Amateur Chauffeur and Driver Killed at Ormond Beach.

RACING CAR HIT MOTOR CYCLE.

During Auto Trial Races Young New Yorker Hit M. F. Stanley's Wheel While at Top Speed—Machine Dived Into Atlantic.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 23.—Frank H. Croker of New York, son of Richard Croker, the former Tammany chieftain, an enthusiastic and fearless autoist, who has shown his daring in automobile racing on road and track, lies dead at this place. He died soon after midnight from the effects of the injuries received in an automobile accident on the Sea Beach race track. His mother and sister arrived on a special train today. His driver, Victor Rauel of New York was killed instantly.

M. F. Stanley, a visitor here, propelling a motor cycle, which caused the accident, had both legs broken. Croker's seventy-five horsepower Simplex rolled over and down the sand into the ocean, and when it stopped it was half submerged in water. Had Croker not been pulled out from under the car he would probably have drowned.

The upset occurred about two miles this side of Ormond. Croker was speeding his car northward, driving himself, when he saw, far ahead, the man propelling the motor cycle. Croker tried to turn out, but the cyclist finally shot sideways to the right, directly in front of the automobile. Croker made a mighty effort to turn, but at that moment the damp sand gripped his wheel, wrenching one of the tires, and the car turned sharply and then flopped sideways, turning over until it reached foot deep water.

Mr. Croker was found to have one leg broken near the thigh, the other leg injured and his arm broken. He had a deep cut and a contusion on the forehead, and blood was flowing from his ears. He was unconscious for about ten minutes. Finally, when a bystander rolled back his eyelids, he spoke and gradually revived. There were also internal injuries found.

Rauel, the driver, had ceased to breathe when his body was pulled out of the Atlantic. The cyclist, whose legs were broken, was taken to a carriage and speedily driven off.

Croker's body was bruised all over in spots. The automobile still lies in the ocean and is being viewed by a crowd in the bright moonlight.

The accident is likely to cause the government to exercise jurisdiction over the beach. The city has assumed control, but legally has no control above high water mark. President Peck of the Florida East Coast Automobile association said he was satisfied that a soft spot of sand, gripping the tire, threw the car over.

Croker was one of the most daring amateur automobilists in the country, and has his motor boat here, intending to enter the Palm Beach boat races week after next. He made his first important appearance in the Vanderbilt cup races last October. At the Empire City track last fall he won the world amateur records from ten to twelve miles, when he was forced to slow down. He was also interested in golf, dogs and horses.

Mr. Croker's death came as a stunning blow to his friends here, for it was reported by his physicians that he was doing fairly well and that they hoped for the best.

From the first Dr. Parks and Dr. Miller realized that Mr. Croker's injuries were very severe and the shock great. It was evidently from the effects of the tremendous shock that he died.

An examination of Croker's racer disclosed a most complete wreck.

He was found wandering aimlessly on the streets and was taken to the hotel and given a room.

DESPERATE WORK AT BARRICADES

Russian Capital In State of Insurrection—May End Romanoff Dynasty and Empire—City an Armed Camp, Where Authorities Quell Mobs by Slaughter—Empress Dowager Flees—Armed Workmen Swarm Streets.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 23.—A day of unspeakable horror in St. Petersburg was Sunday, Jan. 22. The strikers, goaded to desperation by a day of violence, fury and bloodshed, are in a state of open insurrection against the government.

It is estimated that 1,500 people have been killed or wounded. Popular rumors say that many thousands have fallen.

A condition bordering on civil war exists in the terror stricken Russian capital. The city is under martial law, with Prince Vasilchikoff as commander of over 50,000 of the emperor's crack guards. Troops are bivouacking in the streets and at various places on the Nevsky prospect, the main thoroughfare of the city. On the island of Vassili Ostrov and in the industrial sections infuriated men have thrown up barricades, which they are holding. The empress dowager has hastily sought safety at Tsarskoe Selo, where Emperor Nicholas II. is living.

Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky presented to his majesty the invitation of the workmen to appear at the Winter palace Sunday afternoon and receive their petition, but the emperor's advisers already had taken a decision to show a firm and resolute front, and the emperor's answer to 100,000 workmen trying to make their way to the palace square was a solid array of troops, who met them with rifle, bayonet and saber. The priest, Gopon, the leader and idol of the men, in his golden vestments, holding aloft the cross and marching at the head of thousands of workmen through the Narva gate, miraculously escaped a volley which laid low half a hundred persons. The figures of the total number killed or wounded here, at the Moscow gate, at various bridges and islands and at the Winter palace vary. The best estimate is 1,500, although there are exaggerated figures placing the number as high as 5,000. Many men were accompanied by their wives and children, and in the confusion, which left no time for discrimination, the latter shared the fate of the men. The troops, with the exception of a single regiment, which is reported to have thrown down its arms, remained loyal and obeyed orders. But the blood which crimsoned the snow has fired the brains and passions of the strikers and turned women as well as men into wild beasts, and the cry of the infuriated populace is for vengeance.

The sympathy of the middle classes is with the workmen.

If Father Gopon, the master mind of the movement, aimed at open revolution he managed the affair like a genius to break the faith of the people in "the little father," who they were convinced and whom Father Gopon had taught them to believe would right their wrongs and redress their grievances.

Gorky, the Russian novelist, expresses the opinion that these measures will break the faith of the people in the emperor. He said:

"Today inaugurated revolution in Russia. The emperor's prestige will be irrevocably shattered by the shedding of innocent blood. He has alienated himself forever from his people. Gopon taught the workmen to believe that an appeal direct to the 'little father' would be heeded. They have been undeceived. Gopon is now convinced that peaceful means have failed and that the only remedy is force. The first blood has been shed, but more will follow. It is now the people against the oppressors, and the battle will be fought to the bitter end."

The military authorities had a firm grip on every artery in the city. At daybreak guards, regiments, cavalry and infantry held every bridge across the frozen Neva, the network of canals which interlace the city and the gates leading from the industrial section, while in the palace square, as the storm center, were massed dragoon regiments, infantry and Cossacks of the guards. Barred from the bridge and gates, men, women and children crossed the frozen river and canals on the ice by twos and threes, hurrying to the palace square, where they were sure the emperor would be present to hear them. But the street approaches to the square were cleared by volleys and Cossack charges. Men and women infuriated to frenzy by the loss of loved ones, cursed the soldiers while they retreated. Men harangued the crowds, telling them that the emperor had failed them and that the time had come to act. Men began to build barricades in the Nevsky prospect and at other points, using any material that came to hand and even chopping down telegraph poles.

Fighting meantime continued at various places, soldiers volleying and charging the mob. The whole city is in a state of panic. Women were running through the streets seeking lost members of their families. Several barricades were carried by the troops and many defenders killed. At sunset the crowds, exhausted, began to disperse, leaving the military in possession. As they retreated up the Nevsky prospect the workmen put out all the lights.

The little chapel at the Narva gate was wrecked.

On the Kaminostov island all the lights were extinguished.

Every officer wearing the uniform of the emperor who was found alone was mobbed. A general was killed on the Nicholas bridge, and a dozen officers were seized, stripped of their epaulets and deprived of their swords.

It is rumored that M. Witte will be appointed dictator today. The authorities, while they seem to realize the magnitude of the crisis with which the dynasty and the autocracy are confronted, apparently are paralyzed by the horrors of the situation.

Intense indignation is bound to be aroused all over Russia. The workmen and revolutionists expect news from Moscow and other big centers where the troops are not of the same class as the guards regiments of St. Petersburg.

A member of the emperor's household is quoted as saying that this conflict will end the war with Japan and that Russia will have a constitution or Emperor Nicholas will lose his head.

There are rumors of trouble in Finland and disaffection of the troops.

Comment on the action of the troops and authorities is very bitter, and sarcastic remarks are made that officers are braver against the defenseless people than against the Japanese and that "ammunition may be scarce in the far east, but is too plentiful here."

Returns from only three of the numerous hospitals give 32 dead and 123 wounded. Many of the wounded have been taken to their own homes.

The rioters broke windows in the palace of Grand Duke Alexis.

The workmen are arming with every available weapon for a renewal of the struggle. They have few firearms, but are improvising trade implements into weapons.

The following letter was addressed by Father Gopon to Emperor Nicholas Sunday morning:

"Sovereign—I fear your ministers have not told you the full truth about the situation. The whole people, trusting in you, have resolved to appear at the Winter palace at 2 p. m. in order to inform you of their needs. If, vacillating, you do not appear before the people then, the moral bonds between you and the people who trust in you will disappear, because innocent blood will flow between you and the people. Appear before your people and receive our address of devotion in a courageous spirit. I and the representatives of labor and my brave working men and comrades guarantee the inviolability of your person."

One hundred and fifty persons were killed or wounded in the conflict in the palace square. The mob became infuriated and vowed vengeance.

The Cossacks fired three volleys of blank shots, and some of the strikers fled across the Neva, but the others held their ground, and the Cossacks loaded with ball cartridges and charged the crowd with heavy whips and dispersed it.

Barricades have been completed at two points in the Vassili ostrov district. The crowds refused to disperse, and the troops fired repeated volleys.

The report that Gopon, the priest leader, was arrested proves incorrect. It was another priest. Gopon, although wounded, still continues to head his men. The superintendent of police was killed.

At the Narva gate the troops fired on a crowd led by Father Gopon and Father Sergius, the priests carrying a cross, an ikon and a portrait of Emperor Nicholas. Father Sergius was killed, and the portrait of the emperor was smashed.

At the Putiloff works the scenes resembled a shambles. There the workmen, facing the troops when the order was given to fire, threw themselves upon their faces on the ground. The troops fired on them as they lay prostrate.

The Vassili ostrov quarter is in darkness, neither gas nor electricity being available. Shops are being pillaged, and strikers are burning telegraph poles.

A body of strikers tried to reach Tsarskoe Selo, but were driven back by the troops after a sanguinary conflict.

It is evident that the soldiers deliberately saved Father Gopon from death. One of the clergymen by his side was wounded, but he hid behind a wall until the Cossacks passed, and he was then spirited away by workmen.

Firing continues on the Vassili ostrov. It is rumored that the workmen there have seized a dynamite factory and also that 30,000 to 40,000 armed strikers from Kolpino, sixteen miles distant, are marching on St. Petersburg.

At a mass meeting of rioters a workman who was introduced to speak in Father Gopon's name made a fiery oration. He appealed to Liberals to furnish arms. The meeting adopted a letter denouncing the officers and regiments that fired on the workmen and another letter extolling the Moscow regiment which refused to fire on the people.

SERIAL STORY

THE GRAFTERS

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Author of "The Master of Appleby," "A Question of Courage," etc.

Here is what some critics have said of this remarkable story:

NEW YORK TIMES says: "There are chapters that one reads with leaping pulse and bated breath, and then reads again for delight in the splendid abandon of the style."

THE BOSTON HERALD says: "Of stirring interest. It fascinates by the vigor of the author's trenchant pen."

THE INDIANAPOLIS SENTINEL says: "This is one of the stories which you sit up all night to finish."

THE ROCHESTER HERALD says: "Any sane reader will let the soup scorch to see the hero through the crises which pile one upon the other so fast that there is no breathing space between."

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE says: "The reader will feel the wind in his hair when he finds himself in the cab of a flying locomotive dashing past danger signals, with the sound of bullets in ears that are tensely expectant of an exploding boiler."

Remember the opening chapters are in this issue. Read them.

RACING ON SEASHORE.

Many Prominent Autoists at Preliminary Work.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 23.—On the Ormond-Daytona beach automobile racing course the speeding of a half dozen or more of the leading racing machines attracted a large crowd. Conspicuous among the machines was one, a ninety horsepower, owned by William K. Vanderbilt, Jr. It won a number of races here last year. While no time was taken yesterday, it is believed that it cut under its previous record of a mile in 39 seconds. Good work may be expected of H. L. Bowden's new machine. It speeded at a thirty-five second clip.

During the afternoon W. K. Vanderbilt, who has arrived with Mrs. Vanderbilt and party of friends, went on the beach in his new ninety horsepower racer. Charles De Plus in his racer speeded on the beach in very good time, as did also M. C. Bernin in W. Gould Brokaw's sixty horsepower racer. James L. Breese, one of the most enthusiastic of the amateurs, spent all the afternoon on the course in his thirty-five horsepower machine. Rollin H. White, in a forty horsepower steamer, was also on the track for an hour or two.

The officials for the race meeting, which opens tomorrow, are W. C. Temple, referee, and Sir Thomas Dewar, M. P., associate; judges, Ray Johnson, S. A. Miles, Colonel L. C. Weir, August Sinclair, Frederick R. Platt, Ira Payne, T. E. Bond, Charles H. Hyde and J. F. Hathaway.

WAR IN FAR EAST.

Little Looting at Port Arthur—Japanese Troops Behaved Well.

CHEFU, Jan. 23.—Twenty-seven men and women, comprising the first party of refugees from Port Arthur, have arrived here in a junk. They stated that twenty-two other junks bearing over 500 noncombatants were on the way.

They were for a long time without shelter and were obliged to sleep in the sand.

The refugees state that since the first few days following the surrender of Port Arthur there has been practically no looting, the Japanese officers dealing sternly with all offenders. The consensus of opinion is that the soldiers behaved with remarkable self restraint compared with the conduct of others in similar situations in the history of wars.

Janitor of "Holmes Castle" Known.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The Chicago police officials believe that they have at last discovered the identity of the missing janitor of "Holmes Castle," where so many women are said to have been murdered several years ago by H. H. Holmes, who was afterward hanged in Philadelphia. Detectives working on the case of John Hoch, accused by his wife of poisoning her sister two days before his marriage to herself, have come to the conclusion that Hoch is none other than the janitor who suddenly disappeared after testifying in behalf of Holmes when the latter was being tried on a murder charge. A determined effort is being made to effect his capture.

Like an Insane Man's Act.

M'PHERSON, Kan., Jan. 23.—Charles Tuxhorn, a farmer near here, has killed his two sons, aged six and ten years; burned his house and barn, with all of the contents, and then shot and killed himself. Tuxhorn smothered his sons to death, took their bodies to a neighbor's orchard, a half mile distant, where he laid them on the ground and covered them with blankets. He then returned to his home and set fire to all of his property, after which he killed himself. He had been arrested for maltreating his wife and children and was to have appeared in court today.

Miners' Convention Ends Today.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—"We will finish our work today unless something happens during the day to prolong the session," said President John Mitchell, speaking of the sixteenth annual convention of the United Mine Workers, which convened in this city one week ago. Nearly all the important legislative work has been accomplished, and the few remaining hours of the convention will be consumed in the disposition of matters of form and routine.

More Land Fraud Indictments.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 23.—The federal grand jury has returned an additional indictment against George Sorenson, charging him with perjury in connection with the land fraud cases now under investigation by the government authorities. Sorenson was tried on a charge of attempting to bribe former United States District Attorney John H. Hall, but the jury failed to agree.

Steamer Elder Sunk Near Gobel.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 23.—The Oregon Railway and Navigation passenger steamer George W. Elder, which left this city Saturday night for San Francisco with a large number of passengers and freight, struck a rock in the Columbia river near Gobel at midnight and sank. The passengers and crew escaped.

Chinese Tars Mixup on Shipboard.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Six sailors of the Chinese crew of the British tramp steamer Hindustan, from Calcutta, lying at a Brooklyn pier, are in the hospital suffering from injuries sustained in a desperate fight on the ship between rival factions of Chinamen from Canton and Shanghai.

Pope Received Nellie Grant.

DOMINGO IN LINE.

United States Takes Little Republic Under Her Wing.

PROTOCOL SIGNED AT ITS CAPITAL

American Government Will Guarantee Complete Integrity of Their Territory and Take Over Custom Houses.

SANTO DOMINGO, Jan. 23.—It is officially stated that a protocol between the Dominican government and the American minister, Mr. Dawson, and Commander A. C. Dillingham, U. S. N., in behalf of the American government has been signed at Santo Domingo.

The principal conditions are that the American government guarantees the complete integrity of Dominican territory, agrees to undertake the adjustment of all obligations of the Dominican government, foreign and domestic, and the conditions of payments; to adjust unreasonable claims and to determine the validity and amount of pending claims.

The American government will take charge of the existing custom houses and those hereafter to be created and will name the employees necessary to their management, the duties they will exercise and their rights. These will be considered Dominicans and subject to the laws of the republic.

The Dominican government will have at each custom house inspectors in behalf of its interests from the date when the contract takes effect. The present employees are to be considered as acting under its provisions.

Out of the revenues collected at the custom houses of the republic the American government will deliver to the Dominican government 45 per cent of the total of the gross amount for the purpose of attending to the necessities of the budget. It is estimated that the first year $900,000 will be received monthly. The advance payments are divided into four installments.

No changes in the present import dues or port charges will be made without the consent of the American government until the debt is completely paid.

Except import duties the government has the right to abolish or reduce dues immediately.

The American government, at the request of the Dominican government, shall grant such other assistance in its power to restore the credit, preserve order, increase the efficiency of the civil administration and advance the material progress and welfare of the republic.

Ocracoke Sunk Sloop Ray.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. J., Jan. 23.—The Old Dominion steamer Ocracoke sunk the sloop Ray one mile from this city yesterday. The Ocracoke was bound here from Newbern, N. C. The Ray left here with a pleasure party of men and women. It was very foggy, and both boats were blowing their fog whistles when the collision occurred. The Ocracoke struck the sloop on the starboard bow, nearly cutting her in two. Mr. Lem Chapman, a member of the pleasure party, was knocked overboard, but was rescued.

NOGALES, Ariz., Jan. 23.—It is known that four Americans—Dr. R. C. Coy and J. K. Mackenzie of Chicago, M. A. Call of Toledo, O., and Walter Stubinger of Kowanee, Ill.—and a Mexican driver were ambushed and killed by Yaqui Indians on Jan. 19 four miles east of Cobachi, thirty-five miles east of La Colorado, state of Sonora, Mexico. The bodies are now at La Colorado. H. L. Miller of Chicago and A. W. Tolerton of Salem, O., and a second Mexican, Cochero, escaped.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 23, 1905.

Tom Lawson's wail that it cost him $50,000 to write "Frenzied Finance" can hardly be heard for the chuckling of the magazine publishers as the 'steenth thousand copy comes off the presses

Correspondent writes us to tell him how to remove wrinkles from his forehead. All depends on how they got there. If they are the result of trying to figure out where we all are at in this special election mix-up there's no hope for him. On the other hand if they came about through worry over rent day the best way out of the difficulty is to meet the landlord half way.

Under the caption "The Modern Cincinnatus," the Cranford Chronicle, Saturday, spoke as follows, editorially:

"Tuesday's despatches from Trenton stated that on advice of the Attorney General special elections would be necessary in Union and Sussex counties to fill vacancies in the Legislature created by the death of two Assemblymen elect. Union County, we hasten to assert, could do itself and the State no greater honor than to give a unanimous election to James E. Martine, of Plainfield. Under the conditions that now prevail, party politics can and ought to be ignored. All branches of the State government are overwhelmingly Republican, and the increase of the numerically feeble minority by one would no more embarrass the party in power than the taking on of an additional passenger would impede the Empire State Express. But what a splendid increment to the intelligence, the disinterested patriotism and the forensic strength of the lower house would be secured by the participation in its proceedings of James E. Martine! When the Romans needed the service of their greatest citizen, they called Cincinnatus from the plow. Can the people of Union County do better, in supplying their need of a statesman at Trenton, than to summon James E. Martine from the farm that borders Cedar Brook?"

All doubts as to whether the recent candidate for Congressional honors would enter the political arena at this time were removed by the following letter sent to Editor Potter by the "Farmer Orator" immediately after noting the kind words:

"Hon. John A. Potter:

"My dear friend: I wish to thank you for the most flattering editorial regarding myself in your paper. I have always taken a deep interest in matters political, and whether my views are in the ascendancy or not I shall continue to advocate them, but I have no thought of becoming again a candidate for political honors.

"Again thanking you, I am

"Respectfully,

"J. E. Martine."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, and Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, exchanged pulpits yesterday morning.

St. Mary's Guild, of St. Stephen's church, will hold a "Sensee Party" at the home of the rector, Rev. Arthur S. Peck, 721 East Sixth street, tonight, and prizes will be offered.

It has been officially announced that the proceeds from the lecture recently given by F. H. Jacobs at the First M. E. church, which was for the benefit of the Children's Home, amounted to $22.

During their absence abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, will visit some of the young people who have been sent out by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, as missionaries.

The subjects for discourse at the Christian church tonight by Dr. Smith will be: "How Can the Common Man Know that the Bible is the Word of the Living God?" Tomorrow night: "The Unbeliever's Prayer." Excellent congregational singing. All are welcome.

The Men's Club of the First Baptist church will hold its next regular meeting on Monday night, Feb. 13. The form of entertainment has not been decided upon. It is expected that the president, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, will announce his committees soon.

Under the auspices of the men of St. Stephen's church, an entertainment and bazaar will be held in the vacant store in the Babcock building on the afternoons and evenings of Friday, February 3 and 4, for the benefit of the organ fund. The affair has the sanction of the vestry of the church.

Miss Mary E Tracy, of West Eighth street, who is a missionary in Japan under the direction of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, is doing excellent work there, as indicated in extracts by a letter from her published in "The Messenger," the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church paper.

In connection with the death of Miss Rachel G. Mair, in Africa, and Mrs. Mary H. Wright, in Ningpo, China, both members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who died while engaged in Mission work abroad, a suggestion has been made in testimonial in the form of tablets be placed on the walls of the church in their memory, and it is expected that some action along this line will be taken soon.

St. Stephen's church is the last of the local congregations to issue a monthly paper in the interest of the parish. Strangely, the first number appeared just one day before that of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and the name chosen was St. Stephen's Messenger. The Crescent Avenue church paper is called The Messenger. This month's issue of St. Stephen's paper contains among other items of interest to the parish a photograph of Bishop Scarborough.

Rev. Francesco Rostan, a member of the Board of Evangelization of the Waldensian church, and minister of the Waldensian church in Palermo, a representative of the work of Protestantism in Italy, will speak at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Wednesday night. It is through the work of the McAll Auxiliary here that the church has been able to keep informed about the work of Protestantism in France and Mr. Rostan will undoubtedly have much of interest to report.

The excellent work being done at the Church of the Holy Cross is a source of much gratification to the rector, Rev. W. Montgomery Downy, as well as the parishoners In four months time $1,155 has been subscribed by members and friends of the parish towards the reduction of the church debt. The debt, which was originally $3,500 has been reduced to $2,500; $1,000 having been paid on the principal and the interest is thereby proportionately reduced. The net proceeds of the recent fair amounted to over $400. Of this sum $105 was paid as interest on the mortgage, and the balance or a large part of it will go towards other church indebtness. The financial condition of the parish is good and the outlook is one of encouragement.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

The Clinton avenue hockey team defeated the New Market aggregation on New Market pond Saturday afternoon in a close game by the score of 1 to 0. The game was exciting and the forwards of both teams were fast. The score at the end of the first half was 0 to 0, and it was not until the last part of the contest that the Clinton avenue players managed to shoot a goal. The Underwood and Alts hockey teams, of Plainfield, were to have played a game on the local pond Saturday afternoon, and the former aggregation was prepared for the contest. Their opponents did not arrive, however, and the Underwoods claim the victory by default. William Glenney, of Leal's School, Plainfield, is the captain of the Underwood team.

In all probability the borough will be represented on the diamond next season by a nine similar in make-up to the one which played last year. Nearly all the players who were out last year will be available next season, and a good team should play under the Dunellen colors in 1905. There has been some talk of appointing Howard Craig, of the P. H. S. team, as captain. Craig will graduate from the Plainfield High School in June, and will be in training for the work on the local nine. He is favorably considered for the position.

Work is progressing on the Terry house. The plastering has been entirely completed, and the interior work is now being done. When wholly finished the house will be one of the most attractive in the borough.

The pulpits were filled yesterday by the regular pastors, Rev. S. K. Doolittle preaching morning and evening at the Methodist church, and Rev. J. S. Casselberry preaching at the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. C. T. Rogers, who has almost recovered from an injury recently received, is expected to be about in another week. She is now able to sit up in a chair.

Blanchard A. Gardner has been entertaining his cousin, Miss Helen Underwood, of Hampton Junction, for a few weeks.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Owing to the illness of several of those entered in the bowling tournament being held by the Suburban Club, of the borough, the tournament was not closed Saturday night Several games are yet to be rolled and the result of these might make a change in the leaders, so it was decided to allow these games to be rolled some night this week. Augustus Sheelen and Roy Day still hold the lead in the percentage of games won.

The members of the Brookside Gun Club attended the Plainfield Gun Club's shoot held Saturday afternoon. The local club shoot a five men team match with the Plainfield club on Saturday of this week. No shoot was held on the local grounds.

SHAFT FOR BRIDGER.

MARKS THE RESTING PLACE OF NOTED SCOUT'S BONES.

Placed by General Dodge in Mount Washington Cemetery, Kansas City—Famous as a Frontiersman and Pathfinder.

Kansas City.—The bones of Jim Bridger, pioneer of Westport, famous scout, discoverer of the Great Salt lake, were brought to Kansas City for burial. The first grave was in a tangle of brambles and weeds on the farm of Stubbin Watts, one mile north of the little town of Dallas, in this county. A broken headstone marked the resting place of probably the most picturesque character in western history. From 1824 until late in the '60's he was the west's greatest mountaineer, frontiersman, trader, guide and fighter. He was the chief of five of the most powerful Indian tribes, the founder of Fort Bridger, the discoverer of the South Pass, and he selected the route for the first railway through the Rocky mountains.

Bridger's bones were given a final resting place in Mount Washington cemetery. A granite monument seven feet high and three and a half feet thick has been placed over them.

A life-size bust of the frontiersman and an inscription telling of his greatest deeds is sculptured upon the shaft. Mrs. Mary Leightlle, Bridger's granddaughter, unveiled the monument.

Col. John B. Colton, of this city, a life-long friend of Bridger, was in charge of the removal of his bones, and superintended the placing of the monument.

JIM BRIDGER.
Famous Frontiersman and Scout Now Buried at Kansas City.

The expense was borne by Gen. Grenville M. Dodge. He was the engineer who selected the route for the Union Pacific railway across the plains. When his surveyors reached the Rocky mountains they could go no further. The obstacles presented by "the backbone of the country" were apparently not surmountable. Dodge consulted mountaineers, but they could offer no suggestion that would lead to a solution of the engineering problem. Then he sent for Bridger. Without a moment's hesitation "the original pathfinder" told of the pass through which the railway was afterwards built. Because of the assistance then rendered by Bridger, Gen. Dodge decided to honor his memory. His first task was to find the grave of Bridger. He consulted Mr. Colton, who was one of the "Jayhawkers of '49," a band of 36 gold hunters who crossed Death valley in California and escaped death by a miracle. After much search Mr. Colton found a broken headstone bearing this inscription:

JAMES BRIDGER.
Born March 17, 1804.
Died July 17, 1881.

We miss thee in the circle around the fireside;
We miss thee in devotion at quiet eventide.
The memory of thy nature, so full of truth and love,
Shall lead our thoughts to seek thee among the best above.

Beneath the stone the bones of Bridger were moldering. The inscription did not please Mr. Colton. "The idea of putting that sort of a verse over old Jim Bridger," he said. Mr. Colton wrote to Gen. Dodge and together they agreed upon a new burial plan. The Mount Washington cemetery officials told Mr. Colton that he might select the spot for the grave and that the cemetery association would maintain it forever. Gen. Dodge then ordered the shaft which now marks the grave.

National Longevity.

Of European nations the Norwegian and Swedish are the longest lived, the Spaniards the shortest. According to a foreign statistical return recently issued the average duration of life is as follows: Sweden and Norway, 50 years; England, 45 years and 3 months; Belgium, 44 years and 11 months; Switzerland, 44 years and 4 months; France, 43 years and 6 months; Austria, 39 years and 8 months; Prussia and Italy, 39 years; Bavaria, 36 years, and Spain, 32 years and 4 months.

The Bookmaker Won.

A Londoner lent a street bookmaker his watch so that the bookmaker might be sure that he did not take bets on a race that had already been won. The bookmaker kept the watch and the lender sued for it. The court decided that as it had been lent for an unlawful purpose it could not be receovered at law.

Americans Lead.

All the five planetary satellites discovered since 1846 have been found by Americans. They include Hyperion, the seventh satellite of Saturn; Diemos and Phoebus, the little moons of Mars, and Phoebe, the ninth moon of Saturn.

Notable Women

All Round Capacity of the Feminine Sex

It is now universally recognized that the beginning of education is child study. In this it is only natural that women should be most successful. Notable first as primary instructor, then as writer on education and philosophical topics is Mrs. Ellen Kenyon Warner of Brooklyn. While a teacher Mrs. Warner strove to obtain the best results with the primary children under her care. This set her to studying them carefully. At the same time, in order to approach her subject fully equipped, she studied also philosophy, logic and psychology.

Applying the philosophical method to child study and child training, Mrs. Warner found much that instructors seemed not to know. In order to tell what she had learned she began to write articles for educational magazines and to give talks to teachers. The studies continued; the educational papers increased in importance; the talks widened out till they became lectures, which teachers throughout the country wanted to hear.

At present Mrs. Warner gives all her time to writing and lecturing. It is one of her ideas that the whole all around education of a child should begin at the very beginning of understanding and all its faculties be developed at once. For instance, she would have an infant's ethical training commence when it learns its letters. She found no school readers that met this plan of gradual mental and moral development, so she herself prepared a set for use either in school or at home. Each book was to take some one moral theme and ring changes on it in its many ramifications till the child faculty answering to that theme should be awakened and developed.

A Woman Soldier.

In one of the rough riding Cossack regiments of the Russian army in Manchuria is a soldier enrolled as Michael Nicholaievitch. The soldier was born and bred on the Manchurian border, so knows that language as well as Russian. Special scouting service this soldier is detailed for and is noted as one of the most daring of all in the Cossack regiment. This soldier is in reality a woman, whose true name is Helen Smolko. She wears the regular Cossack uniform and is an unerring shot. She could shoot and ride when she was only eight years old. Nothing daunts Helen Smolko, even in the cold and rough Manchurian land. Frequently in her scouting expeditions she rides fifty to sixty miles at a stretch.

A few officers know the secret of Helen Smolko's sex, but they do not reveal it to the regiment or army. Michael Nicholaievitch's services as a scout are too important to be dispensed with.

Mrs. Carpenter's Prophecy.

In a merry mood Mrs. Philip Carpenter, president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, dropped into prophecy at the recent Pilgrim Mothers' dinner in New York city. She began her speech thus:

"I shall look ahead a hundred years. Well, this is what I see—not men taking care of babies or wearing aprons, keeping house or anything of the kind—I see sweet women, mothers, being mothers—charming women housekeepers—keeping clean, rosy and happy homes like the Pilgrim Mothers. I see women voting—yes, because they are taxed and because men want a strong vote on the clean and honest side of things.

"Once upon a time in the year 2004, at high noon, there reassembled at the balcony entrance of the eighty-fourth floor of the Tower building in upper Broadway a procession of beautiful airships. As they moored alongside the balcony there stepped from them many women—graceful, charming and intelligent.

"'Dear me,' said one, 'I had such a time this morning. When I pushed the button to turn on the concentrated sun heat to start the breakfast cooking in the kitchen it never came on at all. So when I pressed the second button a half hour later the dishes slid beautifully into their various places on the tables, but not a thing was cooked. Now, wasn't that trying?'"

CHAPTER I.

ASHES OF EMPIRE.

In point of age, Gaston the strenuous was still no more than a lusty infant among the cities of the brown plain when the boom broke and the junto was born, though its beginnings as a halt camp ran back to the days of the later Mormon migrations across the thirsty plain; to that day when the advanced guard of Zophar Smith's ox-train dug wells in the damp sands of Dry creek and called them the waters of Merom.

Later, one Jethro Simsby, a Mormon deserter, set up his rod and staff on the banks of the creek, homesteaded a quarter-section of the sage-brush plain, and in due time came to be known as the Dry creek cattle king. And the cow-camp was still Simsby's when the locating engineers of the Western Pacific, searching for tank stations in a land where water was scarce and hard to come by, drove their stakes along the north line of the quarter-section; and having named their last station Alphonse, christened this one Gaston.

From the stake-driving of the engineers to the spike-driving of the track-layers was a full decade. For hard times overtook the Western Pacific at Midland City, 80 miles to the eastward; while the state capital, two days' bronco-jolting west of Dry creek, had railroad outlets in plenty and no inducements to offer a new-comer.

But with the breaking of the cloud of financial depression, the Western Pacific succeeded in placing its extension bonds, and a little later the earth began to fly on the grade of the new line to the west. Within a Sundayless month the electric lights of the night shift could be seen, and, when the wind was right, the shriek of the locomotive whistle could be heard at Dry creek; and in this interval between dawn and daylight Jethro Simsby sold his quarter-section for the nominal sum of $2,000, spot cash, to two men who buck-boarded in ahead of the track-layers.

This purchase of the "J-lazy-S" ranch by Hawk and Guilford marked the modest beginning of Gaston the marvelous. By the time the temporary sidings were down and the tank well was dug in the damp sands, it was heralded far and wide that the Western Pacific would make the city on the banks of Dry creek—a city consisting as yet only of the Simsby ranch shacks—its western terminus. Thereupon followed one of the senseless rushes that populate the waste places of the earth and give the professional city-builder his reason for being. In a fortnight after the driving of the silver spike the dusty plain was dotted with the black-roofed shelters of the Argonauts; and by the following spring the plow was furrowing the cattle ranges in ever-widening circles, and Gaston had voted a bond loan of $300,000 to pave its streets.

Then under the forced draft of skillful exploitation, three years of high pressure passed quickly; years named by the promoters the period of development. In the Year One the very heavens smiled and the rainfall broke the record of the oldest inhabitant. Thus the region round about lost the word "arid" as a qualifying adjective, and the picturesque fictions of the prospectus makers were miraculously justified. In Year Two there was less rain, but still an abundant crop; and Jethro Simsby, drifting in from some unnamed frontier of a new cow-country, saw what he had missed, took to drink, and shot himself in the lobby of the Mid-Continent hotel, an ornate, five-storied, brick-and-terra-cotta structure standing precisely upon the site of the "J-lazy-S" branding corral.

It was in this same Year Two, the fame of the latest of western Meccas for young men having penetrated to the provincial backgrounds of New Hampshire, that David Kent came.

By virtue of his diploma, and three years of country practice in the New Hampshire country town where his father before him had read Blackstone and Chitty, he had his window on the fourth floor of the Farquhar building lettered "Attorney and Counselor at Law;" but up to the day in the latter part of the fateful Year Three, when the overdue crash came, he was best known as a reckless plunger in real estate—this, mind you, at a moment when every third man counted his gains in "front feet," and was shouting himself hoarse at the daily brass-band lot sales.

When the bottom fell out in the autumn of the Year Three, Kent fell with it, though not altogether as far or as hard as many another. One of his professional hold-fasts—it was the one that afterward became the bread-tackle in the famine time—was his position as local attorney for the railway company. By reason of this he was among the first to have a hint of the impending cataclysm. The Western Pacific, after so long a pause on the banks of Dry creek, had floated its second mortgage bonds and would presently build on to the capital, leaving Gaston to way-station quietude. Therefore and wherefore—

Kent was not lacking in native shrewdness or energy. He foresaw, not the pitable bubble-burst which ensued, indeed, but the certain and inevitable end of the speculative era. Like everyone else, he had bought chiefly with promises to pay, and the paper in the three banks aggregated a sum equal to a frugal New Hampshire competence.

"How long have I got?" was the laconic wire he sent to Loring, the secretary of the Western Pacific Advisory Board in Boston, from whom his hint had come. And when Loring replied that the grading and track-laying contracts were already awarded, there was at least one "long" on the Gaston real estate exchange who wrought desperately night and day to "unload."

As it turned out, the race against time was both a victory and a defeat. On the morning when the Daily Clarion sounded the first note of public alarm, David Kent took up the last of his bank promises-to-pay, and transferred his final mortgaged holding in Gaston realty. When it was done he locked himself in his office in the Farquhar building and balanced the account. On leaving the New Hampshire country town to try the new cast for fortune in the golden west, he had turned his small patrimony into cash—some $10,000 of it. To set over against the bill of exchange for this amount, which he had brought to Gaston a year earlier, there were a clean name, a few hundred dollars in the bank, six lots, bought and paid for, in one of the Gaston suburbs, and a vast deal of experience.

Kent ran his hands through his hair, opened the check-book and hastily filled out a check payable to himself for the remaining few hundreds. When he reached the Apache National on the corner of Colorado and Texas streets, he was the 127th man in the queue, which extended around the corner and doubled back and forth in cross-street to the stoppage of all traffic. The announcement in the Clarion had done its work, and the baleful flower of panic, which is the juggler's rose for quick-growing possibilities, was filling the very air of the street with its acrid perfume—the the scent of all others that soonest drives men mad.

Major James Guilford, the president of the Apache National, was in the cage with the sweating paying tellers, and it was to him that Kent presented his check when his turn came

"What! You, too, Kent?" said the president, reproachfully. "I thought you had more backbone."

Kent shook his head.

"Gaston has absorbed nine-tenths of the money I brought here; I'll absorb the remaining tenth myself, if it's just the same to you, Major. Thank you." And the 127th man pocketed his salvage from the wreck and fought his way out through the jam at the doors. Two hours farther along in the forenoon the Apache National suspended payment, and the bank examiner was wired for.

For suddeness and thoroughgoing completeness the Gaston bubble-bursting was a record breaker. For a week and a day there was a frantic struggle for enlargement, and by the expiration of a fortnight the life was pretty well trampled out of the civic corpse and the stench began to arise.

Flight upon any terms then became the order of the day, and if the place had been suddenly plague-smitten the panicky exodus could scarcely have been more headlong.

Kent stayed partly because a local attorney for the railroad was as necessary in Gaston the bereaved as in Gaston the strenuous; partly, also, because he was a student of his kind, and the broken city gave him laboratory opportunities for the study of human nature at its worst.

He marked the raising of the black flag as the Gaston castaways, getting sorrily afloat one by one, cleared their decks for action. Some Bluebeard admiral there will always be for such stressful occasions, and David Kent, standing aside and growing cynical day by day, laid even chances on Hawk, the ex-district attorney, on Major Guilford, and on one Jasper G. Bucks, sometime mayor of Gaston the iridescent.

Afterward he was to learn that he had underrated the gifts of the former mayor. For when the famine time was fully come, and there were no more argosies drifting Gastonward for the bucaneers to sack and scuttle, it was Jasper G. Bucks who called a conference of his fellow werwolves, set forth his new cast for fortune, and brought the junto, the child of sheer desperation fiercely at bay, into being.

It was in the autumn of that first cataclysmic year that Secretary Loring, traveling from Boston to the state capital on a mission for the Western Pacific, stopped over a train with Kent. After a rather dispiriting dinner in the deserted Mid-Continent cafe, and some plowing of the field of recollection in Kent's rooms in the Farquhar building, they took the deserted street in the golden twilight to walk to the railway station.

"It was a decent thing for you to do—stopping over a train with me, Grantham," said the host, when the five squares intervening had been half measured. "I have had all kinds of a time out here in this God-forsaken desert, but never until to-day anything approaching a chummy hour with a man I know and care for."

Kent had not spoken since they had felt their way out of the dark lower hall of the Farquhar building. Up to this point the talk had been pointedly reminiscent; of the men of their first university year, of mutual friends in the far-away "God's country" to eastward, of the Gastonian epic, of all things save only two—the exile's cast for fortune in the untamed west, and one other.

"That brings us a little nearer to the things that be—and to your prospects, David," said the guest. "How are you fixed here?"

Kent shrugged.

"Gaston is dead, as you see; too dead to bury."

"Why don't you get out of it, then?"

"I shall some day perhaps. Up to date there has been no place to go to, and no good way to arrive. Like some thousands of others, I've made an ass of myself here, Loring."

"By coming, you mean? Oh, I don't know about that. You have had some hard knocks, I take it, but if you are the same David Kent I used to know, they have made a bigger man of you."

"Think so?"

"I'd bet on it. We have had the Gaston epic done out for us in the newspapers. No man could live through such an experience as you must have had without growing a few inches. Hello! What's this?"

A turned corner had brought them in front of a lighted building in Texas street with a straggling crowd gathered about the porticoed entrance. As Loring spoke, there was a rattle of snare drums followed by the dum-dum of the bass, and a brass band ramped out the opening measures of a campaign march.

"It is a rally," said Kent, when they had passed enough beyond the zone of brass-throated clamorings to make the reply audible. "I told you that the Gaston wolf-pack had gone into politics. We are in the throes of a state election, and there is to be a political speech-making at the opera house to-night, with Bucks in the title role. And there is a fair measure of the deadness of the town! When you see people flock together like that to hear a brass band play, it means one of two things: that the town hasn't outgrown the country village stage, or else it has passed that and all other stages and is well on its way to the cemetery."

"That is one way of putting it," Loring rejoined. "If things are as bad as that, it's time you were moving on, don't you think?"

"I guess so," was the lack-luster response. "Only I don't know where to go, or what to do when I get there."

They were crossing the open square in front of the wide-eaved passenger station. A thunderous tremolo, dominating the distant band music, thrilled on the still air, and the extended arm of the station semaphore with its two dangling lanterns wagged twice.

"My train," said Loring, quickening his step.

"No," Kent corrected. "It is a special from the west, bringing a Bucks crowd to the political rally. Number Three isn't due for 15 minutes yet, and she is always late."

They mounted the steps of the station platform in good time to meet the three-car special as it came clattering in over the switches, and presently found themselves in the thick of the crowd of debarking rallyers.

It was a mixed masculine multitude, fairly typical of time, place and occasion; stalwart men of the soil for the greater part, bearded and bronzed and rough-clothed, with here and there a range-rider in picturesque leathern straps, sagging pistols and wide-flapped sombrero.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth. 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

SMOOT BEFORE SENATE.

Would Obey a Revelation If He Had to Leave Country to Do So.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Under an examination concerning his belief in divine revelations Senator Smoot in the investigation before the senate committee on privileges and elections said that if he should receive a revelation from God commanding him to disobey the laws of the land he would leave his country and go to some country where the laws of the land were not in conflict with the laws of God. He was asked what he would do if the revelations commanded him to remain in his country and violate the laws, but he would not suppose the case, saying, "The God I worship is not such a God."

Nearly every member of the senate committee took part in the examination of Senator Smoot on the subject of revelations, and the witness' views proved highly interesting. He declared that revelations may come to any good man, but it was only those that come to the president of the church that were of binding force and then only when they have been sustained by the people at one of the regular church conferences.

The examination covered a variety of subjects, including the belief of the Mormon people generally on the subject of polygamy, the character of the teachings at the religious classes and the use of the public schools for the conduct of such classes.

MEAT EXPRESS HIT FREIGHT.

Open Switch at Danbury Caused Wreck—Four Injured.

DANBURY, Conn., Jan. 23.—The regular eastbound freight train, known as the "meat express," from Maybrook, N. Y., to Bridgeport, on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, ran into a westbound freight standing on a siding at the fair grounds last night, wrecking both engines and demolishing about fifteen cars. The meat train was made up of about twenty-five refrigerator cars bound for Boston.

In the cab of the engine of the meat train were Conductor Kane and Engineer Fish of Bridgeport, Brakeman Henry Rose of New Haven and Fireman Edward Holyoke of Boston. All jumped, and as the train was going at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour they were more or less hurt. Holyoke was picked up unconscious and taken to the Danbury hospital, where it was stated that his injuries might prove fatal. Rose was severely injured and later was taken to the hospital.

An open switch caused the accident.

Head-on Collision at Shawnee.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Jan. 23.—A head-on collision between two freight trains, one a double header, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Shawnee, Tenn., resulted in the death of four railroad men and the injury of six others, three of whom may die. The southbound train should have met the northbound, which was a double header, at Wheelver, Va. The trains met 300 yards east of the station at Shawnee at an angle of a slight curve and came together with terrific force. All three engines were completely demolished, and Fireman Klutz, Engineer Mooney, Fireman Harris and Brakeman Laughley were buried under the wreck.

Decatur Girl Murdered.

DECATUR, Ala., Jan. 23.—Shortly after leaving her father's store here on her way home Miss Belle Bloodworth, daughter of a well known merchant of this city, was found murdered in an alley in New Decatur, evidently beaten into insensibility with a heavy instrument. The assassin afterward made good his work by sending two bullets through the girl's brain. So far there is no clew to work on, but every inch of ground is being covered by bloodhounds, followed by citizens, who are wrought up to a high pitch of excitement.

New French Cabinet Formed.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—It is announced that M. Rouvier has succeeded in forming a ministry and has advised President Loubet of his acceptance of the premiership, with the names of those forming the cabinet. President of the council and minister of finance, M. Rouvier; minister of foreign affairs, Theophile Delcasse; minister of the interior, Eugene Etienne; minister of justice, Jean Sarrien; minister of war, Henry Berteaux; minister of marine, Gaston Thomson.

Arctic Floes Blockade Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Jan. 23.—Arctic ice floes now blockade the northern coast of Newfoundland and threaten the harbor of St. John's. The mail steamers Virginia and Prospero had difficult work with the floes. The first named steamer was fast for twenty-four hours, and the ice rafted and forced her completely out of the water, but she subsequently settled back on an even keel, escaping disaster.

Chadwick Ivories and Laces.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 23.—United States Customs Collector Leach has found valuable ivories and laces belonging to Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in the Chadwick home on Euclid avenue. Mr. Leach is going to learn whether duty has been paid upon the articles, all of which have been imported. The goods were examined by an expert and are said to be worth at least $10,000.

P. H. S. AND EAST ORANGE PLAY EXCITING GAME

IN WHICH THE LATTER WON BY THE SCORE OF 23 TO 21.

Winning by the narrow margin of two goals, the East Orange High School basketball team defeated the Plainfield High School aggregation at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon by the score of 23 to 21. At the end of the first half the local school had the lead, the scoring being 17 to 16. This was a fair example of the game all the way through, it being a neck to neck fight from start to finish.

As to individual work, Stutsman and Freeman were the stars of the local players, while Thompson had a good eye for the basket. At times the visitors displayed fast team work, while on the other hand in man for man playing, the P. H. S. was the stronger.

This was the lineup and detailed score of the match: P. H S —Thompson and Bentley, forwards; Freeman, center; Stutsman and Gavett, guards. E. O. H. S —Morris and Wyman, forwards; Whinery, center; Fonda and Meeker, guards. Goals from the field —Bentley, 3; Thompson, 2; Freeman, 2; Gavett, Wyman, 5; Meeker. Goals from fouls—Wyman, Thompson, 2

Resolutions of Condolence.

Whereas, In the sudden death of Mr. Stephen A. Ginna, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call to Himself the beloved Superintendent of this Sunday-school, an honored citizen of Plainfield, and one whose Christian love extended to all classes of his fellowmen, and

Whereas, His great devotion to the interests of the Colored race and his earnest desire to see them prosper in every true sense, made him a friend to all worthy enterprises in their behalf, not only in Plainfield where the results of his friendship are most apparent to us, but in other places also, where his good deeds are equally well-known and appreciated, and

Whereas, For more than twenty years he has given of his time and means, and of the vast resources of his noble mind and heart to the developing and training of Christian character in the members of this Sunday-school, going in and out of this place, Sunday after Sunday, acquainting himself with their difficulties, sympathizing with them in their struggles, and encouraging them in all their strivings for better things; therefore,

Resolved, That the teachers and scholars of Bethel Chapel Sunday-school and members of Bethel Chapel, appreciating his inestimable worth to society and the church at large, and especially to the chapel as its faithful superintendent, do hereby express their profound sorrow at the loss of one whose very presence was itself a benediction.

Resolved, That we give thanks to God for the "work of faith and labor of love" which he has wrought among us; for his wholesome precepts; for the lofty Christian character which he has left as an example, and for all the kindly ministries of his life whereby he has endeared himself to our hearts.

Resolved, That we tenderly cherish the memory of his goodness and of his unselfish labors among us while we endeavor to attain to the same lofty ideal, and, that as his memory becomes more sacred, bring to it yet more and more the tribute of hearts which are loyal to the grand principles for which he lived.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the family of Mr. Ginna in their severe affliction and pray that the sweet comforts of the gospel may abound unto them; that the Divine Presence may go with each one, gently leading and sustaining them to the end of this life, and, finally, bringing all together, an unbroken family, into the Father's home above.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased; also one given for publication to each of the daily papers of Plainfield.

Frederick D. Tildon, Pastor.
Alfred W. Duxbury, Asst. Supt.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Jas. Gardner is Charged With Committing Misdemeanor.

CHIEF KIELY'S "GAME"

Made No Mention of Morey-LaRue Affair When the Defendant is Arraigned.

Arraigned before Justice Huff in the city court yesterday afternoon, to answer a charge of incendiarism in connection with the Morey-LaRue fire, Friday night, as he supposed, James Gardner was greatly surprised to have a complaint of an entirely different nature preferred against him by Chief Kiely. In a spirit of boldness, the boy when first arrested declared he knew who it was who had fired the barn of Michael Armstrong on East Fourth street, New Year's night, but he steadfastly refused to reveal his identity. Under the laws of the State, a person who shields another guilty of a higher crime or attempts to aid a criminal, commits a misdemeanor and it was on this charge that he was held in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury, the Morey-LaRue blaze being in no wise taken into consideration.

At the time of the fire in the barn the cause was supposed to be incendiary and it was on account of Gardner's queer actions at the recent conflagration that the Chief made the arrest. In the subsequent questioning which took place at the police station, he drew from the boy grounds for the complaint upon which he appeared before the court yesterday. In the presence of Chief Kiely, Chief Doane, Mayor Buckle, Officer McCarthy and Sergeant Frederickson, as the evidence showed, Gardner made the assertion Friday night that he knew the person who set fire to the Armstrong barn and that the deed was committed to pay for a debt owed to the incendiary. The person who fired the building, Gardner said, was an employe of Armstrong, and related the facts to him about a week afterward. Though urged and argued with at the time of his arrest, the boy refused to tell the name of the fire-bug, and declined to make any statement which would lead to the arrest of the criminal.

When on the stand, Gardner said that he could not remember what was said on the evening of his capture, claiming that he was intoxicated at that time. He did, however, firmly assert that the Chief threatened him with imprisonment. It was, to a great extent, on this conflicting testimony on the part of the defendant that the Justice based his decision when he set the bond at $500. William DeMesa was the young man's representative. The witnesses for the State were Chief Kiely, Chief Doane and Officer McCarthy.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Those Being Conducted at Monroe Avenue Church Attracting Much Attention.

The revival services now being held at Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church are attracting considerable attention in the West End. The meetings have now been in progress for two weeks under the direction of the pastor of the church and have steadily grown in interest to that there is reason now to look for decided results. At the meeting Sunday night, attended by the largest congregation that has assembled since the opening of the services, several persons publicly decided to become Christians.

The entire meeting was deeply moved by the spirit of the service. In order to further increase the interest of the meetings, Mr. Meeney has secured several out of town speakers to assist in the work. Last evening, the Rev. Richard E. Bell, pastor of the Union M. E. church, of New York city, preached and tonight, the Rev. Ralph B. Urmy, pastor of the Morristown M. E. church, will be the speaker. No meeting will be held tomorrow night, but on Thursday and Friday nights meetings will be held, announcements concerning which will be made later.

Justice Fort Thanks Jurors.

Justice J. Franklin Fort, the presiding judge of this circuit, having completed the list of Supreme Court cases for this term, at Elizabeth, bade farewell to the jurors yesterday morning and thanked them for their labors. He may be back again this term, he said, but was unable to say so positively. The verdicts rendered by the jurors had been very satisfactory. Judge Vail, he said, would continue the trial of the circuit court cases, which had been referred to him by consent.

THE FIVE SENSES TESTED AT YOUNG PEOPLE'S PARTY

DEMONSTRATION AFFORDS PLENTY OF AMUSEMENT.

Under the auspices of St. Mary's Guild, of St. Stephen's church, a "senses party" was held at the home of the rector, Rev. Arthur S. Peck, of East Sixth street, last evening. There was a large number of young people present, each member being privileged to invite two friends. Most of the evening was occupied in a demonstration of the five senses—smelling, seeing, hearing, feeling and tasting. Those who participated were given the opportunity of testing their sense and then writing down on a piece of paper their answers. Perhaps in the demonstration of smelling the greatest fun was had. The young folks were blind-folded and they were then allowed to smell water, ammonia, cologne and other things as they were passed in front of them.

In the test of hearing a number of peculiar sounds were made on different instruments and there was much difficulty in picking out the names of these instruments. In the test of the other senses there was also much fun. At the conclusion the first prize for the young women was given to Miss Lillian Bowe, she having made the greatest number of correct guesses. For the young men John Bremble received first prize, while Frank Cashin received the consolation prize. After the awarding of prizes, refreshments were served.

LEALS PREPARATIONS FOR ATHLETIC MEET

EDWIN DANIEL, '05, APPOINTED CAPTAIN OF TRACK TEAM.

After a hard season's training at basketball, the Leal's School boys are turning their thoughts to the possibility of an athletic meet in the spring. Having supported two basketball teams through the season thus far, which will continue to the middle of February, there will be a large number of the pupils in good athletic condition for a meet in the early spring. Not only a school championship meet is anticipated, but there is every possibility that an interscholastic event will be arranged. Though no announcement of the event has yet been made known, there will probably be an inter-academic athletic meet among the schools in the New Jersey League, of which Leal's is a member.

Last year the Leal's School, largely through the work of Edwin Daniel, captured the Plainfield scholastic championship in athletics. A triangular meet which will include the two High Schools, will undoubtedly be held again this year, and for this event Leal's boys are training. Edwin Daniel was appointed as a recent meeting of the Athletic Association, captain of the track team, which will represent the school next spring. In a recent interview, the newly elected track engineer stated that a strong team could be developed among the members of the school.

These are among the athletes, which, according to Captain Daniel, promise to defend the athletic interest of the school in the event of an interscholastic meet: Wilcox, running high jump and pole vault; Jewett, weights, high jump and long runs; Manning, broad jump and runs; Underhill, pole vault; Glenney, Smith and Daniel, all round athletics.

Revoked 1,337 Charters.

Governor Franklin Murphy, just before he retired from office, revoked the charters of 1,337 corporations doing business in New Jersey because of their failure to pay the State tax for the year 1903 prior to January 19, 1905, as required by law. All these corporations were notified that they must pay their State tax, and that the failure to do so would mean the revocation of their charters. When they refused or neglected to pay this tax Governor Murphy took away their charters.

Considered Special Cases.

A meeting of the district committee of the Charity Organized Aid Association was held last night, to consider some of the special cases brought before it. These meetings are of a private nature, it not being the wish of the committee to make public the action taken in cases of this kind.

PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT

Owners of West End Tract Gradually Developing Plans.

A FINE BOULEVARD

Green Brook to be Straightened and An Artificial Lake to be Located on Old Cadmus Property.

Plans for the improvement of the new tract of land in the West End of the city and borough are gradually being prepared and it is expected that early in the spring the work will be started. The owners of the property, Charles W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield and Mayor N. B. Smalley, have decided to make the boulevard, extending from the bridge over Green brook to Stine's bridge on West End avenue, one hundred feet wide, including the sidewalk which will be ten feet wide. The driveways, one each side of a row of trees and grass plot, which is to be in the centre, will be forty feet. There will also be a row of electric lights in the centre and it is proposed to have the wires placed in a conduit underground so that there will be no unsightly poles and wires overhead to mar the appearance of the avenue.

It is also intended to have the tract used for building purposes, proper restrictions being placed in the kind of dwellings to be erected and if the plans are carried out as intended it will mean another settlement somewhat similar to that known as Washington Park.

Among the other improvements proposed is the straightening of Green brook to permit a proper flow of the water, and the location of a fine lake in that section formerly known as the Cadmus property. This lake will be at least three hundred feet wide and fifteen hundred feet in length, extending from a point near West End avenue to one near Girard avenue. This section is filled with springs and it is believed that the building of a lake will be an easy matter. Dirt taken from the centre and sides of the brook in the process of widening will be used to fill in with. It is also the intention to lay out the rest of the ground in a park, having attractive walks and the lake will be established with a view to providing a place for boating.

A small dam will also be built at the west end of the lake. It is believed that by straightening the brook, establishing the lake and putting up a small dam, these things will be a great benefit to the surrounding property in heavy rains. At present heavy rains cause the brook to overflow the lowlands and generally results in more or less damage to West End avenue. With the improvements the water would find a sufficient outlet beneath a larger bridge which it is proposed to have erected at that point.

It is believed that with the widening of West End avenue in the borough the avenue in the city will be similarly widened, making one of the most attractive thoroughfares in that part of town. The lake and park will, of course, be of a private character, although there is no doubt but what the public will be allowed to enjoy it to some extent.

Funeral of William H. Poole.

The funeral services of William H. Poole were held from his late home at Oak Tree, last night, Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which Mr. Poole was a member, and Rev. Mr. Baker, of Mt. Holly, were in charge of the services. There were many floral tributes. This morning another service was held from 475 Central avenue, Brooklyn, after which the interment was in Evergreen Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Medal Presentation Put Over.

It was expected that Colonel Collins, of the Second Regiment, would be present at the regular drill of Company K last night and make the presentation speech in awarding to Sergeant Hort the medal for the highest marksman's score made at Sea Girt last summer. A letter was read expressing the Colonel's regrets at being unable to attend and stating that the event would take place next week.

NO SPECIAL ELECTION

Republican Co. Chairman and Governor Hold Conference.

BI-PARTY AGREEMENT

Democratic Chairman Refuses Consent to Plan Until Committee is Consulted—Expense Needless.

A new phase in the special election tangle was brought about last night through a conference between Governor Stokes and Assemblyman Coyne, chairman of the Republican County Committee, and may mean that Union county at least may not be put to the expense of a general election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman Embree. It would have been settled definitely at once but for John L. Crowell, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, appointed to take the matter in charge and he and his colleagues will meet tonight to discuss the question as it now stands.

At the request of the Freeholders and leading Republicans in the county, Coyne went before the Governor last evening and told him it was not the wish of the people to spend $10,000 in order to have one more Assemblyman this term. After a brief talk the Governor said it was the right stand to take and that if Chairman Crowell would agree he did not see why the special act could not be set aside and let the county committees settle the matter as they saw fit. Coyne gave his consent at once but Crowell, when consulted, refused until he could see the members of his committee. He will do this tonight and if he agrees afterward there will be no election, but if he refuses there will be one on February 7.

The amendment to the special election bill, called the Enabling bill, passed the Assembly last night, and was to have gone through the Senate today but it adjourned this morning and is now held up. Without its being passed by both houses there can be no election on February 7 at any rate and it looks as if the county is to be saved the expense "by hook or by crook."

LIST OF DELINQUENTS TO BE FILED AT ELIZABETH

UNPAID TAXES BECOME A LIEN AGAINST PROPERTY.

Tax Collector Lee has sent out notices to all parties who have not paid their taxes on real estate for 1904, and is now making up the list of all properties upon which the taxes for 1904 have not been paid.

This list must be filed with the County Clerk in Elizabeth on February 7, and he enters upon his records the block number, lot number, name of delinquent and the amount due. The tax is a lien on the property and cannot be marked off the record until the owner pays his tax, with 10 per cent. interest, to Tax Collector Lee, secures a tax release, for which the city charges forty cents. This tax release is filed by the Collector with the County Clerk, and the lien is cancelled of record.

Since Collector Lee has sent out these notices quite a number of owners of property have paid up their 1904 taxes, and a number of them are coming in every day.

DEMOCRATIC "HARMONY"

Borough Members of the Party Hold Rival Meetings.

CARNEY EXPLAINS

Tells Why Hasty Call Was Given the Faithful to Gather at Headquarters.

Divided into two "factions", Borough Democrats held as many meetings in different places last night and at one of them matters were rather rosy for a while as North Plainfield political status in connection with the coming election was discussed. The most important of the two was held under the auspices of the North Plainfield Democratic Club in its headquarters and was well attended. It was called to order by President David J. Carney, who said in explanation of this notice to assemble:

"The reason this meeting was so hastily called is because Councilman VanWinkle called at my office last Wednesday afternoon and asked me to call a few Democrats together at Codington & Swackhamer's law offices on Friday night last. This I declined to do. I offered Mr. VanWinkle the use of the club rooms for any evening the present week that would most suit his convenience. Mr. VanWinkle left me with the impression that this arrangement would be entirely satisfactory. Late Saturday evening last, it became known that a chosen few were to meet in the city on Monday night. This morning notices were printed and mailed for this meeting.

"This meeting is called," said President Carney, "for the purpose of getting the views of borough Democrats regarding the action deemed most advantageous for the party in the approaching borough election. Nothing done here tonight will commit the party. An expression of views is what is most desired at the present time."

The meeting went along smoothly and had passed a resolution that the chair appoint a committee of three to confer with the Citizen's Party and ascertain what inducements they would offer, looking toward an alliance. Just at this juncture fourteen men led by S. S. Swackhamer and Councilman VanWinkle, walked in and immediately began to take part in the meeting. This created a bit of a stir for a time. After considerable wrangling, Mr. Swackhamer stated that the faction he and Councilman VanWinkle represented had met over in the city and had appointed a committee of three, composed of himself, W. J. Conroy and W. Linbarger, who were to confer with a Citizen's committee. He strongly advised this meeting to appoint a like committee to act with the one they had appointed.

This the meeting refused to do. Finally Mr. Swackhamer argued to withdraw the committee appointed in the city altogether."

President Carney then declared the meeting adjourned until Friday night at which time the committee he is to appoint will make a report.

The other meeting was held in the offices of Codington & Swackhamer and was for the purpose of formulating plans for the coming spring election. This meeting was called by Walter Linbarger, a member of the Somerset County Democratic Committee, and there were about sixteen Democrats who responded to the call. There was no discussion regarding candidates, not a name being mentioned in this respect.

Mr. Linbarger was made chairman of the meeting and he called for expressions of opinion as to what action had better be taken regarding a ticket at the coming election. It seemed to be the unanimous opinion that it would be best to join with representatives of the opposite party and place a citizens' ticket in the field. Remarks favorable to such action were made by J. H. VanWinkle and Borough Councilman John H. VanWinkle, Jr., Walter Linbarger, W. J. Conroy and S. S. Swackhamer. Past success as a result of combined efforts was recalled and it was believed that in view of the present condition of affairs in the borough such a ticket would be successful.

A committee comprising W. J. Conroy, S. S. Swackhamer and Walter Linbarger was appointed to confer with the Republicans with a view to uniting on a single ticket.

Mr. Swackhamer stated that it was with regret that he had learned of another Democratic meeting being held in the borough and stated that he knew of no opposition until after he had been informed of the meeting held in his office. He hoped that all Democrats could unite for one purpose whatever that might be and that there would be harmonious action for the best interest of the party.

"CONJUNCTION" JONES CARRIES OFF A SHEEP

IT HAD BEEN DRESSED AND HUNG IN FRONT OF BUTCHER THEIS' SHOP.

Walter Jones, known to fame as "Professor" but to his intimate friends and the small boys as "Conjunction," had a hungry feeling come over him a few days ago and carefully gauging his appetite set out to secure supplies enough to satisfy it. A whole sheep, just dressed and presenting a very tempting appearance as it hung outside of the butcher shop of Herman Theis, on Muhlenberg place, attracted his attention and "Professor Conjunction" thought it would just about fill the bill. Believing that Proprietor Theis is somewhat of a philanthropist and wouldn't miss a sheep any more than Andrew Carnegie does $8,000,000, he placed his shoulder beneath the carcass and made off with it. Theis did notice that the sheep was gone, however, and he asked the police to help him find out whether it had suddenly come to life and walked off of its own accord or whether some human agency had a hand in the matter.

Gum-shoe work on the part of Chief Kiely's men who know a sheep when they see one and who are familiar with Mr. Jones' habit of getting hungry and annexing stray hams, vegetables and other eatables, ended in "Professor Conjunction's" arrest yesterday. Of course he was totally ignorant of the whereabouts of Mr. Theis' sheep or that he ever knew of such a man, but Chief Kiely has kindly consented to let him tell Justice Huff all about it this afternoon.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS' MEETING WELL ATTENDED

MEMBERS HAVE EARNEST DISCUSSION OF SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

A well attended and animated meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George H. Babcock, on West Eighth street. The president, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, was in the chair.

An earnest discussion was called out on the arbitration treaties now pending in Washington, and members were urged to write to the New Jersey Senators asking their favorable efforts.

Attention was called to the fact that the Woman's Journal, published in Boston, which has been, for many years the able and intelligent organ of the advocates of equal suffrage, can now be found at the Public Library.

It was decided that an effort should be made to form a political study class, in connection with the league and Mrs. Sexton, the president of the State Equal Suffrage Association, who has already started such a class in Orange, will be invited to the next meeting here, party to help in forwarding this plan.

MANY HUNGRY BEDBUGS

Russel Hazard Says Pesky Creatures Owned the House.

ON TRIAL YESTERDAY

Jury in Somerset Criminal Court at Somerville, Finds Him Not Guilty of Assault and Battery.

Quite a sensation was caused in the Somerset County Criminal Courts at Somerville yesterday by the trial of the indictment against Russel F. Hazard, of the borough, charged with assault and battery on M. Frank Vail, of Putnam avenue, in North Plainfield, on October 28, 1904. Don Quixote, that doleful knight of old, and a hungry band of bedbugs figured conspicuously in the case and caused much mirth, especially during the plea of former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, counsel for the defense. Prosecutor Griggs appeared for the State.

Vail is a real estate man and went to the home of Hazard on October 29 last to collect a bill of $24 for rent. Hazard was at home reading a copy of "Don Quixote" and when the complainant demanded the money due him he presented a counter bill of $27 for damages done to his mattresses and beds by bedbugs, claiming these pesky creatures had for some time been in the possession of the house and not he. Hazard further told Vail the family had been obliged to abandon the upper rooms in the house and fix temporary quarters in the parlor to avoid the live-stock in the rooms above.

The landlord remarked this was only a flimsy excuse to get off paying up and made another demand for his money. Hot words ensued, and, according to Vail's story, he was slapped in the face, knocking his eyeglasses up the steps of the hallway, and his hat was ruined. He fell to the floor and Hazard jumped on him and rained blows on his head. When he was let up Hazard handed him his hat and told him to get out. He picked up his glasses and Hazard gave him a kick as he went out of the door.

Hazard's side of the story was that Vail had come into his home and insulted him without provocation; that he did not strike him, only in an effort at getting him free from the back of the door; against which he stood, to throw him out of the house.

The jury was out about an hour and returned a verdict of not guilty.

GOOD MUSIC.

Last Evening's Star Course Entertainment Greatly Enjoyed by a Large Audience.

Lovers of good vocal and instrumental music, were given a rare treat last night at one of the best Star Course entertainments which the Y. M. C. A. has offered to the public in a long time, local talent forming a part of the attraction. There was a large attendance at the concert.

Fred and William VanEps, banjo and mandolin players, were the local contributors to the entertainment, while the New York artists, a company composed of Miss Juliet Kinney, pianist; Miss Clarine Kinney, reciter; Miss Marie Strebel, soprano, and Arthur L. Beard, violinist, furnished the main part of the programme.

The VanEps brothers, who are always welcomed by Plainfield audiences, kept up their reputation last night, and favored the audience with four delightful selections. Two duets and two solo numbers comprised their part of the programme, but they responded generously to the encores which were given freely.

FAVORS NIEDRINGHAUS.

President Writes Caucus Nominee His Congratulations.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 24.—A mass meeting was called last night by the Republican state executive committee to discuss the senatorial deadlock. In the meeting were many prominent Republicans of Missouri.

Vice Chairman Bothwell of the state executive committee read an address calling on the members of the legislature in the interest of party harmony to get together and stand for the election of the Republican caucus nominee, Thomas K. Niedringhaus, for United States senator.

A committee of five was then appointed to draft resolutions and make report. The committee reported resolutions asking that Niedringhaus be elected senator according to caucus selection. The resolution was passed.

A copy of a letter from President Roosevelt has been given out by Thomas K. Niedringhaus, the Republican caucus nominee for United States senator. The letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. Niedringhaus—I extend to you my hearty congratulations. There is a peculiar fitness in having a man of your ancestry and blood chosen as the first Republican senator from Missouri since the close of the reconstruction period. Your father served in congress, you were born in Missouri, and you come of that German stock which in 1861 saved Missouri to the Union. I congratulate you most heartily."

Formaster Made a Show of Field at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24.—Formaster's sharp reversal of form was a feature of the racing here. The colt, not entirely overlooked in the betting, made a show of his field. Bradley Bill was so frisky that he could not quit after he had gone the mile, but kept on three miles farther. All favorites were defeated, two of them, Flying Charcoal and Montebank, being left at the post. Moorish Damsel fell in the first race, breaking her shoulder, and was destroyed. She was owned by Captain S. S. Brown and was by Esher-Lamoore. Summaries:

First Race.—Antimony, first; Agnes Virginian, second; Bishop Poole, third.

Second Race.—Torlo, first; Signal II, second; Ojibwa, third.

Third Race. — Death, first; Misanthrope, second; Merry Acrobat, third.

Fourth Race.—Formaster, first; Red Raven, second; Ahola, third.

Fifth Race.—Miss Betty, first; Sarah Maxim, second; Lady Fonse, third.

Sixth Race. — Exclamation, first; Dalesman, second; Arachue, third.

Racing at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 24.—Although the track was in better shape than it has been since the opening of the track, form students fared badly. Their calculations went sadly amiss in the first two races. They regained their stride slightly in the next two, but the defeat of Baikal and King Raine in the closing races was a severe blow.

Racing at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 24.—Sol Lichtenstein, the favorite, was nearly bumped off his feet in the opening race at Oakland by Instrument, the winner, but the judges refused to allow the claim of foul. Salable made a runaway race in the last event, taking the lead from the start and maintaining it.

Colgate Defeated Hamilton.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 24.—The Colgate university basket ball team defeated Hamilton college last night by the score of 66 to 10.

Suicide Caused Run on Bank.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—As the result of a run by depositors following the suicide of Cashier Charles H. Houseman, who shot himself, the East End Savings bank has been closed by its directors and placed in the hands of a receiver, W. H. English, who gave a bond for $40,000. The news of Houseman's suicide caused a panic among the depositors of the bank, who are mostly residents of the east side, and the crowd which struggled around the doors of the bank seeking to withdraw deposits became so large that the police were called to preserve order.

Chicago Teamsters to Strike.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—A strike of teamsters against the packing firms of Nelson Morris & Co. and Armour & Co. has been voted by the packing house teamsters union, if such action becomes necessary to procure the reinstatement of three men discharged by the packers. Before drastic action is taken, however, they will seek an amicable adjustment of the difficulty.

New York Firm Taken In.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 24.—The Tompkins County National bank notified the police of New York city that a check for $5,000, signed M. J. Feldman and cashed by a large retail firm in New York, had been received by the bank for collection and had been returned, there being no such account in the bank.

BAKER CONDEMNED MASSACRE.

Members Not In Favor of Signifying Sympathy With Revolt at St. Petersburg—Fortifications Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The session of the house was devoted entirely to consideration of bills relating to the District of Columbia. There was an echo of the disturbances in St. Petersburg when Mr. Baker (N. Y.) moved that an adjournment be taken out of respect to those who were killed in the clash with the Russian troops. The only affirmative vote was recorded by Mr. Baker himself.

Seeing that his motion had been lost, Mr. Baker, shaking his finger at the Republican side of the house, exclaimed, "That is the interest the people have in humanity!" and in an undertone said that if it had been a king or emperor who had been shot down the house immediately would have adjourned.

Mr. Beveridge in the senate made another ineffectual effort to have a time fixed for voting on the statehood bill. The opposing senators expressed an unwillingness to vote on the bill until the amendments shall have been disposed of.

The fortifications appropriation bill was passed after rejection of the amendment striking out the provision for insular fortifications.

The amendment was further discussed by Messrs. Carmack, Gorman, Bacon and Money, all of whom favored it. Mr. Money based his support on the fact, as he said, that if the provision for the fortification of the Philippine Islands is left in the bill "it will look as if we are there to stay." He expressed the opinion that the Japanese were the natural protectors of the Filipinos if they needed a protector, which he did not believe to be the case. He not only believed that the Philippine people needed no such assistance, but that the Santo Domingans also were capable of taking care of themselves. It had been stated, he continued, in an executive session of the senate by a senator who had assisted in negotiating the Spanish treaty that one of the principal reasons for acquiring the Philippine Islands was found in the desire to have a base near China from which to operate when it comes to the partition of China, "in order that we get our share." He opposed any policy looking to the dismemberment of that great empire or any like policy anywhere. "We are not living in a buccaneer age," he said.

The amendment was voted down—17 to 38, a party vote. The bill then passed.

ROOSEVELT'S INAUGURATION.

Governor Higgins and New York State to Play an Important Part.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 24.—New York state will play an important part in the inauguration of President Roosevelt on March 4. Governor Higgins, his secretaries and Adjutant General Henry will go to the capital, and at Jersey City they will meet the governor's military staff. Quarters for the gubernatorial party have been engaged at the New Willard hotel.

The representation from the state militia will include Squadron A, which will be the president's escort, and the First Signal corps, which will be Governor Higgins' escort; the Thirteenth heavy artillery, the Eighth regiment, a battalion from the Second regiment of engineers and a portion of the naval militia will take part in the parade.

A bill appropriating $50,000 to cover the expenses of the military organizations attending is now before the legislature.

Trainmen's Strike Off.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—After a conference of less than an hour's duration between General Manager Atterbury of the Pennsylvania railroad and Grand Master Morrissey, Vice Grand Master Lee and the board of adjustment of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen Mr. Morrissey announced that the differences between the company and the men have been amicably settled. Mr. Morrissey in an interview last night said: "The concessions are accepted in the generous spirit with which they have been tendered. Mr. Atterbury has given his word that the relief of the firemen from unusual strain will be his first regard. We have every confidence that after a thorough investigation the men will receive satisfaction of their just demands."

Governor Stokes' Nominations.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 24.—Governor Stokes sent to the senate last night these nominations: For state road commissioner, Elijah C. Hutchinson of Mercer, to succeed Henry I. Lloyd; for prosecutor of Burlington county, Samuel A. Atkinson.

Revolt Spreads to Moscow and Sevastopol, Where Great Dockyards Blaze—Authorities at Capital Terrorized by Slaughter.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 24.—The most startling feature in the Russian situation is the news that several factories in Moscow have closed and that the workmen in the old capital of Russia are repeating the tactics of their fellow workmen of the new capital, marching from shop to shop and mill to mill, demanding that the establishments be shut down. The whole city is reported to be in a state of great excitement over the news of the bloodshed here, which has precipitated immediately the strike that had been planned for Wednesday.

Moscow has more workmen and less troops than St. Petersburg and besides is just now the heart of the liberal movement, and the danger of bloodier occurrences there than have been witnessed here are proportionately greater. A rising at Moscow is also more likely to have greater results industrially and politically than that in St. Petersburg.

According to private reports, the workmen in several other big cities, notably Kharkov, where large locomotive works are located, already have completed plans for a general suspension of work. Moreover, reports are current that the workmen, who otherwise would soon be forced back into the shops or starve, have received assurances of financial support from the sources which hitherto have furnished the sinews of war to the liberal and revolutionary agitation, but have not before been in touch with the labor movement. If the strike becomes general all over Russia, and especially if the railroads are drawn in, it might immediately force the nation to make peace with Japan.

It is said here that as the outcome of the meetings of the Reform party of Gorky, Annensky, Arsenieff and others and their adherents a body of men has been constituted who regard themselves as the future provisional government of Russia. As yet they are political ciphers, but they hope some sudden stroke of luck will enable them to overturn the existing regime, and at the same time they recognize the fact that nonsuccess may lead them to Siberia or the tomb.

They have decided in conjunction with the strike leaders to appeal to English speaking peoples throughout the world for financial assistance to enable them to continue the struggle for freedom.

A report this morning says that the strikers intend to storm the market on Vassili ostrov and seize the provisions there.

At Kolpino, twelve miles up the river, a body of workmen who had started for St. Petersburg to join the strikers were stopped and fired upon by soldiers. Accounts as to the number killed or wounded conflict.

Conflicts between the military and the police have been resumed. In the Nevsky prospect the troops fired on the crowds.

It is rumored that Emperor Nicholas will issue a manifesto today declaring St. Petersburg to be in a state of siege.

The whole city is held by an armed force. Strikers continue to drift toward the palace square, and the Cossacks and police are having more and more difficulty in keeping the crowds moving.

It is rumored that the Warsaw railroad station here is on fire.

A portion of the track of the Warsaw and Baltic railroad has been torn up. The northern express could not leave the station.

According to the police, the rioting strikers are preparing to divide into groups and sack the city. House to house visits have been made by the officials, warning the inhabitants of the danger that is threatening.

The vast admiralty works at Sevastopol are ablaze.

Sevastopol is the principal military port of the Crimea.

Crowds in Nevsky prospect increase, and squadrons of Cossacks, with lances and carbines, patrol the thoroughfare. Half a regiment of infantry is on duty in the Morskaia, a fashionable boulevard of the city, and troops were again marched into the palace square, where people were once more trying to collect. All the grand duke's palaces were strongly guarded.

Revolution with all its terrors now grips St. Petersburg and is expected to bring forth scenes of bloodshed and riot even greater than before. The city is in a state of siege, with troops continually firing on the people and the mob looting property.

It is asserted that the carnage was committed by the authorities with the deliberate purpose of terrorizing the Russian people, so that the flames of revolution rising throughout the empire might be quelled. But the atrocities had the opposite effect. The massacre instead of overawing the rioters has awakened within them a rage that, taken in connection with their numbers, cannot be denied, and it is feared that the troops will have more than they can do to deal with the throngs.

A general strike in Moscow is proceeding on exactly the same lines as the St. Petersburg strike. The proclamation and methods are identical.

The deputy prefect has issued a proclamation warning the Moscow public, in view of the strike, to avoid assemblages and processions. Otherwise the same severe measures will be adopted as at St. Petersburg.

Davidoff, the captain, and Kurzeff, the senior officer, of the battery from which the loaded shell was fired striking the imperial pavilion and other buildings, have been arrested. Disturbers broke down numerous windows in the Gastinny dvor and the kiosk at the corner of the Anuitchkoff palace garden. Some policemen were roughly handled and disarmed in side streets, but there was no firing.

Troopers cleared the Nevsky prospect sidewalks of loiterers, using the flats of their sabers and causing a general stampede. The crowds gathering in the Nevsky prospect became dense, and the authorities, possibly fearing that the street cars might be converted into material for barricades, stopped street railway traffic and re-enforced the already considerable number of cavalry patrols.

At Sevastopol fire broke out at the admiralty works immediately after the second signal for beginning work was given. The flames burst simultaneously from different parts of the works, and the whole building was so quickly involved that men in the modeling department barely escaped by jumping out of the windows. Energetic measures prevented the flames extending to the docks.

Employees of the Bromley Metal works at Moscow, to the number of 1,000, at a mass meeting declared that they were unable to continue at work because their St. Petersburg comrades had asked them to strike. They immediately left the works, formed a procession, marched through the streets and begged their fellow workmen in all industrial establishments to join in the movement. A majority of those who were thus requested to quit work complied. Afterward the strikers visited the Sytin Printing works, the largest establishment of the kind in Moscow and belonging to the millionaire publisher Sytin, and induced the men employed there to strike.

At midnight, when life in the Russian capital is usually bright, St. Petersburg resembled a city of the dead invaded by a hostile army. The facades of the buildings were black, and every restaurant and place of amusement was closed. The only sound to be heard was the deadened patter of the hoofs of the cavalry horses and the tramp of marching men over the snow as the emperor's legions moved to and fro.

The guards at the palaces of the grand dukes are especially heavy, and over 20,000 troops are massed at Tsarskoe Selo.

Latest dispatches indicate that the city is on the verge of another bloody conflict. The strikers have been pushing on to the Winter palace, meeting resistance at every step. There were some minor clashes, but the mob leaders have held their men in check, although all are in a sullen mood and ready for fight.

The czar's capital looks like a huge bivouac, camp fires being lighted on almost every corner, while troops patrolled the streets.

TUCKER TRIAL AT CAMBRIDGE.

Murder Case Will Be Given to Jury Today.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 24.—The case of Charles L. Tucker, charged with the murder of Mabel Page, will be given to the jury today. Counsel James H. Vahey finished his final effort in behalf of the prisoner, having occupied four and one-half hours in delivering his argument to the jury.

Attorney General Herbert Parker, for the prosecution, followed with his final summing up. He laid great stress upon falsehoods, with which he charged the prisoner when the latter was questioned in connection with the murder, and asked the jury if it could believe that a person seeking the protection of truth would divert it by telling falsehoods.

In the courtroom was seated nearly every person who has in any way been connected with the case. Mrs. Tucker, the prisoner's mother, accompanied by her son Walter, came into court early, as did Edward Page, father of the murdered girl.

Tucker closely followed the argument of his counsel, but appeared less interested in what the attorney general had to say.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 24.—An ice gorge has formed in north channel, St. Lawrence river, near Farran's point, and the water, settling back, threatens to flood Morrisburg. Efforts are being made to break the gorge with dynamite. South channel is frozen too solid for opening.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find It So.

The hustle and worry of business men,
The hard work and stooping of workmen.
The woman's household cares,
Are too great a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, sideache.
Kidney troubles follow.
A Plainfield citizen tells you how to cure them all.

O. H. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache as bad in damp weather or when I caught a cold, that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the trouble. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box."

Wife Testified as to Prisoner's Actions on Night of Murder.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 24.—At the Hotaling murder trial here Mrs. Hotaling testified under cross examination, and the attorneys for the defense failed to shake her story told on direct examination, in which she stated that on the night of the murder Hotaling came home late and soon became abusive and threatened to kill her and their three-year-old blind boy, for whom he had always had such an aversion because of his infirmity that it was necessary to keep the child out of his sight.

She said Hotaling worked himself into a passion, when he said, "Either you or I or that brat has got to die tonight." Later, she said, he threatened to kill both her and the child.

She said that she finally offered to give her husband $100 to leave her for good, to which he agreed. She got the money and gave it to him, when, she said, he called for his revolver. At that she became frightened and ran upstairs and barricaded herself in the hall. She said that her husband then took an ax and chopped a hole through the door, through which he shot at her three times.

She then escaped from the house by climbing down a ladder and ran to a neighbor's, half a mile, in her bare feet, leaving the child in the house. She said her husband had threatened to burn the house, and soon after she reached the neighbor's she saw the light of the burning building, in which the blind child was burned to death.

SMOOT REFUSED TO ANSWER.

Senator Absolutely Declined to Testify as to Endowment Ceremonies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The senate investigation into the protests against Senator Reed Smoot will probably be closed today. The cross examination of the respondent terminated earlier than expected, and several other witnesses for the defense were examined.

The cross examination of Senator Smoot resulted in an absolute refusal to testify in regard to the endowment ceremonies. He also asserted that it was not his business to call to account President Smith of the Mormon church because Mr. Smith had admitted to the committee that he was living in violation of the laws of the land. Three other witnesses refused to divulge the character of the endowment ceremonies.

Chairman Burrows asked Senator Smoot if he taught and preached his faith. He said that he did occasionally.

"Do you teach polygamy?"

"I do not."

"Do you preach against polygamy or unlawful habitation?"

"I never have. I do not know why I should. It is not a tenet of the faith. It has been suspended, and I think it would not be proper for me to bring it up."

Berth For Ex-Governor's Widow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The following statement regarding the nomination of Mrs. Mary G. Stone, to be postmaster at Luka, Miss., has been issued at the White House: "Mrs. Mary G. Stone, whose nomination as postmaster at Luka, Miss., has been sent to the senate, is the widow of the late J. M. Stone, one of the most popular chief executives Mississippi ever had and served as governor for twelve years."

KAMIMURA REJOINS

Japanese Navy Preparing For Russian Attack.

PRISONER'S STORY OF PORT ARTHUR

Russian Admiral at Tokyo Bitterly Attacks Stoessel For Disgrace of Surrender—Army and Navy at Enmity.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—In a dispatch from General Kuropatkin to Emperor Nicholas additional details are given of General Mischtschenko's raid. General Kuropatkin mentions a number of officers who distinguished themselves by bravery before Yinkow and gives the total losses for the four days as 7 officers and 73 men killed and 32 officers and 257 men wounded and 21 men missing. General Kuropatkin says the raid created the greatest alarm in the Japanese rear guard.

A Tokyo dispatch says that Vice Admiral Kamimura has left to rejoin his fleet. It was recently announced that the Russian Vladivostok squadron was believed to have been repaired, and it was thought it might come out at any moment.

The navy department is strenuously preparing for the second stage of the war.

During the past year the Japanese have captured twenty-three blockade runners, of which thirteen were Russian and seven British.

Three hundred officers and 17,511 men, prisoners of war from Port Arthur, have arrived in Japan to date. A majority of them have been sent to Tengachaya and Hamatera.

General Stoessel's last act before leaving Port Artnur was to kneel and say a short prayer and then to kiss the ground he had held for so long and so valiantly defended.

A Tokyo dispatch says that a Russian admiral, who has just joined the prisoners from Port Arthur, now in Japan, has given out an extended statement, covering the defense and surrender of the fortress. He characterizes the surrender before the garrison had reached its extremity as a disgrace, bitterly criticises General Stoessel and lauds General Kondratenko, commander of the Seventh East Siberian Rifle regiment, as the true hero of the defense of Port Arthur.

The admiral says that Vice Admiral Makaroff, who commanded the Russian squadron at Port Arthur and who went down with the battleship Petropavlovsk on April 13, dictated the policy of inactivity on the part of the squadron, taking the ground that it would be hopeless, owing to the inferiority of the Russian naval strength, to engage the fleet of Vice Admiral Togo and that it would be unwise to divide the force defending Port Arthur by running ships to Vladivostok or to neutral ports. The admiral admits that bitter friction existed between the army and the navy and intimates that there is a probability of inquiry into this matter by court martial. He insists that the Russians destroyed their warships at Port Arthur beyond any possibility of salvage by the Japanese. The statement follows:

"The first Japanese naval attack on Port Arthur was an absolute surprise to both the Russian army and navy. I admired the manner in which the Japanese handled their ships and the remarkable way in which they concealed their movements, but they erred on the side of caution. If in this first attack they had launched all their torpedo boat flotilas against the Russian ships, which were in a condition of unpreparedness, instead of sending in only a few vessels, they could have executed a disastrous coup de main by destroying practically every ship in the harbor at an early stage in the war.

"General Stoessel, who was in absolute command of the fortress, vigorously opposed the naval policy. He maintained that, despite the unpreparedness of the fortress, Port Arthur could easily be defended by troops armed only with rifles.

"The capitulation of Two Hundred and Three Meter hill sealed the fate of the Russian squadron, which had previously been able by constantly shifting its anchorage to protect the ships.

"The fight for the possession of the hill was the most desperate of the siege. For ten days and nights the Japanese assaulted continuously and bombarded unceasingly.

"The entire crest of the hill was torn away, while our defenses were literally blown away. Hand to hand the garrison fought for days and nights in unprotected trenches, which were half filled with the dead, under a shell fire. The time came when we realized that the sending of re-enforcements simply consigned brave men needlessly and hopelessly to death. Then only did the Japanese take the position.

"From Two Hundred and Three Meter hill the Japanese observed every movement of the Russian squadron. They were able to place the shells in any part of the harbor and to sink our ships. The plunging fire of the Japanese eleven inch howitzers was disastrously effective. In several instances these projectiles landed in decks of the battleships and went down clear through their bottoms.

"When the news that General Stoessel had sent a letter to General Nogi offering to surrender reached the navy we realized the necessity of destroying our ships beyond the possibility of their use by the Japanese. Accordingly, on the night of Jan. 1, every vessel in the harbor was ordered to be torpedoed several times in the engines, boilers, shafts and funnels. It was a hard night's work, but the Japanese will never be able to utilize a single ship of our navy at Port Arthur."

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 24, 1905.

By the way—Has anybody heard of Port Arthur lately?

That prisoner in the city court yesterday who swore off on whiskey but stuck to beer must be a firm believer in the simple life.

Governor Stokes says New Jersey is in danger of becoming dryer each year. Guess he doesn't know the saloon hours over the brook.

Senator Layden, of Passaic, has introduced a bill calling for a fine of $200 or imprisonment, for those carrying concealed weapons He evidently wants to stagnate the razor industry. On second thought, suppose the women will keep on wearing hatpins.

The whole civilized world today gasps in horror at the magnitude of the crime of the Russian government, but there are those who see in the pure Muscovy blood that reddened the snow in the streets of St. Petersburg, the beginning of Russian freedom. The revolt of the weaponless rabble may have been suppressed but revolution in Russia has begun. The time will come when even in St. Petersburg a monument will rise to these martyrs who laid down their lives for their countrymen's liberty. Sometimes Progress comes white robed, like Peace, with a flaming glory about her. And when she passes, the heart of man grows deeper and new life and new aspirations stir in his blood; a sense of freedom possesses him and he rises in his strength like a giant refreshed in sleep The blood shed Sunday has broken the tie between the Czar and his people and will never be restored. The people see him in his true colors and the knowledge of what he has done will spread to the remotest corner of the empire even though there is no free press. The revolution will be a matter of years, not of days, but Russia is far nearer to freedom than it was last week.

HIGH BRIDGE HAS A REMARKABLE LAKE

FOLKS SAY IT'S HAUNTED AND ARE QUITE SOME "AFEARED."

There is a remarkable sight on the ice at Silver Lake, near High Bridge, and local scientists are at their wits' ends for a satisfactory explanation. A curiously marked formation of ice appears on the surface. The general report is that the lake is haunted. Few will venture near it at night.

A week ago icemen harvested the ice from the lake, using horses and ploughs and saws in the usual manner. They took the ice away cleanly. Another sheet soon formed. This is now six inches thick and transparent. Although no workmen have been engaged on the new ice, the latest coating is full of lines in the form of squares and much like the cuttings that were made for the first crop. The ice bears no signs of mutilation, and the lines are shadowy.

When the first crop was harvested one of the horses cast a shoe, and it lay on the ice for several days, becoming imbedded there. On the new ice the mark of the horseshoe can plainly be seen. One man says he has discovered a place in the ice where a form can be seen which, to him, resembles John Kelley, who was drowned in the lake last summer. His body was not found for several weeks, when it finally came to the surface.

At Annandale (also in this part of the county of "peaches and cream") is located the big milk receiving and bottling plant of Marchant Bros.' Plainfield Milk and Cream Co. On the new ice formed on the pond used in connection with this plant, the same curious phenomenon is seen, the marks of ice flow being plainly visible, although this second crop of ice has never been so marked by any human agency.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

The regular monthly meeting of the stewards of the Methodist church was held last night, and considerable important business was transacted. This is one of the most important meetings of the year, and the one last night was of particular importance on account of the fact that a discussion of the plans for the new pastor, who will arrive the first Sunday in April, took place. For the present there will be no change in the parsonage, though it is rumored that the stewards are contemplating a change of houses. Rev. S. K. Deolittle will fill the pulpit up to April 2. The Methodist conference takes place during the week beginning on that date, and it will not be until then that the present pastor will know definitely of the location of his next charge.

According to the latest reports of the builders, the addition to the plant of Levering & Garrigues' will be completed about April 1, and will be ready for occupancy by that time. The work is necessarily slow in the prevailing weather conditions, but the laborers are progressing rapidly with the structure, and in all probability the coming season will see a thriving business started in the new factory. It is expected that a large force of extra hands will be taken on in the spring.

Thomas Bedine has sworn out a warrant for the arrest of four boys whom he alleges disturbed the congregation of the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening by shouting outside the door. The charge is denied by the four youths whose names are withheld. They were outside the church during the service but "made no commotion or disturbance at any time during the evening," is the version which the supposed offenders put upon the matter.

Another touch of freezing weather has set the ice cutting machines at work again, and in all probability the houses will be filled this year in spite of the predictions that the crop would be a bad one. Last year two crops were gathered from New Market pond, as it froze over thickly twice during the winter. This year the harvesters will be content if they get the best out of the first crop.

F. C. Cannon, the superintendent who has had charge of the work in the coal chutes at the Central Railroad yards, having completed his work, has returned to New York, where he is preparing to take charge of a contract which the firm, Snare & Triest, has in Cuba.

Miss Edith VanDoren and her mother, Mrs. Gilbert VanDoren, of Somerville, who have been visiting Mrs. J. J. Belard, have recently returned to their home after a week's sojourn in the borough.

Paul Brakeley and Howard Craig are prominent members of the Plainfield High School hockey team. The latter is captain of the team and the former is playing cover point.

Albert Doolittle, of the borough, has accepted a position in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The work is at Jersey City.

Charles Corielli, who has been confined to his home by an attack of the grip, is now much improved and is able to be about again.

Miss Ethel Scarsborough, of Philadelphia, has been visiting friends in this borough.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The public would again welcome the stationing of an officer at Park avenue and the trolley, if only on duty Sundays. Sunday afternoon one of Plainfield's regular Sunday visitors to town, standing unsteadily between the trolley tracks, invited all that end of town to come on and get licked. No one accepted the invitation, as the residents of the 'Plains neither work or play on the Lord's day. Failing to find a victim he took the first car for town. While on the way down he made an attempt to embrace a woman passenger on the car and was only prevented by one of the male passengers interfering and threatening to break his neck if he attempted to repeat the offense. The conductor was asked to put him off the car, but he said: "The man paid his fare and is entitled to ride unless he becomes a nuisance." Attempting to embrace women patrons of the road is not a disorderly act in the eyes of this conductor at least. When the car arrived at Plainfield, the conductor, to protect himself, reported that he had a "drunk" on board and asked for instructions. He was told not to attempt to put him off unless he became disorderly, as the company is not encouraging any suits for damages. This is only one case of the pleasure of a Sunday trolley trip on the Elizabeth line of the Public Service Corporation. Children and women are compelled to witness such scenes every Sunday afternoon and night.

The women interested in the Public Library are arranging to hold a cake and fancy goods sale for the benefit of the Library. No date has been set yet but it will probably be held during the early part of February.

The Suburban A. C., of the borough, is arranging to hold a club dance Tuesday night, February 7. Roy Day is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Gray Brothers, the local breeders of fancy poultry, have taken seventeen ribbons with their entries at the several State fairs and poultry shows held last year.

The local bowling team will go to Dunellen tonight to roll the Dunellen team on Taylor's alleys. A number from town will accompany the team.

Harry Schaffer, who has been in Philadelphia for several weeks erecting a press for The Walter Scott Company, returned home Saturday.

Miss Mattie Hull, of Plainfield, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hull, of East Front street.

Charles Elliott, who is taking a course at Rutgers College, spent Saturday and Sunday at his home.

The contract case of Jackson against Darby will be tried in Justice Clark's court this afternoon.

Fanwood Council, R. A., holds its semi-monthly meeting tonight, in the Library rooms.

Rev. G. M. Shott has returned from a visit with out-of-town friends.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The annual observance of prayer for the students in all institutions of learning and particularly for the denominational schools at Hightstown and Bridgeton, in this State, will take place at the prayer meeting at the Baptist church this evening. The pastor will make an address relative to the subject.

W. H. Poole, who for several years has resided between this place and Oak Tree, died Saturday morning, after a lingering illness. The funeral service was held last night at 7 o'clock at the home. The interment will take place in Brooklyn, N. Y.

C. C. Gardner, of Newark, is making inquiry here through the records of the local Baptist church relating to the family of David Martin, whose interment took place in the Samptown cemetery in the year 1800, aged seventy-four years.

Mrs. Bethune Dunham was somewhat better yesterday, the fever having left her. Her friends are hopeful for her recovery from her serious attack of pneumonia

Joseph M. Stierer, of this place, has purchased the property of John Benner, at Fanwood. The consideration is said to have been $5,000.

George Ryno, who has been in poor health for a year or two past, was taken seriously ill Saturday.

William Hamilton visited his mother at Ford's Sunday. She has been quite sick for several days.

—The contract case of Charles M. Young against Louise and S. R. Bacon, for the amount of $300, will be tried before Justice Smalley on January 30. Francis J. Blatz will represent the plaintiff in the case, which is one of note.

SEA HAS GROWN DEEPER.

Level of the Mediterranean Nine Feet Above That During Old Roman Times.

The phenomenon of the changes in the level of the sea is one which is well shown in the case of the Mediterranean. M. Ph. Negris, in a recent brochure presented to the Academy of Sciences, furnishes interesting information on this point, it being apparent that the sea has greatly increased in depth as compared to ancient times. Formerly a bridge 3,000 feet long united Leucade to the continent. To-day it is submerged, but the foundations of the work were discovered, 11 feet beneath the surface. It may therefore be concluded that since the construction of the bridge the sea has risen at this point over nine feet At Itea, in the Bay of Amphissa, there has been observed a mole that is also over nine feet beneath the surface. At Rhenee there has been found a completely submerged dock, evidently of Roman construction, the depth of the sea above the dock at places being fully nine feet. From all of these facts one may conclude that there has taken place an important increase in the depth of the sea since the Roman period, the Mediterranean having risen at least nine feet in 2,000 years.

TOLSTOI BOYS FIGHT JAPS.

Although the Count Is Denouncer of Present War, Sons Are with Russians.

Count Tolstoi, social reformer, abhors all wars and denounces the particular war which is now raging between Russia and Japan, yet three sons of his have quit the wolf trails to go man-hunting in the far east. The eldest boy and a brother are camped with the army of Kuropatkin, having been at the front for several months. The youngest son not long ago declared his intention of volunteering and already may have donned the uniform of a soldier of the czar. This action has affected the aged count greatly and he has been seen to weep. The war has brought unusal family dissension into the Tolstoi household. The countess is utterly at variance with her husband on account of his denunciation of the conflict. Only Tatyana, the eldest daughter, adheres to her father's views and seeks to give him solace. Tatyana is a gifted woman. The Tolstoi essay against war, published in the London Times, was only sketched out by the count. His daughter filled out the draft and gave it the literary finish.

TEPEE OF BIRCH BARK.

It Is Fast Disappearing from the Northern Woods as a Place of Indian Habitation.

Augusta, Me.—Although the Indian is fast disappearing from this country, which only a few years since, as time goes, he possessed in its entirety, recent examples of his handicraft are still met with.

New England has numerous Indians, and in Maine their canoes, and occasionally their tepees, can be seen, made in the same fashion as when the red man lived in the forest and paddled the lakes and streams unmolested.

Both the canoe and the tepee are becoming rare, however, for the canvas canoe of to-day is more durable than the Indian's birch bark craft, while the tepee is no longer used by the Indian as a place of habitation.

In the north woods the skill of the Indian builder is still expressed, however, in tepees made for white cottagers and campers. Indeed, the white guides can now make a tepee as skillfully as an Indian, and not a few of the tepees seen in the woods are built by white men.

At Rangeley lake a number of the camps of summer residents have tepees made of birch bark on their grounds. The one pictured here is near the camp of a well-known Portland manufacturer. It represents the best style of the Maine Indian in the construction of this kind of dwelling.

Under almost any conditions of weather it would make a habitation in the woods by no means uncomfortable, and a man might even spend a northern winter in it without suffering.

OLD ONE-HORSE SHAY.

One in Massachusetts That Is Now Nearly a Century Old and a Curiosity.

Boston.—The old one-horse shay, known as the Thompson chaise, having been in the possession of that well-known Kennebunkport family for almost a century, is now the property of Dr. John S. Mason, of Boston.

Dr. Mason, who is an admirer of antiques, would not part with it for any money. It is in perfect condition, and is seen daily on the streets of Saco and Biddeford whenever its owner is at his old home in Saco.

The chaise was bought almost 100 years ago by Capt. Robert Smith, of Kennebunkport, and at that time was the finest carriage made. Shortly after it came into the possession of Capt. Benjamin F. Thompson, of the same town. The latter was in the nineties when he died. The vehicle, with wheels as large and heavy as those of a dumpcart, later passed into the possession of Postmaster Stackpole, and then was bought by Dr. Mason.

Insect's Gigantic Meal.

No very recent estimates of the loss arising from the ravages of insects have been made save a general statement of the boll weevil's work, but some of the older estimates are here given. Twenty-five years ago B. D. Walsh, the entomologist of Illinois, estimated the loss from this source at from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 per annum. Fitch, the entomologist from New York, estimated the damage to the wheat crop in this state in the year 1854 by the wheat midge at $15,000,000. The loss to wheat and corn on account of the chinchbug in the state of Illinois alone in 1867 was estimated at $73,000,000. The loss occasioned in 1874 to corn, vegetables and other crops by the Rocky mountain locust in the states of Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri was estimated by Riley from carefully collected data at $100,000,000. The ravages in the principal cotton states of the cotton worm have amounted to a loss of about $30,000,000 in years of abundance.

Criminal Statistics.

A French professor has been inquiring into the comparative criminality of the professions. He finds that the convictions for every 100,000 of each are as follows: Lawyers, 100; artists, 39; doctors, 23; lay teachers, 10; clerical teachers, 7; Catholic clergy, 4. What have the poor journalists done?

A CURE FOR DESERTERS.

Gen. Chaffee Recommends Disfranchisement for Men Who Unlawfully Quit the Army.

Washington.—Complete disfranchisement for all army deserters, unless a lawful discharge is earned by subsequent service, is the recommendation of Lieut. Gen. Chaffee in his annual report. It is the general's opinion that if the states would pass such a law desertions in the army would become less frequent. On this subject Gen. Chaffee says:

"If all the states and territories should by law withhold from deserters exercise of the right to vote at national, state and municipal elections, unless

GEN. ADNA R. CHAFFEE.
He Would Disfranchise Every Deserter from the Army.

the act of desertion be atoned for by lawful discharge subsequently earned by service, it seems probable that the most healthful remedy practicable would be applied to the evil and that the result would be surprisingly great. The majority of deserters would return to the colors at their own expense and serve out their unexpired enlistment contracts in order to receive a lawful discharge, which would reestablish their civil status."

Gen. Chaffee says that inquiry of men in guard houses on his tour of inspection elicited no special reason for desertion, the general reply being that army life was not what had been anticipated. He believes the adoption of his suggestion would relieve military prisons of two-thirds of their occupants.

"While I fail to find anything in the administrative action of company officers," says Gen. Chaffee, "to account for the large number of desertions, I believe it to be a fact that much inexperience, as now, in command of companies affects this subject somewhat. Character, habits, aptitude, differ widely among men upon entering the army, and it is the skill of the experienced officer, with his intelligent sympathy, his counsel and admonition, rather than mechanical enforcement of the articles of war, that best harmonize these varying elements and secure contentment of young soldiers in companies and the service.

"The government provides liberally in the matter of clothing and food, and constructs splendid barracks, fitted with all modern appliances for health and comfort. At no post is the fatigue duty excessive—generally speaking it is light—and, all in all, the soldier is getting everything that under the laws could in reason be asked.

"For many years the numerous desertions from the army have deeply interested the department, and seemingly every possible effort has been made to discover an administrative cause. No serious fault exists not inherent in man himself; therefore it is not susceptible of military control and correction.

"Trial, conviction and punishment by dishonorable discharge and confinement for one, two or three years of the few deserters who are apprehended or surrender themselves have, in my opinion, but slight influence as a restraining force on the service generally."

balls given in honor of the king and queen of Italy when visiting the German court. The kaiser, a few days ago, when walking with the crown prince and his fiancee through Babelsberg park informed the crown prince that the castle, after being put in order, will be habitable in 1906. Several enlargements have been found necessary. A new wing with a dining hall for 150 persons and new stalls for about 50 horses are projected.

Company Refused Payment.

A thrifty housekeeper in Birmingham, England, forgot about a joint of meat she had placed in the oven, and it was burnt to a cinder. She claimed compensation of an insurance company, stating that the loss was caused by fire.

SPRING MODES.

A Peep Into the Future—The Ubiquitous Shirt Waist.

Gravely we have listened to the authorities when they told us that separate and shirt waists are entirely out of style, but here we have in the newest of the spring garments the largest and the prettiest stock of such things I have ever seen. And the style varies with every one of them. Some have regular Garibaldi straps down the shoulders, while others show set straps all the way down the sleeves, starting from the neck band. The bishop sleeve still holds its own and is apparently better liked than any other. There are slight differences, such as wide or narrow cuffs and full gathered tops or tucked ones. Some sleeves have three and four puffs ending in a ruffle of some kind, lace generally.

The leg o' mutton sleeve is back to stay, and between it and the big baggy bishop sleeve the leg o' mutton is to be chosen. A novelty in a sleeve of this kind is shown in the illustration. The upper part of the sleeve is cut very snug, and it is therefore open from the bend of the elbow down and buttons all along. The line of buttons comes just back of the seam, and as the buttons are brighter than the material they form a sort of trimming. The waist of which this sleeve is the adjunct is of coin spotted velutina in a deep, rich damson prune. It is cut away at the neck and has a wide band of plain black velutina, this overlaid with point lace. Still above this is the chemisette of lace over an inset of cream silk. The belt is a crush affair, built on the tight foundation.

For an afternoon tea there is a dainty device in the form of a light printed silk with deliciously vague designs in tints and colors on a white ground. This has a yoke simulated by shirrings, in which fine pipings are run and drawn up in such a way as to outline the yoke. The top is finished with a lace stock, and the cuffs are made in the same way. The sleeves are plain bishop. The shirring at the top and the gathers at the bottom of the waist mold the waist to the form, and a shirred belt finishes it.

For evening there are many designs of waists of different materials. One had a short Eton of plaits of light figured silk over plain satin to match the material in the skirt. The sleeves were of the figured silk, with lace at the elbow.

Some of the street costumes have separate waists, cut in various styles. One, which was developed in several different materials and colors, had a regular basque shape and extended ten or twelve inches below the belt. The back was shirred in the center at the waist line and along the sides to the front, which was open to show a lace vest front, with a narrow pointed belt. The revers were of a soft shade of tan to match the lightest shade in the brocade of the basque. This also had bishop sleeves, with lace cuffs.

For more ordinary requirements we may find hundreds of different waists, mostly on the shirt waist plan. These have plaits somehow or somewhere. In one instance I noticed a dainty waist of white wash silk, with three hemstitched tucks just above the belt running around the waist, while at the shoulders there were three lengthwise tucks. The sleeves, just at the elbow, had three tucks each an inch wide and were finished in bishop form, with lace cuffs.

In the mercerized cheviot we find many very stylish and comparatively inexpensive waists. The general plan of these is to have three tucks on each side of the front and a wide center ornamented with several fancy buttons and stitching. There are tucks at the tops and bottoms of the sleeves, which are always bishop. Stocks are made to match or fancy stocks may be worn. The plaits are narrow in these and do not reach very far down.

Another pleasing general fashion is the waist with wide box plaits which reach from shoulder to waist line—one on each side, one in the middle in front and two in the back. A plain lace stock finishes these prettily. The sleeves are bishop and simply gathered at the shoulder and wrist. Lace cuffs, of course.

Aside from these waists there are so many that no one could tell all about them, but a woman can have any kind of a waist she wants if she will bear in mind that there is little pouching in the front. There is a certain amount of fullness, but it is evenly distributed.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Loring stood aside and put up his eye-glasses. It was his first sight near at hand of the untrammeled west in puris naturalibus, and he was finding the spectacle both instructive and diverting. Looking to Kent for fellowship he saw that his companion was holding himself stiffly aloof; also, he remarked that none of the boisterous partisans flung a word of recognition in Kent's direction.

"Don't you know any of them?" he asked.

Kent's reply was lost in the deep-chested bull-bellow of a cattleman from Rio Blanco.

"Hold on a minute, boys, before you scatter! Line up here and let's give three cheers and a tail-twister for next-Governor Bucks! Now, then—everybody! Hip, hip——"

The ripping crash of the cheer jarred Loring's eye-glasses from their hold, and he replaced them with a smile. Four times the ear-splitting shout went up, and as the echoes of the "tiger" trailed off into silence the stentorian voice was lifted again.

"Good enough! Now, then, three groans for the land syndicates, alien mortgagees, and the Western Pacific railroad, by grabs! and to hell with 'em!"

The responsive clamor was a thing to be acutely remembered—sustained, long-drawn, vindictive; a nerve-wrenching pandemonium of groans, yelpings and cat-calls, in the midst of which the partisans shuffled into loose marching order and tramped away townward.

"That answers your question, doesn't it?" said Kent, smiling sourly. "If not, I can set it out for you in words. The Western Pacific is the best-hated corporation this side of the Mississippi, and I am its local attorney."

"I don't envy you," said Loring. "I had no idea the opposition crystalized itself in any such concrete ill will. You must have the whole weight of public sentiment against you in any railroad litigation."

"I do," said Kent, simply. "If every complainant against us had the right to pack his own jury, we couldn't fare worse."

"What is at the bottom of it? Is it our pricking of the Gaston bubble by building on to the capital?"

"Oh, no; it's much more personal to these shouters. As you may, or may not know, our line—like every other western railroad with no competition—has for its motto, 'All the tariff the traffic will stand,' and it bleeds the country accordingly. But we are forgetting your train. Shall we go and see how late it is?"

CHAPTER II.

A MAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Train Number Three, the Western Flyer, was late, as Kent had predicted—just how late the operator could not tell; and pending the chalking-up of its arriving time on the bulletin board, the two men sat on an empty baggage-truck and smoked in companionable silence.

While they waited, Loring's thoughts were busy with many things, friendly solicitude for the exile serving as the point of departure. He knew what a handfast friend might know: how Kent had finished his post-graduate course in the law and had succeeded to his father's small practice in the New Hampshire county town where he was born and bred. Also, he knew how Kent's friends, college friends who knew his gifts and ability, had deprecated the burial; and he himself had been curious enough to pay Kent a visit to spy out the reason why. On their first evening together in the stuffy little law office which had been his father's, Kent had made a clean breast of it: there was a young woman in the case, and a promise passed before Kent had gone to college. She was a farmer's daughter, with no notion for a change of environment; wherefore she had determined Kent's career and the scene of it, laying its lines in the narrow field of her own choosing.

Later, as Loring knew, the sentimental anchor had dragged until it was hopelessly holding ground. The young woman had laid the blame at the door of the university, had given Kent a bad half-year of fault-finding and recrimination, and had finally made an end of the matter by bestowing her dowry of hillside acres on the son of a neighboring farmer.

Thereafter Kent had stagnated quietly, living with simple rigor the life he had marked out for himself; thankful at heart, Loring had suspected, for the timely intervention of the farmer's son, but holding himself well in hand against a repetition of the sentimental offense. All this until the opening of the summer hotel at the foot of Old Croydon, and the coming of Elinor Brentwood.

No one knew just how much Miss Brentwood had to do with the long-delayed awakening of David Kent; but in Loring's forecastings she enjoyed the full benefit of the doubt. From tramping the hills alone, or whipping the streams for brook trout, David had taken to spending his afternoons with lover-like regularity at the Croydon Inn; and at the end of the season had electrified the sleepy home town by declaring his intention to go west and grow up with the country.

In Loring's setting-forth of the awakening, the motive was not far to seek. Miss Brentwood was ambitious, and if her interest in Kent had been only casual she would not have been likely to point him to the wider battle-field. Again, apart from his modest patrimony, Kent had only his profession. The Brentwoods were not rich, as riches measured in millions; but they lived in their own house in the Back Bay wilderness, moved in Boston's older substantial circle, and, in a world where success, economic or other, is in some sort the touchstone, were many social planes above a country lawyer.

Loring knew Kent's fierce poverty-pride—none better. Hence, he was at no loss to account for the exile's flight afield, or for his unhopeful present attitude. Meaning to win trophies to lay at Miss Brentwood's feet, the present stage of the rough joust with Fortune found him unhorsed, unweaponed and rolling in the dust of the lists.

Loring chewed his cigar reflectively, wishing his companion would open the way to free speech on the subject presumably nearest his heart. He had a word of comfort, negative comfort to offer, but it might not be said until Kent should give him leave by taking the initiative. Kent broke silence at last, but the prompting was nothing more pertinent that the chalking-up of the delayed train's time.

"An hour and twenty minutes: that means any time after nine o-clock. I'm honestly sorry for you, Grantham—sorry for anyone who has to stay in this charnel-house of a town ten minutes after he's through. What will you do with yourself?"

Loring got up, looked at his watch, and made a suggestion, hoping that Kent would fall in with it.

"I don't know. Shall we go back to your rooms and sit awhile?"

The exile's eyes gloomed suddenly.

"Not unless you insist upon it. We should get back among the relics and I would bore you. I'm not the man you used to know, Grantham."

"No?" said Loring. "I sha'n't be hypocritical enough to contradict you. Nevertheless, you are my host. It is for you to say what you will do with me until train time."

"We can kill an hour at the rally, if you like. You have seen the street parade and heard the band play: it is only fair that you should see the menagerie on exhibition."

Loring found his match-box and made a fresh light for his cigar.

"It's pretty evident that you and 'next-Governor' Bucks are on opposite sides of the political fence," he observed.

"We are. I should think a good bit less of myself than I do—and that's needless—if I trained in his company."

"Yet you will give him a chance to make a partizan of me? Well, come along. Politics are not down on my western programme, but I'm here to see all the new things."

The Gaston opera house was a survival of the flush times, and barring a certain tawdriness from disuse and neglect, and a rather garish effect which marched evenly with the brick-and-terra-cotta fronts in Texas street and the American-Tudor cottages of the suburbs, it was a creditable relic. The auditorium was well filled in pit, dress-circle and gallery when Kent and his guest edged their way through the standing committee in the foyer; but by dint of careful searching they succeeded in finding two seats well around to the left, with a balcony pillar to separate them from their nearest neighbors.

Measured by the standard of fitness for his office of prolocutor the man standing beside the stage-properties speaker's desk was worthy a second glance. He was dark, undersized, trimly built; with a Vandyke beard clipped closely enough to show the lines of a bull-dog jaw, and eyes that had the gift, priceless to the public speaker, of seeming to hold every onlooking eye in the audience. Unlike his backers in the awkward semi-circle, he wore a professional long coat; and the hands that marked his smoothly flowing sentences were slim and shapely.

"Who is he?" asked Loring, in an aside to Kent.

"Stephen Hawk, the ex-district attorney: boomer, pettifoger, promoter—a charter member of the Gaston wolf-pack. A man who would persuade you into believing in the impeccability of Satan in one breath, and knife you in the back for a ten-dollar bill in the next," was the rejoinder.

Loring nodded, and again became a listener. Hawk's speech was merely introductory, and it was nearing its peroration.

"Fellow citizens, this occasion is as auspicious as it is significant. When the people rise in their might to say to tyranny in whatsoever form it oppresses them, 'Thus far and no farther shalt thou go,' the night is far spent and the light is breaking in the east.

"Since the day when we first began to wrest with compelling hands the natural riches from the soil of this our adoptive state, political trickery in high places, backed by the puissant might of alien corporations, has ground us into the dust.

"But now the time of our deliverance is at hand. Great movements give birth to great leaders; and in this, our holy crusade against oppression and tyranny, the crises has bred the man. Ladies and gentlemen, I have the pleasure of presenting to you the speaker of the evening: our friend and fellow citizen the Honorable Jasper G. Bucks, by the grace of God, and your suffrages, the next governor of the state."

In the storm of applause that burst upon the dramatic peroration of the ex-district attorney, a man rose from the center of the stage semicircle and lumbered heavily forward to the footlights. Loring's first emotion was of surprise, tempered with pity. The crisis-born leader, heralded by such a flourish of rhetorical trumpets, was a giant in size; but with his huge figure, unshapely and ill-clad, all promise of greatness seemed to pause.

His face, broad-featured, colorless, and beardless as a boy's was either a blank or an impenetrable mask. There was no convincement in the lack-luster gaze of the small, porcine eyes; no eloquence in the harsh, nasal tones of the untrained voice, or in the ponderous and awkward wavings of the beam-like arms. None the less, before he had uttered a dozen halting sentences he was carrying the audience with him step by step; moving the great concourse of listeners with his commonplace periods as a mellifluous Hawk could never hope to move it.

Explain it as he might, Loring soon assured himself that the Honorable Jasper G. Bucks was laying hold of the sentiment of the audience as though it were a thing tangible to be grasped by the huge hands. Unlike Hawk, whose speech flamed easily into denunciation when it touched on the alien corporations, he counseled moderation and lawful reprisals. Land syndicates, railroads, foreign capital in whatever employment, were prime necessities in any new and growing commonwealth. The province of the people was not to wreck the ship, but to guide it. And the remedy for all ills lay in controlling legislation, faithfully and rigidly enforced.

"My friends: I'm only a plain, hard-handed farmer, as those of you who are my fellow townsmen can testify. But I've seen what you've seen, and I've suffered what you've suffered. Year after year we send our representatives to the legislature, and what comes of it? Why, these corporations, looking only to their own interests, as they're in duty bound to do, buys 'em if they can. You can't blame 'em for that; it's business—their business. But it is our business, as citizens of this great commonwealth, to prevent it. We have good laws on our statute books, but we need more of 'em; laws for control, with plain, honest men at the capital, in the judiciary, in every root and branch of the executive, to enforce 'em. With such laws, and such men to see that they are executed, there would'nt be any more extortion, any more raising of the rates of transportation on the produce of our ranches and farms merely because the eastern market for that particular product happened to jump a few cents on the dollar.

"No, my friends; plain, hard-handed farmer though I be, I can see what will follow an honest election of the people, by the people, and for the people. The state can be—it ought to be—sovereign within its own boundaries. If we rise up as one man next Tuesday and put a ticket into the ballot-box that says we are going to make it so, and keep it so, you'll see a new commodity tariff put into effect on the Western Pacific railroad the day after."

The speaker paused, and into the little gap of silence barked a voice from the gallery.

"That's what you say. But supposin' they don't do it?"

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

TO BUILD A NEW NAVY.

American Undertakes Big Shipbuilding Contract for Russian Empire.

New York.—Mr. Lewis Nixon, of New York, will leave for Sevastopol about February 1 to undertake the gigantic task of creating for Russia a navy so powerful that when it takes the seas there no doubt will be felt at St. Petersburg as to its ability to wrest the power of the sea away from the Japanese and eventually crush the mikado.

It will be recalled that Mr. Nixon made a trip to St. Petersburg last summer, returning about July, and at that time it was reported that he was to build four torpedo boat destroyers for Russia. It is said here that he has constructed many more torpedo boats and destroyers than that, and in proof it is said that the contract that he brought home with him called for 90 of these small craft, says the Herald, of this city. This contract he has filled, and the mosquito fleet is ready for the czar. The boats are all either on their way or have been delivered at various Russian ports.

LEWIS NIXON.
He Has Undertaken to Build a New Navy for Russia.

But Russia was not willing to stop there, or to rely entirely on the Baltic fleet, which she is now sending in two squadrons, to become a new Pacific squadron. She realized that the Japanese were splendid fighters on sea as well as on land, and she decided to have other squadrons to follow those now en route, in case these should fail.

To meet this emergency it is decided to build on the Black sea a fleet which should be able to cope with any force the Japanese could muster. Accordingly arrangements have been made for the construction, under the personal supervision of Lewis Nixon, in home Russian waters, of 100 fighting ships, ranging from torpedo boat destroyers and cruisers of all classes up to the heavily armored battleships.

This work must be done within two years, and it is to be assumed that Russia does not expect to see the war end until after the lapse of that time. To accomplish this in the given time the great ship building plant of Russia, at Sevastopol, has been greatly augmented and improved. It is now considered the third largest ship yard in the world. Much in the way of making ready has already been done. The enormous plant on the Black sea will be under the charge of Mr. Nixon, and he will take with him to fill the great order 7,000 skilled American artisans. These workmen will be transported half way around the world to fill the largest order for warships ever given.

How the new Russian navy will get out of the Black sea, through the Dardanelles without complications with Turkey and Europe is a matter which at this time does not enter into the problem.

AMERICA'S OLDEST BUILDING

It Was Erected Shortly After the First Landing of the Spaniards in Florida.

St. Augustine, Fla.—The oldest house in America is in this city. This building, by comparison with the winter resort hotels in this town, is not a pretentious structure, but when it was built it was undoubtedly one of the principal structures of the town.

It is built of coquina rock, a mixture of sand and shell, which is the same material used in the building of the Ponce de Leon hotel and the Alcazar.

It is not known in what year this building was put up, but it was shortly after the landing of the Spanish, which was on the 8th of September, 1565.

The building is in a fairly good state of preservation. The interior is beautifully finished in highly polished wood.

It was occupied by the Spanish officials during the time Florida was a Spanish colony, and was later the home of the attorney general during the English possession. It is not now inhabited.

New Patent Law.

At present patents are granted in Great Britain at the inventors' risk, but a new act provides for a search of the patent office for 50 years back to see whether the applicant for a patent has been forestalled in his ideas. This will make British patents worth a good deal more than they have been.

The Present War demonstrates the value of preparation. Its lesson to you should be to carry Life Insurance in preparation for your family's future support.

The management has secured permission to use the gymnasium, which is not occupied in the day time, and the week is divided between the Whittier School players, and the teams of the Girls' Athletic Association of the P. H. S. Each have three days a week. Since the High School girls have been using the gym, they have been able to start their schedule of games, and the contests between the "reds" and the "blues," two teams which are rivals in the school, have begun.

DIAMOND DUST.

The success of the Lackawanna Baseball League cannot be determined until each team comes up with the forfeit money.

Princeton claims to be short of heavy hitters this year and long on good twirlers. That has usually been the fault at New Haven.

Jack O'Neil, the favorite catcher for the Orange A. C., is reported to have said that he is through with professional baseball and will remain with Orange. Last season he helped Jersey City out of a tight place.

Newton has decided to have a first-class ball team this season. County Clerk O. C. Simpson, of Sussex, is one of the chief promoters. As yet it has not been decided whether to join the Lackawanna League or not.

A Philetus Kenkle, manager for the Morristown-Chatham Baseball Club, promises to present one of strongest aggregations in the State. Westlake, Adams, Curley, Shortell and "Mike" Leonard, are some of those signed, while Wyndham and Charles Speer will compromise the twirling staff. Westlake and Page will do the catching. The latter caught for the old Alis team and was a favorite.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers scored a double success last night, defeating the Newark Bay Club three straight games and placing themselves at the head of the Central Journal League in individual bowling. Wm. Barlow was the one who made the high mark of 247, which is ten points higher than the previous record made by Merrey, of Elizabeth. It was a great match for the Park Club bowlers, the two last games being the highest ever rolled by them in a match game. The bowling was steady and the averages were all good. The visiting team was far below the standard set by the local five, especially in the last two games. Three scores of 200 and over were made by the Parks, while the Newark Bay bowlers were content with a 194 made by Morse. This was the chart of the contest:

PLAINFIELD BOY MADE A THIRD LIEUTENANT

HIGH NAVAL RANK CONFERRED YESTERDAY UPON ERWIN S. COOLEY.

Erwin S. Cooley, son of Dr. and Mrs. Justus H. Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, who has been assistant engineer in the revenue cutter service of Uncle Sam's Navy, during the past six months, has just received his first commission with rank of third lieutenant, by appointment of President Roosevelt and the same has been confirmed by the Senate. The promotion was expected by Mr. Cooley and his parents and it was received with much gratification.

Lieut. Cooley was born here twenty-seven years ago and his first schooling was at John Leal's on West Front street. From there he went to the preparatory school at Swathmore College, where he completed the course and was graduated in the Class of '95. He then entered Cornell University, from which place he was graduated in the Class of '99.

With a view of preparing himself for navy service, he spent three years at the Newport News Shipbuilding Yards under instructions. At the end of that time he took the position of instructor in the marine engineering department at Cornell for one year. Six months ago he received an appointment as assistant engineer in the navy by the treasury department and was assigned to the Revenue Cutter Dexter. According to the rules he had to serve six months before receiving a commission, and this period being up the commission has just been granted. At present the Dexter is at San Juan, Porto Rico, having been sent there for two years. However, Lieut. Cooley is likely to be transferred at any time. When he first entered the navy he was detained at Baltimore on the Dexter where he was engaged making repairs.

STREET SPRINKLING BIDS

Municipal System Unlikely to be Favored by Council.

COST CONSIDERED

City Can Not Do the Work for as Low a Figure as a Contractor it is Argued.

The question of municipal street sprinkling that has been agitating the minds of some of the members of the Common Council, will probably be decided at the next meeting to be held on Monday night, February 6, and from present indications it is quite likely that the Common Council will be willing to contract for the work as during last year. Since the matter has been under discussion, some of the members have learned that it would be more expensive for the city to do the work than to award the contract to the lowest bidder.

Contrary to the rule last year, the Common Council will undoubtedly advertise for bids for the work. This would be in accord with Mayor Buckle's expressed wish as well as that of the Common Council, as now constituted. As it requires a considerable sum to buy horses and other equipment for this work, there is naturally not many persons who are looking for the contract. The first year John E. Keely secured the contract, there was only one other bidder, the Plainfield Cab Company, through James Davis, the manager, and Mr. Keely's bid was the lower. The next year bids were not asked for and Mr. Keely again received the contract. Now the question of municipal street sprinkling has been introduced by Councilman Wilson, chairman of the street committee.

It is understood that a majority of the members of the Common Council are not in favor of the city doing the work unless it can be done more cheaply than at present, and this does not seem to be apparent. In comparison with the cost in other cities, Plainfield seems to be getting the work done as cheap, if not cheaper.

The great obstacle in the way of the city purchasing its own horses and equipment seems to be in having a place large enough to keep them. There are very few places in the city big enough for this purpose and it would be necessary for the city to erect a building at considerable expense.

The question of renewing the contract will come up at the February meeting and those well acquainted with the situation seem to think that the work will be awarded to the one making the lowest bid.

MR. JOY'S LECTURE.

Was Heard By Large Gathering in the First Presbyterian Church.

In spite of the bad weather a large crowd turned out last evening at the "ladies' night," of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church. The affair was a great success, and the lecture by James R. Joy was thoroughly enjoyed. The women of the congregation were especially invited for the social and many attended.

Mr. Joy lectured on his trip through the West, particularly the Yellowstone region, his remarks being illustrated by views. At the conclusion of the lecture, a pleasant social took place, the affair being in charge of Frank Dunning, assisted by a committee.

Entertained Clericus.

Rev. Arthur S. Phelps, of Bound Brook, entertained the Plainfield Clericus at his home, yesterday afternoon. Owing to the stormy weather the attendance was small. Those present from here were Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, Rev. E. M. Rodman, Rev. Arthur S. Peck and Rev. Harris C. Rush, of Westfield. There was an informal discussion of general topics, but no regular paper was presented. Before the clergy departed refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. The place for the next meeting in February was left for the secretary to decide.

Funeral of Mrs. Potter.

The funeral services of Mrs. William H. Potter were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late home at Mt. Pleasant, and were largely attended by friends and neighbors. Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Potter was a member, conducted the service. The interment took place in the family plot at Rahway.

EXPLODING CHEMICALS ENDANGER MAN'S SIGHT

WILLIAM TOTTEN HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM TOTAL BLINDNESS.

Wm. Totten, a well known employe of the Hotel Kensington, narrowly escaped being totally blinded yesterday, by the explosion of a preparation used in forming acetylene gas for the hostelry's illumination. He had been bending over the machinery holding the chemicals when they suddenly burst in his face and his eyes received a large share of the liquid. He was assisted from the basement to an upper floor, where treatment was given him but it was not until today that he was able to see fully.

Mr. Totten's escape was made all the more narrow from the fact that he only has the sight of one eye, the other having been destroyed many years ago while he was an employe of the New Jersey Central, a large piece of coal striking the optic and destroying the pupil.

MUSIC AND ELOCUTION DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE

BENEFIT ENTERTAINMENT AT Y. M. C. A. FOR FRESH AIR WORK.

For the benefit of the Fresh Air Camp at Netherwood and for the work which Miss Currie is conducting among the poor children in New York, an entertainment was held in the Y. M. C. A. last night, which did credit to the artists, and delighted the audience. The entertainers were the Sagamore Musical Club of this city, and Miss Helen Mar Wilson, a talented and attractive elocutionist.

While the young musicians were given their usual hearty reception, Miss Wilson was the life of the entertainment, and her readings were applauded again and again. Her swift change from the merry, prattling child to the fiery, impetuous sternness of tradgedy enables her to fill an entire evening with her own exertions.

The Sagamore Club played three popular selections in its usual apt manner, and responded to several encores. In solo work, Chester H. Briggs, the leader of the club, won much applause. The other members of the club are Monroe Long, Theodore Gavett, S. B. Howe, Jr., mandolins; William Briggs and Gurth Williams, banjos; Charles Eoff, William Gaston and Herbert Smith, violins. Other features of the evening were selections rendered by a professional quartette, while between the numbers, stereopticon illustrations of Miss Currie's headquarters, both in New York and in Netherwood, together with pictures of the children under her care, were thrown upon a screen.

The entertainment was arranged by Albert C. Rogers and he worked unceasingly for its success.

DUNELLEN RESIDENTS WANT TRACKS ELEVATED

SOME CITIZENS INCLINED TO CRITICIZE THE BOROUGH OFFICIALS.

The death of Peter Mohan, who was killed by an express train near the Washington avenue crossing at Dunellen last Tuesday night, has renewed the agitation of having the railroad elevate its tracks through that borough and has caused some comment to be made about members of the Council who are railroad men and two of whom are Democrats. The Mayor is also a Democrat. These officials are charged by some persons with lack of diligence in not urging the railroad to elevate, and that the recent fatalities that have occurred point to the dangers that beset those compelled to cross the tracks daily.

Mayor Wyckoff, who is a railroad employe, said: "In the last year but two persons have been killed by the cars in this town, and in both instances the fatalities would have occurred even though the tracks were elevated to a height of fifty feet."

Held Dance at Seminary.

A company of young married people held a dance at the Seminary last night, there being about fifteen couples. The affair was very informal and similar to those occasionally held there during the winter.

George D. Hallock and family, of North Plainfield, expected to start today for Atlantic City, but the storm may delay their trip for a time.

PURSUED BY ANGRY CROWD

Lively Chase in West End After a New York Man.

FINALLY CAPTURED

Placed in Police Cell on Charge of Attempt Assault—Will Make No Statement.

After he had been pursued by a crowd of angry men and finally captured by Special Policeman Samuel J. Robinson, Irving Washburn, a young man who claims to live in New York, was placed in a cell at police headquarters last night, on a charge of attempted assault on Margaret Walsh, the thirteen-year-old daughter of James Walsh, of Lee place. The men who ran after him were returning employes from the West End factories and for a time the fellow was roughly handled. Robinson stood by his side and kept the more excited ones back while he had the police patrol summoned. When brought to the station, Washburn refused to make any statement, to Chief Kiely's queries simply replying, "I'm up against it." He will be given a hearing before Justice Huff this afternoon.

The Walsh girl was walking on Lee place shortly after 5:30 yesterday afternoon, when Washburn approached and caught hold of her. He made some insulting remarks at the same time and the frightened child made a struggle to escape from his grasp. The proceeding was witnessed by H. F. Hunter, the girl's brother-in-law, from his home and he ran to her assistance, at the same time shouting at the offender.

At the sound of his voice, Washburn sprang away and attempted to escape but the crowd of workmen were at his heels. Others came in from various streets and the fugitive was soon headed off. He was defiant when surrounded and his attitude at least, would have precipitated trouble but for Robinson's intervention. At the time only a few of the men knew what the man was wanted for.

In appearance Washburn is about twenty-five years old and of slight build. After saying that his home is in New York and that yesterday was the first time he had ever been in Plainfield, he became silent and has since remained moody and taciturn. He has retained Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., as counsel.

BOTH HOUSES RE-ELECT JOHN KEAN SENATOR

PLANS TO GIVE HIM A SERENADE OF NECESSITY CALLED OFF.

The two houses of the Legislature voted separately yesterday for a United States Senator to succeed John Kean, whose term is about to expire. Mr. Kean, who was the choice of the Republican joint caucus to succeed himself, received a majority of the votes and will be formally elected to the Senate at a joint session today.

Col. Edwin A. Stevens, of Hudson County, was voted for by the Democrats. The vote in the Senate was: Kean, 14; Stevens, 6. Senator Childs, (Dem.) was absent.

The vote in the House was: Kean, 43; Stevens, 13.

The Union County Republican leaders were preparing to give the Senator a big serenade at his residence, Ursino, tonight. It was the intention to have all the Republican clubs in the county assemble at the party headquarters in Elizabeth and, headed by a band of music and the county Republican executive committee, march to Ursino and pay their respects to the Senator. The latter, however, when waited upon by Vice Chairman James White, of the county committee, to notify him of the proposed demonstration, declared he would not be at home, as, after the reception today at Trenton, he intended to start directly for Washington. Accordingly the whole affair had to be called off.

Two Contract Cases.

Summons have been issued in the contract case of Lewis Williams against Joel Coddington, which is returnable at Justice Smalley's court. Francis J. Blatz will represent the plaintiff. The case of the Newark Sheet Metal Manufacturing Co against M. Armstrong, of this city, has been laid over for one month. One of the witnesses in the case is in Florida. F. J. Blatz is the lawyer for the plaintiff.

DEMOCRATS ARE OBDURATE

Their Action May Mean Election After All.

WON'T FILE REQUEST

Board of Freeholders Will Have to File Bonds in Order to Secure Money for the Purpose.

Assemblyman Edward S. Coyne, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, in speaking of the proposed special election, said today, that the Legislature will probably take some action this afternoon to enable Union County to hold an election on February 7. This action is necessary because the Union County Democratic Committee, at its meeting last night, refused to file a request that no election be held.

It was hoped by the Board of Freeholders as well as leading Republicans, that an election could be avoided and the county spared the $10,000 expense. It will be necessary for the freeholders to issue bonds for the election, it is said, as all of the county money is apportioned and there is not now $10,000 surplus about to meet the expenses for the election. It was with this fact in mind that the Board sent a delegation to Trenton to interview the Governor to see what could be done about calling off the election and having the special act set aside. It now looks as though the election will be held on February 7.

OSHKOSH CLUB MEN ARE TO ORGANIZE

A PERMANENT ASSOCIATION IS THE PLAN OF THE PROMOTERS.

So successful has the Oshkosh Club been in its amateur performances given a year ago and this year, there is a strong sentiment among the members of effecting a permanent organization for the purpose of giving similar affairs once a year, as well as arranging other social events. This sentiment was expressed on Saturday following the afternoon performance of the "Oshkosh Club at Home," and another meeting will be held soon to take some definite action.

As yet no statement has been made regarding the disposition of the profits from the recent performances, but Joseph M. Shellabarger, under whose direction they were given, is preparing such a statement which will be given out soon.

Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk showed unusual interest in the club's work this year and very soon he will give a dance at the Casino to the members in appreciation of their efforts. It is understood that Mr. Fisk is quite anxious that the club be made a permanent organization and that he will become one of the active members of it. It was largely for the benefit of the club that he had extensive alterations made at the Casino whereby the stage and scenery compares favorably with those in many theatres. By the enlargement of the stage it was possible for the performance of last week to be given with such success. Many other improvements have been made at the Casino and it is believed that Mr. Fisk has an idea that this favorite amusement place will be an ideal home for the Oshkosh Club and with that end in view is doing all that is possible to make it meet the needs of such an organization.

Reception in Honor of Sister.

Jonas Lie, the artist, gave a reception in his studio in the Babcock building, last night, for his sister, Miss Lie, who will return to her home in Norway in March. During the evening Miss Lie rendered several selections by well known Norway composers on the piano and Mr. Van-Ness and Mrs Bender sang several duets. After the informal programme, refreshments were served and the rest of the evening was spent in a social way.

Receiver for Bank.

Vice-Chancellor Pitney, in the Court of Chancery, Newark, yesterday, granted a rule to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the Union County Bank of Rahway, and held over an injunction restraining the bank officials from depositing of its assets in transferring its property. The rule was made returnable February 2, and directed that the Comptroller of the State be made a party to the proceedings.

John J. Cornell, a prominent Friend, of Baltimore, will speak at the Friends' meeting house on Watchung avenue, Sunday, Feb. 5.

WINTER'S WORST STORM

Small-Sized Blizzard Drops Down on This City.

TRAFFIC IMPEDED

Trolley Cars Blocked and Streets Made Almost Impassable by Heavy Snowfall.

In the belief that an ordinary snowstorm was about beginning, Plainfielders retired last night while light, feathery flakes were falling, only to awake this morning and find a healthy young blizzard cavorting around. From one inch of "the beautiful" on the ground at 11 o'clock last night it had reached a over foot on the level this noon and it is still coming in clouds that bode a complete tie up of traffic. The storm is by far the most severe of the present winter and is almost on a par with the blizzard of 1900. The streets are practically deserted and only those who have to, venture out of doors, the high wind making it almost impossible to see.

The Public Service Corporation employes are putting forth determined efforts to keep the trolley cars moving as regular as possible. Both the large snow plow and the sweeper are kept running up and down the lines and they are followed closely by the trolley cars. In this way a fairly good schedule has been maintained in the city during the morning, but at the present time a complete blockade is threatened.

Greater difficulty is experienced between here and Elizabeth, as well as towards Bound Brook and New Brunswick, where the snow drifts completely blocked the traffic most of the distance. No effort has been made to maintain the through service between Jersey City and Trenton, the company preferring to attend to local traffic.

All of the local and through trains on the New Jersey Central are from one to three hours late and at 2 o'clock this afternoon the general conditions were worse than at any time since the storm began. Freight and coal traffic is practically suspended.

Owing to the very light attendance at the various schools it was decided not to hold any sessions today. At the High School, Principal Travell gave an interesting talk on the present situation in Russia for the benefit of the few who braved the storm to reach school. In some of the grades not a single pupil put in an appearance, this being especially noticeable in the kindergartens.

MANY GUESTS ATTEND A BOROUGH WEDDING

MISS MARY DEVINE IS NOW THE WIFE OF WALTER GORMAN.

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, Miss Mary E. Devine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Devine, of Somerset street, was made the wife of Walter Gorman, of this city, last evening, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's parents. It was performed by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church, the young people standing beneath a floral decorative effect in the parlor.

Miss Virgina Devine, a sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Henry Keen, of Somerset street, was best man. Maud Edell and Bessie Taynor, two little cousins of the bride, acted as flower girls. The wedding march was rendered by Mrs. Kelley, a cousin of the bride, and the latter was given away by her father.

Miss Devine was prettily gowned in cream colored voile trimmed with lace. She carried a large bouquet of bride roses. Her attendant was attired in blue voile and carried carnations. The little flower girls were gowned in white and carried baskets filled with carnations. Following the ceremony, a reception took place during which Mr. and Mrs. Devine were showered with congratulations. They will make their home on East Front street.

Both young people were remembered with a large array of presents, and in the bridal party there was an exchange of gifts which included a stickpin to the best man and bracelets from the bride to the bridesmaid and the flower girls. The color scheme used in decorating the home was pink and green, making a decidedly striking effect.

The guests included friends from this city, Newark, New Brunswick, Bangor, Pa., and other places.

Miss Kahrman and John Hall recently joined the choir at St. Stephen's church.

LOCAL ORGANIZED AID WARNS AGAINST BEGGAR

DECLARES CHARITY EXTENDED DOES NOT MEAN PERMANENT RELIEF.

Families in Plainfield, as well as the Organized Aid Association, have been much annoyed recently by a colored man with defective eyesight who has been making a practice of begging from door to door by means of a card. Through its attention being called to the case, the association has investigated the same and finds that the verdict of the oculist is that he is probably permanently disabled and that any charity bestowed upon him is unwisely given as it will not lead to permanent relief.

The association has decided that he is a case for city support and Overseer of the Poor Ayers has arranged to give him a place in the Industrial Home. It is the desire of the association that any one to whom he makes an appeal will send word to police headquarters that the man may be arrested for begging.

FLOCK ASKS PASTOR TO REMAIN IN CHARGE

DUNELLEN METHODISTS MAY NOT GET REV. MR. SCHULTZ.

Resolutions have been adopted by the official board of the Dashiell Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, requesting that Rev. J. H. E. Schultz, who has received a call to the Dunellen M. E. church, be continued in the pastorate for another year, beginning next April, and expressing appreciation of his leadership and faithful work. The resolutions were presented by James E. Jamieson, signed by the entire officiary of the church, at the fourth quarterly conference held Sunday evening.

Mr. Schultz replied that his answer to this invitation to return must be similar to that given the committee of the Dunellen church, which recently extended to him a unanimous call. The appointing power is with the bishop and cabinet, and he will return to the Dashiell charge if they so determine, but his willingness to do so, he said, was conditioned upon the faithfulness of the membership in standing by the enterprises of the church during the interval between now and conference. While he felt that many were doing their duty, he knew that others were not. The delinquents, he declared, must at least show their willingness to make good their pledges on the debt fund of the church, and others must be more faithful to their church duties. He did not reconsider his promise to the Dunellen committee, which was an expression of willingness to become pastor of that charge should the appointing powers deem it best.

MISS ALICE L. BARKER NOW MRS. Z. P. SECOR

FORMER PLAINFIELD YOUNG WOMAN MARRIES IN BROOKLYN.

Miss Alice Leola Barker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horsley Barker, formerly of Grove street, but now of Brooklyn, and Zeno Percival Secor, son of Rienzi A. Secor, also of Brooklyn, were married yesterday afternoon in Grace Church Chantry, Brooklyn, by the Rev. Arthur B. Kensolving. The wedding was a very quiet one owing to the recent death of the groom's sister, and only the immediate members of the two families were present. The bride was attended by Miss Eugenie Hanigan, of Duer street, the borough, as maid of honor.

The bride, the daughter of Horsley Barker, who is well-known here, having been in business on West Front street for several years, is popular among her many friends both here and in Brooklyn. The groom is a grandson of Zeno Secor, who was prominent in shipbuilding and who built the majority of the iron clads for the Government during the Civil War.

The young couple started South immediately after the ceremony, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will reside in Brooklyn upon their return.

LIQUOR LICENSES ON FEB. 6

Will Fee Effect Number of Applicants to be Considered?

AS TO JOHN GOFF

Municipal Collection and Disposal of Garbage Among Important Matters to be Dealt With.

The February meeting of the Common Council to be held on Monday night, February 6, promises to be one of much interest, as several important matters are likely to come up. It is generally at this meeting that the various applicants for liquor licenses put in their applications, and it will be interesting to know whether the new license fee of $1,000 for retailers will have any effect on the number applying. The licenses expire on March 1 and of course renewals are made at that time.

It seems to be generally believed that John Goff will make application for his hotel on West Front street and that there will be considerable opposition to it. Mr. Goff will undoubtedly take his chances in getting a license, although the present makeup of the Common Council is uncertain in this and other matters. No one doubts that the increased fee will have a tendency to reduce the number of regularly licensed places, but the policy of the Common Council not to increase the number of drinking places is quite likely to be maintained. It is said that the present dealers will not object to the large fee provided no additional places receive a license to cause a greater division of profits. Under the present ordinance old applicants are not required to secure signers to their applications, as some years ago, but all new applicants are obliged to get the usual number of freeholders as signers.

In accordance with the recommendation of Mayor Buckle, the Common Council may consider the question of municipal garbage collection and disposal. It is known to be the wish of a majority of the members that this matter be taken up early this year. The city now owns a disposal plant which needs some repairs to be put in working order, and the question of securing horses and suitable wagons will probably be taken up soon with a view to getting the proposed system in operation by the arrival of spring weather.

That there will be opposition to the operation of the garbage plant from West End residents goes without saying, but it is not likely to have much weight. It would be difficult to move the plant elsewhere and inasmuch as the plant is now owned by the city it could not be expected to let it remain idle and use some other method of disposal. The cremation method seems to have the approval of the Common Council and the Board of Health and it is practically a sure thing for Plainfield.

The month of February will be occupied in making up the several amounts to be asked for the several departments in making up the annual budget so that it can be fixed by the March meeting and advertised by ordinance according to the usual custom.

A TINY SOLOIST.

Seven-Year-Old Tot Sings at Faith Chapel Entertainment Last Night.

Under the auspices of the King's Daughters' Circle of Faith chapel, an entertainment was given last night. Considering the weather the attendance was large. The programme opened with a piano solo by Miss Lottie Conger, followed with violin and piano selections by Kenneth Stuart and Charles Suhr. A feature was the singing of Dorothy Hetfield, aged seven years. Each number was well received and Miss Conger was especially favored with encores. Other features were the recitations given by Miss Mackey and Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the chapel. After the entertainment there was a social hour and refreshments were served.

Called to a Washington Church.

Rev. T. E. Davis, of West Fifth street, who has been supplying the pulpit of the Lamington Presbyterian church for several weeks, has received a call to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Memorial church, Washington. On Sunday, January 8, Mr. Davis preached at that church as a candidate and has just received word that he is the unanimous choice of the congregation.

AMUSEMENTS.

The most popular show on Broadway is "The Duchess of Dantzic" at Daly's and it is necessary to order seats away in advance. Miss Ethel Barrymore is still one of the theatrical drawing cards in "Sunday," which continues on the boards at the Hudson. At the matinee tomorrow the bill will be "Cousin Kate" and "Carrots." Arnold Daly, supported by a strong cast, is appearing in "You Can Never Tell" at the Garrick. "Cousin Billy" holds popular favor at the Criterion, Francis Wilson keeping the big audiences in continued uproar of laughter. Charles Wyndham and Mary Moore attract crowds at the Lyceum and Maud Adams in "The Little Minister" is scoring a hit at the Empire. E. S. Willard in Wilson Barrett's "Lucky Durham," is at the Knickerbocker and "Woodland," a musical forest fantasy, is holding sway at the Herald Square. At the Savoy is "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," which is Augustus Thomas's greatest comedy.

John Kendrick Bangs, the humorist, who collaborated, he says, with Roderic Penfield and Richard Brinsley Sheridan in writing "Lady Teazle" for Lillian Russell, is a man of domestic inclinations, and usually spends his Sundays at home. The other day he was persuaded to promise that he would accompany a friend to a Christian Science meeting on the following Sabbath. Mr. Bangs declares that his intentions were good when he made the promise, but that as the time approached his resolution weakened. It disappeared altogether when the Sunday dawned, rainy, blustering, disagreeable. Mr. Bangs took one look out of doors and then telephoned to his friend that the engagement was off.

"But you promised," returned that individual, with the persistence which characterises friends and his Satanic Majesty. "What's the matter?"

"Well," returned the humorist, "I don't know what kind of weather you've got in Christian Science circles, but we're having a damned wet error up here!"

A new attraction now presented at the Liberty Theatre is Tom W. Ryley's production of George Rollit's comedy, "The Money Makers," which made a big hit in London last spring. The principal roles are played by Ida Conquest, Lillian Thurgate, Daisy Athrton, Emily Rigl, Cyril Scott, Brandon Hunt, Eugene O'Rourke and Edmund Lyons. The piece is staged in three acts and two scenes and is sumptuously mounted. The story is a most humorous one. Two girls, played by Ida Conquest and Daisy Athrton, are engaged to poor young men and are anxious to marry. They plan a "get-rich-quick" scheme and open a tipping bureau to impart inside information on the races. They advertise, receive a barrel of money and send out a "tip." They soon find themselves in the hottest kind of hot water, which involves their sweethearts. They have "tipped a scratched horse" and their victims clamor for the blood of the "Major," their nom de tip. On this foundation Mr. Rollit has built up a lot of funny complications which are only straightened out by a rich uncle who stands the losses with the information that the newspapers made a mistake—the scratched horse really ran and won. "The Money Makers" is humorous and well played.

LITERARY.

There are 9,204,531 negroes in the United States, including Porto Rico and Hawaii. Nine-tenths of them live in the South—one-third of its population. Seventy-seven per cent. work on 746,000 farms, of which twenty-one per cent. are absolutely, and four per cent. partially, owned by negroes. There are 21,000 negro carpenters, 20,000 barbers and nearly as many doctors, 16,000 ministers, 15,000 masons, 12,000 dress-makers, 10,000 engineers and firemen, 5,000 shoemakers, 4,000 musicians, 2,000 actors and showmen, 1,000 lawyers (which seems too many). Since 1890 negro illiteracy has sunk from 57 to 44.5 per cent. Statistics are rather stupid fellows, but these look bright and full of hope.—"With the Procession," Everybody's Magazine for February.

NAME CHANGED EACH TIME.

Johann Hoch Wedded and Provided Flats For Many Brides.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—It has been ascertained that Johann Hoch had at least thirteen wives in ten years. Four of them died soon after their marriage. All of them were swindled. A fourteenth woman has been found who was engaged to him. Six of the thirteen wives are identified. The establishments where seven others are believed to have lived have become known. More wives are likely to materialize.

This much has been brought to light by a day of investigation into the history of the man who married two sisters in Englewood in one month and who disappeared a week ago, after the death of the first sister, with the money of the second.

No trace of Hoch has been found, and police circulars have been sent over the country in hope of his capture.

A furniture dealer on Milwaukee avenue informed the police last night that he had furnished five different flats for Hoch, each time under a different name, and that he had a new wife for every flat.

The first flat furnished was in May, 1892, under the name of C. A. Meyer; the second in June, 1892, under the name of H. Irick; the third in 1894 (the dealer does not recall the name used, but it was different from that used on any other occasion); the fourth was in 1894 under the name of Jacob Hoh. The wife this time was Mrs. Mary Steinbrecher. The fifth flat was furnished in 1898 under the name of Adolph Hoch. This time Hoch gave a mortgage on the goods and then sold them. For this he was sentenced to a year in the county jail.

The dealer told the police that he knew that the women who were installed in the first three flats died in a short time after marriage. He asked Hoch why he changed his name every time he married, and Hoch replied that he did not believe he could get married under the same name every time, as many women would object to marrying a man who had been so many times a widower.

Police Inspector Shipp has heard that in April, 1898, when Hoch was on trial for an alleged attempt to swindle a furniture firm, a minister from Wheeling, W. Va., was in Chicago and recognized in Hoch a man the minister had married some time before and whose wife had died under suspicious circumstances. A police officer may be sent to Wheeling to question the minister.

President's Hunting Trip to Texas.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25. — President Roosevelt has arranged to hunt jack rabbits in Texas some time between March 25 and April 5. The president will attend a wedding in New York on March 18, and almost immediately afterward, accompanied by Secretary Loeb, he will take a special train for St. Louis, where he will be met by Cecil Lyon, a wealthy lumberman of Sherman, Tex., and W. S. Simpson of Dallas, Tex. Mr. Simpson was a member of the rough riders and was in the charge at San Juan hill.

Roar of Big Guns Frighten Fish.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 25.—The fishermen of Newport, Block Island, Marthas Vineyard, New Bedford and other points are preparing a petition which will be sent to congress asking that body to stop target practice by warships during the spring, summer and fall in the waters between Marthas Vineyard and Block Island. The fishermen claim that the firing of heavy guns in the vicinity of "no man's land" frightens the fish, especially bluefish and mackerel.

Heartless Man Let Two Women Burn.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 25.—Mary Elwart and Mary Parsons, two colored women, were burned to death in a fire that was started in their room by an overturned stove here. A negro man occupying an adjoining room paid no attention to the shrieks of the women for aid, but saved his clothes from the burning building. He said he had to work too hard to buy his clothes to lose them saving women.

Bill to Increase Firemen's Pay.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 25.—In the house Mr. Matthews introduced a bill making it obligatory upon the board of finance of first class cities to increase the pay of firemen. A salary of $1,200 a year is provided for hosemen and truckmen, captains $1,600 and battalion chiefs $2,000. Mr. Elvins introduced a bill authorizing incorporated towns to erect electric light plants.

Alleged Wool Smuggling.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Special Inspector Sivel of Mooers, N. Y.; Special Employee Noble of Rouse Point, N. Y., to Shillard, Smith & Co. of Philadelphia.

REVOLT SPREADS.

MOSCOW AND KOVNO AROUSED

New Governor For Capital City Appointed by Czar.

NEWSPAPER PUBLICATION STOPPED

Russian Troubles Multiply—Many Large Cities Involved—Polish City In State of Siege, Where People, Fired on by Military, Returned the Fusillade, Killing Czar's Officers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 25.—The appointment of General Trepoff, the former chief of police of Moscow, to the governor generalship of St. Petersburg was accompanied by an imperial decree announcing the creation of the post of governor general. The incumbent of this office, the decree states, will be in control of all the departments of administration of the city and government of St. Petersburg, with power to demand the assistance of the military and possessing all the rights of the minister of the interior over appointments to the municipal council and the zemstvos and also the right to forbid individuals to remain in the city.

The decree, which is addressed to the senate, says:

"Recent events have shown the necessity for the adoption of measures for the preservation of state institutions and public security adapted to the extraordinary circumstances of the times. On this account we have considered it necessary to create the office of governor general of St. Petersburg on the basis of the provisions of the law prescribing the duties of chiefs and governors general and of the following regulations:

"First.—The city and government of St. Petersburg are placed under the authority of the governor general.

"Second.—In questions where the maintenance of state institutions and public security are at stake all the local civil authorities and all the educational institutions are made subject to the governor general.

"Third.—The governor general has the right, with the assent of the minister of the interior, to enforce measures of the censorship statute.

"Fourth.—Apart from the right of making obligatory the regulations in accordance with law providing for stricter maintenance of order the governor general will be empowered to make obligatory the regulations affecting objects or property of any kind in the interests of public tranquillity and order in his jurisdiction."

A Helsingfors (Finland) special report says:

"Thousands of workmen joined in a demonstration here last night. Assembling on the huge steps of the Nicolai cathedral, they paraded the streets till midnight, waving red flags. The windows of public houses, hotels, breweries and a number of newspaper offices were broken. The police interfered rather late, arresting fifty of the workmen."

Reports are in circulation here that the prefect of police has been arrested and that he will be succeeded by General Trepoff, former chief of police of Moscow.

Cossacks while dispersing a crowd of strikers in the Nevsky prospect drew their swords and wounded several men.

Work has been suspended at the works of the Belgian Electrical company, which furnishes the majority of the electrical supply of the city.

The situation is so tense that many inhabitants of St. Petersburg are sending their wives and children to Helsingfors and elsewhere for safety.

Telegrams from Radom, Russian Poland, describe that city as being in a state of siege, with military patrols in every street, who occasionally fire on gatherings of the people, who returned the fire, killing three officers. The revolutionists there are also said to have blown up several buildings with dynamite.

At Moscow the strike is spreading rapidly. All printing works have been stopped. No newspapers will be issued there today.

The police have ordered all arms to be removed from the windows of the Moscow gunsmiths, a majority of whom have closed their shops.

From Kovno, on the Baltic sea, comes a dispatch saying that work has been stopped at all the factories and railroad shops there.

The Liberal paper Russky Viedomosti of Moscow has created a sensation owing to its comment on the official statement of the St. Petersburg shooting. The paper says:

"Arms and slaughter may avail to put down a peaceful demonstration, but force is not powerful enough to quench the aspirations of the Russian heart, ward off the consequences of Sunday's volleys and prevent the movement for liberty and a justly organized government coming to a full fruition."

The municipal council by a vote of 113 to 10 re-elected Prince Galitzin mayor of Moscow. The prince is a prominent leader in the local reform movement and resigned recently on the issuance of the government declaration condemning the reformers' propaganda.

WORLD AUTO RECORD

MacDonald at Ormond Beach Beats All Former Figures.

VANDERBILT'S SPEEDY RUN OUTDONE

Great Motor Car Racing Meet Opens With Eclat on Atlantic Tide Rolled Sands In Florida, Where Noted Chauffeurs Gather.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 25.— Arthur MacDonald, driving a ninety horsepower Napier, covered five miles in 3 minutes and 17 seconds here, lowering W. K. Vanderbilt's world's record of 3 minutes and 31 2-5 seconds.

Arthur E. MacDonald, with his fifty horsepower machine, heretofore untried, took a long flying start and went by the starters' and judges' stand at a splendid clip. All remarked on the smoothness and speed of the machine, and a record breaking run was looked for. When the automatic pistol fire announced the finish and the timers stated that the five miles had been covered in 3 minutes and 17 seconds flat a mighty shout went up. MacDonald lowered the world's record by just 14 1-5 seconds. His average for the five miles was 39 2-5 seconds, only two-fifths of a second under the world's record for a single mile, held by Mr. Vanderbilt.

MacDonald averaged 39 3-5 seconds for each mile.

Guy Vaughn, in a forty horsepower Decauville car, established a new middleweight record for five miles.

He made the distance in 4 minutes and 32 2-5 seconds.

The first race in the meet which began here resulted in a victory for Webb Jay.

The race was one kilometer for middleweight cars, the starters being Jay, in a fifteen horsepower White car, and F. Leblanc, in a twenty horsepower Darracq. Jay captured the contest easily, winning in 42 2-5 seconds. Four hundred feet from the finish he had some trouble with his running gear, but was able to coast over well in advance of his fellow contestant.

The second event was a five mile sprint for stock cars, valued at between $2,751 and $4,000. The starters were M. Roberts, in a forty horsepower Thomas car; J. Caswell, in a forty horsepower Columbia; Charles Soules, in a thirty horsepower Pope-Toledo, and Eddie Bald, in a forty horsepower Columbia.

Soules took the lead and won out, with Roberts second and Caswell third. The electric timing apparatus failed to work, but the time was given out as 5 minutes and 13 3-5 seconds. Much dissatisfaction was expressed by the spectators, who were unable to get the correct times and the results.

The contests were started in front of the clubhouse of the Florida East Coast Automobile association, but on alternate days, according to an agreement reached, they will be begun at Daytona.

Early in the morning the most energetic of the racers were out on the beach trying out their cars over the hard, tide rolled sands, and shortly after breakfast the whole crowd started in a long procession by motor car, carriage, motor cycle, bicycle and every other conveyance known to the beach for the Daytona end of the course.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., took a flying trip to Palm Beach.

Showdown Beaten at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25.—With the exception of Showdown and Belle Indian the favorites in the races so far outclassed their company that the result in each event was, barring accidents, a foregone conclusion. Showdown was beaten by Filatory, which opened up a gap at the start and won in a common gallop. Murphy took too many liberties with Belle Indian and waited too long before making his move, the result being that Frank Kenny lasted just long enough to beat him out a head at the end.

Little Buttercup Won.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 25.—The track at Essex park was again fast, and Roseburg, Shady Lad, Thespian and Oudon, the first two at odds on, were the winning favorites. Little Buttercup, a strong second choice, beat Fritzie Scheff in the third race, and the result was almost as costly to the bookmakers as a victory for the favorite would have been.

Retador a Surprise at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—Retador surprised the crowd at Ascot by winning the second race from Sweet Kitty Bellairs and Kahailan, the second choice and favorite respectively. Four favorites were successful.

Lady Fashion at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.— Lady Fashion won at Oakland at 20 to 1. The defeat of Delcarina was a surprise to the public. H. P. Kane was another long shot that won.

MRS. DUKE UNDER ARREST.

Charged With Swindling Texas Firm Out of $3,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Alice Webb Duke, wife of Brodie L. Duke was arrested in a cab in Wall street here on a warrant from Texas and taken before Magistrate Flammer in the Tombs police court, where she was held in $3,000 bail on a charge of having swindled a Texan of $3,000. She was unable to furnish bail and was sent to the Tombs. The paper arrived several days ago. Detective Sergeant O'Connell was given instructions to go to the office of John Albert Chrystie and wait there for the woman, as he was learned she might go there.

O'Connell saw a woman drive up to the building in a cab. He approached her before she alighted and asked:

"Are you Mrs. Duke?"

"Yes," she smilingly replied. "Who are you?"

O'Connell told her who he was and his errand, and Mrs. Duke became hysterical and began to scream and cry. She said:

"I'm the wife of Brodie L. Duke. I was married in Dr. Parkhurst's church. His family are trying to hurt me. I have done nothing wrong."

O'Connell told her to stay in the cab and they would go to the district attorney's office and try to straighten the matter out. She hesitated and said:

"Well, I must see Mr. Chrystie, anyway."

"No, you can't," O'Connell replied. "You'll just stay in the cab and go uptown."

Mrs. Duke again began to scream, and as a crowd was collecting O'Connell called to the driver to "whip along," and they drove to the district attorney's office.

Mrs. Duke was weeping and somewhat hysterical while in the district attorney's office. George Simpson of her counsel arrived and tried to quiet her and make arrangements for avoiding any further trouble.

Mrs. Duke was arraigned before Magistrate Flammer on a warrant charging her with having swindled E. L. Brush of the Commercial bank of Nacogdoches, Tex., of $3,000 and held for examination.

HOTALING MURDER TRIAL.

Witnesses Testify as to Prisoner's Heartless Actions at Fire.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 25.—At the Hotaling trial here Charles Winans, a farmer living about half a mile from Hotaling's house, testified that on the morning of the murder Hotaling came to his house and awoke him, saying that his house was on fire and he thought "the old woman and the kid" had burned with it.

Mr. Winans, his son and his hired man, Nathaniel Benjamin, went to the scene of the fire, and on the way Winans says Hotaling told him that the house caught fire while he was asleep, and when he got out he tried to rescue his wife and child by climbing a ladder, but was unable to get into the room where he supposed they were.

After they reached the fire Mr. Winans saw what he thought was Mrs. Hotaling's body in the ruins. A few minutes later it was discovered that the object was not Mrs. Hotaling's body. Samuel Winans then discovered part of the child's body in the burning ruins and told Mr. Benjamin of it, Hotaling overhearing him. At that, Mr. Winans testified, Hotaling raised his head and called to him, "Sam thinks he has found that kid," and a moment later pulled out his pipe, filled it and began to smoke.

Samuel Winans and Nathaniel Benjamin were placed on the stand and corroborated all of Winan's testimony.

VERDICT OF GUILTY

Charles L. Tucker's Trial Ends at Cambridge.

PRISONER UTTERLY COLLAPSED.

Was Condemned on Purely Circumstantial Evidence—Leading State Attorney Overcome by Strain. Will Be Sentenced Later.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 25.—After the jury in the Tucker murder trial had come into court and asked for information regarding the exact legal meaning of the word "malice," in the expression "malice aforethought" and for information concerning the different degrees of murder and what constituted manslaughter, which was explained by Judge Sheldon, they retired and in a short time returned with a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against the prisoner, Charles L. Tucker.

The last words of the trial of Tucker for the murder of Mabel Page were spoken when Judge Sheldon closed his charge to the jury which has been considering the case since Jan. 1.

The day was a long one and to many in the courtroom a very trying one. Attorney General Parker closed his argument about an hour and a half after court opened. Then came one of the most dramatic incidents in the trial, for most unexpectedly the young prisoner accepted his constitutional privilege of addressing the jury in his own behalf. Rising in his cage, he asserted at first, trembling, but later with considerable confidence, his innocence of the crime. He spoke about ten minutes, and when he concluded Judge Sheldon began his charge.

The case was given to the jury about 2 p. m., and they immediately retired.

The penalty for murder in the first degree in this state is death in the electric chair at the state prison in Charlestown, about a mile from the scene of the trial. Tucker will be sentenced later.

Tucker collapsed utterly when the verdict was announced, and his counsel were unable to revive him for some time.

The announcement of the finding of the jury, which was made at 10:10 o'clock last night, was followed by one of the most remarkable scenes that has been witnessed in a Massachusetts courtroom for many years. Tucker collapsed utterly in the prisoner's cage when the foreman uttered the fatal words, being completely overcome by a verdict which had apparently seemed to him to be an impossibility. He was led from the courtroom across the street to the jail in an exhausted condition.

But perhaps the most remarkable feature was the effect of the announcement of the verdict upon the attorneys not only for the prisoner, but for the commonwealth. James H. Vahey, the senior counsel for the prisoner, was greatly affected, and when he left the courtroom he met Attorney General Herbert Parker in the corridor. The leading counsel for the commonwealth showed the result of the strain to such a degree that he threw his arms around Mr. Vahey's neck, and both men wept on each other's shoulders, the attorney general expressing in broken words his sympathy for his brother attorney.

These two men were not the only ones moved to tears. Philip Mansfield, one of the associate counsel for the youthful prisoner, became hysterical and fell into the arms of a reporter.

The murder of Miss Mabel Page at Weston, Mass., on March 31, 1904, for the commission of which Charles L. Tucker was tried, attracted wide attention because of the unusual and mystifying circumstances surrounding the case.

Miss Page, who was forty-one years of age, lived in a small country dwelling house with her father, Edward Page, formerly a prosperous Boston merchant, and her brother, Harold. She was stabbed to death with a knife. Basing his examination upon the appearance of the wound found in the neck, the only wound at first visible, the medical examiner reported that Miss Page had committed suicide, and it was not until an undertaker had discovered other wounds that it was established that the woman had met death at the hands of an assassin.

The government's case against Tucker included the charge that a slip of paper containing the address "J. L. Morton, Charlestown, Mass.," found beside the body of Miss Page, was in the handwriting of the defendant, that a stickpin found in his pocket had been stolen by him from the Page home and that broken pieces of blade found in his home were parts of the knife with which he had stabbed Miss Page.

The evidence against Tucker was entirely circumstantial.

THE FORUM.

The Democratic Squable.

Editor The Daily Press: I desire to correct a wrong impression given by an article in your issue of yesterday regarding proceedings at Democratic headquarters last evening. Mr. Swackhamer made no request that a committee should be appointed by the meeting at Democratic headquarters to act with the one which had been appointed at his office; neither did he agree to withdraw the last-named committee. His remarks were along the line of Democratic harmony and concerted action, and suggested that such a course should be pursued as would lead to the desired result.

Respectfully yours,
Walter O. Linbarger.

Dated January 24, 1905.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

It is reported by those who are interested in the coming baseball season that an attempt will be made to secure the services of Phillip Smith, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, as pitcher. Smith filled that capacity for the local team last year, and was not only satisfactory, but was responsible for many of the victories which were accorded the Dunellen aggregation. He is a fast and a heady pitcher, and the local management is in hopes that it will be able to sign him. There are several other teams which would like to have Smith in the box. The Clinton Avenue players are reported to have considered him, and he will undoubtedly receive a call from the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. That organization will put an amateur nine on the diamond next summer, and there is some possibility of a league between the local team, Clinton Avenue and the representation of the Y. M. C. A. Smith is a member of the Plainfield association and recently expressed his willingness to play with that team.

James Kitchen, of Bound Brook, while getting off a trolley car at the Dunellen terminal, last night, slipped on the step, which was covered with snow, and fell heavily on the small of his back. For the time he was stunned, and had to be assisted to a Bound Brook car. His back was badly bruised, though as far as is known, no serious internal injury resulted.

A large crowd of bowling enthusiasts witnessed the match on the Taylor alleys last night, between the local team and the Suburban Club, of Fanwood. The match was an interesting one, as most of the players had appeared in the borough before and had formerly competed against the local team. The scores of the match will appear in another column.

It is expected that the house, which is being built on the lot in the rear of the Presbyterian church, will be ready for occupancy by April 1. Fred Wilcox is putting up a large double house there, and the work will shortly be resumed on the building.

Nelson Giles, a resident of this borough, has rented the Larkin property on Front street, and will take possession of the house the last of next month.

The regular church prayer meetings will be held at the Methodist and Presbyterian churches tonight. The pastors will be in charge of the services.

Among those who have been on the sick list and are slowly recovering are Mrs. Peter Apgar and Miss Mary Brokaw, both of this borough.

A sleighing party has been arranged by a number of young people of the borough for tomorrow night.

Mrs. T. J. Todd, of the borough, has returned from a visit with relatives in Martinsville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Craig have been entertaining out-of-town relatives.

The game which was scheduled between the local bowlers and the Suburban team for tomorrow night, has been postponed for a time on account of illness of some of the Suburban bowlers.

Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, who have been visiting their son, William E. Collins, of the borough, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

Samuel Parsells, who has been visiting his family at Glenside, has returned to New Brunswick.

A meeting of the Town Committee will be held Friday night in the town rooms.

Isaac Ryne has taken a position with John Alberts, the liveryman.

AUGUR FOR DRILLING SALT

Compressed Air Furnishes the Power for Working the Device Which Mines Mineral.

In Muskegon, Mich., salt is used in large quantities, and, consequently, the warehouses of the firms dealing in it are capacious enough to store away a considerable supply, says Technical World. As is well known, salt, on account of its affinity for water, is a substance that has a tendency to harden and cake when piled away any length of time, and some of the cellars where it is stored contain beds of it 20 feet high, and so hard that but little impression can be made upon them even with the pick or ax. For this reason a somewhat curious device has been brought into use to loosen the material so that it can readily be secured. This is a large boring tool, or augur, which is operated by compressed air. The augur is mounted on a wheeled truck, which is guided by handles projecting from the rear of the framework. The rear end of the augur revolves in a socket fitted into the framework, while the air is admitted to the socket from the hose which supplies it. When operated the boring tool is pushed against the mass of salt and the augur is set in motion and in a minute or two, so rapidly does the tool work, a hole about five inches in diameter is made in the formation the entire length of the augur. Then another hole is drilled parallel with the first, and another, until the pile has been undermined, so to speak, when its contents can easily be broken out. The advantage of this method is seen when it is said that two men can get out as much salt by the power method as two dozen men by using picks and shovels.

RIVAL RIGHTS IN VOLCANO.

Four Communes Near Mount Vesuvius Assert Proprietary Powers Over the Domain.

Vesuvius, with its eruption, has done more than provide magnificent fireworks to attract the foreigners; it has set four communes—Resina, Torre Del Greco, Boscotrecase and Ottaiano—by the ears. Each claims that the volcano stands within its confines, if not all, the greater part of it, and that it (the commune) can thus claim the taxes of the guides, Cook's railway and the one hundred and one other things which yield money. The quarrel is a pretty one, and bids fair to be unending, as no sooner have the confines been established and a comparative, if discontented, peace patched up, than the volcano belches forth new lava, forms new hills and valleys and obliterates the confines. Since the late eruption feeling has risen to such heights that the people of one commune throw stones at those of the others, and refuse to speak as they pass by. Each declares that it has ancient documents to prove its rights beyond dispute, but when the moment comes for exhibiting them they somehow have misplaced them. They would have been the most useful of the council of state, to whom they have appealed, but they cannot be found. Meanwhile, until the quarrel is settled, Resina has decidedly the best of it, as, while the others were terror-stricken, she boldly fixed her confines by herself taking in the whole mountain.

THEATER ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Opera House at Thale, Germany, Is the Most Novel Resort in the World.

Probably the most novel theater in the world is that which was recently opened at Thale, in Germany. The theater is on the summit of a mountain, and is surrounded on all sides by steep rocks; the seats for the audience are hewn out of the rock and accommodate 1,000 persons, and the stage, which is also hewn out of the rock, is 80 feet long by 54 feet wide. No artificial scenery is used, but the background is formed by the dense forest and by the outlines of the mountains in the distance. The dressing-room for the actors is close at hand in the forest, but completely hidden from the audience. The theater is fully protected from the wind, and its acoustic properties are so excellent that every word is heard.

Few Beggars Deserving.

"I have never known a deserving case of street begging," was the remarkable statement Sir Eric A. Buchanan, secretary of the London Mendicity society, made the other day.

WAXING THE TOMB.

WEATHER WAS HARMING THE GREAT GRANT MONUMENT.

It Is Now Being Coated with Paraffine Which Is Expected to Stop Damage—How the Work Is Done.

New York.—Fresh evidence that a man's own name is the most indestructible monument a man can raise is to be found in Gen. Grant's tomb, on Riverside drive. Built of the stoutest granite at a cost of nearly $600,000, it has been found advisable to coat a portion of the solid stone roofs of the portico and gallery with paraffine wax, as was done with the obelisk 19 years ago, in order to protect the stone from disintegration and to stop the leaks which have developed. The same persons who coated the obelisk so effectively are doing the work. The tomb, which was the testimonial of the more than 90,000 persons who contributed to its construction, will be permitted to suffer injury if it is possible to prevent it. The tomb was dedicated less than eight years ago, and is one of the most costly tombs ever erected.

In the work now being done, the stone is warmed by means of a flat stove before the wax is applied, explains the Tribune, of this city. This stove is a simple affair, being practically nothing more than a sheet-iron box, about two feet square and six inches deep. One side of the box is a wire screen. This retains the charcoal which is burned in the stove, and at the same time permits the free radiation of the heat upon the stone. The stove is suspended against the stone whose pores are to be filled. It almost touches the stone, and is held there for two or three minutes. That is sufficient time to heat the stone to a depth of perhaps a quarter of an inch. Then melted paraffin wax is painted on the heated surface with a brush. It soaks into the stone to the depth to which the stone has been heated, filling all the interstices between the crystals of the rock. Great care has to be taken not to heat the stone unnecessarily, as only a small portion can be heated at one time. Uneven expansion of the stone might cause it to crack. A square yard can be treated in a quarter of an hour. The work now being done on the tomb will cost $280.

PUTTING ON THE WAX.
The Granite Is First Heated by Holding a Charcoal Stove Against It.

There are about 8,000 tons of granite in the tomb. This was carefully examined by professors of mining schools, members of the United States engineering corps and chemists before it was accepted, and all the tests were passed. No stones were set in the winter, owing to the danger of settling. Each stone, after being laid, was allowed to lie some time before another was laid upon it, in order to make certain that it would not shift its position in the slightest degree. The tomb is 90 feet square and 150 feet high. A considerable amount of marble was used in the interior. Several slabs of this now show stains which look like rusted iron. It is said that these disappear and reappear again at different seasons of the year, and that they are due to moisture in the walls. Up to the present time none of the methods tried have been effective in eliminating them. The stones may have to be replaced. Until this year no effort has been made to heat the tomb in the winter. This year, with the idea that it may have a beneficial effect upon the stone, several radiators have been put in. Heretofore in the spring moisture has appeared on the walls so thick that it was possible to wipe it off with the hand.

Boiling Point of Water.

Water boils at different temperatures, according to the elevation above sea level. In London water boils practically at 212 degrees Fahrenheit; in Munich, Germany, at 209½ degrees; in the City of Mexico at 200 degrees, and in the Himalayas, at an elevation of 18,000 feet above the level of the sea, at 180 degrees. These differences are caused by the varying pressure of the atmosphere at these points. In London the whole weight of the air has to be overcome. In Mexico, 7,000 feet above the sea, there is 7,000 feet less of atmosphere to be resisted; consequently less heat is required, and boiling takes place at a lower temperature.

Modern Plagues.

The English Church Missionary society calls attention to the fearful ravages of pestilence in several countries in which its agents are at work. In Uganda the sleeping sickness has desolated Busoga and the northern shores of Victoria lake and is fast depopulating the Sese islands. The plague in the Punjab has been claiming as many as 20,000 victims a month, while cholera, which has laid thousands low in Palestine, is now raging in Persia.

THIS PUPPY WAS A HERO.

Boys and Girls About to Be Attacked by Mad Mastiff Are Saved by Little Dog.

Suffering from rabies, it is declared, and having already bitten three Italian children and several small dogs, a huge mastiff was prevented from dashing into a crowd of children and commiting greater damage by a little puppy at Plains, a village near Wilkesbarre, Pa. The puppy gave up its life, but saved the children.

The cry of "mad dog" had been raised in the street, and people were flying to shelter, as the mastiff was seen to be biting at every object in its path. The children were panic-stricken.

The puppy had been among them, barking and dancing about in the general frolic. When the panic came it seemed to regard the approaching mastiff as another source of amusement.

Trotting out from the little ones, it ran straight for the mastiff, barking furiously. The mastiff dashed straight at the puppy and its jaws snapped upon the frail little fellow.

With the body of the puppy dangling from its mouth, the mastiff dashed through the crowd of children and was finally shot some distance beyond.

The action of the puppy had sufficiently distracted the dog to cause it to ignore the little ones, and when it was shot its teeth still clinched the puppy.

The three Italian children who were bitten were treated by local physicians, and will receive antitoxin treatment. All the bitten dogs were killed.

ROUNDS UP STRAY POULTRY

Cat of the Tiger Species Catches Game Alive and Always Brings It to His Master.

Well Tuttle, of Case avenue, Winsted, Conn., has a large cat that is in the habit of bringing home all the game it catches without killing it. The cat is a good ratter, but never kills any of the rodents, but will always keep guard over any it captures until some member of the family appears to relieve.

About a year ago Tom, as the cat is called, varied its usual form of game and brought home alive and unharmed a small white Wyandotte rooster.

Inquiry among the neighbors failed to show where Tom had stolen the rooster, and Mr. Wells allowed the bird to go, thinking it might find its way to its owner.

The next morning Tom brought the game rooster to the house again and this time Mr. Wells kept it. Two days later Tom brought home a Plymouth Rock pullet, and diligent inquiry did not reveal from where it had been taken.

Tom was whipped for this second offense and seemed to remember the punishment until the other day, when he brought home another pullet.

It was discovered that the owner this time was J. B. Adams, of Main street, but the owners of the other chickens have never been heard from.

Tom is a large, powerful cat of the tiger species, and his strength and pluck are shown by his bringing home such large game alive and unhurt.

Live to a Green Old Age.

A long-lived family is that of Mrs. Sarah Gilpin, of Henry county, Mo. She recently celebrated her one-hundredth birthday. Her father lived to be 116 years old, her monther 115, her older sister 107; she has a brother in Oregon who is 106, and one of her sisters died at 104. Naturally, Mrs. Gilpin hopes to live to a green old age.

FASHION FACTS.

The Mode In Sleeves—Leather Embroideries Are Smart.

La mode continues very elastic where sleeves are concerned. The gigot sleeve is much to the fore both in plain tailor made costumes and in dressy afternoon frocks. It is very pretty when shirred, gathered or plaited all the way up the arm.

The long tight fitting cuff is a distinctive feature of the new sleeves and comes as a welcome change after the enormously pouched draperies worn at the wrists. These deep tight fitting cuffs are very becoming to a well shaped arm.

Beautiful embroideries of suede and leather are among the winter's novelties. The waistcoat is playing an important part on the XV. and XVI. cutaway coats, which are mostly seen developed in handsome velvets. A number of these coats are made of a contrasting shade of velvet from the skirt worn with them and are trimmed with frills and jabots of old lace and brocaded waistcoats, which fasten with wonderfully beautiful crystal and enameled buttons.

The fashionable blouse illustrated is of peach satin. The material is drawn slightly across the figure into a pointed effect and held on each side of the front by revers-like plaited pieces of the satin. The plastron is plaited crosswise and trimmed with two rows of cluny lace medallions.

FOR WINTER DRESSES.

Chiffon Taffeta and Batiste Are Durable Fabrics For Ball Frocks.

All sorts of materials are being used this winter. For evening frocks handsome silks and the most ephemeral gauzes and chiffon are equally in favor. As usual, the middle course is the safest, and a delicate, graceful silk is perhaps the most satisfactory.

There is a chiffon taffeta which makes charming party dresses for girls. This fabric recommends itself because it does not crush and always looks fresh and dainty. Then there are any number of muslins, nets and silk batistes. They come double width and make foamy, fluffy frocks.

In pale blue, pink and yellow, batiste is very attractive and has the merit of being inexpensive, costing generally about 75 cents a yard.

The new evening frocks are long all around, but made without trains. The skirts may be as much gathered, befrilled and beruffled as the wearer can stand provided the effect is not clumsy.

A white chiffon frock trimmed with ruchings of the same fabric and a little real lace to be worn with several different sashes and berthas is a splendid investment.

The smart dress illustrated is of a dull shade of claret cloth. The skirt just touches the ground all around and is finely tucked about the waist and trimmed at the hem with silk braid applied in graduated lines and finished with conventional designs at the top. The bodice is tucked from the shoulder, and on either side of a chiffon emplecement are lines of the braided passementerie. Buttons ornament the vest. THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Loring was gazing steadfastly at the blank, heavy face, so utterly devoid of the enthusiasm the man was evoking in others. For one flitting instant he thought he saw behind the mask. The immobile face, the awkward gestures, the slipshod English became suddenly transparent, revealing the real man; a man of titanic strength, of tremendous possibilities for good or evil. Loring put up his glasses and looked again; but the figure of the flash-light inner vision had vanished, and the speaker was answering his objector as calmly as though the house held only the single critic to be set right.

"I'm always glad to hear a man speak right out in meeting," he said, dropping still deeper into the colloquialisms. "Supposing the corporations don't see the handwriting on the wall—won't see it, you say? Then, my friend, it will become the manifest duty of the legislature and the executive to make 'em see it: always lawfully, you understand; always with a just and equitable respect for the rights of property in which our free and glorious institutions are founded, but with level-headed justice, and without fear or favor."

Again the clamor of applause rose like fine dust on the throng-heated air, and Kent looked at his watch.

"It is time we were going," he said; adding: "I guess you have had enough of it, havn't you?"

Loring was silent for the better part of the way back to the railway station. When he spoke it was in answer to a delayed question of Kent's.

"What do I think of him? I don't know, David; and that's the plain truth. He is not the man he appears to be as he stands there haranguing that crowd. That is a pose, and an exceedingly skillful one. He is not altogether apparent to me; but he strikes me as being a man of immense possibilities—whether for good or evil, I can't say."

"You needn't draw another breath of uncertainty on that score," was the curt rejoinder. "He is a demagogue, pure and unadulterated."

Loring did not attempt to refute the charge.

"Are he and his party likely to win?" he asked.

"God knows," said Kent. "We have had so many lightning transformations in politics in the state that nothing is impossible."

"I'd like to know," was Loring's comment. "It might make some difference to me, personally."

"To you?" said Kent, inquiringly. "That reminds me: I haven't given you a chance to say ten words about yourself."

"The chance hasn't been lacking. But my business out here is—well, it isn't exactly a Star Chamber matter, but I'm under promise in a way not to talk about it until I have had a conference with our people at the capital. I'll write you about it in a few days."

They were ascending the steps at the end of the passenger platform again, and Loring broke away from the political and personal entanglement to give Kent one more opportunity to hear his word of negative comfort.

"We dug up the field of your recollection pretty thoroughly in our after-dinner scenes in your rooms, David, but I noticed there was a corner of it you left undisturbed. Was there any good reason?"

Kent made no show of misunderstanding.

"There was the excellent reason which must have been apparent to you before you had been an hour in Gaston. I've made my shot, and missed."

Loring entered the breach with his shield held well to the fore. He was the last man in the world to assault a friend's confidence recklessly.

"I thought a good while ago, and I still think that you are making a mountain out of a mole-hill, David. Elinor Brentwood is a true woman in every inch of her. She is as much above caring for false notions of caste as you ought to be."

"I know her nobility: which is all the more the reason why I shouldn't take advantage of it. We may scoff at the social inequalities as much as we please, but we can't laugh them out of court. As between a young woman who is an heiress in her own right, and a briefless lawyer, there are differences which a decent man is bound to efface. And I haven't been able."

"Does Miss Brentwood know?"

"She knows nothing at all. I was unwilling to entangle her, even with a confidence."

"The more fool you," said Loring, bluntly. "You call yourself a lawyer, and you have not yet learned one of the first principles of common justice, which is that a woman has some rights which even a besotted lover is bound to respect. You made love to her that summer at Croydon; you needn't deny it. And at the end of things you walk off to make your fortune without committing yourself; without knowing, or apparently without caring, what your stiff-necked poverty-pride may cost her in years of uncertainty. You deserve to lose her."

Kent's smile was a fair measure of his unhopeful mood.

"You can't well lose what you have never had. I'm not such an ass as to believe that she cared greatly."

"How do you know? Not by anything you ever gave her a chance to say, I'll dare swear. I've a bit of qualified good news for you, but the spirit is moving me mightily to hold my tongue."

"Tell me," said Kent, his indifference vanishing in the turning of a leaf.

"Well, to begin with, Miss Brentwood is still unmarried, though the gossips say she doesn't lack plenty of eligible offers."

"Half of that I knew; the other half I took for granted. Go on."

"Her mother, under the advice of the chief of the clan Brentwood, has been making a lot of bad investments for herself and her two daughters: in other words, she has been making ducks and drakes of the Brentwood fortune."

Kent was as deeply moved as if the loss had been his own, and said as much, craving more of the particulars.

"I can't give them. But I may say that the blame lies at your door, David."

"At my door? How do you arrive at that?"

"By the shortest possible route. If you had done your duty by Elinor in the Croydon summer, Mrs. Brentwood would have had a bright young attorney for a son-in-law and adviser, and the bad investments would not have been made."

Kent's laugh was entirely devoid of mirth.

"Don't trample on a man when he's down. I was neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet. But how bad is the smash? Surely you know that?"

"No, I don't. Bradford was telling about it the day I left Boston. He gave me to understand that the principal family holding at present is in the stock of a certain western railway."

"Did he happen to know the name of the stock?" asked Kent, moistening his lips.

"He did. Fate flirts with you two in the usual fashion. Mrs. Brentwood's little fortune—and by consequence, Elinor's and Penelope's—is tied up in the stock of the company whose platform we are occupying at the present moment—the Western Pacific."

Kent let slip a hard word directed at ill-advisers in general, and Loring took his cue from the malediction.

"You swear pretty feelingly, David. Isn't our property as good a thing as we of the Boston end have been cracking it up to be?"

"You know better about the financial part of it than I do. But—well, you are fresh from this anarchistic conclave at the opera house. You can imagine what the stock of the Western Pacific, or of any other foreign corporation doing business in this state, will be worth in six months after Bucks and his crowd get into the saddle."

"You speak as if the result of the election were a foregone conclusion. I hope it isn't. But we were talking more particularly of Miss Brentwood, and your personal responsibilities." The belated train was whistling for the lower yard, and Loring was determined to say all that was in his mind.

"Yes; go on. I'm anxious to hear—more anxious than I seem to be, perhaps."

"Well, she is coming west, after a bit. She, and her sister and the mother. Mrs. Brentwood's asthma is worse, and the wise men have ordered her to the interior. I thought you'd like to know."

"Is she—are they coming this way?" asked Kent.

The train was in, and the porter had fetched Loring's hand-bag from the check stand. The guest paused with one foot on the step of the sleeping car.

"If I were you, David, I'd write and ask; I should, by Jove. It would be a tremendously cheeky thing to do, of course, having such a slight acquaintance with her as you have; but I'll be hanged if I should't chance it. And in the mean time, if I don't go back east next week, you'll hear from me. When you do, or if you do, take a day off and run up to the capital. I shall need you. Good-by."

Kent watched the train pull out; stood looking after it until the two red eyes of the rear signals had disappeared in the dusty darkness of the illimitable plain. Then he went to his rooms, to the one which was called by courtesy his office, and without allowing himself time for a nice balancing of the pros and cons, squared himself at the desk to write a letter.

CHAPTER III.

THE BOSTONIANS.

It was precisely on the day for the Brentwoods' westward flitting that the postman, making his morning round, delivered David Kent's asking at the house in the Back Bay sub-district. Elinor was busy packing for the migration, but she left Penelope and the maid to cope with the problem of compressing two trunkfuls into one while she read the letter, and she was reading it a second time when Mr. Brookes Ormsby's card came up.

"You go, Penelope," she begged. "There is so much to do."

"Not I," said the younger sister, cavalierly; "he didn't come to see me." Wherupon Elinor smoothed the two small wrinkles of impatience out of her brow, tucked her letter into her bosom, and went down to meet the early morning caller.

Mr. Brookes Ormsby, club-man, gentleman of athletic leisure, and inheritor of the Ormsby millions, was pacing back and forth before the handful of fire in the drawing room grate when she entered.

"You don't deserve to have a collie sheep-dog friend," he protested reproachfully. "How was I to know that you were going away?"

Another time Elinor might have felt that she owed him an explanation, but just now she was careful, and troubled about the packing.

"How was I to know you didn't know?" she retorted. "It was in the Transcript."

"Well," said Ormsby. "Things have come to a pretty mess when I have to keep track of you through the society column. I didn't see the paper. Dyckman brought me word last night at Vineyard Haven, and we broke a propellor blade on the Amphitrite trying to get here in time."

"I am so sorry—for the Amphitrite," she said. "But you are here, and in good season. Shall I call mother and Nell?"

"No. I ran out to see if I'm in time to do your errands for you—take your tickets, and so on."

"Oh, we shouldn't think of troubling you. James can do all those things. And failing James, there is a very dependable young woman at the head of this household. Haven't I 'personally conducted' the family all over Europe?"

"James is a base hireling," said the caller, blandly. "And as for the capable young woman: do I or do I not recollect a dark night on the German frontier when she was glad enough to call on a sleepy fellow pilgrim to help her wrestle with a particularly thick headed customs officer?"

"If you do, it is not especially kind of you to remind her of it."

He looked up quickly, and the masterful soul of the man, for which the clean-cut, square-set jaw and the athletic figure were the outward presentments, put on a mask of deference and humility.

"You are hard with me, Elinor—always flinty and adamantine, and that sort. Have you no soft side at all?"

She laughed.

"The sentimental young woman went out some time ago, didn't she? One can't be an anachronism."

"I suppose not. Yet I'm always trying to make myself believe other things about you. Don't you like to be cared for like other women?"

"I don't know; sometimes I think I should. But I have had to be the man of the house since father died."

"I know," he said. "And it is the petty anxieties that have made you put the woman to the wall. I'm here this morning to save you some of them; to take the man's part in your outsetting, or as much of it as I can. When are you going to give me the right to come between you and all the little worries, Elinor?"

She turned from him with a faint gesture of cold impatience.

"You are forgetting your promise," she said quite dispassionately. "We were to be friends; as good friends as we were before that evening at Bar Harbor. I told you it would be impossible, and you said you were strong enough to make it possible."

He looked at her with narrowing eyes.

"It is possible, in a way. But I'd like to know what door of your heart it is that I haven't been able to open."

She ignored the pleading and took refuge in a woman's expedient.

"If you insist on going back to the beginnings, I shall go back, also—to Abigail and the trunk packing."

He planted himself squarely before her, the mask lifted and the masterful soul asserting itself boldly.

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS

SENATOR COCKRELL, OF MISSOURI, IS TO RETIRE.

First Elected to the United States Senate in 1875—Has Been a Conscientious and Hardworking Official.

Washington.—One of the most notable victims of the Roosevelt landslide is Francis Marion Cockrell, senior United States senator from the state of Missouri, whose fifth consecutive term in the senate will expire on March 4, 1905. President Roosevelt expressed the general sentiment of republicans and democrats when he said:

"I am truly sorry that my good friend Senator Cockrell retires from the United States senate as a result of the republican victory in Missouri."

Senator Cockrell has long been a conspicuous figure on the democratic side of the chamber. While the democrats held brief control of the senate during the Cleveland administration he was chairman of the committee on appropriations, and as such was playfully spoken of as "watchdog of the treasury," because of his well-known views regarding an economical expenditure of the public money. When the republicans regained control of the senate Mr. Cockrell became the ranking member of the minority on the same committee, but continued as the special senatorial guardian of Uncle Sam's strong box.

Visitors entering the gallery while the senate was in session had pointed out to them an old man, closely resembling some of the caricatures of Uncle Sam, sitting in the front row of seats on the democratic side of the chamber following attentively the ordinary routine proceedings with the strictest attention, says a correspondent from this city to the New York Herald.

SENATOR F. M. COCKRELL.
(He Will Retire from the Senate After Thirty Years of Service.)

Spread out upon his desk was a complete file of every bill introduced in and report made to the senate. While other senators were otherwise engaged it seemed to be Senator Cockrell's mission to scrutinize every legislative proposition involving the expenditure of government funds.

Senator Cockrell came to the senate in 1875, succeeding Carl Schurz, than an independent republican. He never before had held a public office. When his present term expires he will have served 30 years as a member of the senate. He has frequently been mentioned as a presidential possibility. His friends in Missouri, to show their appreciation of his valuable aid and influence in obtaining an appropriation which made the St. Louis exposition a possibility, gave him what was declared the only genuine and spontaneous demonstration that marked the proceedings of the national democratic convention which nominated Judge Parker.

Other candidates were "boomed," but the great ovation which greeted the name of Senator Cockrell when he was presented to the convention was spontaneous and sincere.

During the 30 years he has been a member of the senate Mr. Cockrell has lived a quiet, frugal life, never exceeding his income as a senator. Many men in his position and commanding the influence he possessed might have found a way to enrich themselves, by judicious investments or otherwise. No stain of any kind rests upon the official or personal record of Senator Cockrell, and he goes into political retirement a poor man, 70 years old.

It is said of Mr. Cockrell that no minority senator is so influential with the leaders of the republican side as he.

Camera Disease Detector.

A Manchester photographer relates that he took a photograph of a child who was apparently in good health and had a clear skin. The negative showed the face to be thickly covered with an eruption. Three days afterward the child was covered with spots due to prickly heat. The camera had seen and photographed the eruption three days before it was visible to the naked eye. It is said that another case of a similar kind is recorded, where a child showed spots on his portrait which were invisible on his face a fortnight previous to an attack of smallpox.

Novel Rain Gauge.

A tipping bucket attachment has been added to the rain gauge of the weather bureau on top of the custom house at St. Louis. It accurately tells of the amount of precipitation. The rain is drained into a double bucket, so poised that it tips on receiving a certain amount of water. Every movement of this kind is registered by an electrical connection.

BASKET BALL.

The Y. M. C. A. Business Men will play the Y. M. C. A., of Passaic, on the local floor on Monday. There will also be a game with the first team.

The Plainfield High School basketball team will have a picture taken in their playing uniform at the Y. M. C. A. sometime this week.

The inter-association basketball contests at the Y. M. C. A. will begin tomorrow night. The teams, four in number, are captained by Paul Collier, Arthur Axholm, Stryker Hoagland and William Sebring. These teams will compete for the championship of the men's class.

This will be the lineup of the scholastic contests this afternoon: Leal's—Chapman and Howard, forwards; Jewett, center; Manning and Lyman, guards. N. P. H. S.—Webster and Peacock, forwards; Mundy, center; Steiner and Hand, guards. In the junior league the teams will go on the floor as follows: Y. M. C. A.—Mortimer and Steiner, forwards; Stern, center; Line and Doeringer, guards.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will be the scene of two basketball games this afternoon, teams in both the Interscholastic and the Juvenile Leagues competing. The North Plainfield High School and Leal's School teams will contend in the former league and in the latter, the Y. M. C. A. juniors and the second team of the Plainfield High School will meet. Leal's will probably have a comparatively easy matter defeating N. P. H. S. The winner of both league, however, is determined by the number of games won, regardless of the number lost. The Leal's School players are anxious to get the P. H. S. scalp next week, and they are practicing hard to that end.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Dunellen and Fanwood bowling teams met in a match on the Taylor Hotel alleys last night. The scores will be found in another column.

The second series of matches in the Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament will be rolled off tonight at the Y. M. C. A. alleys. The competitors each have two more games to roll. Chauncey Keens, the captain of the bowling team, has, up to the present time, the highest score and the best average in the league.

Under the name of The Triangles, an independent bowling club, has been launched and will open its season on the Fanwood Club house alleys Friday evening, January 27. The club is composed of members of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team and the Suburban Club, of Fanwood, and although it numbers at present less than a dozen members, promises to become a factor of no mean importance in bowling matters in this section. A series of games with the stronger teams in this vicinity will be arranged and the season will prove interesting beyond a doubt.

Although the scores were remarkably low throughout last night's bowling match between the local Y. M. C. A. team and the Rahway Y. M. C. A. on the latter's alleys, was interesting on account of the closeness of the figures during the last two games. Rahway took the first game by eighty-six pins, but in the second and third games the Plainfielders managed to pile up fourteen and fifteen pins more than their opponents. Score by games: Rahway—696, 565, 563; Plainfield—610, 579, 578. A return match has been arranged for two weeks from tonight, on the local association alleys.

William Barlow, of the Park Club bowling team, who now holds the highest score in the Central Journal Bowling League, made one of the best average scores, in the match Monday night, which any of the competitors in the league have yet rolled. The scores for his three games were 249, 179 and 221, making an average of 216. No one on the local team has reached that average this year, as it is an exceptionally good one. Barlow is not an erratic bowler, but may always be counted on for a high mark, and together with Captain Ball usually takes the honors in the Park Club competitions. The Parks will bowl at Elizabeth tomorrow night.

RURAL RESIDENTS LIKE FREE DELIVERY SYSTEM

ROUTE NO. 3, HAS BECOME POPULAR SINCE ITS IMAUGURATION.

The families living along the new rural free delivery route which extends over the mountain taking in Watchung, Union Village, and the adjoining places, seem to be much pleased with the improvement. The success of this method has led to the abolishment of the postoffice at Gallia, which goes into effect, February 15. The only postoffice, beside the one at Gallia, in that part of Somerset county, is at Warrenville and this has been located there for many years. Miss Bornman is the postmistress, having succeeded her father, who died a number of years ago.

While a majority of the families welcome the new method of getting their mail, some have shown their dislike to the order doing away with the Gallia office, but it is expected that they will soon be in favor of the change. Nelson Peterson, the carrier on this route, is having no trouble thus far in covering the territory. He takes about five hours to make the round trip, which is about twenty miles in length. When his territory includes Gallia, it will be a little longer. With only one horse, he finds is best to take a little more time, as the daily trip up the mountain is a tiresome one on the animal. Nearly every day he has a fairly heavy mail and there are not many families that do not receive either a letter, a paper or package.

According to the postal rules every householder is obliged to place a letter-box in front of his place and the carrier is not obliged to take mail matter to the house. This rule is generally known among the people on this route and a majority have placed such boxes in position. Others have learned the exact time that the carrier reaches their homes and they wait for Mr. Peterson. It is now possible for some families to have a New York morning paper almost as early as those living in Plainfield, one person receiving his paper as early as 8 o'clock.

FORTY DAYS STRAIGHT.

Annie Johnson's Conduct in Court Calls Down Wrath of the Cadi.

Having been arrested last night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Annie Johnston, colored, originally fined $10, made such a disturbance by her wild shrieks and cries in the city court today that Judge Runyon recalled the fine and sentenced her to a term of forty days in jail. She was arrested for making a disturbance on West Fourth street, while intoxicated, by ringing bells and banging on all the doors in the neighborhood. The police were notified and she was brought to the station house, kicking and struggling.

During most of the night the woman raised the echoes in the police station by yelling with all the strength of her lungs, and was only subsided when Patrolman McCarthy escorted her to Elizabeth this morning.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

If you have any work in the plumbing or tinning line give J. J. Leahy, of Richmond street, an opportunity to do it. You will be entirely satisfied.

When in need of men's furnishings stop at O. M. Dunham's store in Park avenue, where you will find a full line of everything at reasonable prices.

When you buy candy of Mehrtens's you will always get the best. He sells freshly made candy every day, and deals with none but first-class goods.

Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, are showing an exceptional line of seasonable goods, of the best quality and at low prices.

Timbo's restaurant on North avenue is famous as an eating place. The food is so good, so well cooked, and the service so excellent that once you eat at this place you want to return. The prices will suit you whether you get a light lunch or a full meal.

The American hen is a modest sort of a fowl in herself but her product forms one of the greatest commercial values in the country. She has often been reviled because of unscrupulous dealers who dispose of eggs that do not deserve the name. For this reason Neuman Brothers make a specialty of securing the very best country eggs and by properly serving their patrons they do honor to the producer. To be brief, Neuman Brothers' grocery is one place in town where strictly fresh eggs may be had.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Auxiliary of St. Stephen's church will meet Saturday afternoon at 818 Webster place.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Scheffler, of New York, are happy parents of a daughter, recently born to them. Mrs. Schoffler is the daughter of Mrs. Rufus Lincoln, of West Eighth street.

Gardner Out on Bail.

James Gardner, who was held by Justice Huff in $500 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury, for retaining evidence which may lead to the arrest of the person who fired Michael Armstrong's barn on January 1, has been released upon $200 bail, which was furnished by Stonewall Jackson, the original amount of the bond being reduced. His counsel, W. G. DeMeza, petitioned the court of oyer and terminer to wave indictment, and Gardner will be brought up for an immediate trial either on Friday of this week or next Wednesday.

Brakeman's Finger Torn Off.

Catching his finger in the railings between two cars on the train which is due in this city at 11:44, C. D. De Couroy, of Philadelphia, a brakeman, had the end of his finger torn off this morning, just after the train left Jersey City. The train makes no stops until it reaches this city, and the young man was without medical attendance until Dr. Tomlinson was summoned to the station at about 1 o'clock.

Entertained Whist Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Seals, of West Fourth street, entertained the Watchung Whist Club at their home, last night. The first and second prizes for the women were taken by Mrs. Walter Apgar and Mrs. Horace Conover, while U. G. Pierson and Horace Conover won the prizes for the men. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Leek, of Westfield, will entertain the club on Tuesday night, February 7.

A Chimney Fire.

Two extinguishers were sufficient to put out a fire in a chimney at 304 Arlington avenue this morning. The fire was discovered at 10 o'clock and a still alarm was sent in. The house is occupied by Peter Wyckoff.

Engines Collided.

Last night at Somerville an eastbound engine collided with a westbound engine, causing a slight upset. The wreck train was sent to the scene of the accident and righted the engines in a short time.

MR. JONES DINED HIGH ON A POUND OF MUTTON

NOT PROVEN THOUGH THAT IT CAME FROM THEIS' STOLEN SHEEP.

In Justice Huff's court, yesterday afternoon, it was clearly demonstrated that "Professor Conjunction" Walter Jones has been dining on mutton of late and that several of his "lady" friends have been doing likewise through his generosity, but whether it came from the sheep that disappeared from Butcher Herman Theis' shop last week or from fifteen cents worth of scrap meat that the "professor" purchased could not be determined. With the prevailing price of mutton, Mr. Jones couldn't have procured more than a pound for his fifteen cents and yet the police located several colored families in the West End who acknowledged having it for dinner as a gift from him. In addition the professor has a healthy appetite and it is known that mutton has stood out boldly on his menu card since some time last week, though he declares it all came from the original fifteen cents worth of scraps.

Butcher Theis didn't know of a certainty that Mr. Jones had been around when his sheep went astray but there were circumstances which led him to believe he had. The police also thought he had and when they heard of his distributing mutton they invited him to headquarters to talk it over. The records show that on one occasion recently, "Conjunction" walked off with a crate of eggs from a Boulevard grocery, on another that he borrowed Moses Bender's bicycle without taking the trouble to tell the owner about it and still again, he formed partnership with a butcher's nam when no one was looking. These trivialities had some weight with Justice Huff when he summed up the sheep and mutton testimony and he asked "Professor Conjunction" to deposit $50 as a guarantee that he would be around when the Grand Jury met. William G. DeMeza appeared for the State and Francis J. Blats appeared for Mr. Jones.

Pliny Fisk Gets 2,000 Acres on Ramapo Mountains for a Preserve.

Pliny Fisk, head of the firm of Harvey Fisk & Son, bankers, has bought a tract of 2,000 acres on Ramapo Mountain, which he intends to use as a game preserve for himself and friends. The tract is one of the most picturesque regions in the vicinity of New York. It was conveyed to Mr. Fisk and H. P. Frothingham, the money broker, who has an interest in it, by J. P. Morgan, as president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The property formerly belonged to Jacob Rogers, the millionaire locomotive builder.

At the office of Pliny Fisk yesterday it was said that the purchasers do not intend to form a club, but intend to use the same for their own shooting. They have already renamed the big pond known as Rotten Pond very ambitiously. It is hereafter to be known as Le Grand Lake. The pond is said to contain a very fine variety of bullheads and an endless supply of frog's legs.

Orra S. Rogers, of Madison avenue, will leave the first of February for Daytona, Fla., where he will remain for a time.

A. I. Smalley, of Lake Maccanaw, N. C., who has been spending a few days with relatives and friends in town, returned home today, the blizzard having caused him to make a hasty exit to the southland.

IN THE GRIP OF BIG STORM

Trolley Cars Tied Up, Railroad Service Crippled and Business Almost Suspended.

DRIFTS SIX FEET HIGH

MERCURY DROPPED TO FIVE DEGREES BELOW THIS MORNING.

City Has Not Yet Recovered From Effects of Blizzard, Which is the Worst Since 1899—Streets Are Are Impassable—All Mails Delayed.

Surpassing in its effect the big, blockading storm of February 13, 1899, and resembling in many respects the record-breaking blizzard of 1888, yesterday's snowstorm was one that will stand out prominently in all future weather records. With more than a foot of feathery flakes on the level, a keen, lashing wind whirling it into drifts six feet high and intense cold, business received a knock-out blow from which it has not yet fully recovered. Steam and trolley traffic went along for awhile without any attempt at schedule and the latter finally gave up altogether. Business men closed their stores, pedestrianism was a matter of necessity and not of choice and last night almost all Plainfield was indoors.

The blizzard was the result of two storms meeting off the Jersey coast near Atlantic City, early yesterday morning. One came down from the upper lake region and the others started on the Gulf of Mexico off the Texas coast, insignificant at first, but a real sassy sort of affair when it caught up with the first. Both fought for supremacy and poor, suffering humanity caught the brunt of the battle.

The doubled storm dripped snow and fine ice almost unceasingly from midnight on Tuesday until 8 o'clock last evening. The highest force of the wind, when it was in the northeast, was forty-five miles, but it blew in gusts that made it appear, with its needlelike snow, almost of hurricane power. The highest wind was forty-eight miles from the northwest at 8 o'clock last night. This morning ushered in the coldest weather of the winter, the mercury dropping to 10 degrees above at 10 o'clock last night and at times this morning was five below.

The service on the New Jersey Central last night and this morning was quite good considering the many difficulties encountered. Possibly the greatest handicap was in the Jersey City yards, where everything was frozen up and the movement of passenger coaches was extremely difficult in making up trains. The high winds would cover the tracks with snow almost as soon as cleared away by the huge sweepers.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock an eastbound freight train was stalled at the North Avenue station for several hours. Five engines eventually succeeded in moving the train.

The condition of the Fanwood cut caused further trouble. At times it was possible to keep only one track open and that for brief periods. It would fill up with snow almost as fast as cleaned out. At Dunellen the railroad yards were choked with snow and ice and the employes there worked almost continuously in their efforts to make up trains and get them out as near as possible on scheduled time. The trains would often leave on time, but would arrive at the destination anywhere from one to two hours late. It was with considerable risk that trains were run over the Newark Bay bridge, owing to the high winds and the engineers were exceedingly precautious as they passed over the draw bridge. Every employe was called into service and a majority of them worked through the day and nearly all night.

A. D. Edgar, trainmaster of the road, and Charles English, his assistant, remained at their posts of duty constantly, directing the movement of trains which was very slow at the best. When it was realized that trains could not be operated on time, effort was directed toward giving patrons as good service as possible consistent with safety. One railroad man said that in his long career on the road he never remembered a time when the operation of trains was attended with such hazardous conditions and extra precautions had to be taken.

Although a fair number of commuters braved the storm and reached New York yesterday morning, many of them remained in the city last night rather than make the return trip, not knowing what time they would reach home. During the early part of the evening two or three passenger trains reached Plainfield from New York within a short time, but after that the intervals were longer, and every train was late in returning from Jersey City. Conductor Charles Dodwell reached his home in Dunellen at 8 o'clock this morning and was out again in less than two hours preparing to take his train out. As it was he was nearly a half hour late in starting with his club-car train for New York.

Conditions on the Philadelphia and Reading were even worse and it was only occasionally that a train would get through from or to Philadelphia. The road for long distances was covered with drifts of snow through that level country where there is nothing to break the force of the wind. Toward noon today conditions began to improve and better headway was being made in keeping the railroads clear.

It will be several days before the freight and coal trains will be able to resume their regular schedule. Many trains are stalled on the road in Pennsylvania and other parts of the road, they being caught Tuesday night and yesterday morning in the heavy fall of snow and accompanying hurricane.

During the storm yesterday Street Commissioner Gavett did not attempt to do anything toward making sidewalks or crosswalks passable, but early this morning he had a gang of men on Front street removing the drifts of snow. By this afternoon he had three gangs, about thirty men in all at work about the city. One gang is cleaning sidewalks, another crosswalks and the third is clearing the roads in the business section.

Not later than tomorrow a gang will be used to open up the gutters and prepare for a thaw which is likely to follow the cold snap. However, with the thermometer hovering around zero he does not anticipate a warm wave immediately.

Mr. Gavett was after the trolley company this morning, asking the officials to open up the drifts caused by the use of the plow and sweeper. He found a small gang of men in the Watchung avenue waiting room and at his request the men were put to work. Mr. Gavett could have used several teams and carts this morning, but he did not have the extra men to spare to take charge of them. This he hopes to do a little later.

Many citizens being unable to secure men to clean off their walks sought the street commissioner this morning on the telephone for help, but Mr. Gavett was obliged to refuse them as his men are all busy and he cannot spare them.

Rural Carrier Nelson Peterson did not reach the postoffice yesterday on his return trip until after 1 o'clock in the afternoon. He is due about 12 o'clock. He found the trip exceedingly difficult as in some cases he was the first traveller through that section and it was hard to keep in the road. The other two rural carriers reported less difficulty and they were about on time.

A large sign at the top of the F. L. O. Martin building on Park avenue, was blown down by the wind, carrying with it one of the telephone wires. Linemen from the telephone company were soon on hand and repaired the broken wire. The sign was a wreck.

The storm had its effect on the transportation of mail matter and the local postoffice was a deserted place yesterday. While people were anxious to get their mail, they did not want it bad enough to go to the office. The city carriers were able to make two deliveries yesterday, but the mail was light owing to the irregularity of the mail trains. The first mail yesterday morning arrived nearly on time, but after that the mails were anywhere from two to three hours late. The 5 o'clock mail last night reached the office at 7:30. Postmaster Bird did not hold the carriers for the various mails knowing that they would be late, but sent them out with what mail there was in the office.

Rural Carriers Leslie Lambert and Nelson Peterson, started out this morning, but were forced to return home, it being impossible to get through. Carrier Ruckman, who takes mail to the Warrenville postoffice, started out and it is believed that he got through.

About 11 o'clock Rural Carrier Lambert arrived at the office from his home in Alton. He was accompanied by his brother and it required over three hours to get to Plainfield. In some places the high snow drifts were

PLANS FOR FINE BUILDING

L. L. Manning's New Structure Will be Strictly Modern.

DECIDING DETAILS

Sebring Estate Also to Put Up a Flat Dwelling on West Front Street, Near Central Avenue.

L. L. Manning, of West Front street, who has plans for a handsome building which he proposes to erect corner of West Front street and Central avenue, is preparing to move his marble-yard from the corner to the property adjoining his and owned by John Abbott. The proposed new structure will be one of the finest in the city, and according to the plans the interior arrangement of the flats will be equipped with the very latest improvements.

There are some details regarding the plans which have not been definitely decided upon by Mr. Manning, but as soon as suitable weather arrives work will be started on the structure. With a view to erecting this building, Mr. Manning and Mr. Abbott asked the Common Council to establish a building line on West Front street as far as New street, at least. This was done at a recent meeting of the Common Council. According to this line the sidewalk and the street will remain at the present width, but it will govern the line on the new building so that uniformity will be maintained in the future in case other buildings are erected.

There will be two entrances to Mr. Manning's flats. One to those facing on Front street and another to those facing Central avenue. Each flat will probably contain six or seven rooms, together with the modern improvements. The building will probably be faced with brick and marble, presenting an attractive appearance.

Among the other improvements to be made on West Front street, probably during the present year, will be the erection of a building on the Sebring property, adjoining the Babcock building. Just at present the estate is making preliminary arrangements for such a building. This building will probably contain flats in the upper stories and two stores on the ground floor. Several out-of-town business people have been seeking information about the probable erection of stores on this property and no trouble would be experienced in leasing them.

Charles Sebring is now engaged in erecting a one story building on West Front street, adjoining the Manning flats and later he may run this structure up two more stories for flats. Just now there is a "flat craze" in Plainfield and vicinity, many preferring them to separate residences. That this is true is shown by the fact that before W. M. Stillman's New Madison was completed nearly all of the flats were leased and Mr. Manning is having the same experience in his plans for his new building.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE IN ANNUAL SESSION

GRAND DIVISION OF NEW JERSEY HEARS GOOD REPORTS.

The sixty-first annual session of the grand division, Sons of Temperance of New Jersey, met in Concordia Hall, in Trenton, yesterday, and representatives from nearly every section of the Satte were present, listened to the reading of reports which showed an increase in membership and the body to be in a flourishing condition financially, and assisted in electing the following officers:

Grand worthy patriarch, William O. Compton, Metuchen, re-elected; grand worhty associate, Ruth Blessing, Camden; grand scribe, Ross Slack; grand treasurer, Henry B Howell; grand chaplain, the Rev. Charles H. Elder; grand sentinel, William H. Watson, Trenton.

The officers were installed by Past Grand Worthy Patriarch Edward K. Drake, of Elizabeth.

The session was presided over by Grand Worthy Patriarch William P. Compton, of Metuchen.

Grand Worthy Patriarch Turner and Grand Scribe Fannie Mount, of the grand division of Pennsylvania, were introduced at the morning session and delivered short addresses.

Arions First Dance.

The Arion Social Club will held its first reception and dance in the old I. O. T. hall this evening. A large number of invitations have been issued and indications point to a good attendance despite the weather conditions.

$200 CASH BAIL SECURES WASHBURN HIS RELEASE

MAN ARRESTED ON CRIMINAL CHARGE WILL GO BEFORE GRAND JURY.

By depositing $200 cash bail with Justice F. J. Huff, Irving Washburn, the New York man accused of mistreating thirteen-year-old Margaret Walsh on Lee place, Tuesday afternoon, secured his release from jail last evening. He was to have been given a hearing this morning but preferred to waive examination and his wishes were granted after the Justice and Chief Kiely had consulted. The bail was furnished by his counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and the matter will be considered by the Grand Jury.

In a statement, last evening, the latter declared that Washburn is a victim of circumstances and that his catching hold of the young girl was done with no criminal intent. The defendant, he said, is a respectable business man and has a wife and family in New York. His presence in the city Tuesday was due to a business matter and he left for home soon after being released. He is thirty-eight years old and not twenty-five as was stated yesterday.

When first taken in custody, Washburn would make no statement but from what the police have learned by investigation and from facts furnished by his counsel, they are not inclined to view his conduct in a serious light.

ALL THROUGH TRAINS SEVERAL HOURS LATE

TWO BIG ENGINES USED TO PULL FOUR CARS.

The first train from Mauch Chunk reached Plainfield at noon today, it being between two and three hours late. The 9:55 o'clock westbound for Easton left here about noon. Word has been received that the paper train is stalled at Lebanon, but the possibilities are that it will get out early this afternoon.

All of the through trains are equipped with two large engines, while no attempt is made to run more than three or four cars on each. It is thought that by late this afternoon all of the tracks north of Somerville will be opened.

BRIDE IS SIXTEEN; GROOM SEVENTEEN

MISS PEARL DE NISE AND HARRY SHEPHERD SECRETLY WEDDED.

Miss Pearl DeNise, daughter of Mrs. Mary DeNise, of West Front street, and Harry Shepherd, of Watchung avenue, the borough, surprised their friends, yesterday, by announcing that they had been married. The ceremony was performed in New York on October 12 last and was kept a secret between them because of anticipated parental objection on account of their ages. The young man is not eighteen and his bride is sixteen.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd have since been living at their respective homes but they will go to housekeeping within a short time.

City Schools Closed.

All the public schools in the city were closed today with the exception of the High School. This was opened for one period, there being about fifty pupils present. The borough High School and Watchung School were opened as usual, with about half the regular attendance. One session was held at each school.

The Republican City Committee has again appointed Dr. O. L. Jenkins chairman, making his fifth term. Ernest H. Ackerman is vice chairman and William Newcorn secretary and treasurer. The committees are to be announced at a later date.

SENATOR KEAN RE-ELECTED

Legislature in Joint Session Choses U. S. Senator.

CROSS CHAIRMAN

Kean Received 57 and Stevens 19 Votes at the Joint Meeting of House and Senate.

Speaker Avis called the joint meeting of the Legislature to order which re-elected John Kean, United States Senator at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and Senator Cross, president of the Senate, was made chairman.

The journal of the Senate for Tuesday was read, relating to the proceedings taken by that body in the election of a United States Senator for New Jersey. The House journal for the same day was also read.

These showed that John Kean, of Union County, had received a majority of votes in both houses, and Senator Cross thereupon declared him elected for a term of six years, dating from March 4 next.

The vote as recorded was: Senate, Kean 14, Edwin A. Stevens, Democrat, 6; House, Kean, 43, Stevens 13. Total, Kean 57, Stevens 19.

The joint session immediately arose, and then the assembly adjourned until Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

John Kean was born at Ursino, Union County, in the house in which he now resides, Dec. 4, 1852. After attending private schools a Stockbridge, Mass., and Sing Sing, N. Y., he entered Yale in 1872. He studied law at Columbia College and was admitted to the bar in 1877.

In 1882, Mr. Kean was elected to Congress and was re-elected in 1886. In 1892 he was defeated for Governor. He defeated James Smith, the Democratic choice for United States Senator in 1899. His present term expires March 4, 1905.

KEAN ENTERTAINS STATE LAW MAKERS

RECEPTION AT TRENTON IN HONOR OF HIS RE-ELECTION.

In honor of his expected re-election to the United States Senate for another term of six years, Senator John Kean brought a congressional party from Washington to Trenton yesterday, and after the election by the Legislature entertained the Jersey lawmakers, State House officials and Mercer County Republican leaders at luncheon at the Trenton House.

It included, besides Senator Kean, Congressman Ira Wood, of Trenton; John J. Gardner, H. Wayne Parker, William H. Wiley, Henry C. Loudenslager and Allen Benny. Senator Dryden was kept in Washington by a cold.

The Congressmen were given the privileges of the floor during the joint meetting of the Senate and Assembly and witnessed the re-election of Senator Kean.

The reception took place and luncheon was served in the colonial room at the Trenton House.

Wore Paper Leggings.

A novel protection against the snow the chilling wind was conceived by William VanWinckle, Jr., an employe of Neuman Brothers, who went out yesterday in the severest part of the storm, thoroughly done up in heavy wrapping paper. He bound his legs in this material, securing the improvised leggings with twine. The snow did not go through them, and they proved thoroughly warm and comfortable.

Break in Fire Alarm Circuit.

A single tap on the house gongs followed by one blow of the gong, brought the local firemen tumbling out of bed shortly before 6 o'clock this morning. It was a false alarm, however, as the ring-in came from a break in one of the circuits. It was located this morning and was the only one that occurred during the storm.

In Big Realty Concern.

J. Wesley Johnson, of this city, is named as one of the incorporators of the Cranford Realty Co., which filed papers with the Secretary of State yesterday, with a capital stock of $50,000. The other incorporators are Henry R. Heath and George Sackett. The concern will do a general real estate business.

Fire Chief's Request.

Chief T. O. Doane makes a request that snow be removed from around the fire hydrants as soon as possible, as it would seriously handicap the firemen in getting water should they have occasion to use the hydrants.

Y. M. C. A. FAVORS FORMATION OF BASEBALL LEAGUE

ASSOCIATION MAY BE INFLUENTIAL IN AMATUER BASEBALL CIRCLES.

With a view to outlining plans for the baseball season a meeting of those interested in that sport will be held at the Y. M. C. A. in the near future, and the initial steps toward the organization of an association nine will be made. It was announced some time ago that this meeting would be held in the first part of January, but other affairs have conflicted, and it is now the intention of the committee to call a meeting either next week or early in February.

The Y. M. C. A. will have a strictly amateur baseball team, and among the rules which will govern the team will be one that none but members of the association will be allowed to play. Though another manager may be appointed, the team will for a time be run by the physical director, F. A. Henckel. With regard to the composition of the team, little can be said at present. Smith and Davis, the Plainfield High School combination, have been considered as the battery, and several other P. H. S. players will have an opportunity to try for the team.

It is possible that the Y. M. C. A. may be influential in the organization of an amteur baseball league in this city. It has been suggested, and in most cases favorably considered, that that the Dunellen and Clinton Avenue teams form with the association, a triangular league for baseball amateur championship contests. It is also possible that more teams may be admitted into this league. Mr. Henckel is anxious above all things tht a good team may represent the Y. M. C. A. and in so far as the formation of a league will further the sport, he is in favor with the proposition.

SNOWFALL TOTAL OF FOURTEEN INCHES

WEATHER OBSERVER NEAGLE FURNISHES SOME FIGURES.

According to Observer Neagle's official weather report, the total snowfall of the present storm was just fourteen inches on the level. This is below the fall of several storms of recent years but the others were not accompanied by the high wind which made matters so disagreeable yesterday. The big storm of February 13 and 14, 1899, is credited with a snowfall of 17.2 inches, the one on February 17, 1902, also 17.2 inches, the storm of March 5, 1902, the night before the Babcock building fire, a total of twelve inches and the one on February 16 and 17, 1903, 13.3 inches.

Residents in various parts of the city assert their thermometers went as low as eight degrees below but Observer Neagle declares that his official instrument went to zero and no further. It has been rising steadily since 8 o'clock this morning and by noon the temperature was quite agreeable, although the wind still keeps up.

Court House Soon Ready.

Director of the Board of Freeholders of Union County J. Frank Hubbard, of this city, and former Freeholders John Farrell, of Rahway, and Jacob Brucklacher, of Elizabeth, composing the Courthouse Commission met Tuesday with the architect, E. R. Ackerman, of the firm of Ackerman & Rise, of New York, for the purpose of discussing plans for the completion and formal opening of the new courthouse, which is being erected at a cost of $600,000. It was stated by the architect that the structure would be ready for occupancy by the middle of March or the first of April.

TELEPHONE SERVICE PROVED ITS EFFICIENCY

WIRES IN GOOD CONDITION DESPITE THE HEAVY STORM.

Anticipating another rush of business all day today and knowing that the street traffic will be congested and delayed, the company last night arranged to take care of the operators in nearby hotels and other comfortable quarters.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find It So.

The hustle and worry of business men,
The hard work and stooping of workmen.
The woman's household cares,
Are too great a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, sideache.
Kidney troubles follow.
A Plainfield citizen tells you how to cure them all.

C. H. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "I was a victim of kidney complaint and dreadful backache as bad in damp weather or when I caught a cold, that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the trouble. I was at my worst when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Kindly take notice that Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is of great benefit to those sufferers from nasal catarrh who cannot inhale freely through the nose, but must treat themselves by spraying. The price, including a spraying tube, is 75 cts. Sold by druggists and mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

A BLIZZARD HOLDUP

United States In Grip of Storm From Maine to Texas.

SNOW, BITTER COLD, RAGING WINDS

Atlantic Coast Line Suffers—Great Lakes Get a Share—Whole Land Covered by the Beautiful. All Lines Blockaded.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The greater portion of the United States is in the grip of a blizzard which is sweeping the country from Maine to Missouri and from Texas to the great lakes. If a meridian line was drawn from north to south across a map of the United States, passing through St. Paul and Kansas City, the great scope of the storm could be seen at a glance. All the states east of the line, save in the extreme south, are covered with a heavy snow blanket, and a bitter wind is whirling over them all at a rate of from forty to seventy miles an hour. In the north and middle west a cold wave, with temperatures below zero, is treading on the heels of the storm.

New York city finds itself almost completely isolated by the worst blizzard which has struck this section of the country since the memorable storm of March, 1888.

All the railroads are running on irregular time, schedules being abandoned and such trains as arrive and depart being several hours late. Surface car traffic is completely suspended in the suburbs and is likely to be throughout the entire city at any time.

Raino Natalizo, fifty-three years old, and William H. Gray were overcome in the storm and died from exposure and exhaustion.

At Boston the snowstorm assumed severe proportions, being accompanied by a high northerly gale.

The official speed trial of the new cruiser Maryland, built for the United States government by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company, which was to have been held off Thatcher's island, was postponed on account of the blizzard.

Pittsfield has reported a foot of snow, and New Haven wired that all Connecticut felt the fury of the winter storm.

Cold weather prevails all over the eastern part of the country. Zero has been registered in Tennessee, and in Ohio and Kentucky it is from 6 to 23 below. At Asheville, a winter resort, it was 2 degrees below at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Reports from Albany, the Mohawk valley, the Adirondacks, the Hudson valley and the southern tier show the storm to be of wide prevalence and of especial severity in the lower part of the state.

At Middletown the storm reached almost blizzard proportions. It began in the night and continued all day, with no evidence of early cessation. Electric and steam railways were greatly hindered by enormous drifts, and country roads were blocked.

At Amsterdam snow has been steadily falling since Tuesday morning.

At Rochester snow began falling Tuesday evening and continues, with the temperature near zero.

At Buffalo light snow was falling, with the temperature at 14 degrees. The wind was blowing twenty-four miles an hour, and there was considerable drifting.

Reports from Chicago and many cities and towns in the west and northwest show that the severest cold of the winter is prevailing, intensified by high winds.

In Chicago the mercury fell from 22 above zero to 6 below in twenty-four hours, with a gale of forty miles an hour blowing. There was much suffering in the poorer districts.

From the copper district of northern Michigan and Wisconsin reports say that the worst storm of the winter has raged. The snowfall was heavy, blockading railways and crippling communication generally.

From Burlington, Ia., 15 below zero was reported, with a high wind. Marshalltown, Ia., reported the same intense cold and a severe gale. In this part of the state snow was drifted badly in the railroad cuts, interfering seriously with traffic.

In Omaha the weather bureau reported the minimum temperature at 17 degrees below zero, the coldest of the year. Ice cutters have been driven from their work on the river and lakes by the fierce winds and compelled to abandon work.

From Kansas City comes a report of the coldest weather of the winter throughout western Kansas and Missouri. Zero was reached at 7 o'clock at night, and 11 below was the mark before morning.

At St. Louis it was 6 below zero, and other places near by were even colder.

The same general conditions prevailed throughout Indiana. At several points in the natural gas belt the supply of gas entirely failed, and there was much damage to steam and electric railroads and to telegraph and telephone lines.

The severest cold in several years is reported from southern Indiana. Ten below, with a fierce wind from the north, was reached at Springfield, Ill.

Half of the city electric lines at Reading, Pa., and several rural trolley roads have abandoned traffic. The Reading railway has stopped running all coal cars and trains made up of empty cars.

Travel of all kinds was practically suspended near Nyack, N. Y., and throughout Rockland county as a result of the storm. At many points in the country roads the snow was piled in drifts fifteen feet in height.

The country south of the Ohio river is in the grasp of a cold wave, which in many places has broken the records for four years. In Louisville the lowest official reading was 3 below, the coldest since 1901.

The Ohio river is frozen from bank to bank for the first time in five years. Ten steamers are tight in the ice.

Temperatures ranging from 10 to 20 below are reported in the mountains of Kentucky.

The worst blizzard of the winter is raging at Oswego, N. Y., the mercury ranging about zero and falling and the wind blowing forty-five miles an hour. Trains are delayed by heavy drifts.

Hazleton, Pa., is in the grip of the worst storm of the winter. Snow has been falling since yesterday morning and is now twenty-two inches deep. The trolley system is completely paralyzed. Railroad trains are stalled and the third rail line between here and Wilkesbarre is tied up. The mines were in operation, but there will likely be a general suspension today.

The blizzard at Lancaster, Pa., continues and rages with increasing intensity. Trolley service in city and country is completely paralyzed. All trains on the steam roads are late. Snow has fallen to the depth of fourteen inches on the level.

A severe storm has swept the Virginia coast, the wind reaching a velocity of forty-six miles an hour at Cape Hatteras. Shipping was blown far to sea, and two wrecks have been reported. The temperature dropped 2 degrees in a few hours.

The two masted schooner Flora and Agnes, bound from Plymouth, N. C., to Baltimore, lumber laden, was driven ashore in Hampton Roads. She will be saved.

Head-on Collision In Storm.

VALLEY FALLS, R. I., Jan. 23.—A head-on collision between a shifting engine and the locomotive of a passenger train which left Woonsocket for Providence occurred a short distance from the station on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad here. While none was seriously hurt, nearly all aboard the train were shaken up or received slight injuries. The storm was responsible for the accident.

WRECK ON NEW HAVEN ROAD.

Boston Express Smashed a Freight. Five Injured.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 26.—The Boston express over the Highland division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, from Boston, was in collision with a light freight train which was running over to the East Hartford yards, at the easterly end of the trestle bridge over the Connecticut river, on the East Hartford shore. Nearly all the passengers on the train were well shaken up, but only five of them received wounds, and in each instance the direct cause was broken glass.

It is stated that the freight train was one minute late in reaching a switch which was set to place it on a siding, while the express was on time at this point. The switch is protected by a block signal. Apparently the engineer of the express ran over the switch and slowed down, meeting the freight in a head-on collision a minute later.

The fortunate thing about the accident was that it did not occur on the trestle, a hundred yards farther on.

Observation is said to have been almost impossible owing to the driving snow. The engines, both of which were badly wrecked, took the brunt of the shock, but the impact was felt in the several coaches of the express sufficiently to throw many of the passengers in the cars out of their seats. On the train were members of the general assembly from eastern Connecticut. Rev. J. Van Den Noort of Putnam was thrown from his seat against the car door and received painful facial injuries.

The freight train was piled up badly on the track, interrupting traffic, the storm adding to the difficulty of clearing the track.

Racing at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 26.—The Phillips family were in fine form, their pair, Bertha E. and Jim McGinnis, running first and second in the Rosebud stakes, a three and a half furlong sprint for two-year-olds and worth $1,005 to the winner. Magnolia and Montebank were the only winning favorites, and the latter owed his success to Phillips' well judged riding. Matador was disqualified, and Nicol, who rode him, was set down for a week for foul riding.

Riots and Bloodshed Expected.

VIENNA, Jan. 26.—The parliamentary elections which will begin in Hungary today are expected to take place amid scenes of rioting and bloodshed unequaled in any previous campaign. A state of terrorism is sure to prevail throughout the country. Premier Tisza is determined to make an end of parliamentary obstruction, and the opposition parties are equally resolved to defeat the premier's purpose.

American Court In Far East.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Senator Cullom has introduced a bill providing for the establishment of a United States district court for China and Korea, to hold sessions at Shanghai, Canton, Tientsin and Seoul. The bill has been recommended by the state department.

Ross Government Defeated.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—It looked last night as though the Ross government was defeated in the provincial elections in Ontario. The returns show twenty-nine Opposition and thirteen Liberals. Ottawa elected two Liberals. Both seats were formerly Conservative.

Chile to Spend $12,500,000.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 26.—Tenders are asked for to build breakwaters, moles and maritime defenses at Valparaiso bay, to cost $12,500,000.

COSSACKS OPEN FIRE ON MOSCOW MOB

Government Proclamation at Capital, Which Is Practically In State of Siege, Threatens Deportation to Obstinate Strikers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 26. — A proclamation has been posted by the new governor general at all government works giving the strikers twenty-four hours to resume their employment and intimating that those who did not comply would be deported to villages.

Maxim Gorky, the author and reform party leader, has been arrested at Riga, whither he had been summoned by the illness of his wife.

It is expected that a message from Emperor Nicholas will today be delivered to the workmen through the minister of finance.

A Moscow dispatch says that Cossacks fired on 3,000 demonstrators in the Planitskaya district and many persons were wounded.

The Grand Duke Sergius has fled to the palace of the Kremlin, in the center of the city.

Troops in the ancient capital have formed a cordon around the city proper to prevent the strikers, who held a great mass meeting in the industrial section, from entering the city.

The mob is reported to be planning an attack on the Neskoutchny palace, the former residence of the Grand Duke Sergius.

Trepoff, the new governor general at the capital, is using his power to rule with his reported rigor. Hundreds of arrests have been made among the revolutionists.

The city is practically in a state of siege. The czar has conferred on his new official the power to exile all persons deemed inimical to the government and given him supreme control over all the political and military forces in the capital.

Advices from all the cities and towns of Russia show that there is great excitement everywhere. Troops are marching in the streets of Riga and Reval, where general strikes have been declared.

The bodies of 167 victims of Sunday's shooting were buried in the Volkov cemetery. Pitiful scenes attended the burials.

Evidence accumulates that the strikers at St. Petersburg are supplied with money to meet their present needs. All sorts of stories are afloat as to the size and origin of the fund. Money is undoubtedly being supplied by the Liberals. It is said that they have a fund of $2,000,000, some of which was supplied by German Socialists. It is seriously believed in some quarters that money is being furnished from Japanese-British sources to bring on a revolution or such internal complications as will compel the government to make peace.

Reports say the strike is extending at Nerva, Saratov and Kharkov.

Some foreign correspondents who anticipate arrest are trying to arrange for the embassies of their respective countries to make prompt representations in their behalf.

The strikers seem still to be without definite plans for the future. It is said that a demonstration has been decided upon for today on the occasion of the funerals of several of the more prominent victims of the massacre.

All the outgoing trains are filled with people going abroad, mostly foreigners. Many have left St. Petersburg with their families for Berlin.

The stories of the illness of the emperor and the empress are officially denied. A member of the court stated that he saw the emperor walking in the garden at Tsarskoe Selo yesterday.

The council of the Polytechnic institute at St. Petersburg has adopted the following resolution:

"One of the members of the family of the Polytechnic institute of St. Petersburg, the student Savinkin, died a violent death, shot on Jan. 22 in the Alexander gardens. Savinkin was one of the victims of the butchery against a peaceful, unarmed crowd. The council of the institute, being revolted and depressed by the acts of Jan. 22, which prove that in Russia the very lives of peaceable citizens are unsafe, expresses profound indignation on account of the general [illegible] of the victims of which [illegible] Savinkin. The council finds that under the present conditions [illegible] is absolutely [illegible] to inform the [illegible] of the opinion of the council to suspend lectures in the institute and to defray the cost of the funeral of Savinkin."

The students of the institute sent a delegation to the director declaring their agreement with the resolution.

Fourteen members of the zemstvo of Simbirsk, on the Volga, 105 miles south-southwest of Kazan, have adopted the following resolution:

"During our whole lives we have been forced to observe silence in all our new ideas. The authorities see red specters threatening to destroy the foundations of the state. For forty years we have said, 'All is well.' We had been so accustomed to this course that to say otherwise would have been a political crime. It is a crime to shut our eyes to the condition of the country. Freely elected representatives alone can liberate Russia. These representatives would point to Russia and the emperor a new path to peace and glory."

A London dispatch says that the borough council of Battersea, London, last night formally adopted a resolution expressing indignation and abhorrence at the events of Jan. 22 in St. Petersburg and expressing profound sympathy with the workmen of Russia in their efforts to obtain social and political freedom, urging them to maintain the movement until their demands are completed. It was voted to send a copy of the resolutions to Father Gopon.

Father Gopon is at liberty, but is in hiding. Inactive he is not. No fewer than three letters of his have been circulated at secret meetings. The following is an exact translation of his epistle to the Russian people:

"Brothers and workingmen whose chalice has been filled with blood:

"We intended to go peacefully to the czar with a petition on Jan. 22. Of this our intention we informed his mameluke ministers beforehand, requesting them to withdraw the troops and not to hinder us from approaching our monarch. To the emperor himself I forwarded a letter on Jan. 19 requesting him to come forth to his people with grateful heart and courageous soul. At the price of our own lives we guaranteed him inviolability of his person.

"And what came of it? Innocent blood was none the less shed. The miscreant czar and his malicious officials, who are robbers of the treasury and plunderers of the Russian nation, deliberately resolved to beat and massacre our unarmed brothers, their wives and children. The bullets of the emperor's troops, which at Narva street killed workingmen who were bearing the emperor's portraits, pierced those portraits and killed our faith in the czar.

"But we shall wreak vengeance, brothers, on the czar, accursed by his people, on all his imperial reptilian blood, on his ministers and on all pillagers of the ill starred Russian land. Death to them all!

"I call upon all who are seriously desirous of helping the hard working Russian people to live and breathe freely to come forward and assist when and how they can. I call upon all thinking men, upon students, upon revolutionary organizations, the Social Democrats and Social Revolutionists, to lend a hand. He who is not with the people is against the people.

"Innocent blood of the people has been spilled. We harbor within us sentiments of bitterness and vengeance against the bestial czar and the jackals, his ministers, and, believe me, the day is very near when a host of workingmen will rise up more menacing, more conscious and like one man will strike for their own freedom and the freedom of all Russia.

"Weep not for the slain heroes. Be comforted. Beaten we have been, but not conquered. Let us tear up all portraits of the bloodthirsty czar and say to him, 'Be thou accursed, with all thy most reptile blood.'

"Against the soldiers and officers who are slaying their innocent brothers, together with their wives and children, and against all oppressors of the people I utter my pastoral curse."

It is reported that the Boyevaya, the fighting organization of the Terrorist party, has just condemned the czar to death, although after the murder of Minister Plehve, which was due to this organization, the party informed the czar that he was not aimed at. The change in the organization's purpose is due to the czar having allowed the people to be shot when they believed that they were going to a peaceful meeting.

A dispatch from Riga, the Russian seaport on the Baltic, says that the men in most of the factories of the city have struck.

A special dispatch says that the zemstvo of Taurida at its first meeting of the year unanimously adopted the following address to Emperor Nicholas:

"The Taurida zemstvo congratulates your majesty as well as the empress on the birth of an heir to the throne. This event occurred in a terrible year of national grief, a year of cruel and bloody war, a year of bitter internal disorder. Let peace dawn on Russia and her frontiers. That is the best wish Russian subjects can express at the cradle of your son.

"Your decree of Dec. 25 held out to the nation hopes of internal peace in the future, which everywhere is dependent on the preservation and maintenance of the law and equal rights of citizens, on freedom of conscience and religion, freedom of speech and the press, freedom of association and public meeting.

"We are strongly convinced that the fulfillment of all your great intentions for their inviolability can only be secured by the participation of elected representatives of the whole nation in the legislative power. We sincerely believe that in the union of the power of the state with that of the people can be found the only pledge for the complete development of the productive forces of the country. If you summon representatives of the nation to take part in legislation, finance and administrative control and fulfillment of the law and the intentions of your imperial majesty you will make Russia powerful and invincible from without and flourishing within her borders in the light of right and truth."

Cossacks are patrolling the streets of Helsingfors, Finland, in view of a big demonstration expected upon the arrival of Finns who had been expelled from the country and who recently were given permission to return.

BRITISH CONSUL PROTESTS.

Posting of London Telegram Imperiled English Subjects.

MOSCOW, Jan. 26.—Captain Grove, the British consul here, has called upon M. Roudneff, the assistant police master, who is acting in the absence of Chief Volkoff, and requested an explanation of a telegram posted for public reading here from London alleging that the disturbances at the Russian dockyards and arsenals were due to Anglo-Japanese instigation, that both Great Britain and Japan were spending vast sums of money to prevent the Russian second Pacific squadron from reaching the far east and adding that "all Russians who strike are therefore in connivance with the enemy."

M. Roudneff produced the original telegram in evidence of good faith. Captain Grove stated that he would report the matter to the embassy at St. Petersburg, as he considered that the posting of the alleged telegram imperiled the lives of subjects of Great Britain who are employed in factories here. M. Roudneff also offered Captain Grove personal satisfaction in a resort to arms.

THE MODERN BLUEBEARD.

Hoch Alleged to Have Treated His Wives to "White Powders."

CHICAGO, Jan. 26. — The "white powders" figuring in "Bluebeard" Johann Hoch's treatment of his numerous wives has been explained by physicians here, who discussed the possibility of causing diseases such as struck down many of the women duped by Hoch.

It was brought out that there were at least eight irritants, capable of producing nephritis and concealing their own presence behind the symptoms of the disease itself, baffling post mortem examination and possibly chemical analysis. Inspector Shippy, investigating the murder and bigamy charges against Hoch, thinks he has solved the mystery of how the women could die and experienced physicians see nothing wrong.

Efforts of the police to search the house at 6430 Union avenue were stopped by the owner, Edward Vail.

"There is no use searching here," said Vail. "Hoch did not move here until December, and the only wife he had then is dead and buried."

The argument appealed to the police and they withdrew.

Police Inspector Shippy was informed that while Mrs. Marie Walcker-Hoch was dying in her home at 6430 Union avenue her husband was casting about for another wife.

Two days before the death of his wife an advertisement appeared in a German newspaper for a wife.

Mrs. Emelie Fischer noticed the advertisement and, not knowing that the man was her sister's husband, answered it.

Attorney General Says Contracts May Be Awarded and Work Proceed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Attorney General Mayer in an official opinion issued last night advises Superintendent Francis Hendrick of the state department of public works that he has the authority to award the six barge canal contracts for which bids have been received to the bidders whom he determines to have agreed to perform the work at the lowest price.

The attorney general makes the following summary of conclusions:

"Confining myself solely to the consideration of the specific questions submitted to me by you, I am of the opinion that you have the authority to award the contracts for which proposals have been made to the person, firm or corporation who has offered to do and perform the same at the lowest price and that as between proposals based on different methods of estimating the cost you must determine in your judgment which proposal offers the lowest price, with the authority reserved to you at all times to reject all the bids and readvertise and award the contract in the manner in the statute provided whenever in your judgment the interests of the state will be enhanced thereby."

HOTALING MURDER

State Attorney Will Rest His Case Today.

OFFICIALS TESTIFY AGAINST ACCUSED

Weapon With Which Deed Was Said to Have Been Done Found With Four Exploded Shells—Vile Words Used Against Wife.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 26.—At the Hotaling murder trial here District Attorney Clark announced that he has only two more witnesses to examine for the prosecution and that he will rest the prosecution early today.

Several people who saw Hotaling on the morning of the tragedy testified that he told them he was asleep downstairs and his wife and child were asleep upstairs when the fire broke out and that he attempted to go up to rescue them, but could not on account of the flames.

Sheriff Worthing testified that after Hotaling was arrested the accused man told him that he and his wife had had trouble the night before, that she had barricaded herself behind the door upstairs and that he had then taken an ax and beaten the door down, when she had shot at him. This statement contradicted the statements that Hotaling had made to other people.

Detective Stephenson testified that soon after Hotaling was arrested he asked permission to go outdoors and as he went along seemed to be looking for something near the path. Mr. Stephenson then looked along the path and found Hotaling's revolver, where, it is claimed, he had thrown it in the grass before his arrest. Four chambers contained empty shells, corroborating Mrs. Hotaling's story that her husband had shot at her at least three times.

Constable Zimmer, who arrested Hotaling, testified that when the arrest was made Hotaling was surprised to learn that his wife was not burned to death and said, applying a vile name to her, with an oath, "She has caused me a lot of trouble, and now I suppose she will make me a lot more."

Aluminum Cooking Utensils.

A Special Demonstration.

Clean, light, sanitary and practical; aluminum is now the recognized material for kitchen use. A special representative of the "Wear-ever" aluminum cooking utensils is now in attendance in our basement department to demonstrate the true worth and practicability of this splendid ware. Here are seven commonsense arguments in favor of the use of aluminum for cooking purposes—arguments that every up-to-date housekeeper will be interested in and appreciate. Listen:

Argument No. 1—It is light in weight, bright as silver and absolutely pure and wholesome.

Argument No. 2—There is no enamel or plating to flake or wear off, the finish is the natural finish of the metal.

Argument No. 3—It will not burn or scorch food as readily as other metal.

Argument No. 4—It will retain heat longer than any other utensil.

Argument No. 5—It does not contain or form any of the poisonous substances found in iron, tin, copper and enameled wares.

Argument No. 6—There are no joints, seams or solder to leak and give trouble.

Argument No. 7—It is finished in the very best possible manner.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 26, 1905.

Governor Stokes has asked that the custom of serving luncheons at the State House on Governor's day be revived, beginning with next Tuesday. In the meantime he will serve plums as heretofore as long as the supply holds out.

It may be none of our business but we'd like to ask what practical gain is to be had from these hazardous and foolhardy automobile speed tests down on Ormonde beach. A second or two may be clipped off the world's record but they can never compensate for the life or lives as a rule crushed out in the attempt. If the manufacturers devoted more of their time and money to perfecting machines to keep within local speed ordinances and run 300 days a year without costing more in repairs than the original outlay, they would secure a gain in sales that a hundred races would not bring.

A bill has been introduced in the house for Speaker Avis, making it a misdemeanor to carry a deadly, offensive or dangerous weapon concealed or openly with intent to unlawfully use it. There is a sentiment growing up in all sections of the country, excepting that portion of the western domain which is wild and woolly, unfavorable to the common carrying of revolvers. This habit is prevalent among boys who, for some unknown reason, entertain the notion that it is a credit to them. Many men are in the State prisons and many more have gone to the gallows because they happened to have within easy reach a stiletto or a revolver during an altercation that might have been satisfactorily settled with the bare knuckles. There is plenty of law bearing upon the habit among the municipal ordinances now, but it is not enforced. A few arrests and a few punishments would have the wholesome effect of keeping shooting irons out of the hip pockets of a good many men and boys who now carry them because they think it is smart.

—In many cases yesterday the proprietors of stores sent the women clerks home soon after they arrived, realizing that there would be but little business and no necessity for their remaining during the day.

—The regular meeting of the McAll Auxiliary will be held at the Public Library on Wednesday morning, February 1, at 11 o'clock. It is hoped that all those who attended the recent birthday party of the auxiliary will be present at this meeting.

LEAL'S SCHOOL WIN IN CLOSELY PLAYED GAME

NOW TIED WITH P. H. S. IN INTER-SCHOLASTIC BASKET BALL LEAGUE.

In the closest game which has been played at the Y. M. C. A. since the game between Leal's School and Plainfield High School last year, the Leal's team defeated the borough High School five yesterday afternoon by the score of 30 to 27. When the first half ended the score was 27 to 27 and in the play off to decide the match, Leal's threw a foul and a field goal. Howard, the snappy little Leal's forward, made all three of the winning points.

It was well for Leal's that Howard threw the goals when he did, for had they lost the game yesterday afternoon the championship would have gone to the Plainfield High School, with whom the Leal's School team is now tied. Leal's play with little spirit yesterday afternoon, their guarding being loose and their aggressiveness far inferior to the speed shown by the N. P. H. S. boys.

This was the lineup and detailed score of the contest: N. P. H. S.—Hand and Woodland, forwards; Steiner, center; Webster and Peacock, guards. Leal's—Manning and Perkins, guards; Jewett, center; Chapman and Howard, forwards. Goals from the field—Chapman, 4; Howard, 3; Jewett, 3; Manning, 3; Hand, 5; Woodland, 5; Steiner, 2; Webster. Goals from fouls—Howard, 2; Manning, Hand.

The second team of the Plainfield High School defeated the Y. M. C. A. juniors on the same floor by the score of 14 to 8 The Y. M. C. A. team was outweighed, and the passing and team work of their opponents was far superior. In shooting, Line and Doane were the stars, the former making all the points for his team. In all round playing Steiner, of the Y. M. C. A., was the best of the lot. His defense was good, and he passed accurately.

The teams lined up as follows: Y. M. C. A.—Steiner and Line, forwards; Manning, center; Rittenhouse and Desringer, guards. P. H. S. seconds—Freeman and Doane, forwards; Mackay, center; Lambert, Leggett and Caldwell, guards. Goals from the field—Line, 4; Doane, 4; Mackay, Caldwell and Leggett.

LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIPS SOON TO BE DECIDED

LEALS AND P. H. S. TO FIGHT FOR CITY SCHOLASTIC HONORS.

On the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium floor next month, two tied games will be played off in the Interscholastic and in the Juvenile leagues. In both the matches will decide the league championship, and in the former the scholastic championship of the city will be determined. The former game will be played on February 8, and the other on February 1. The city championship lies between Leal's School and the Plainfield High School basketball teams, and the rivalry between the teams is intense. Each team has defeated the other and the same number of games won in the league is recorded to each.

That the match will be a hot one is evidenced by the spirit which has been shown in the past games, and both teams will struggle hard for the championship title. Whittier and the second team of the High School are the competitors for the highest honors in the Juvenile league. The same average exists between these two teams as in the senior league.

This is the standing in the two leagues up to the present time:

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Business in the borough was practically paralyzed yesterday, and is still in an unsettled condition today. The stores were nearly all closed by 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and only the business men who were obliged to stick to their posts remained in their places of occupation while the driving snow and wind caused pedestrians, and would-be shoppers to seek their firesides. Commuters kept their families in anxiety for hours last night, while some failed to appear at all. An occasional trolley put in an appearance yesterday morning, but the occasions became few and far between until late in the afternoon there was nothing doing. Drifts confronted walkers on all sides. Huge barricades blocked the entrances to houses and stores, while the wind invariably wrought impassable drifts straight through the middle of the side-walks. A few of the school children braved the blasts yesterday morning, and some even went as far as Plainfield. The attendance was not large enough to warrant a regular session and the pupils were dismissed.

Some time ago the idea was conceived by a prominent building syndicate of putting up small modern dwellings in the vicinity of the local factories for the accommodation of the working men. With a view to looking into the prospects of such a scheme, representatives have from time to time visited the borough, and now operations are about to begin. G. E. Sherman, of Philadelphia, has now been here for two weeks planning for the work of erecting medium sized houses. The district to be built up includes part of the Martin farm, and the Stevens tract. Half of this lies within the borough limits, and it is greatly to the interest of the borough officials to further the undertaking. A building improvement such as the proposed plan will provide, is a start in the right direction for the growth of Dunellen as a residential suburb. A survey has been made of the property and it has been laid out in blocks.

Work on the various buildings which are being put up around the borough, has been brought to an abrupt standstill, and the foundations of several of the new houses are entirely hidden by snow drifts. Many who expected to have their dwellings completed by the first of March, will be disappointed if the present conditions of the weather prevail.

Samuel Mayhood, of Rock avenue, who injured himself by falling off a trolley Monday night, is reported by the Plainfield hospital authorities to be in about the same condition. An improvement is looked for in a few days.

Edwin Lewis and family are now residing on West Front street, in the house formerly occupied by Lester Meserell. The vacated house on North avenue, will be occupied the first of February. Silas Neilor has rented it.

The ice cutters' prospects for a good haul from the effects of the recent freeze have been sadly shaken, and they will have to content themselves with the work which has already been accomplished.

J. M. B. Pyatt was a member of the committee which had charge of receiving delegates at the annual session of the Sons of Temperance at Trenton yesterday.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Snow bound, with a blizzard equal to that of '88, Scotch Plains was completely tied up yesterday. Snow drifts in many places 8 and 10 feet high, blocked many points of sidewalks and roads. The trolley company made a good attempt to keep their line open, and during the morning hours cars were run occasionally, the first car to Plainfield coming into town about 8 o'clock, but as the day advanced and the fury of the blizzard increased, the line became blocked and those who had ventured from town were obliged to get back any way they could or spend the night with friends. No attempt was made to open the walks until the storm abated, as the heavy winds carried the snow and filled the paths again as soon as made. It will be several days before travel will be made with any degree of comfort as the storm was one of the worst the 'Plains has experienced in years.

No weekly shoot of the gun club will be held Saturday afternoon as the members will attend the Plainfield club's shoot. The five-men team match shoot is creating considerable interest and friendly rivalry between the members of the two clubs.

The local bowling team was defeated Tuesday night in the game with Dunellen on Taylor's alleys, Dunellen, taking two of the three games by close margains. The games now stand, Scotch Plains, 2; Dunellen, 1.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meet tonight in the library rooms. A full attendance of members is desired as important business will be transacted.

A number of the young people from town will attend the Arion Club's dance, to be held tonight in the I. O. T. rooms, corner Park and North avenues.

the local bowlers and a team from the Suburbans will meet on Lee's alleys this evening.

Mrs. Samuel Clark, of Murray Hill, has been visiting relatives and friends in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

There have been no new cases of scarlet fever in town lately, and quarantine cards have been removed from most of the homes where they were posted.

Mrs. Smith, who has been confined at home during the winter by illness, is at present suffering from neuralgia.

Mrs. T. C. Laing has been out again among her friends since her extended illness of several weeks.

LITERARY.

The personal narrative of the taking of Porth Arthur, told by the men who took it, is the feature of the February Leslie's Monthly Magazine. Two of the narratives, by an officer of Engineers and by a sapper, give a most vivid and picturesque idea of the actual fighting, both above and below ground, around that tremendous fortress. Some beautiful photographs of Japanese girls in this number show a more peaceful side of the national life.

Pearson's Magazine for February contains an especially interesting assortment of short stories and wide-awake special articles, numbering in all nineteen. The leading article is an up to-date history of that "wild and woolly" recent State, Washington, one of our most promising States and already well under way in taking the lead in agricultural productions. The startling decline of our New England mackerel and lobster fisheries is the subject of another live article which points out the reasons for these failures and suggests remedies that will add millions to the wealth of the world-renowned Gloucester men. How the famous playwrights place their plays and the trials and tribulations of playwrights is another article, by Bryan O'Malley. Still another is the vivid pen picture of the life of the late Louis Deibler, the headsman of Paris, a social outcast, a man foredoomed as the executioner of men, yet a man with intensely human feeling.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION.

Fighting P. S. C?

It is reported that Senator Kean is back of the plan to fight the Public Service by building an independent gas plant in Metuchen. The news, however, was held back until after the Republican legislators had held their caucus and decided how they would vote for United States Senator. —Newark News.

LEST SHE FORGET.

I lunched with her on Saturday;
The service was unique
And rather unconventional—
Assorted, so to speak.
The cloth, marked "Lafayette-Brevoort,"
Was spread for tete-a-tete,
With "Holland House," "Fifth Avenue,"
And "Waldorf" on the plate;
"Casino" marked the butter dish,
The mustard said "Menquin,"
A "Shanley's" served the halibut,
A teaspoon read "Martin;"
The napkin said "Delmonico,"
"Manhattan" held the sweet,
A fork read "Cafe Boulevard,"
While "Sherry's" cut the meat.

L'ENVOI.

The hostess with her taking way
Serenely calmed my fears—
"I've only ONE of each," she sighed,
"They're merely souvenirs."

SNAP SHOTS.

Edwin Varey, the veteran actor, who has been living with his son on Grove street, is convalescing from a serious illness which threatened to terminate fatally. His many friends will be pleased to know that he is very much improved and that he will again be seen on the streets when the pleasant spring weather arrives. During his illness he has received many pleasant letters from his actor-friends inquiring about his health and wishing for his speedy recovery.

The present big snow storm is a reminder that Professor Andrew Jackson Devoe, the Hackensack prognosticator, sent out the following not long since: "Let all prepare for a small blizzard about January 6. It will continue January 12, 13 and 15. Up to January 25 it will be severely cold. On February 3 there will be a big snow storm, but the severest storm of the month will occur between the 19th and 22d." In locating his information, the weather prophet evidently got January 6 and 25 somewhat mixed.

As an illustration of the contention that judicial dignity is never securely enthroned against the usurpation of human nature, City Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, N. J., relates the story of an Indiana Judge whose stern advocacy of the majesty of the law was little more a matter of pride than his admiration for the athletic prowess of an only son. The Judge was the owner of a farm whose eastern limit formed a portion of the boundary line between the States of Indiana and Ohio, and the story pictures the Judge, on a midsummer day, surveying his teeming acres from a perch on a rail fence running along this State boundary line. It so happened that during his incumbency of this rustic seat of justice his farm manager and the aforesaid object of the Judge's pride came along, and, halting in front of the temporary throne of justice, began to emphasize their evidences of excitement by a rain of blows. With the first exhibition of pugilistic demonstrations the Judge straightened himself to the fullest show of official dignity and in a voice reflecting all the sternness at his command exclaimed:

"In behalf of the majesty of the law, and in the name of the sovereign State of Indiana, I command you both to keep the peace!"

Just at that moment, and while the blows of the combatants were raining thick and fast, the rail upon which the Judge was sitting gave way and dropped him on the Ohio side of the fence. Instantly regaining his feet, and with an impetus of vociferation that eloquently proclaimed his partisanship, he shouted to his son:

"Give him hell, Jim! I've lost my jurisdiction."—New York Times.

AMUSEMENTS.

Where the management of Keith's Theatre gets all the good things in vaudeville is a mystery, but its thousands of patrons seem content simply to enjoy without asking questions. The bill as arranged or the coming week is fully in line with the very excellent ones which have been offered all season. To head the bill Adelaide Herrmann and Co. have been engaged. This is the first appearance in four years of the beautiful Queen of Magic. All of her tricks are original, and her costumes as "Cleopatra, the Egyptian Sorceress," most magnificent. She will be assisted by Miss Adele Dewey, and others. Music also has a well defined place in all vaudeville entertainments, and it will be furnished by the Miles-Stavordale Quintette, direct from the London Hippodrome. Among the many wonderful things they do instrumentally, is the most perfect reproduction of the human voice. Dixon and Holmes are character singers of recognized ability, and they feature the lighthouse scene from "Shore Acres." Another top notcher is Burke & La Rue and their inky boys, in Mr. Burke's funny comedy, "The Silver Moon." The balance of the bill will be as diversified as any desire could wish including numbers from all branches of the profession. There will be Potter and Hartwell, the European head balancers, Owley & Randall, in "Tumbling Tom," Howley & Leslie, clever entertainers, and many others, while the biograph will entertain with some new and timely pictures.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 29.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Heroes of foreign missions; what they teach us.—II Cor. xi, 21-23.

Religion in every age of the world's history has had its heroes. Abraham was a hero when he left Ur of the Chaldees, and again when he was willing to offer up Isaac as a sacrifice to his God. Moses was a hero when he placed himself at the head of a race that had been for several centuries in bondage and led them triumphantly, under God, out of the house of bondage. The heroism of Martin Luther, when he started for Wittenberg in spite of all the dangers that beset his way, has scarcely ever been equaled or excelled. Thus the roll of religious heroes might be called down to the sacrifices, self denials and heroic deeds of men of the present age, and they should be an inspiration to us at times when we are beset with difficulties and perplexities.

But in religious annals what men and women have been more heroic than the foreign missionaries? They have left native land, the loved ones in the home, the comforts and blessings, and frequently the luxuries of a civilization which was dear to them, and have gone into strange lands to meet strange peoples with strange customs and to face in the vast majority of cases the race and religious prejudices of those they visit, which in many instances has meant persecution and even martydom. Read Paul's record: "In labors more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent, in deaths oft!" And this he follows with a more minute and detailed account of his sacrifices and hardships as a missionary of the cross. Nor is this an isolated case.

From Paul, the great missionary to the Roman world, to Paton, the aged missionary saint in the New Hebrides, those who have carried the gospel to foreign lands have been "in labors more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent, deaths oft."

And what should such consecrated lives teach us? Almost every lesson that the Christian can be taught. As we think of their heroic deeds and sacrifices in humility we should bow down and confess our lack of a devotion and a consecration like theirs. Next to Christ on the cross they should inspire us to self denial for Christ's sake and the world's sake. Trust, patience, endurance, hope, love—what Christian grace is there to be found that has not been beautifully exemplified on the foreign missionary fields? In a word they teach us to be like Christ, the greatest of missionaries, in that He left heaven and came to earth, knowing that He must sacrifice Himself, to save the world. Their lives speak to us in the words of Paul when he wrote to the Corinthians, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." Let us receive the inspiration that should come from thought upon these heroic servants of God, and, "seeing we also are compassed about by so great a cloud of witnesses, * * * let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."

Connecticut's President.

Rev. Russell T. Hall, D. D., of New Britain is the pastor of one of the largest Congregational churches in Connecticut. This, however, has not prevented his giving three years of successful service to the Connecticut state Christian Endeavor union as its president. The movement has a large place in his sympathies, and he is active in his advocacy of its principles. Dr. Hall is a graduate of Oberlin college and Union Theological seminary.

REV. R. T. HALL, D. D.

A Mission Word.

I believe the future of Christian Endeavor enlargement must be along the missionary line. The missionary committee is the war department, and the war is on. To my mind, therefore, it is one of the most important departments of work.

We want the same intense interest, careful study of situations, warm sympathies, thrilling patriotism and self sacrificing support in the world conflict against sin and heathenism as are manifest in the battles of nations.

Let us know the names of the magnificent and heroic leaders of Christ's armies in China, India and Africa, their problems and plans and victories at least as well as we know the same facts in reference to the two half civilized nations which are battling today for selfish interests.—Rev. Raphael H. Miller in Empire State Notes.

In Ohio and New York.

Ohio state union and New York state union each observed Nov. 13 as "state work Sunday." This is the third year for Ohio and the second for New York to thus set apart one Sunday when the work which the union is doing shall be presented in every society in the state and wherever possible an offering gathered for its furtherance.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 29: "City Evangelization"—Isa. lxii, 6; Jonah iv, 10, 11.
By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

The setting of the tides of human life strongly toward the cities has been very strikingly seen in the past few years. In this tendency there is much of encouragement and much cause for anxiety.

It is more than a curious conceit that the Christian Scriptures represent the beginning of the race in a garden and end with its picture in the great city, the New Jerusalem. It is beyond all question that the development of mankind must be in association and not in isolation. Community life is the ideal toward which we are moving. More and more must men learn to live together in peace, and only so can they realize and actualize the ends for which they were created and for which the race is still preserved.

But in the gathering together of a great multitude of people the evils of social life are emphasized, and new difficulties before unknown arise. It seems to be true that men have not yet learned how to live together in great aggregations safely, physically or morally. It has been said, with much of truth in the remark, that no great city has ever yet been governed. The revelations of gross corruption in the political affairs of many of our largest American cities in recent times present a black picture of our condition and prospects.

As disheartening as is the condition of matters of government it is probable that those who know most intimately and accurately the moral side of life in our large cities will be inclined to say that the condition of matters in this respect is no better than in the previous case. It is all too true that the moral atmosphere of most of our cities, large and small, is distressingly corrupt and vicious.

Because few of us comparatively are obliged by our duties to know the haunts of vice and still fewer have the skill to do effective work in purifying them the real condition of affairs is unknown to those under whose very eyes evils of deepest dye are constantly occurring.

There is most urgent need that the church shall recognize the state of affairs and learn her duty and opportunity and then address herself in earnest to the task of rescuing the souls of those who are in peril at her doors. The task is immense. The difficulties are stupendous. Nothing but the most fervent love of Jesus Christ can sustain a soul in the terrible depression of spirit that drenches one who goes into this pit of wickedness. But the call is imperative. Only by the doing of this work can the cause of God on the earth be saved. All our interests for eternity are at stake. Few see the situation in all its appalling features. Still fewer have the courage to make the attempt to remedy the evil.

Much of the truth can never be spoken of plainly in public, but enough can be made known and large sections of the work can be done by any one of ordinary ability and true consecration of heart.

People must take an interest in the welfare of those who live near them. There needs to be a helpful spirit and a kindly disposition. Strangers need friendly greeting. The poor need the right kind of assistance.

The church must arise to the demand of the Lord and fulfill her mission to the world. The city must be evangelized and the salvation of the world advanced until righteousness reigns over all the earth.

A Higher and Deeper Power.

It is much never to show impatience, to be always the same, under disappointment, in weariness and pain, when things go wrong and people are stupid and vexatious—to go on steadily without a sharp or fretful tone in the voice, without petulance or hasty judgment or shaken trust or slackened diligence and effort. Those who reach that point of self mastery and self possession may come to be leaders of men and do great things. But I think there is a still higher, deeper power in the patience of those who are indeed crucified with Christ, crucified to the world, and whose life is hid with Christ in God. The patience of those who as they move about in the world may set even thoughtless people wondering where that quiet, bright grace was learned, feeling somehow that, after all, they that are Christ's have hold of something that the world cannot give and have found a way better than the world's ways, and that there are reality and truth in those words which have perhaps the strongest power words can have to touch the springs of longing in the hearts of men: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For My yoke is easy and My burden is light."—Churchman.

Our Testings.

All providences are doors to trials. Even our mercies, like roses, have their thorns. Our mountains are not too high and our valleys are not too low for temptations. Trials lurk on all roads. Everywhere, above and beneath, we are beset and surrounded with dangers. Yet no shower falls unpermitted from the threatening cloud. Every drop has its order ere it hastens to the earth. The trials which come from God are sent to prove and strengthen us.—C. H. Spurgeon.

God and a Friend.

Live not without a friend. The Alpine rock must own
Its mossy grace or else be nothing but a stone.
Live not without a God, however low or high.
In every house should be a window toward the sky.

WHAT IS WORN.

Ball Gowns of Scarlet Tulle Are Very Effective.

Red walking suits are as popular as the many tones of brown and green.

Quite smart is a walking gown of red corduroy, a rich, deep shade almost a plum. The dress is simply made with a plain circular skirt and Norfolk jacket.

Spangled ball dresses of scarlet tulle are very effective and becoming. There is a certain brilliancy about a frock of this color found in no other tone when worn by the right person.

In reception gowns old rose and red are colors often employed to carry out charming creations.

Cashmere of a new and glorified weave is high in fashionable favor.

TOMATO RED CLOTH DRESS.

Skirts of this fabric worn with Louis jackets of velvet, trimmed with ruffles and jabots of lace, are very fetching.

The illustration shows a gown of tomato red cloth. The full skirt is trimmed at the bottom with bands and straps of stitched cloth. About the bolero jacket is an edging of white cloth embroidered in black. Chemisette and sleeve puffs are of white chiffon.

LAYETTE NOVELTIES.

The Modern Baby Has Lots of Fascinating Accessories.

The modern baby's layette is a thing of extravagance and beauty. Besides the dainty dresses, coats, caps and underwear, it must contain all sorts of attractive accessories.

A set of rosettes, butterfly bows and smart little ribbons must be provided for toilet basket, crib and baby carriage.

Sets of this kind made up in handsome satin ribbon are among the many presents given the new baby.

"Good luck" toilet sets of white celluloid decorated with a four leaf clover in light green enamel are new and pretty.

Measuring sticks painted with baby figures and lettered in colors "How tall will baby grow?" are to be found in the shops.

The latest fad in baby modes is to have the outside of the infant's carriage and the lining match exactly. For instance, a pink enameled "cart" is fitted up with cushions of pale pink silk or satin.

A very good substitute for the expensive fur carriage rug that has a pocket in which to slip the baby is a flannel bag made large enough to accommodate the small specimen of humanity. The bag draws up with a stout string, which is fastened just under the infant's arms.

Sets of daintily embroidered pillows, large ones for the crib and carriage and smaller ones for tucking in odd places, are indispensable articles in the layette.

The waist illustrated is of nun's veiling. The fronts, which have a surpliced effect, are shirred on the shoulders, draped about the figure and fastened with two black velvet bows. The velvet is also used to outline the chemisette of lace. The sleeves are puffed over lace cuffs.

Notable Women

Leaders In Various Lines of Effort

None serves the race more than he or she who finds out new and better ways of doing things. And it has happened that, taking her own ideas entirely, a member of the feminine sex has sometimes improved on methods that have been in vogue since history began to be recorded.

This Miss Anna Marks, who tames and educates wild and so called vicious horses wholly by wise kindness, seems to have done. She herself is a horse breeder and trainer and so successful with her woman's way of conducting the business that veteran horse "breakers," as they have always been called, must acknowledge her method is superior to theirs.

THE WOMAN HORSE TRAINER.

The young lady was born with a love of animals, without which nobody can do anything with them. The words "break" and "broken" are thrown altogether out of her horse talk. She acts on the assumption that the horse mind, so far as it goes, is not unlike the human mind, and she accordingly treats a horse like a gentleman. She talks to her horses as if they were human. To her a colt is a baby—at least an equine baby. She begins to teach it with infinite patience and kindness, showing it what she desires it to do in a sort of horse kindergarten play. So soon as it comprehends what is wanted of it the young creature does the thing of its own accord. Miss Marks has her young pets so thoroughly in training that last fall she exhibited a colt four-in-hand, the young creatures trained to perfect action and control, quite as if they had been six or seven years of age, though none was more than four months old, the youngest only two months old.

Miss Marks' theory is that in general horses are dangerous only when they have become afraid of man and his works. Remove this fear through wise gentleness and the animal comes to have such love for and such faith in man that it will do anything he wishes. Acting on this theory, the woman trainer has rendered gentle and docile several horses that were sold by previous owners because they were vicious and unsafe. A notable instance of her skill is found in the fact that she has taught two stallions to occupy the same stable peaceably and affectionately together. She says there are some mean horses, but comparatively not nearly so many as there are mean people.

The state of Missouri has a woman political orator so remarkable that her speeches recall to old timers the fiery eloquence of Anna Dickinson during the years of the civil war. Anna Dickinson did much, it was said, to carry the country for Lincoln in 1864. Anna was only nineteen years old then. In like manner it is said now that to another girl of nineteen, Miss Lina Wood, are due many thousands of the votes cast for Roosevelt in 1904.

Miss Wood is the daughter of an old soldier of the civil war. Her father did not regret she was not a boy; on the contrary, he was proud of his girl when at reunions of veteran soldiers her ringing sentences drew round after round of cheers from the old boys. Not everybody in Missouri was surprised when, therefore, the girl of nineteen was selected for one of the state campaign orators. Her father traveled with her as she canvassed Missouri, making speeches.

It is certain that if women would devise new business schemes on their own account instead of so generally working under employers many would succeed markedly who now merely subsist on low wages. Where women have attempted new enterprises they have often won nobly. One young woman at least has made a notable success with new business ideas. One of these was the publication of a pretty little weekly bulletin, giving strangers and tourists in New York city information concerning the city. The artistic little publication tells visitors where the points of interest are, where to shop, where to dine, what is going on at the theaters—in all, just what they want to know. Merchants pay to advertise in the bulletin and hotel people subscribe for it by the hundred.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"It wouldn't do any good, you know. I am going with you."

"To Abigail and the trunk room?"

"Oh, no; to the jumping off place out west—wherever it is you are going to hibernate."

"No," she said decisively; "you must not."

"Why?"

"My saying so ought to be sufficient reason."

"It isn't," he contended, frowning down on her good naturedly. "Shall I tell you why you don't want me to go? It is because you are afraid."

"I am not," she denied.

"Yes, you are. You know in your own heart there is no reason why you should continue to make me unhappy, and you are afraid I might over persuade you."

Her eyes—they were the serene eyes of cool gray that take on slate blue tints in stressful moments—met his defiantly.

"If you think that, I withdraw my objection," she said coldly. "Mother and Penelope will be delighted, I am sure."

"And you will be bored, world without end," he laughed. "Never mind; I'll be decent about it and keep out of your way as much as you like."

Again she made the little gesture of petulent impatience.

"You are continually placing me in a false position. Can't you leave me out of it entirely?"

It is one of the prime requisites of successful mastership to know when to press the point home, and when to recede gracefully. Ormsby abruptly shut the door up on sentiment and came down to things practical.

"It is your every day comfort that concerns me chiefly. I am going to take all three of you in charge, giving the dependable young person a well-earned holiday—a little journey in which she won't have to chaffer with with the transit people. Have you chosen your route to the western somewhere?"

Miss Brentwood had the fair transparent skin that tells tales, and the blue-gray eyes were apt to confirm them. David Kent's letter was hidden in the folds of her loose waisted morning gown, and she fancied it stirred like a thing alive to remind her of its message. Ormsby was looking past her to the old fashioned ormolu clock on the high mantel, comparing the time with his watch, but he was not oblivious of the telltale flush.

"There is nothing embarrassing about the choosing of a route, is there?" he queried.

"Oh, no; being true Americans, we don't know one route from another in our own country," she confessed. "But at the western end of it we want to go over the Western Pacific."

Ormsby knew the west by rail routes as one who travels much for time killing purposes.

"It's a rather roundabout cow path," he objected. "The Overland Short Line is a good bit more direct; not to mention the service, which is a lot better."

But Elinor had made her small concession to David Kent's letter, and she would not withdraw it.

"Probably you don't own any Western Pacific stock," she suggested. "We do; and we mean to be loyal to our salt."

Ormsby laughed.

"I see Western Pacific has gone down a few points since the election of Gov. Bucks. If I had any, I'd wire my broker to sell."

"We are not so easily frightened," she asserted; adding, with a touch of the austerity which was her Puritan birthright: "Nor quite so conscienceless as you men."

"All of which goes to prove that you three lone women need a guardian. But I mustn't keep you any longer. from Abigail and the trunks. What time shall I send the expediters after your luggage?"

She told him, and went with him to the door.

"Please don't think me ungrateful," she said, when she had thrown the night-latch for him. "I don't mean to be."

"I don't think anything of you that I ought not to think; in that I am as conscientious as even you could wish. Good-by, until this evening. I'll meet you all at the station."

As had come to be the regular order of things, Elinor found herself under fire when she went above stairs to rejoin her mother and sister.

Mrs. Brentwood was not indifferent to the Ormsby millions; neither had she forgotten a certain sentimental summer at the foot of Old Croydon. She was a thin-lipped little person, plain spoken to the verge of unfriendliness; a woman in whom the rugged, selfreliant, Puritan strain had become panic acidulous. And when the Puritan stock degenerates in that direction, it is apt to lack good judgment on the business side, and also the passivity which smooths the way for incompetence in less assertive folk.

Kent had stood something in awe, not especially of her personality, but of her tongue; and had been forced to acquiesce silently in Loring's summing up of Elinor's mother as a woman who had taken culture and the humanizing amenities of the broader life much as the granite of her native hills takes polish—reluctantly, and without prejudice to its inner granular structure.

"Elinor, you ought to be ashamed to keep Brookes Ormsby dangling the way you do," was the comment when Elinor came back. "You are your father's daughters, both of you; there isn't a drop of the Grimkie blood in either of you, I do believe."

Elinor was sufficiently her father's daughter to hold her peace under her mother's reproaches; also, there was enough of the Grimkie blood in her veins to stiffen her in opposition when need arose. So she said nothing.

"Since your Uncle Ichabod made such a desperate mess of that copper business in Montana, we have all been next door to poverty, and you know it," the mother went on, irritated by Elinor's silence. "I don't care so much for myself; your father and I began with nothing, and I can go back to nothing, if necessary. But you can't, and neither can Penelope; you'd both starve. I should like to know what Brookes Ormsby has done that you can't tolerate him."

"It isn't anything he has done, or failed to do," said Elinor, wearily. "Please let's not go over it all again, mother."

Mrs. Brentwood let that gun cool while she fired another.

"I suppose he came to say good-by; what is he going to do with himself this winter?"

"He is going west."

Mrs. Brentwood looked up sharply.

"With us?" she queried.

"Yes."

Penelope clasped her hands and tried to look sorrowful.

"Oh, Ellie!" she cried; "have you——"

"No," Elinor retorted; "I have not."

CHAPTER IV.

THE FLESH-POTS OF EGYPT.

The westward journey began at the appointed hour in the evening with the resourceful Ormsby in command; and when the outsetting, in which she had to sustain only the part of an obedient automaton, was a fact accomplished. Elinor settled back into the pillowed corner of her sleeping car section to enjoy the unwonted sensation of being the one cared for instead of the caretaker.

Two sections away the inevitable newly married pair posed unconsciously to point the moral for Miss Brentwood. She marked the eagerly anticipative solicitude of the boyish groom, contrasting it now and then with Ormsby's less obtrusive attentions. It was all very absurd and sentimental, she thought; and yet she was not without a curious heart-stirring of envy provoked by the self-satisfied complacency of the bride.

What had that chit of a girl done to earn her immunity from self-defendings and the petty anxieties? Nothing, Elinor decided; at least, nothing more purposeful than the swimmer does when he lets himself drift with the current. None the less, the immunity was hers, undeniably, palpably For the first time in her life Miss Brentwood found herself looking, with a little shudder of withdrawal and dismay, down the possible vista—possible to every unmarried woman of 24—milestoned by the unbroken years of spinsterhood and self-helpings.

Was she strong enough to walk this hedged-up path alone?—single hearted enough to go on holding out against her mother's urgings, against Ormsby's masterful wooing, against her own unconquerable longing for a sure anchorage; all this that she might continue to preserve her independence and live the life which, despite its drawbacks, was yet her own?

She took up the magazine Ormsby had left on the seat beside her and sought to put away the disquieting thoughts. But they refused to be dismissed; and now among them rose up another, dating back to that idealizing summer at the foot of Old Croydon, and having its genesis in a hard saying of her mother's.

She closed her eyes, recalling the words and the occasion of them. "You are wasting time and sentiment on this young upstart of a country lawyer, Elinor. So long as you were content to make it a summer day's amusement, I had nothing to say; you are old enough and sensible enough to choose your own recreations. But in justice to yourself, no less than to him, you must let it end with our going home. You haven't money for two."

Her eyes grew hot under the closed lids when she remembered. At the time the hard saying was evoked there was money enough for two, if David Kent would have shared it. But he had held his peace and gone away, and now there was not enough for two.

Elinor faced her major weakness unflinchingly. She was not a slave to the luxuries—the luxuries of the very rich. On the contrary, she had tried to make herself believe that hardness was a part of her creed. But latterly, she had been made to see that there was a formidable array of things which she had been calling comforts; little luxuries which Brookes Ormsby's wife might reckon among the simplest necessities of the daily life, but which David Kent's wife might have to forego; nay, things which Elinor Brentwood might presently have to forego. For she compelled herself to front the fact of the diminished patrimony squarely. So long as the modest Western Pacific dividends were forthcoming, they could live comfortably and without pinching. But fall these—

"No, I'm not great enough," she confessed, with a little shiver. "I should be utterly miserable. If I could afford to indulge in ideals it would be different; but I can't—not when one word of mine will build a barrier so high that all the soul-killing little skimpings can never climb over it. And besides, I owe something to mother and Nell."

It was the final straw. When any weakness of the human heart can find a seeming virtue to go hand in hand with it, the battle is as good as lost; and at that moment Brookes Ormsby, placidly refilling his pipe in the smoking room of the Pullman, was by no means in the hopeless case he was sometimes tempted to fancy himself.

As may be surmised, a diligent suitor, old enough to plan thoughtfully, and yet young enough to simulate the youthful ardor of a lover whose hair has not begun to thin at the temples, would lose no ground in a three days' journey and the opportunities it afforded.

In Penelope's phrase, Elinor "suffered him," enjoying her freedom from care like a sleepy kitten; shutting the door on the past and keeping it shut until the night when their through sleeper was coupled to the Western Pacific Flyer at A. & T. Junction. But late that evening, when she was rummaging in her handbag for a handkerchief, she came upon David Kent's letter and read it again.

"Loring tells me you are coming west," he wrote. "I assume there is at least one chance in three that you will pass through Gaston. If you do, and if the hour it not altogether impossible, I should like to meet your train. One thing among the many the past two years have denied me—the only thing I have cared much about, I think—is the sight of your face. I shall be very happy if you will let me look at you—just for the minute or two the train may stop."

There was more of it; a good bit more; but it was all guarded commonplace, opening no window in the heart of the man David Kent. Yet even in the commonplace she found some faint interlinings of the change in him; not a mere metamorphosis of the outward man, as a new environment might make, but a radical change, deep and biting, like the action of a strong acid upon a fine grained metal.

She returned the letter to its envelope, and after looking up Gaston on the timetable fell into a heart stirring reverie, with unseeing eyes fixed on the restful blackness of the night rushing rearward past the car windows.

"He has forgotten," she said, with a little lip-curl of disappointment. "He thinks he ought to remember, and he is trying—trying because Grantham said something that made him think he ought to try. But it's no use. It was only a little summer idyl, and we have both outlived it."

She was still gazing steadfastly upon the wall of outer darkness when the porter began to make down the berths and Penelope came over to sit in the opposite seat.

"We are on our own railroad now, aren't we?" she asked, with purposeful lack-interest. "And—let me see—isn't Mr. Kent at some little town we pass through?"

"It is a city," said Elinor. "And the name is Gaston."

"I remember now," Penelope rejoined. "I wonder if we shall see him?"

"It is most unlikely. He does not know we are coming, and he wouldn't be looking for us."

Penelope's fine eyes clouded. At times Elinor's thought-processes were as plain as print to the younger sister; at other times they were not.

"I should think the least we could do would be to let him know," she ventured. "Does anybody know what time the train passes Gaston?"

"At 7:15 to-morrow evening," was the unguarded reply; and Penelope drew her own conclusions from the ready answer and the folded timetable in Elinor's lap.

"Well, why don't you send him a wire? I'm sure I should."

"Why should I?" said Elinor, warily.

"Oh, I don't know; any other young woman of his acquaintance would, I fancy. I have half a mind to do it myself. I like him, if you don't care for him any more."

Thus Penelope; and a little while afterward, finding herself in the library compartment with blanks and pen and ink convenient and nothing better to do, she impulsively made the threat good in a ten-word message to Kent.

"If he should happen to drop in unexpectedly it will give Ellie the shock of her life," she mused; and the telegram was smuggled into the hands of the porter to be sent as occasion offered.

Those who knew Mr. Brookes Ormsby best were wont to say that the world of action, a world lusting avidly for resourceful men, had lost the chance of acquiring a promising leader when he was born heir to the Ormsby millions. Be that as it may, he made the most of such opportunities for the exercising of his gift as came to one for whom the long purse leveled most barriers; had been making the most of the present leaguer of a woman's heart—a citadel whose capitulation was not to be compassed by mere money-might, he would have said.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

RACE-WAR IN HAWAII

IMPORTED PORTO RICANS NO ADDITION TO ISLANDS.

Refusing to Work, the Emigrants Beg and Steal, and Recently They Have Resorted to Highway Robbery.

Since the recent murder by a Porto Rican of a very prominent white man in Hawaii, the Porto Ricans in the Islands" have been looked upon with increased disfavor; and to-day it is a very difficult matter for a member of the despised immigrants to get any sort of a position, any work at all.

The present state of affairs leads one familiar with Hawaii to meditation on the almost ideal conditions that prevailed there a short time ago, when there existed so little of race prejudice and hatred. Formerly, white man and brown, native and oriental, orienta and westerner, dwelt together in a degree of harmony remarked far and wide. Of course, there was political friction, some employer-and-employe misunderstandings, but on the whole life in the land of constant summer flowed on smoothly and pleasantly.

Then came the overthrow of the monarchy, and the feeling between native and white man ceased to be of the early character, then there was less and less of the fraternal aspect, trusting dependence on a sort of elder brother basis. A decided anti-haeole (against-the-whites) tendency sprang up and waxed strong. Next, annexation came, and the feeling increased in bitterness; haeoles and natives for awhile saw no community of interests.

Annexation brought in also, along with its admixture of good and ill, a body of Porto Ricans, laborers imported to take the place of the excluded Chinamen; the projector of this solution of the labor problem arguing that the inhabitants of Uncle Sam's new dependency over in the West Indies doubtless would fit in well with the subtropical land of Hawaii. But the Porto Ricans proved very different indeed from what was desired of them.

In one way they resembled the natives of the land they had invaded; they were not overfond of work, but in every other respect—and perhaps in the matter of industry, too, for the Hawaiian can work effectively when he does work—they were very much inferior to that gentle savage known as the Sandwich Islander. The Hawaiians are naturally, and of habit, amiable, hospitable, attractable people, simple, inclined to good fellowship. Perhaps it is no exaggeration to say of them that revolting crime is scarcely known among them, murder by a Hawaiian being most unusual. In addition, they are in their way a proud, independent people, beggars among them as few as real criminals.

IN THE MOUNTAINS OF HAWAII.

The Porto Ricans that came over we trust were not typical of their country, for if so, Porto Rico can have small cause to boast of her common people. The ones thrust upon Hawaii were lazy, thieving, ill-tempered, quarrelsome folk. The first thing they did when they were landed was to beg, and stealing soon went hand in hand with their begging. It was hard to get any real work out of them, and they scattered about the islands, a menace to a locality. Proximity to a camp of Porto Ricans inevitably led to the annoyance of petty depredations; they became as unwelcome as once were bands of gypsies to the English. Hawaiians regarded them from the first with amusement and contempt. Now, after a few years of the infliction of their presence, they have decided to ostracise them utterly.

The Chinamen, too, have grown weary of them, both John and the Hawaiians having been preyed upon by the newcomers. As a consequence of the universal detestation, the Porto Ricans now find themselves in very bad shape, and it is rumored many of them are on the verge of starvation throughout the islands; people fearing to employ them as well as thoroughly disliking the character won by them in their short residence. Many have become beggands and taken to the hills, and the Porto Ricans in Hawaii detract from public peace and safety.

A few years ago, and a woman could ride alone with perfect security up and down the steep gulches, over the lonely mountain passes of Hawaii; but now even a man traveler feels a bit of risk in making a long journey unattended or undefended. In the past he has been wont to meet on his way only such pleasant interruption as "Ohio" from the Jap foot-traveler, "Geo Washlin" from John Chinaman (riding along like a sailor), Aloha from Hawaiian horseman; all either kindly intentioned, or afraid to appear otherwise. Now, even before daylight fades, needy Porto Rican is on the warpath against the wayfarer, after plunder, and a highwayman that is ready with his knife if he meets opposition.

BASKET BALL.

Manager Cabeone, of the Y. M. C. A., has announced no game for Monday night.

The next game in the Interscholastic League Wednesday afternoon, will be between the P. H. S. and Leal's School teams.

The attendance at the Y. M. C. A. league basketball games yesterday was the smallest that has yet witnessed a game in the gym. Though the games were interesting, the usual spectators evidently preferred not to brave the blizzard.

The first matches in the basketball league in the Y. M. C. A. men's class, will be held tonight on the gymnasium floor. The four teams will compete for the championship of the class during the entire season. Collier and Sebring's teams will meet tonight.

Jewett, of the Leal's School basketball team, played one of the best games of basketball yesterday in the contest against the North Plainfield High School team, which any of the scholastic players have put up during the games. In the event of a choice of an all-Plainfield basketball team, Jewett would come very near making a position, either as forward or center.

The Y. M. C. A. junior basketball players are still at the bottom of the Juvenile League. Though members of their department are in all the other teams on the league, the association team itself has been left with only a few to choose from. Their game yesterday afternoon was not as good as the one in which they held to Whittier School boys down to 4 points.

The Y. M. C. A. Business Men will line up as follows in their game with the Passaic Business Men's team on Monday evening: Heicher and Spicer, forwards; Browning, center; Miner, Letson and Clark, guards. The team is anticipating good weather for the game, and are practicing hard for the coming event. It will be the first meeting between two business men's teams which has ever taken place in the local gymnasium.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

A committee meeting of the Y. M. C. A. bowlers will be held in the near future to make plans for an inter-team tournament.

Fanwood was defeated at Dunellen in three bowling matches Tuesday evening. The usual stars of the Suburbans were off their game.

The second series of bowling matches on the Y. M. C. A. alleys in the individual bowling tournament took place last night, and completed the match. The results appear at greater length in another column.

In the Central Journal Bowling League, the Westfield and Roselle clubs still tie for the lead. These teams will not meet again until the latter part of the schedule, when Roselle entertains the Westfielders, on March 8. Each of the teams have four more matches to bowl in the league, and at present the standing for each is 13 won and 4 lost.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The second game tournament in the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., was held yesterday afternoon at the boys' rooms, ten members of the department contending. The events were shuffleboard, checkers and carroms. The entire afternoon was taken up with the games, which were progressive. The winners were as follows: Checkers, Martin Denlinger; carroms, Robert Loughlin; shuffleboard, Frank Line. During the progress of the games, the plans for a sleighride were discussed and it was decided to hold one tomorrow evening. About twenty-five boys will go on the ride, and the arrangements will be completed tomorrow. Kenneth Robbie will have charge of the affair.

DIAMOND DUST.

There is every indication that the Hoboken baseball team of last season will be divided this year. Some of the players have signed with other teams. Manager Daab has not yet announced his plans. It is known that he cannot have the grounds he used last season and at present he does not know where he will locate. He has several plans under discussion and an announcement will be made soon.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Dr. George T. Smith will give a lecture on Japan in the Y. M. C. A. hall, Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Christian church.

The subject this evening in the Christian church will be: "How We are Saved." Tomorrow evening: "A Non-Sectarian Church." Seats free.

The men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Sunday will be addsessed by H. S. Miller. Miss Florence Bennet will sing, and E. D. Young, will render cornet solos

It is expected that Rev. T. E. Davis, of West Fifth street, will accept the recen, call extended to him to become pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian church at Washington.

The Young People's Association meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow night will be of special interest. Rev, Dr. J. A. Chambliss pastor of the church, will be in charge.

Miss Grace Emmons, of Jackson avenue, will entertain the Trinity Reformed church choir, of which she is a member, at her home tomorrow night. After an informal rehearsal, the rest of the evening will be spent in a social way.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will confer the third degree at its regular meeting tomorrow evening. Following the work a social session will be held.

Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold its regular meeting in F. O. E. Hall, tomorrow evening. All members are requested to be present.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, will meet in regular session on Saturday evening, when several applications for membership will be acted upon. There will also be initiation.

At its meeting Tuesday evening, Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., presented the handsome Eagle charm to George Carroll, of Elizabeth, won by him at the fair last week. The presentation speech was made by Michael J. Higgins and the recipient responded fittingly.

Mrs. John Groendyke, of West Front street, has about recovered rfom a recent severe illness.

—Whitney Frazee, the "pony" expressman, did not attempt to make his customary daily trip to New York yesterday.

almost insurmountable and the intense cold made travelling very slow. Carrier Lambert expects to deliver his mail this afternoon, when the roads will probably be broken. The other rural carriers will cover their routes just as soon as it is possible to get through, which will probably be this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Today forenoon it was announced that the New Jersey Central road was opened between Jersey City and Somervile and that trains are about on schedulied time. North of Somerville everything is blocked and the officials give no assurance as to when the schedule will be resumed at that end of the line. The company is still experiencing great difficulty in making up trains in the Jersey City yards, but once the trains clear the yards no further trouble is met as far as Somerville. The Newark branch as well as the Long Branch division is in operation.

Yesterday the New Jersey Southern road between Sea bright and Atlantic Highlands was waterswept in many places, the sea and the river meeting, covering the tracks with sand and otherwise damaging the roadbed. No trains passed between the above tbo places all day.

It was also announced today that fair time is being made on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, with good prospects for an early resumption of the regular schedule.

Schedule on the local trolley lines has been an impossibility since Tuesday night, but the employes are making great efforts to restore the service to normal conditions. Yesterday the cars suspended running entirely but today they are moving backward and forward on the Fourth street line as far as Monroe avenue, on the Somerset street to Codington avenue and on the Arlington avenue as far as Randolph road. The through line and the Dunellen line have been tied up completely, the few cars that were sent out becoming stalled. Several snow ploughs and a large force of men and teams are at work where the drifts are the worst and it is hoped to have fairly good service by tonight.

One of the busiest places in town yesterday and today was the local exchange of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. The inability of a large majority of the subscribers to get about led them to use their 'phones more than usual and the young women at the "Central" office were kept constantly busy answering and giving calls. During the early morning hours many business men called their New York offices to inform those there that they would remain home for the day. Many of those who braved the storm to go to the city wished afterward that they had staved home. The young women at "Central" being unable to go home to dinner, were furnished with lunch at the company's expense. During the day the wires remained intact and little trouble was experienced in this direction.

The great delay caused in the movement of trains on the New Jersey Central made the telegraph operators, as well as all employes very busy, looking after the company's business. The early morning freight arrived about on time yesterday morning, but after that all freight was at a standstill and the company had all it could do to attend to the passenger traffic and in nearly every case these trains were very late. At each station along the line gangs of men were employed clearing the snow away from the platforms and off the tracks, but with the wind blowing in hurricane fashion driving the snow in large drifts, their work was practically useless. The engine drivers were obliged to keep the windows in their cabs open to see any distance ahead and the snow was driven with terrific force into the cabs.

Fred Zimmer Married.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Fred Zimmer, of Manning avenue, and Miss Hazel Crum, of Newark. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. J. H. Parks at his home in Scotch Plains, last month. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Rose, the latter a sister of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmer will go to housekeeping early in the spring. The former is an employe of the Aluminum Press Company.

H. DeMott Stormbound.

Undertaker Henry DeMott, of Somerset street, started for Mt. Horeb, yesterday, to take charge of the funeral of Mrs. William B. Coddington. He had not returned up to noon today and it is supposed he was compelled to remain at Mr. Horeb if he reached there, or else stopped somewhere along the route, as the snowdrifts are practically impassable.

Fire Destroys House.

Fire totally destroyed the home and contents of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Watts on Elm street, Westfield, at 1 o'clock this morning, while the storm was at its height. The total loss is about $5,900. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

HOTEL ROSELL IS SOLD

John A. Staats Becomes New Owner Today.

THE PRICE, $40,000

Policy of the House Will be Changed to Make it Modern and Up-to-Date in Every Respect.

For a consideration stated to be $40,000, John A. Staats, proprietor of the Hotel Kensington, today purchased from Maltby and Burgess, the Hotel Rosell property, for many years known as the City Hotel, at Park avenue and Second street. By the terms he secures the building and the grounds in the rear and assumes full ownership, subject to the present lease held by A. B. Rosell. This will be up within a short time when Mr. Staats will take possession himself and conduct the hostelry with the idea of making it the best in the city.

The new owner came to Plainfield from Elizabeth several years ago, leasing the Hotel Kensington, then called the Grenada. He made numerous changes in its policy and it has gradually grown to be one of the most popular hostelries in this part of the State.

The property is owned by J. Harry Campbell and though he was agreeable, many changes which Mr. Staats wished to make could not be brought about through lack of space. He grew to like Plainfield so much that he decided to make it his permanent home and since he could not branch out at the Kensington, he began the negotiations for the Rosell which ended in its passing into his control. He has not fully decided what he will do with the Kensington but the chances are that he will give his entire time to the new place.

The Hotel Rosell is advantageously situated and furnished for a good class of trade, but it has changed proprietors many times within past years. The ownership has rested with C. R. Maltby and William R. Burgess for a long time but lately it became known that they would receive offers for it and there were several applicants. Beside Mr. Staats, Jerome W. Leary, formerly superintendent of the Aluminum Press Works, was anxious to secure it and until today it was thought that he was to be the new owner.

GEORGE GARDNER GOES BACK TO REFORMATORY

WAS PAROLED SHORT TIME AGO AFTER SERVING EIGHTEEN MONTHS.

Entertaining a suspicion that he might have had something to do with the Armstrong and Morey-LaRue incendiary fires, or that he may possess information in the matter for which his brother is now awaiting the Grand Jury's action, Chief Kiely yesterday ordered the arrest of George Gardner, the young man who has along police record. There is no specific charge against him but as he was released from the Rahway Reformatory six months ago on a parole which has since been broken, the Chief decided to send him back to the institution after a telephonic conference with its officials. Keeper Moore came to headquarters today and Gardner was taken away by him, to remain at the reformtory until his original sentence is served out.

Gardner and his brother James, were picked up at the Morey-LaRue fire by Chief Kiely, who noticed that they were acting in a suspicious manner, and taken to headquarters. When questioned there it was thought George had nothing to do with the blaze and was released with instructions to appear at his brother's hearing. He failed to show up and only came in sight of a policeman yesterday, when the order for his arrest was given. He is but twenty-one years old and was frequently in court on charges of drunkenness until two years ago when he was sent to Rahway for larceny. He had served eighteen months when the parole was given him.

Who Owns This Dog?

CAST FOR "FAUST" HAS BEEN SELECTED

PLAINFIELDERS TO TAKE PART IN AMATEUR PRODUCTION OF PLAY.

Under the supervision of Eduard Waldmann, the young German-English tragedian, rehearsals for the production of "Faust" at the Casino next Tuesday and Wednesday, are being conducted regularly and indications point to a worthy production of Goethe's drama of love and passion. Special scenery will be used to heighten the effect of the great Brocken scene and the mechanical, electrical and musical effects will be on a large scale.

The cast has now been completed as follows: "Mephisto," Mr. Waldmann; "Martha," Mrs. Waldmann; "Young Faust," A. E. Willard; "Old Faust," George B. Cose; "Marguerite," Mrs. A. E. Willard; "Valentine," Joseph C. Martin; "Brander," F. Mortimer Slater, Jr.; "Frosch," Walter Emmons; "Wagner," Louis Schermerhorn; "The old merchant," Harry Blimm; "Liza," Josephine Murphy; "Elsie," Miss Carrie Dawes, and "Katherine," Miss Lotta Willard.

MISS SALLIE M. JETER IS NOW MRS. BININGER

REV. DR. CHAMBLISS OFFICIATES AT THE WEDDING CEREMONY.

Miss Sallie Mae Jeter, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Jeter, of Lynchburg, Virginia, and Irving Whitney Bininger, of Westervelt avenue, were married last night at 7 o'clock at the home of the groom in the presence of a large number of guests from New York, Brooklyn and this city. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church.

The home was attractively decorated with greens, smilax, carnations and roses. In the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, there was a profusion of smilax, and it was in front of a bower of flowers and greens that the bridal party stood. In the dining room the table was garnished with smilax and cut flowers, while in the hallway the greens were used almost exclusively.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Jeter, and both were gowned in white Parisian mull over white taffeta. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley, while her sister carried pink LaFrance roses and asparagus ferns. The best man was Ernest A. Wilmarth, of Brooklyn, brother-in-law of the groom.

After the ceremony the couple received congratulations, followed by a wedding supper. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bininger left on a wedding trip which will include Washington and Old Point Comfort. Upon their return they will live at 70 Westervelt avenue, the groom's home.

The bride received many presents of value and use. From her husband she received an upright piano and from her Sunday-school teacher at the First Baptist church she received a handsome lamp. Other gifts included cut glass, silver, bric-a-brac, while the bride and groom each received a check for a substantial amount.

Mrs. Bininger although a native of Virginia, has been a resident of Plainfield for several years, and since coming here has made many friends. She has been an active worker of the First Baptist church. Mr. Bininger has been a resident of this city for some time. He has been connected with the local office of the Prudential Insurance Company eight years. He was pleasantly remembered by his associates in business.

In the exchange of gifts among those of the bridal party, the best man received a pair of gold link cuff-buttons with the initials of the bride and groom inscribed and the bridesmaid received a gold bracelet from her sister.

A pleasant feature of the reception which followed the ceremony was the piano selections by Prof. William M. Miller. He also played the Lohengrin Wedding March, as the bridal party entered the parlor.

Approaching Nuptials.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Ida May Tallamy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tallamy, of West Front street, and Robert Humpston, of Dunellen. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesdiy, February 8, at 5:30.

DECLINES RENOMINATION

Mayor Smalley Refuses to Become a Candidate Again.

THREE TERMS NOW

Believes He Has Already Done His Full Duty as a Citizen—Letter to The Daily Press.

Mayor Smalley has sent the following letter to The Daily Press:

Editor, The Daily Press:

Within the last few days the statement has been widely published to the effect that it is a foregone conclusion that I will be renominated for Mayor of North Plainfield next March. While I do not wish to be considered as declining a nomination before it is offered, yet under all circumstances, it seems incumbent upon me to define my position in that respect.

For the past six years I have had the honor of serving the borough as Mayor, and to the discharge of the duties of that office I have devoted a great part of my time. Whatever may have been the result of my efforts to the people of the borough, to me the result has been greatly to the detriment of my personal affairs, which have been necessarily correspondingly neglected.

I should never have accepted the nomination for a third term had it not been for the peculiar circumstances existing at that time, which followed so shortly after the annexation election.

I feel now that I have done my full duty as a citizen in respect to serving as a public official, and that I could not in fairness to myself and those dependent upon me, accept the office again, even if it were unanimously offered.

Therefore permit me to say through your columns that I am not a candidate for renomination, and would not under any circumstances accept one if tendered.

N. B. Smalley.

SCHOOLS OPEN.

Regular Sessions Resumed at All Public Schools This Morning After Recess of Two Days.

After a mid-winter vacation of two days the regular sessions at all the public schools were resumed this morning, the attendance being reasonably good. The schools, with the exception of those which always have one session, will continue with the regular schedule of morning and afternoon periods.

Every effort has been taken to have the buildings as comfortable as possible, and the danger of contracting cold is slight. Yesterday morning the High School was the only one which attempted to conduct a regular session, though only one period of recitation was held. This morning a large percentage of the High School pupils turned out, and the attendance in the lower grades was sufficient to warrant the resumption of study.

Bowling Match Postponed.

The match in the Central Journal Bowling League which was to have been rolled between the Park Club, of this city, and the Elizabeth Club teams, on the latter's alleys, was not played last night, on account of the fact that the local bowlers could get no train to take them to Elizabeth. Several members of the team were delayed in reaching this city from New York, and it was impossible to connect with Elizabeth in time for the game. The date has not yet been set, though it is expected that the postponed match will take place next week.

Postponed Basket Ball.

On account of the fact that but three of the players turned out, the first game in the league basket ball tournament which was to have started at the Y. M. C. A. last night, was not played. Collier and Hoogland's teams were to have met but the players failed to appear. An attempt will be made to play the match off on Tuesday. The other two teams captained by Sebring and Aalholm, will also play on that night. The games in this inter-association league will be played twice a week through the entire season.

Whist Club Entertained.

The Fortnightly Whist Club was entertained last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue, and the difficulties of travel were overcome through the general use of sleighs by the members. Miss Ernestine C. Smith was presented with first prize for the women and Percy S Dayton the one for the men. After the play there was the usual good time, including the serving of refreshments.

TRAIN IN WRECK ON DISASTER'S ANNIVERSARY

EASTON EXPRESS, NO 13, FIGURES IN ACCIDENT AGAIN TODAY.

There was a header collision at North Branch on the New Jersey Central this morning between the paper train going west and an Easton train leaving the latter place at 6 o'clock. The paper train was nearly an hour late.

A singular fact in connection with this wreck is that the Easton train, known as No. 14, going east, is No 13 on its return trip in the afternoon. Train No. 13 was in collision with the Reading flyer at Westfield two years ago today, when so many Plainfielders were killed and injured.

In the collision one man was slightly injured. By noon the tracks were cleared.

MOURNERS STORMBOUND AND FUNERAL POSTPONED

UNDERTAKER HAS TRYING EXPERIENCE IN SNOW DRIFTS.

Henry DeMott, the undertaker, arrived home last night at 7 o'clock, after an unsuccessful effort to reach the home of W. B. Coddington at Mt. Horeb, in time to take charge of Mrs. Coddington's funeral. He started for Mt. Horeb, with a hearse and two coaches conveying relatives, Wednesday morning at 8:30 and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon the party reached John Miller's home at Coontown. The hearse and coaches were left there and the party continued the journey in a sleigh at 4 o'clock that afternoon.

It was 9 o'clock Wednesday night when Mr. Coddington's home, which is about nine miles from this city, was reached.

The funeral services are not until Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. DeMott left Mr. Horeb at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and reached home at 7 o'clock last night. Mrs. Coddington died last Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

Former Mayor Dead.

Theodore Ayers, Sr., a retired business man of Morristown, died at his home in Franklin place, Morristown, Wednesday evening, aged eighty years. He was born in Basking Ridge, his father, David Ayers, having been one of the early settlers of that section. David Ayers's father came from England and the family trace their ancestry in a direct line back to William the Conqueror. The deceased was mayor of Morristown for two terms.

Prepared for Emergencies.

Chief Woolston, of the borough fire department, prepared for an alarm during the blizzard by adding two extra horses to the hose truck and having six extra men at headquarters during the night. This plan is to be kept in force until the streets have been fully cleared. Chief Woolston makes the request that all residents having fire hydrants in front or near their homes clear the snow from them.

In Justice Mosher's Court.

Trial in the action brought by Sheerer & Crown, of Newark, against Max Michaelson and Lewis Levine, of this city, was put over for two weeks by Justice Mosher yesterday afternoon. The plaintiffs claim that Michaelson and Levine purchased furniture from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayers, knowing that it had been procured from the firm on the installment plan and had not been paid for.

Present of Gold.

Clarence Goss in retiring as regent of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, last night, was presented with a morroco purse containing $50 in gold. Rev. Erskine M Rodman made the speech.

—The calls for White Label canned goods at Neuman Brothers the past few days have been exceptionally numerous, but a new supply came in this week and the firm is ready to meet all demands.

ELECTION LAW SIGNED

Gov. Stokes Affixed His Signature to Measure.

NOT MUCH INTEREST

Certificate of Nomination to be Filed by Assemblyman Coyne on Tuesday—Amendments to the Bill.

Just before he went to the Trenton House to attend the reception of the newly re-elected United States Senator, John Kean, Governor Stokes signed the bill providing for special elections in Union and Sussex counties, February 7, to choose successors to the late Assemblymen-elect George Embree, of Union, and the late Jackson R. Decker, of Sussex.

Little interest is being taken in the election.

As soon as it was learned that the bill was a law, Assemblyman Edward H. Coyne, chairman of the Republican county committee of Union, announced that the primaries of his party in Union would be held Saturday night, the nominating convention on Monday night.

The certificate of nomination of the successful candidate at the primaries will be filed Tuesday.

The late Mr. Embree came from Westfield, and by a sort of tacit understanding of the county Republican leaders it is generally accepted that the nomination will go to some citizen of that town.

The bill as it became a law contained two amendments.

The first amendment corrected the defect in the notice of the elections by providing for specific publication in at least four newspapers in each county, the papers to be divided as nearly equal as possible politically.

The other fixed the pay of election officers at $10 each for all the services to be rendered under this act. The amendments were concurred in and then under suspension of the rules the bill was passed as amended.

A COLD BED.

Harry Huff Reposes in Snow Drifts on East Front Street Until Police Arrive.

Lying helplessly drunk in the snow on East Front street, near Farragut road, last night, Harry Huff, a local hack driver, was found by a pedestrian, who notified the police of the fact. The patrol wagon in charge of Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Overbaugh picked him up and when returning with him to headquarters, located his horse and carriage, the property of Dan S. Roberts. He was fined $3 in court.

TRINITY MEN ELECT.

Frank P. Storr Chosen President of Association.

Though there was a small attendance at the meeting of the Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church last night, officers were elected for the coming year.

These were the officers elected: President, Frank P. Storr; vice president, R. E. Bohan; secretary, Charles M. Dolliver; treasurer, M. F. Gano. The newly-elected officers will convene in the near future, when the necessary committees will be appointed and the plans for the men's club entertainments will be outlined.

No arrangements were made for an entertainment on account of the small attendance. The next meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 23.

Co. K's Committees.

Following the annual election of civil officers, which took place two weeks ago, Captain W. B. Martin, chairman of Company K, has appointed the committee which will serve for the coming year. They are as follows: Finance—Corporal Conkling, Private Bond, Private McDonald; recruiting—Lieutenant Lewis, Corporal Miles, Corporal Jennings, Private DeCamp, Private Meeker; ways and means—Sergeant Littell, Corporal Apgar, Corporal Phillips, Private Ford and Private Winter; entertainment—Sergeant Peterson, Sergeant Hort, Private Weaver, Private Judson and Private Pearsall.

Edwin Einstein Dead.

Edwin Einstein, a director of the Raritan Woolen Mills Company, and well known in this city, died suddenly Tuesday in his apartments in Sherry's, New York, from heart disease. He served in the Forty-sixth Congress, and made a reputation by a speech on the River and Harbor Bill. He was the candidate of his party against Thomas F. Gilroy for Mayor in 1892, and was defeated. He was appointed Dock Commissioner by Mayor Strong in 1895.

ARION CLUB DANCE WELL ATTENDED AFFAIR

YOUNG PEOPLE BRAVE THE ELEMENTS TO HAVE A GOOD TIME.

Snow drifts and high winds proved no barrier to the friends of the Arion Club, last night, and when the orchestra struck up the first waltz at the opening reception and dance in former I. O. T. Hall there was a large number of young people in attendance. Before the midnight hour when refreshments were served at an intermission, the gathering was equal in size to those seen at similar affairs when the elements were more favorable. The dance is the first of a series which the Arions will give during the present season.

The committee which had the affair in charge comprised Vincent W. Nash, Jr., chairman; Berlin Banks, Alexander Muir, William Baker and Edmond Texier.

COUNCILMAN TYLER IN THE ROLE OF SLEUTH

INVESTIGATES A "HOLD-UP" AND UNRAVELS A MYSTERY.

Since his appointment as chairman of the police committee, Councilman William S. Tyler has demonstrated to the members of the force that the position is not a secondary matter with him. Beside visiting headquarters frequently to "learn the ropes" he has made himself personally acquainted with each officer and this week became a sleuth himself and unearthed a little mystery that was baffling the department.

While the Oshkosh performance was in progress at the Casino, Saturday night, a coachman in the employ of a Steele avenue family, came back to the place and reported that an attempt had been made to "hold him up" as he was driving through Field avenue off West Eighth street, on his way to the barn. He said a man had ordered him to stop and when he whipped up his horses, had thrown a huge rock at him which had crashed through the front window of the coach. The broken window was to be seen but there was no rock inside the carriage and nothing to show where it had gone out. The coachman also said that the rock had bounced around somehow and struck him on the back of the head.

When the police took up the matter, Chairman Tyler became deeply interested and afterward went out on the case himself. After questioning the coachman and following up the tracks of the carriage through Field avenue, which is very seldom used except by this same coachman, he became convinced that the "hold-up" was a concoction to hide a slight collision with a pole in which the carriage window became broken. The coachman evidently believed he would lose his position if he told the facts and the "hold-up" seemed the best way out of the trouble. The occurrence might still have been a mystery but for Councilman Tyler "getting busy" recent developments have proven his theory.

ENGINE AND CREW LOST.

Train With Searchers Was Started Yesterday to Find Snow Fighters.

An engine, with six men in charge of a snow plow, started out from Somerville at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to open the South Branch of the Central Railroad to Flemington. The engine got stalled in a snowdrift between Somerville and Flagtown, and had not been heard from up to a late hour today. It is known that the engine had only sufficient water to take it as far as Neshanic, and the men were also short of food.

Another train with a large force of men was started from Somerville at noon yesterday to shovel the snow plow out of the drift or to rescue the men in charge. There are no farmhouses within a radius of one mile at that part along the line, and fears were entertained for the safety of those on the plow.

Funeral of Cornelius Buckley.

Funeral services over the body of Cornelius Buckley, the nonogenarian, who died Tuesday, were held this morning, first from the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Mehl, of Madison avenue, and later from St. Mary's church. The requiem mass at the latter was said by Rev. Father Egan and was attended by many relatives and friends. The body was sent to Rosedale, Ulster County, N. Y., for interment.

DR. YERKES 80 YEARS OLD

Venerable Minister Celebrates Birthday.

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER

Pastor of the First Baptist Church for Thirty-Nine Years—Fifty-Four Years Married.

Rev. Dr. David J. Yerkes, pastor-emeritus of the First Baptist church, is today quietly observing the eightieth anniversary of his birthday. While no celebration has been planned for the affair, the venerable minister is receiving the congratulations of his many friends upon the completion of eightieth year and wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Dr. Yerkes is the dean among the Plainfield ministers and has the honored distinction of having served as pastor longer than any of the others here. He served the First Baptist church continuously, as pastor from 1863 to June 15, 1902, doing a great work. He only retired because of his inability to continue pastoral duties, which was regretted by the members of his church and congregation.

The venerable minister is still able to attend the services at the church occasionally and take some part. A little over a year ago he was succeeded as pastor by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss.

Dr. Yerkes was born in Philadelphia, January 27, 1825, and at an early age went to Hatsboro, Pa., where he spent his boyhood days. He attended the Hatsboro Academy where he prepared for Columbia University, Washington. He was graduated from the university in the class of '48. He was ordained in the First Baptist church at Holidaysburg, Pa., where he served a short time. He then became pastor of the First Baptist church at Pittsburg, where he remained until 1855.

Dr. Yerkes then accepted a call to the First Baptist church in Brooklyn, remaining there three years. In 1863 he assumed the pastorate of the First Baptist church here, continuing as such until June 15, 1902.

On March 15, 1900, he and Mrs. Yerkes observed their golden wedding anniversary and they received a purse of $1,250 in gold from the church and congregation.

TRAINS GETTING BACK TO THE SCHEDULE TIME

JERSEY CENTRAL RECOVERING FROM EFFECTS OF BLIZZARD.

This morning the army of commuters went to New York with better prospects of reaching their places of business of time and getting home at a reasonable hour.

The passenger traffic on the New Jersey Central and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroads has about resumed to its normal condition and this morning the trains are running nearly on scheduled time. Considerable progress was made yesterday and last night opening the road from Somerville to Easton and Manch Chunk and the regular trains are running through today from those points.

All of the Reading and Royal Blue Line trains from and to Philadelphia and Washington are running within a few minutes of their regular time and no further interruption in the service is looked for at present.

The railroad officials say that while the storm was not as severe as the one of 1888, when it snowed for three days, it has given almost as much trouble in the movement of trains. As stated yesterday the greatest trouble was in the Jersey City yards, where the switches were frozen and it required so much time in making up the trains.

Train service has assumed normal conditions at the eastern end of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, where trouble was caused by the storm, and trains are being despatched on regular schedule. It is not anticipated that the trains will be subjected to much delay.

Talk on Russia.

A. V. D. Honeyman will continue his talk on "The Religious Aspect of Russia and Lapland," at Warren chapel, tonight at 8 o'clock. The present condition of affairs in Russia makes this lecture one of unusual interest. The public is invited.

Fred Endress is making a specialty of Jersey lamb, choice cuts of prime beef, veal and pork. The large stock offers a great variety to choose from. Sausage, hams and bacon are also among the attractive features at Endress' store.

This snow storm has made a great demand for snow shovels. You can get the proper kind at A. M. Griffen's store, also all kinds of the best hardware, household furnishings and builders' materials. Mr. Griffen contracts to do plumbing, tinning and installs the best heating apparatus.

As "The Proof of the pudding is in the eating" so is the proof that the system of credit established by the People's Credit Clothing Company easily gained by a practical trial. It enables patrons of the firm to secure their clothing without any deposit and pay for it at terms made by themselves.

The kind of weather that has hovered about Plainfield the past few days is a reminder that new blankets and comfortables would not be out of place in the bedrooms There's no time like the present to buy them and I. H. Boehm, the West Front street dry goods dealer, has them in all styles and all prices. In addition he has all sorts of cold weather articles of dress for young and old.

This is the fourth week of the January furniture sale at Woodhull & Martin's store and if you want to secure some genuine bargains don't delay your visit to the store. There is a positive saving of at least 25 per cent. Attention is also called to the sale of mattresses, the best manufacture, at low prices, and in fact everything in the furniture department is being sacrified to make room for other goods.

STORM'S RAVAGES

Country Staggering From Solar Plexus Blow.

COLDEST DAY FOLLOWS BLIZZARD.

Forecast Fair Skies, Less Frosty Air. Business at a Standstill—Railroads Digging Out Trains—Long Island Road Tied Up.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—New York is recovering from the effects of the great storm which so effectually put a stop to traffic and tied up some lines of business. Although the day was bitter cold, the thermometer registering zero yesterday morning, 15,000 men were sent out to remove the snow from the leading thoroughfares, and, aided by the men of the surface car roads, many avenues of travel are now open. Cars are running on the principal lines, the railroads are sending out trains, ferryboats are running on schedule, and milk, coal and food supplies have begun to reach the city.

This has been one of the severest days for a number of winters, and those compelled to be out of doors suffered much. Over 250 snow shovelers were treated at hospitals for frostbites, and scores of others were attended at uptown institutions and by physicians. Owing to the difficulty in reaching downtown offices, but little business was transacted during the day, and places of amusement were scantily attended.

Suburban railroad traffic gradually resumed normal conditions late in the day, but through trains on most roads were hours late. The Twentieth Century limited over the New York Central reached here nearly ten hours behind time, and the limited train over the Pennsylvania from Louisville reached Jersey City six hours behind the time table hour.

No through trains have reached Hoboken over the Lackawanna, and on the Erie through traffic is in bad shape. Trains on the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Central of New Jersey are running according to schedule.

The Long Island road, which was entirely tied up, has partially raised its blockade. Suburban trains were sent out frequently, and one train got as far east as Patchogue. Over 500 men and women spent the night in the passenger station in Long Island City, and 125 persons slept in the station in Jamaica. Many others were compelled to remain all night in trains and trolleys stalled in deep drifts on roads around New York.

The embargo on shipping was lifted with the advent of clear weather, and the large fleet of delayed liners reached port ice covered. All report tempestuous voyages and much suffering among their crews. The steam lighter Clarence, which left Bayonne, N. J., for Brooklyn, with seven men aboard, has not been heard from.

A vessel is reported sunk off Robbins reef. The wreck was noticed by a passing vessel, and it is feared it may be the Clarence.

The cold weather, which has been general along the Atlantic coast, appears to be giving way. At 10 o'clock last night the mercury in New York registered 10 degrees above zero. In Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia it was 17 above, New Haven 9 above, Boston 13 above, Portland 14 above, St. John 20 above and Halifax 6 above. Reports from New York state points show that the cold is still severe. Mails are greatly delayed, and rural mail carriers have been unable to cover their routes.

Cotton Convention at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—With the unanimous adoption of the plan reported by its committee for a permanent organization, headed by Harvie Jordan of Georgia as president and E. S. Peters of Texas as vice president, the southern interstate cotton convention finally closed its three days' session. Throughout the session there has been a hard struggle in committee for ascendancy between the friends of Jordan and those of Peters in the permanent association, but all differences were finally reconciled, and a unanimous report was presented to the convention.

Miners' Demands to Be Granted.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Although Moeller, the Prussian minister of commerce and industry, announced in the reichstag recently that the government was not willing to undertake a revision of the general mining laws during the existing strike, a conference with Chancellor von Bulow has apparently led to a different decision. A semiofficial publication now states that the Prussian ministry will at an early day lay before the diet a bill for revising the law in such a way as to be equivalent to granting all the essential demands of the strikers.

Bronchos For Japanese Army.

LEAD, S. D., Jan. 27.—About 4,000 head of horses have been contracted for by an agent who is said to be acting for the Japanese government. The first consignment has left Moorcroft, Wyo. It is said that it will require about 7,000 head of horses to fill the entire order placed with agents in this country. Most of the animals are bronchos which are said to be adapted to the use of the army in Manchuria.

Miners Got Cordial Welcome.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Senator Penrose at the White House introduced to the president more than a score of the delegates to the recent Indianapolis convention of the United Mine Workers of America who are en route to their Pennsylvania homes. The president gave the miners a cordial greeting.

AT HOME IN TOKYO.

President Attended Pershing-Warren Military Nuptials.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The marriage of Miss Helen Frances Warren, the daughter of Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, to Captain John Joseph Pershing, general staff, U. S. A., took place at noon here at Epiphany Episcopal church in the presence of President and Mrs. Roosevelt and a large gathering of friends, the Rev. Randolph McKim, the rector, performing the ceremony.

Later the captain and his bride left for a long honeymoon, their journey to be continued until they reach Tokyo, Japan, where the former has been assigned to duty and in anticipation of which the bride inclosed in her father's invitation to the ceremony cards reading, "At home after March 1 at Tokyo, Japan."

The bride, who is an exceedingly graceful girl and who came into the church with her father, was preceded by Miss Orr of Pittsburg as her maid of honor. She wore a simple but becoming dress of soft white satin. The elbow sleeves were of lace and chiffon ruffles, and a coronet of orange blossoms crowned her tulle veil. The ushers were all officers of the army in full uniform.

Just before the arrival of the bride the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Roosevelt were escorted down the aisle to the front row. A pretty group of girls dressed in light silk and lace, with picture hats, former classmates of the bride at Wellesly college, were among the guests. Others present included Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks, Speaker and Miss Cannon, Senator Stewart, Senator and Mrs. McCreary, Senator and Mrs. Burrows, Senator and Mrs. Foraker, Senator and Mrs. Cullom, the Japanese minister, General Chaffee and well known society people. The bride received hundreds of gifts from all over the country and notably from Wyoming, her own state.

HOCH SEEN AT ARGOS, IND.

Bluebeard Used Hypnotism to Influence His Many Wives.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Allegations of mesmeric influence have entered into the case of "Bluebeard" Johann Hoch. Mrs. Henry Fink of Aurora, Ill., one of Hoch's many wives, charged Hoch with having mesmerized her into consenting to marry him. Mrs. Fink declared that under the influence of the mysterious German she had consented to wed him after a five minutes' courtship.

A trunkful of books on hypnotism and mesmerism were left behind by Hoch when he disappeared from Aurora three days after the marriage, he having learned he was on the verge of exposure for leaving a wife in Cleveland, O., and fleeing to Cheboygan, Mich. The Aurora marriage took place in 1902. The bride, Mrs. Fink, is about sixty years old.

Rumors of Hoch having been seen in several places near Chicago have reached the police. The most definite was a report from Argos, Ind., where the chief of police said the missing man was seen there Tuesday and recognized by persons who knew him as the husband of Mrs. Mary Schultz. After the marriage he brought her to Chicago.

A St. Louis report says that detectives there claim that John Hoch, wanted by the Chicago police for alleged bigamy and wife poisoning, and John Schultz, formerly of St. Louis, are identical. Investigation as to the death of Mrs. Mary Schultz, wife of John Schultz, has led the police there to that conclusion.

MOSCOW RIOT FATAL

Cossacks, Replying to Strikers' Fire, Kill Fourteen.

MILLS ARE ABLAZE AT THE CAPITAL

Strikes in Reval, Libau, Kiev and Odessa Are Extending, but Situation at St. Petersburg Is Not So Acute.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 27.—With troops patrolling the streets of St. Petersburg, Moscow, Libau, Odessa, Kiev and other industrial centers of Russia there have been no serious collisions except at Moscow, where in a fight between strikers and soldiers fourteen persons were killed.

The struggle began through the attempts of strikers to assemble in the "Red square." The Cossacks attacked them with whips and the flat of swords. Some of the strikers possessed revolvers and began firing on the troops, who thereupon replied. The strikers then retreated.

The Kremlin, in the heart of the city, has been equipped as a fortress and has been supplied with artillery and troops under the direct guidance of the governor general, who has made his headquarters there.

The manufacturers have held a meeting and passed a resolution to telegraph to the minister of the interior, Prince Mirsky, and urge him to prevent the taking of military measures against the strikers until they begin to revolt in serious manner or to plunder.

Pahl's factory and a large cotton mill were set on fire here last night and burned fiercely for some hours.

The celebrated novelist Gorky was trapped into arrest by a message saying that his wife was sick at Riga. It was he who was picked as the head of a provisional government to usurp the czar's place. Maxim Gorky is a pen name, which means "The Bitter One." His real name is Alexis Maximovitch Pieshkoff.

In Moscow some of the employers are evincing a willingness to make some concessions to their workmen, but there has been no general agreement on that point. In St. Petersburg the return of workmen has enabled several factories to resume operations, and the authorities hope to witness a general resumption there on Monday. The minister of the interior has promised to consider the cases of the prominent writers who were sent to the SS. Peter and St. Paul fortress for their activity in the political and economic agitation, and he has given a qualified promise that they shall be released.

Although the strikes in Reval, Libau, Kiev, Odessa and a few smaller places are extending, the situation this morning is nowhere acute. An increasing number of workmen are out in Moscow, but there is no general tie-up or disorder there. The whereabouts of Father Gopon still remains a mystery, although it is believed the priest is in Moscow.

At Libau a gendarme was shot dead last night while in the act of wresting a flag from a strike leader. Troops are now patrolling the town, but no collision with the strikers has occurred.

Grave news has been received from Mukden of a serious mutiny among the Russian troops in camp there owing to the privations they have had to undergo.

It is said that the Japanese along the Sha river are keeping the Russians fully acquainted with the course of events in St. Petersburg.

A dispatch from Riga confirms the previous announcement of a collision there between strikers and troops. Thirty workmen were killed or wounded and a subchief of police and two soldiers were mortally wounded.

The encounter occurred near the Tukkum railroad station. The strikers attacked the troops and attempted to disarm them when the order was given to fire.

All the workshops and factories are closed. The strikers are parading the streets and forcing all workmen to join in the procession.

Riga is the capital of the government of Livonia, the seat of a governor general and the fifth largest city in Russia.

A report from General Kuropatkin's headquarters says that a heavy and continuous artillery roar has been heard to the eastward all day. Apparently the largest engagement since October is being fought. Reports say that a Russian force has crossed the Hun river on the Japanese left wing, and a Japanese force has advanced against the Russians, making an attack.

The fighting must be attended with great suffering from the cold. The temperature is below zero, and the plains are covered with several inches of snow. The ground is too hard for rapid trenching. The advance of the Russian force is the first important one since General Mischtschenko's recent raid.

Talking about the "Great White Czar," what's the matter with the one that has been domineering over us for the past two days

Sunday will be the anniversary of the birth of William McKinley. Those who wish to pay tribute to his memory will wear his favorite flower, a pink carnation.

The annual statement of the Dime Savings Institution published in another column is enough inducement for anyone to deposit his earnings with that flourishing concern.

The people who buy "doubtful eggs" because they are cheaper; suspicious butter at a cost saving—blemished fruit because they get more for their money—will be apt to select advertising mediums on the same plan.

With a view to having another try at that coveted cup, Sir Thomas Lipton is advertising for an American designer to superintend the building of a new yacht. What Sir Thomas wants is a few Americans to take care of it after it's built.

REAL ESTATE ITEMS.

The foundation for E. A. Laing's new house on East Front street was nearly completed when the storm arrived and put an end to all work temporarily.

Andrew Johnson, the Park avenue tinner, has decided to move his business with A. H. Enander, to the latter's new building which he proposes to build on his Watchung avenue lot in the spring.

William J. Tallamy and brothers, Bertram and Lewis V. Tallamy, have purchased the property on the southeast corner of West Fourth street and Arlington avenue, for speculative purposes. They will not do anything with it at present but may build later on.

The first carload of cement blocks for VanZandt & Voorhees' new building, arrived yesterday, and the work of placing them will begin as soon as the weather moderates. The use of these cement blocks will mark a new departure in local building as none have ever been used before by Plainfield contractors. They form the entire wall the need of plaster on the inside being dispensed with, as the blocks are perfectly smooth on the interior surface. Tallamy Brothers have the contract for the structure and they are procuring the blocks from a plant at Siegfried, Pa.

A. M. Seiders, a lineman for the Tel. Co., has resigned his position and will take up his residence at Samaqua, Pa., where he will engage in the electrician business.

Louis Mayhood, of 1707 West Front street, who was taken to the hospital a few days ago suffering with severe injuries and a fracture at the base of the skull, the result of falling off a trolley car, continues to improve. He retains consciousness and has excellent chances for recovery.

There has been received from Halsted C. Compton, of West Front street, who is at "Jenkins' Sunny-Side," Daytona, Fla., a beautiful illustrated postal card, showing Orange street, Daytona, and he says: "Here we are in the land of flowers and oranges. Weather fine. We are having a very pleasant time." There are no evidences in the picture of the chilling blast of winter which Plainfielders have been experiencing during the past few days. At present there is a good sized colony of Plainfielders at Daytona.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

While at work on the switches and tracks around the station and for a distance of several hundred yards to the east and west, the two hundred employes of the Central Railroad were supplied free with coffee and sandwiches from Vail & Alberts' restaurant Wednesday night. All through the night the men were at work on the tracks, cleaning out the switches and assisting in keeping the traffic as much as possible in tact. There was, of course, great delay in trains, due to the condition of the tracks, and it required a large force of men to keep the yards in Dunellen and the switches clear. The fact that the new tower operating switches, which was put in last summer, was in use, simplified matters a little, but even they were at times powerless against the elements, and the tracks had to be carefully watched. Continually through the night trains were stalled and those which found their way from Plainfield met with second delays in the vicinity of the round house, and east of the station. By those who were at work on the tracks Wednesday night, the kindness of Vail & Alberts' was fully appreciated, and many who were almost paralyzed with cold were revived by the coffee and bread.

A chicken supper will be given at the Methodist church lecture room on Saturday night, February 11. It will be to a certain extent in the nature of a farewell to the pastor and his family, though Mr. Doolittle will not leave until the first week in April. The arrangements for the affair were considered at the stewards' meeting early in the week. At this meeting word was received also that Rev. J. H. E. Schultz, whom the congregation has called, may not be secured as the next paster in spite of the fact that he is the church's choice. Rev. Mr. Schultz has received urgent requests to remain in his present pastorate at the Dashiell Memorial church, and it is possible that the bishop and cabinet may grant the petitions of the Dashiell church.

The streets of the borough are beginning to look more like thoroughfares, rather than unbroken white meadows. Huge drifts have in many places made way for narrow paths, guarded by rugged white walls. The street committee is doing its best to make the roads passable, and is clearing away the snow as fast as the limited means at its disposal provides.

Local residents who desired to go to Plainfield yesterday were confronted by a choice of two ways—trains or a three mile walk or drive through snow at some places ten feet deep. No trolleys were running and the result was that most Plainfield-goers used the railroad, which, though a few minutes late, served them well.

A trolley car was stalled nearly all day in the snow at Clinton avenue yesterday. The drift in that place had taken a cross-road direction and was nearly impassable. The snow plough was ineffective against the deep drifts.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The town is beginning to recover somewhat from the effects of the blizzard of Wednesday. Some of the streets and walks are already broken so as to make travel much better, but the drifts in some places will remain as reminders of the little affair for some time.

The lovers of trap shooting in town will be out in force tomorrow afternoon, to witness the five-men match shoot between the Brookside team and the Plainfield club's team, which will be held on the latter's grounds near Leland avenue.

The borough election bee is beginning to be heard, and candidates for the March election are being talked of. Wright Babcock is about the only name so far that has been mentioned as the next Mayor of the borough.

Albert Hollingsworth, who is in the employ of the Government, as a surveyor, being stationed in the regions of the Great Lakes of the Northwest, has been visiting his father, who has been critically ill for two weeks.

"How to Reach the Non-church Goer," will be the subject of the weekly prayer meeting, to be held tonight in the parlors of the Baptist church. Rev. T. Moore-Smith will lead the meeting.

The dance of the Suburban Club to be held Tuesday night, Feb. 7, promises to be one of the most enjoyable event the club has yet held.

A number of the young people from town enjoyed the Arion Club's dance, held last night, in the I. O. T. rooms.

No meeting of the Amity Club was held last night on account of the weather conditions.

A meeting of the Township Committee will be held in the town rooms tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The drifted snow has been a great hindrance to the Lehigh Valley transportation. Up to a late hour yesterday no trains had come from the West, except in the early morning when an express that should have passed Wednesday came through.

The road to Oak Tree is so filled with snow as to be almost impassable. The heaviest drifts were opened yesterday afternoon, but were soon filled again by the wind blown snow.

The Ladies' Aid Society was obliged to postpone the social which was announced to be held this evening, because the roads and streets are in a bad condition.

The mill here was not opened yesterday until afternoon. Almost all business has been much hindered the past two days.

Camp 41, P. O. of A., did not hold the usual weekly meeting last night on account of the bad weather.

The local school was closed the last two days at 1 o'clock on account of the weather and snow.

During the past two days Mrs. Bethune Dunham has been very low with pneumonia.

THE FORUM.

Democratic Surrender.

Editor, The Daily Press:

At a recent meeting held by the Democrats of North Plainfield at headquarters the question as to the advisability of running a straight Democratic ticket was brought up. Shades of Jefferson and Tilden! Could they have been visibly present, they would have held their hands up in holy horror. That there should be any such question raised in the minds of true Democrats seems inconceivable, but it is recorded by The Daily Press that some of those present favored hauling down the party standard and surrendering to the wily Republicans—that is, the disgruntled Republicans who want to use the Democrats to pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

It seems preposterous to think that self-respecting Democrats should give such a proposition a second thought.

Owing to the wide split in the Republican party the borough Democrats have the opportunity of their lives to elect their ticket, for; no matter which Republican faction wins in its own primary, the defeated faction will, almost to a man, vote the Democratic ticket.

Are the Democrats too blind to see this, and that they are certain of victory without pondering to the kickers in the other party? The Republicans will vote the Democratic ticket because they can not stand their own.

It is reported that the so called Citizens are willing to nominate all Democrats on their ticket if we will only give up our party's name. This is certainly most seductive, but those who are open-minded and free from prejudice can easily see that a blow will be struck at Democracy from which it is not easy to recover.

Every time we give up our party ticket we weaken our party. If we carry the argument to its conclusion we should ask "why should we ever run a Democratic ticket?"

In recent years in the borough we have elected Democrats on straight tickets with the help of disgruntled Republicans, and there are plenty of them to help us this year.

Why should we deny ourselves their support? If some of them are so hidebound that they can not take their medicine straight, let such Republicans print the magic word "Citizen" at the head of our otherwise straight ticket and vote it by machinery.

They can thus remain uncontaminated.

If the borough Democrats want to hold their identity and exist as a party in harmony we should drop this traitorous talk of surrender. There surely are enough loyal Democrats left in the borough to frame a party ticket even if the meeting tonight should vote not to have one, and, if this is done, there may be a split in our party that will last a lifetime.

This is a serious business and action should not be taken hastily.

Our party comprises about 35 per cent. of the vote of the borough and we only need 16 per cent. of the Republican vote to win.

We have gotten it before. Do you doubt that we can do it now under the present conditions?

Think it over.

A Somerset County Democrat.

Advanced Method of Removing Germs and Dust From Railway Cars.

The management of the Central Railroad of New Jersey has made another step of advancement through the recent installation of a system of car cleaning which has the universal approval of the health authorities along its line, and as it is practically the first transportation company to adopt it, the method may be of interest to our readers. The old method of car cleaning with a whisk here and a dash there with a broom or duster, was not only unsanitary, but unsatisfactory, for the reason that it had the effect largely of removing dust and dirt from one section, and depositing it elsewhere; but under the new method, which is termed the "Vacuum Sweeping System," the dirt and dust is drawn from the car by suction through a pipe, and is gone forever. The New Jersey Central has erected an immense vacuum plant in its Jersey City yards, and for a distance of 3600 feet has laid pipe varying from wo to five inches in diameter, covering in all about three miles. At short intervals this pipe is tapped and from these cocks is run the flexible hose, which may be taken in the car either by door or window. At the foot of the hose is a metal pipe with a flat triangular end, along the base of which is an opening, and through which the dust and dirt is drawn by the Vacuum or "drawing-in machine" located a distance away. The operator runs the slot opening over the cushions, carpets, curtains, woodwork, etc., and without any commotion or dust raising, every loose particle or germ is whisked away, everything being left clean and wholesome. The dust thus removed, before reaching the great "drawing-in machine" must pass through two dust separators, the first of which clears the air of 90 per cent. of the grit, dust and germs; the second separator or cylinder draws the air through water in which corrosive sublimate is used, and completes perfectly the purification. The New Jersey Central management has for a long time felt the necessity for a more sanitary method of car cleaning, and the Vacuum System, while reducing disease liabilities to a minimum, at the same time reduces the cost of cleaning and time consumed. Two cars can be thoroughly cleaned under the new system at the same expense of time and money as was formerly consumed in cleaning one, and this in connection with the increased sanitary value, is sure to cause its general introduction within a short time, not only by other transportation companies, but by theatres, hotels, places of public resort and even the home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bird, of Clinton avenue, who have been attending the automobile races at Ormond Beach, Florida, leave there today for home. The visit in the south has been of great benefit to Mr. Bird's health.

POLITICAL CHAT.

Governor Stokes has determined that Tuesdays during his administration will be "Governor's Day," not only in name but in reality. He has decided to set this day apart for executive business only and does not want delegates who have names to present for offices to take up his time on this day. In the past "Governor's Day" has sounded a sort of a revielle for all who had any applications to make to the executive.

Miss Hubbell's Tea.

Miss Hubbell, of Central avenue, will give a tea at her home this afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk before Wednesday, Feb. 1.

VADERLAND IS HELD

Red Star Liner Had Eleven Mysterious Deaths.

ON FATAL VOYAGE FROM ANTWERP

Cabin Passengers to Be Cooped Up Ten Days—Immigrants at Large In New York to Be Recaptured. Bodies Buried at Sea.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Health Officer of the Port Doty has ordered the Red Star liner Vaderland, in from Antwerp three days ago with a record of eleven deaths in the steerage, back to quarantine for a thorough fumigation, disinfection and examination, which will probably consume a week. This action followed an autopsy performed on the two bodies of the dead.

Sixty-two second cabin passengers are detained on board the Vaderland.

The Vaderland came in on Tuesday, reporting one of the roughest voyages in her history, during most of which the vessel plunged head-on against mountainous seas. There was consternation at quarantine when the health officer boarded her and was informed that there had been ten deaths in the steerage since leaving Antwerp on Jan. 15. One passenger has died here since the ship arrived.

Eight of the dead had been buried at sea, but the bodies of two who had died within twenty-four hours were still on the ship.

The Vaderland's physician, Dr. Waersegers, a man of many years' experience, attributed the deaths to exhaustion caused by seasickness, for which the Hungarians, poor people, who had traveled a long distance in a railroad train, were not prepared, having lacked proper nourishment before boarding the ship.

This opinion was supported by Dr. Sidney K. Simon of New Orleans and Dr. William Ackerman of Milwaukee, passengers on the ship.

After an inspection of the steerage and a superficial examination of the bodies this seemed to be a reasonable explanation, and the Vaderland was permitted to proceed up the river to her pier. The cabin passengers, most of whom knew nothing of the unexpected deaths in the steerage, were landed and have become widely distributed by this time. Two hundred and seventy-five of the steerage passengers were taken to Ellis island and, having passed through the customary routine, were about to be discharged when Dr. Doty's autopsy changed the plans of the authorities.

The Hungarians were caught just in time. Twelve of them, as a matter of fact, had left the island and were at large in New York. The immigration officers, however, have their names and addresses, and it was said at Ellis island that each of them will be found and brought back and placed under observation if the developments justify such action.

Later it was decided, to safeguard the other immigrants on Ellis island, to remove the 275 Vaderland passengers detained there to Hoffman island, where they will be herded with the 675 others.

The Vaderland, when it received orders to drop downstream to quarantine, prepared to obey. This action is taken to mean that Dr. Doty considers the situation the most unusual which New York has faced since the last big cholera scare years ago. It is expected that the thorough fumigation and examination she will receive will take approximately a week or ten days.

Hotaling Trial Nearing Close.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The defense in the Hotaling case seemed to have suddenly given out during the trial here. When court convened after recess John P. Wheeler, attorney for the defense, opened and said that, while they admitted the death of the child in the burning house, they denied that Hotaling set the fire or killed the child, but claim that he attempted to save the child's life when he saw that the house was on fire. He said that evidence would be introduced to show the previous good character of the defendant, except that he was rough in manner and swore frequently. The defense will rest today.

Will Assist Irish Nationalists.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — Professor Louis Rouillion, adjunct professor of manual training in Teachers' college of Columbia university, has been appointed chief inspector of technical education for Ireland. The appointment was brought about by Sir Horace Plunkett, and the new inspector will work in co-operation with the leaders of the Irish national movement, who are trying to build up the Irish national educational system.

Aged Couple Perished In Fire.

BAYONNE, N. J., Jan. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hurley, an aged couple, are dead as the result of a conflagration which partially destroyed their home here. Mrs. Hurley was putting coal in the kitchen range when her clothing caught fire, and before she could summon assistance she was fatally burned. The flames were communicated to the house, and the dense smoke suffocated the husband.

Same Hand Wrote 550 Ballots.

DENVER, Jan. 27.—The time of the joint legislative committee investigating the gubernatorial contest was consumed here in listening to the reports of handwriting experts. Seven precincts were reported on, and the experts testified that out of 2,274 ballots found in the boxes 550 were written by the same person.

NORTH SEA INQUIRY.

Witness Testified That He Mistook Trawler For Torpedo Boat.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—At the North sea inquiry here a fisherman named Green said that following the cannonade he temporarily mistook the trawler Crane for a torpedo boat and so remarked to the engineer of his vessel, but he soon detected his mistake.

Counsel for Russia asked how many others mistook the Crane for a torpedo boat.

The witness replied that he alone made the mistake, being blinded by the searchlight.

Smirke, another witness, said he saw a trawler attempting to cross the Russian fire.

Smirke's captain said:

"Look! It is a torpedo boat!"

Smirke replied:

"No, it is a trawler."

They went to the vessel's assistance and took the dead and dying from her. The trawler then sank.

The witness reasserted that the vessel was a trawler, but counsel for Russia was not satisfied, and a long discussion ensued between the British and Russian lawyers.

PHIL FINCH AND REVEILLE.

Favorites Were Defeated In Many Races at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—With the exception of Phil Finch and Reveille, favorites were defeated in short order here. Mr. Jack, favorite in the first, was sluggish at the start, went wide on the turns and, though he came very fast at the end, could not get up. Summaries:

First Race.—Kernal, first; Gladiator, second; Mr. Jack, third.

Second Race.—April Showers, first; Poseur, second; Floral Wreath, third.

Third Race.—Homestead, first; Simplicity, second; Sand Bath, third.

Fourth Race.—Phil Finch, first; Careless, second; Forehand, third.

Fifth Race.—Reveille, first; Carnival, second; Trogon, third.

Sixth Race.—Barca, first; Hoodwink, second; Catalina, third.

Bowden Won Kilometer Trophy.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 27.—In the final heat for the H. L. Bowden automobile trophy here for one kilometer (open race) Arthur MacDonald won the heat and the trophy in 27 3-5 seconds. Louis Ross was second in 28 1-5 seconds. Samuel Stevens in a ninety horsepower was third in 30 seconds. William Vanderbilt started, but did not finish in the final.

Racing at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 27.—Favorites and outsiders divided honors equally at Ascot, each winning three races of a very ordinary card. Flea, Arabo and Sweet Kittie Bellairs were fancied by the form players and were successful, while Riseful, Bessie Wellley and Edinborough furnished the surprises.

Favorites Won at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 27.—Roseburg, Irish Jewel, Mamie Worth and Possession, carrying the public money, won at Essex park. In the remaining two events Platoon and Florizel, well played second choices, won.

Our Monetary System as Model.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President Roosevelt has transmitted to the senate the final report of the commission on international exchange with a report from Assistant Secretary of State Loomis. The president says: "I transmit herewith the final report of the commission on international exchange, constituted in compliance with the requests of the governments of China and Mexico. The work of the commission was assisted greatly in the establishment of the new monetary systems of the Philippine Islands, Mexico and the republic of Panama. The work done in China has, from the letter of the Prince of Ching, the head of the executive, been very helpful to that government."

Senate Passed Army Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The senate passed the army appropriation bill after modifying the provision concerning the assignment of retired army officers to active service with militia organizations. The effect of the change is to relieve General Miles from its application. Mr. Gallinger and others criticised the amendment regulating the sale of army transports, claiming that the use of government vessels forced unfair competition upon the owners of private vessels. Mr. Hale condemned the operation of the general staff system.

House Talked Railway Rates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The agricultural appropriation bill was considered in the house, but the debate turned principally on the topic of restricting railroads in the matter of freight rates, the Hepburn bill forming the basis of the discussion. Mr. Williams of Mississippi said that the Democratic party was committed to views such as were expressed by the president in his message to congress.

Texas Bank Failed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The First National bank of Nederland, Tex., has been closed by the comptroller of the currency upon the receipt of a telegram from National Bank Examiner Williams that the bank is insolvent and upon information from other sources that its draft has been protested. Examiner Williams has been appointed receiver.

Chicago Bank Closed Doors.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The Pan-American Banking company, 186 Dearborn street, an institution little known in the financial world, has closed its doors to customers, but announcement was made that payments might be resumed later.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Up to the final day of the long westward flight all things had gone well with him. True, Elinor had not thawed visibly, but she had been tolerant; Penelope had amused herself at no one's expense save her own—a boon for which Ormsby did not fail to be duly thankful; and Mrs. Brentwood had contributed her mite by keeping hands off.

But at the dining-car luncheon on the last day's run, Penelope, languishing at a table for two with an unresponsive Ormsby for a vis-a-vis, made sly mention of the possible recrudescence of one David Kent at a place called Gaston; this merely to note the effect upon an unresponsive table-mate.

In Penelope's observings there was no effect perceptible. Ormsby said "Ah?" and asked if she would have more of the salad. But later, in a contemplative half-hour with his pipe in the smoking compartment, he let the scrap of information sink in and take root.

Hitherto Kent had been little more than a name to him; a name he had never heard on Elinor's lips. But if love be blind in the teens and twenties, it is more than apt to have a keen gift of insight in the thirties and beyond. Hence, by the time Ormsby had come to the second filling of his pipe, he had pieced together bits of half-forgotten gossip about the Croydon summer, curious little reticences on Elinor's part, vague hints let fall by Mrs. Brentwood; enough to enable him to chart the rock on which his love-argosy was drifting, and to name it—David Kent.

Now to a well-knit man of the world—who happens to be a heaven-born diplomatist into the bargain—to be forewarned is to be doubly armed. At the end of the half-hour of studious solitude in the smoking-room, Ormsby had pricked out his course on the chart to a boat's-length; had trimmed his sails to the minutest starting of a sheet. A glance at his watch and another at the time-table gave him the length of his respite. Six hours there were; and a dining-car dinner intervened. Those six hours, and the dinner, he decided, must win or lose the race.

Picturing for ourselves, if we may, how nine men out of ten would have given place to panic-ardor, turning a possible victory into a hopeless rout, let us hold aloof and mark the generalship of the tenth, who chances to be the heaven-born.

For five of the six precious hours Ormsby merely saw to it that Elinor was judiciously marooned. Then the dining-car was reopened and the evening meal was announced. Waiting until a sufficient number of passengers had gone forward to insure a crowded car, Ormsby let his party fall in with the tail of the procession, and the inevitable happened. Single seats only could be had, and Elinor was compelled to dine in solemn silence at a table with three strangers.

Dinner over, there remained but 20 minutes of the respite; but the diplomatist kept his head, going back to the sleeping-car with his charges and dropping into the seat beside Elinor with the light of calm assurance in his eye.

"You are quite comfortable?" he began. "Sha'n't I have the presence in the buffet make you a cup of tea? That in the diner didn't deserve the name."

She was regarding him with curious anger in the gray eyes, and her reply quite ignored the kindly offer of refreshment.

"You are the pink of dragomans," she said. "Don't you want to go and smoke?"

"To be entirely consistent, I suppose I ought to," he confessed, wondering if his throw had failed. "Do you want me to go?"

"I have been alone all the afternoon; I can endure it a little while longer, I presume."

Ormsby permitted himself a single heart-throb of exultation. He had deliberately gone about to break down her poise, her only barrier of defense, and it began to look as if he had succeeded.

"I couldn't help it, you know," he said, catching his cue swiftly. "There are times when I'm obliged to keep away from you—times when every fiber of me rebels against the restraints of the false position you have thrust me into. When I'm taken that way I don't dare play with the fire."

"I wish I could know how much you mean by that," she said musingly. Deep down in her heart she knew she was as far as ever from loving this man; but his love, or the insistent urging of it, was like a strong current drifting her whither she would not go.

"I mean all that an honest man can mean," he rejoined. "I have fought like a soldier for standing-room in the place you have assigned me; I have tried sincerely—and stupidly, you will say—to be merely your friend, just the best friend you ever had. But it's no use. Coming or going, I shall always be your lover."

"Please don't," she said, neither coldly nor warmly. "You are getting over into the domain of the very young people when you say things like that."

It was an unpleasant thing to say, and he was not beyond wincing a little. None the less, he would not be turned aside.

"You'll overlook it in me if I've pressed the thing too hard on the side of sentiment, won't you? Apart from the fact that I feel that way, I've been going on the supposition that you'd like it, if you could only make up your mind to like me."

"I do like you," she admitted; "more than any one I have ever known, I think."

The drumming wheels and a long drawn trumpet blast from the locomotive made a shield of sound to isolate them. The elderly banker in the opposite section was nodding over his newspaper; and the newly married ones were oblivious, each to all else but the other. Mrs. Brentwood was apparently sleeping peacefully three seats away; and Penelope was invisible.

"There was a time when I should have begged hard for something more, Elinor; but now I'm willing to take what I can get, and be thankful. Will you give me the right to make you as happy as I can on the unemotional basis?"

She felt herself slipping.

"If you could fully understand——"

"I understand that you don't love me, in the novelist's sense of the word, and I am not asking more than you can give. But if you can give me the little now, and more when I have won it—don't curl your lip at me please; I'm trying to put it as mildly as I can."

She was looking at him level-eyed, and he could have sworn that she was never calmer or more self-possessed.

"I don't know why you want my promise—or any woman's promise—on such conditions," she said evenly.

"But I do," he insisted.

The lights of a town suburb were flitting past the windows, and the monotonous song of the tires was drowned in the shrill crescendo of the brakes. She turned from him suddenly and laid her cheek against the grateful cool of the window pane. But when he took her hand she did not withdraw it.

"Is it mine, Elinor?" he whispered. "You see, I'm not asking much."

"Is it worth taking—by itself?"

"You make me very happy," he said quietly; just then the train stopped with a jerk, and a shuffling bustle of station platform noises floated in through the open deck transoms of the car.

As if the solution of continuity had been a call to arouse her, Elinor freed her hand with a swift little wrench and sat bolt upright in her corner.

"This station—do you know the name of it?" she asked, fighting hard for the self control that usually came so easily.

Ormsby consulted his watch.

"I am not quite sure. It ought to be——"

He broke off when he saw that she was no longer listening to him. There was a stir in the forward vestibule, and the porter came in with a hand-bag. At his heels was a man with a rough weather boxcoat; a youngish man, clean shaven and wind tanned to a healthy bronze, with an eager face and alert eyes that made an instant inventory of the car and its complement of passengers. So much Ormsby saw. Then Penelope stood up in her place to greet the new comer.

"Why, Mr. Kent!" she exclaimed. "Are you really going on with us? How nice of you!"

Elinor turned coolly upon her seat-mate, self-possession once more firmly seated in the saddle.

"Did you know Mr. Kent was going to board the train here?" she asked abruptly.

"Do you mean the gentleman Penelope has waylaid? I haven't the pleasure of his acquaintance. Will you introduce us?"

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

President Addresses the Episcopal Church Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Right Rev. William C. Doane, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Albany, and a committee of the interchurch conference on marriage and divorce, called on the president to confer with him as to some of the results of their deliberations.

Bishop Doane, speaking for the committee, delivered a brief address to President Roosevelt, to which the president replied as follows:

"It is a very great pleasure to meet you here. There is a certain tendency to exalt the unessential in dealing with our public questions, and public men especially are apt to get their attention concentrated on questions that have an importance, but a wholly ephemeral importance compared with the questions that go straight to the root of things. Questions like the tariff and the currency are of literally no consequence whatsoever compared with the vital question of having the unit of our social life, the home, preserved. It is impossible to overstate the importance of the cause you represent.

"If the average husband and wife fulfill their duties toward each other and toward their children as Christianity teaches them, then we may rest absolutely assured that the other problems will solve themselves. But if we have solved every other problem in the wisest possible way it shall profit us nothing if we have lost our own national soul, and we will have lost it if we do not have the question of the relations of the family put upon the proper basis.

"While I do not know exactly what it is that you wish me to do, I can say in advance that so far as in me lies all will be done to co-operate with you toward the end that you have in view. One of the most unpleasant and dangerous features of our American life is the diminishing birth rate and the loosening of the marital tie among the old native American families. It goes without saying that, for the race as for the individual, no material prosperity, no business growth, no artistic or scientific development, will count if the race commits suicide. Therefore, bishop, I count myself fortunate in having the chance to work with you in this matter of vital importance to the national welfare."

DRIFT DERAILED ENGINE.

Thirty Injured Near Freehold on the New Jersey Central.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Jan. 27.—Thirty persons were injured, one probably fatally, when a train that was sent out to open up the snow bound Matteawan and Freehold division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was wrecked at East Freehold, two miles from here.

The accident happened in a deep cut through Brier hill. The train was made up of two heavy engines, a passenger car and a coal car. The front engine in bucking a ten foot drift in the cut left the track and, pushed by the second engine, was thrown far up on the snow into a field. The cars were thrown from the track and the passenger car turned over.

Most of the thirty passengers were cut by glass, and many received severe bruises. Peter Dryson, engineer of the first engine, had both legs severed, and it is believed he will die. His fireman, Michael Dolan, was badly crushed, and Dr. O. C. Bogardus, sheriff of Monmouth county, had his left hand broken and was cut about the head.

The passenger car caught fire from the stove and was destroyed, together with twenty bags of mail.

A number of physicians were sent from here, and the injured were cared for at nearby farmhouses.

Yale Students Arrested.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 27.—Two Yale students—Joseph E. Lowes, Jr., of Dayton, O., and James P. Kineon of Cincinnati, O.—both seniors in the Sheffield Scientific school, have been arrested here on charges of breach of the peace in connection with a street affray in which George B. Tennant of Waterbury suffered a fracture of the skull. Tennant, who is a postgraduate student at Yale, has been in the Yale infirmary since he received his injury and is now expected to recover, though at first the authorities were fearful that the injuries would be fatal.

Could Not Guarantee His Return.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Governor Higgins did not go to New York city to attend the annual ball of the Old Guard. He went to the railroad station in this city early yesterday afternoon, and after waiting for nearly two hours for his train and being informed by the railroad officials that they could not tell whether he could make the journey to New York and return this morning because of the weather conditions he decided not to go. The members of his staff went to New York city and will attend the ball.

Well Known Roadhouse Burned.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The roadhouse conducted for many years by Samuel Kellam in the western part of this city, adjoining the old Binghamton Driving park, and which was well known to horsemen and sporting men throughout the state, has been destroyed by fire. The only person in the building was a hired man named Rogers. He was carried from the house unconscious by the neighbors who discovered the fire, but soon revived.

Father of Baltimore Bar Dead.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 27.—William Frederick Frick, aged eighty-seven, the oldest member of the Baltimore bar and long a leading citizen, is dead here from bronchitis. He was the father-in-law of Robert Garrett, now dead, who was formerly president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

SPORTING NEWS

BASKET BALL.

The first matches in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league games were played last night.

Basketball was one of the features of the boys' department group contest yesterday afternoon.

The Y. M. C. A. floor will be the scene of a good game Monday night, when the Business Men of the association plays the Business Men's team of Passaic. The game will take place at 8:15.

In the Juvenile league, the Leal's and Y. M. C. A. teams, the two at the bottom of the league, will contend on February 8 The Y. M. C. A. team is sure of the last place in the contest while Leal's will be third.

Leal's School basketball team has been strengthened by the return of Charles Perkins, who has been in business and has recently resumed his studies at the school. Perkins played guard with the team against the North Plainfield High School aggregation Wednesday afternoon, and his work will greatly assist the private school in its struggle for the scholastic championship.

It is rumored that Chapman, the captain and crack forward of the Leal's School basketball team, will be placed at guard against Captain Thompson, of the P. H. S. team, in the scholastic championship game to be played Wednesday, February 8. Manning is falling away in his game, and will probably wear a substitute uniform on that date. Perkins will take his place at guard.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Koons rolled off his last three games Wednesday night, and has now completed the six in the tournament. Dayton also completed his match Wednesday night, while Jeffery rolled two games. Neal, French, Sutphen and Gilmore still have to bowl off before the result will be definitely known.

Only three of the competitors in the Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament turned out Wednesday night, and the results were rather poor. Koons, who now leads the crowd by a large percentage, made the highest scores Wednesday night, rolling a 152, 143 and 161. This is a low average for Koons, who is conceded to be the strongest bowler on the Y. M. C. A. team, and who won the championship last year.

DIAMOND DUST.

George Wiltse, brother of Lou Wiltse, of this city, will be among Manager McGraw's first squad of pitchers this season. His fine record with the New York Nationals last year has given McGraw much confidence in him and he will undoubtedly be used oftener.

From newspaper reports it is quite likely that Lou Wiltse, of the New Madison, will be on the pitching staff of the Baltimore Eastern League team another season. Manager Hanlon, of the Brooklyns, has not decided to use him in the City of Churches Wiltse visits the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium nearly every day, where he keeps himself in condition.

Restoring Trolley Schedule.

The schedule on the local trolley lines is gradually being restored and by tomorrow everything will be in the usual order. Today the through line is clear to Newark and the Dunellen line as far as Rock avenue. On the other lines cars go within a few blocks of either terminus with the exception of Arlington avenue, which is blocked at Randolph road.

Shoot Postponed.

The shoot arranged for tomorrow by the Plainfield Gun Club has been postponed indefinitely.

The regular meeting of Miantonoma Tribe, I. O. R. M., will be held tonight at the lodge rooms.

P. S. C.'S GIFT.

Fire Deprtment Allowed Free Use of Gas As Well as Electric Light.

Through the efforts of W. R. Causebrook, agent for the P. S. C., the fire department houses will continue to have the use of gas for cooking, heating and bathing purposes. The corporation decided at the first of the year to cut off the use of gas, and allow only the free use of electricity as before. The fire department houses will be allowed 250,000 feet of gas a year.

This evening at the Christian church, Rev. Dr. Smith will speak on "A nonsectarian church." Tomorrow evening his subject will be "Noble Confession."

The Church of the Holy Cross made an annual contribution of over $50 to Muhlenberg Hospital, this year, and a good sum was given to the Children's Home, as well.

Mrs. Jamison, wife of Rev. E. S. Jamison, formerly pastor of the Dunellen M. E. church, has been discharged from St. Barnabas' Hospital, Newark, where she was under treatment.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—H. Adelberg, manager of the People's Credit Clothing Co., has given away, since the storm, in the neighborhood of five tons of coal to poor families who would otherwise be without means of comfort. He has applied to the Organized Aid Society and to the Y. M. C. A. for the names of deserving parties who are in need and to whom the severe weather would mean suffering. Several have received donations of half a ton from Mr. Adelburg and one family was given two tons.

7,820 Autos in State.

Attaches of the secretary of state's office at Trenton, believed that automobiles were given quite generously last year for Christmas presents. They base their assertion upon the fact that beginning the day after Christmas there was a small-sized rush on the part of the part of the new automobile owners to register cars. The total number of cars registered up to December 31 is 7,820. These figures represent the entire number of automobiles licensed in the state since the approving of the state automobile law in March, 1903. When the law was first passed the machines registered were mostly of the light runabout type. Steadily that type of machines has dissappeared in the applications for licenses being sworn to in the office of the secretary of state, until now there are practically none of these being registered.

Hospital News.

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this morning, elected Mrs. F. W. Butler purchaser and she with Mrs. Paul Taylor Brown and Mrs. George A. Chapman as visitors for February. Mrs. Butler, who has charge of the "cycle of time," a scheme adopted for raising $900 with which to furnish the new Nurses' Home, reported that nearly $700 has been received.

Hackman Refuses Number.

For refusing to tell his number to a passenger he declined to take to Netherwood, or having his badge displayed as called for by the city ordinance, Moses Carey, a hackman, was arrested by Patrolman Overbaugh last night. In the city court this morning his excuses were lame and he was fined $1.

Eagles at Trenton.

Twelve members of Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., went to Trenton, last night, where they exemplified the third degree at a State gathering of the order.

NEW JERSEY'S FAMILIES

Statistics Compiled by Federal Government of Interest.

SOME COMPARISONS

Result of Investigations Among the Families of Wage-Earners in This State—Cost of Living, Etc.

The Department of Commerce and Labor has issued a volume on the cost of living and retail prices of food in all the States and in many of the cities throughout the country. It is brimful of statistical matter of great value.

The investigation for the preparation for this report was limited to the families of wage-workers and to persons on salaries not exceeding $1,200 per year, no attempt being made to cover families of persons engaged in business on their own account. Both the native and the foreign-born elements of the population were covered, the nativity of the husband of the family, for the purpose of this investigation, being accepted as determining the nativity of the family. All schedules cover a period of one year.

In New Jersey 994 families were investigated, 639 of the heads of these families being natives of the United States and 355 of foreign birth. The data here presented was gathered by experienced special agents sent to New Jersey by the department, the information being given generally by the housewife, who was often assisted by other members of the family. The agents began this work in the localities of the State to which they were assigned by making themselves thoroughly acquainted with the prevailing prices of all staple necessaries, thus enabling them to verify, to a certain extent, the statements as to cost of living.

In New Jersey during the year there was 50.51 per cent. of the heads of families not idle and 49.49 per cent. idle. This is a much better showing for New Jersey than New York State. New Jersey is also above the average shown for all the States, 50.19 per cent. of the heads of families in the thirty-three States investigated being not idle, while 49.80 per cent. were idle.

In New Jersey 82.70 per cent. of the families occupy homes that are rented and 17.30 per cent. own their homes. New Jersey is slightly below the average of the thirty-three States investigated, which is 18.97 per cent. of the families owning their homes. Of those in New Jersey who own their homes, 83.72 per cent. have them unincumbered and only 16 26 per cent. have their homes mortgaged. Of the great manufacturing States New Jersey is far in the lead in this respect.

In New Jersey 39.29 per cent. of the families who own homes that are encumbered did not make any payments on the principal sum, while 60.71 per cent. of such people in New Jersey did make payments on the principal. New Jersey ranks above the average for the entire country, which is 58 58 per cent. who did pay on the principal sum, and 41.42 per cent. who did not pay.

The per cent. of families the heads of which are foreign, who live in rented homes in the United States, is 75.71 per cent. and 24.29 per cent. who own their homes. Less Italians own their homes than any other class of foreigners, and more foreigners from the Netherlands own their homes than any other class, the percentage being for Italy 11.72 and for the Netherlands 46.15.

In New Jersey 639 native families were investigated, the heads of 626 of these families being at work for wages also, and there were thirteen of the families investigated without husbands and ten without wives. There were also 355 foreign families investigated in New Jersey, the Irish outnumbering any other foreigners and the Germans coming next, the English third, with respectively 216 families, ninety and forty-eight. The heads of 350 of these foreign families are at work, two are idle and nine of the wives of these families are at work and three of them are without husbands and fifteen without wives.

In the number of American families investigated, as quoted above, eighty-one of them had 107 children at work for wages and 216 of these families had 393 children at school, and 343 of these families had 603 children at home, nearly all of the latter number being too young to attend school.

Of the foreign families investigated in New Jersey, seventy had 106 children at work, 148 had 321 children at school and 204 had 368 children at home. It will be seen that the foreigners in New Jersey have a greater percentage of children at work than the Americans, and they also have a greater percentage of children at school. The figures for these New Jersey families are: American children at work, 1.32 per cent.; foreign, 1.51 per cent.; percentage of American children at school, 1.82; foreign, 2.17; American children at home, 1.76 per cent.; foreign, 1.80 per cent.

Of these 639 American families in New Jersey, 15.02 per cent. of them keep 155 boarders to assist in the support of the family, while 1.73 per cent. of them keep eleven servants to assist in the household work. Of the 355 foreign families investigated in New Jersey, 21.41 per cent. of them keep 138 boarders and 1.13 per cent. of them four servants. It should be borne in mind that these families are of the working class as noted above.

The families of New Jersey applied 20.08 per cent. of their total expenditures for rent, 4.27 per cent. for fuel, 1.33 per cent. for lighting, 14 73 per cent. for clothing, 18.79 per cent. for sundries, making a total of 59.79 per cent., the remainder, or 40.80 per cent., having been expended for food. The per cent. of the income of these families expended amounted to $90.88. In New York this same class of families expended 97.72 per cent. of their income for living expenses. The average for all these States is 94.90 per cent. of the total income expended for living expenses, so it will be seen that the wage-earners of New Jersey spend a less percentage of their income for living than in most of the States.

All kinds of vegetabes have increased very rapidly in price in New Jersey during the period named.

DIARY OF EUROPEAN TRIP

Brotherhood of First M. E. Church Hear Instructive Talk.

BY HENRY A. M'GEE

Written in Form of Daily Journal, His Experiences Were Vividly and Brilliantly Portrayed.

Henry A. McGee, of Orchard avenue, read an account of his travels in Europe during the winter of 1904 at the meeting of the Brotherhood of the First Methodist church last night, the narrative being in the form of a dairy, complete and exceedingly interesting.

Starting with the departure on board the Oceanic, Mr. McGee took the audience with him through the various experiences which he encountered; introducing them to the peculiar types of people with whom he associated and made them feel with him the home-sickness, which one travelling alone on a business trip, must necessarily undergo. Combined with the humor with which Mr. McGee presented his picture of certain phases of European life, in its peculiarities, its grotesqueness, and its amusing features, the reader dwelt with force upon the beauty and the impressiveness of some of the scenes, and described picturesquely the color schemes, which none but the snow capped mountains of Italy can afford.

Though in his travels Mr. McGee went into Russia and Japan, he left off last night at what he called "the end of the world," the eastern border of the Black Sea. Mr. McGee has an outline of each day's proceedings during his trip, and throughout, the diary abounds with novel and original impressions which the writer has entered on nearly every page of his "European story."

An orchestra conducted by Kenneth Shupp furnished music before the talk and during the social hour which followed. Refreshments were served by the committee. At the short business meeting which followed the entertainment, thirteen new persons were received into the club, which now, with a membership of seventy-five, has awakened to new and far-reaching activities. It was unanimously decided to continue the publication of the church paper, "The Bulletin."

The following chairmen of committees were appointed by the president, Nelson A. Miller: Music, Kenneth Shupp; devotional committee, S. H. Tugwell; programme committee, Fred A. Martin; lead-a-hand committee, William Simmons; membership committee, Dr. Frank French; finance committee, A. H. Atwood. President McGee in a brief address stated that the organization was founded on April 10, 1901, one year before any other men's organization in the city.

CARS SMASHED.

Airbrakes Fail to Work and Disastrous Wreck Narrowly Averted.

A collision, which might have proved disastrous, occurred on the New Jersey Central Railroad at the county line near White House yesterday. Two cars of the paper train, westbound, were thrown over the eastbound track by a broken rail.

As soon as the accident happened, a man was rushed back to signal an eastbound local from Phillipsburg which was known to be due. The engineer of the local saw the signal and threw on the airbrakes, but they failed to work properly, and the big engine crashed into the cars in front of it. Its whole side was torn off and the cars were smashed. The passengers of both trains escaped injury, except for severe shocks. Many of the passengers and the engineer and fireman jumped into the deep drifts of snow when they saw that a collision was unavoidable.

DRIFTS ON COLE'S HILL MAKE LOTS OF TROUBLE

HUGE SNOW PILES BLOCK RIGS AND OVERTURN A BAKER'S WAGON.

With snow piled in some places as high as ten feet, Cole's hill on East Front street was until yesterday afternoon one of the most badly drifted spots in the city. All traffic was blocked and drivers who attempted to break through were badly worsted. Realizing that it was necessary to have the street opened at that point, Commissioner Gavett contracted with Hand & Son to clear away the drifts and a large gang of men and a four horse truck started at work yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon before they made it any way passable and rigs could get through on the way to and from Scotch Plains.

While the hill was still drifted badly Wednesday morning, A. D. Shepard's coachman attempted to get through on the way to the railroad station with Mr. Shepard. The rig became hopelessly stuck almost in the middle and Mr. Shepard was forced to leave it and summon a carriage from town by telephoning from the Cole homestead. Early yesterday morning, Voehl's bakery wagon from this city made a similar attempt and was overturned. Other teamsters and drivers got past the point by removing fences and going through the fields.

Residents in the vicinity of the hill say the drifts were equal to, if not worse, than those in the blizzard of 1888.

ASSEMBLYMAN AVERSE TO CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

MR. COLBY TO ASK FOR ITS ABOLISHMENT IN NEW JERSEY.

Assemblyman Colby, of Essex, is preparing a bill for the abolishment of capital punishment in New Jersey and will submit it to the House in the next week. To get rid of the objection that courts of pardons might release a man convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, Mr. Colby will put in the measure a restriction that a man convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonnment cannot be the subject of commutation of sentence at the hands of the Court of Pardons. Mr. Colby said the other night:

"I am an advocate of the abolition of capital punishment in this State. We have reached the age when human life is precious and the taking of it constitues so serious a matter that sheriffs are resigning rather than be obliged to exonte condemned men. When sheriffs revolt from this it is time the State took cognizance of it and seriously consider what it means to take the life of a man or woman.

"I have prepared a bill, that is, I have drafted it in the rough and am waiting for a consultation with Governor Stokes before offering it to the Legislature. There must be found some way to stop the Court of Pardons from freeing a convicted murderer on parole, else the measure will not find favor with the people.

"About abridging the constitutional rights of the pardon court I have serious doubt, but the bill must go into this matter. Clemency to murderers is not popular except when the death penalty is avoided.

"Whenever a murderer is saved from the gallows the people are glad; but they grumble, saying that the next thing there will be done is to let the man out on parole. In the popular mind a man who commits murder should be shut up for the remainder of his natural life, and if this is the penalty for murder the people want it known that the man will never walk the earth a free man again."

VanHise was about the corridors importuning members for support of a measure to create the office of State hangman with him as the incumbent. There was much fun poked at him, while some wags in the corridors declared that he was striving to take away from sheriffs their duty.

VanHise replied that sheriffs were resigning because they might be obliged to hang murderers, and in giving him the job the counties might keep their sheriffs.

When President Cross was told that VanHise's object in importuning legislation, the president said:

"Tell him to go hang"

Leader of the Senate Bradley said:

"Bring in his bill and we will hang it."

Beginning Monday, the semi-annual examinations will be held at the Plainfield High School, two subjects being taken up each day according to the order of recitation periods. There will be no regular recitations, the examinations being about two periods in length. It has been decided by the faculty to be very strict in giving supplementary examinations this year. Formerly anyone has been allowed to take supplementary examinations until a passing mark was secured. This has been considered unwise, however, and the pupils will, in most cases, be obliged to pass the original examination.

FRUIT STORE DESTROYED

Mr. and Mrs. Ramozetti Escape in Their Night Attire.

MYSTERIOUS BLAZE

Department Works Hard to Prevent Spread of Flames to Boehm's Store—Loss is $1,000.

Awakening to find their apartments on the second floor filled with thick, heavy smoke, Mr. and Mrs. David Ramozetti, were forced to flee without street attire from a fire which destroyed the former's fruit and confectionery store at 126 Park avenue at 1:30 this morning. Their escape was made barely in time as both were nearly overcome when they were taken into the apartments of S. H. Scheiff on the same street. They had been breathing smoke for an extended period when Patrolman Dennis Keeffe discovered the blaze and aroused them before turning in an alarm from box 12.

When the department arrived, the interior of the store was a mass of flame and fed by a lot of combustible material gave the department a hard fight. The chemical engine and one hydrant stream were used but it was nearly forty-five minutes after they were brought into action that the recall was given.

Ramozetti's place is in the same building with the Park avenue side of I. H. Boehm's big department store and the firemen worked like Trojans to keep the flames from getting through to the latter. They succeeded in doing it and also in keeping them from going up to the second floor.

The total damage will reach nearly $1,000, of which $300 is on the building, half-owned by Mrs. John Johnston. The other half is owned by I. H. Boehm, the dividing line running up the stairway in the center. Ramozetti states that his stock was valued at $1,400 and that his insurance was $1,000.

The origin of the fire has been placed in the "mystery" class which has been prevalent in the past six months. Ramozetti informed Chief Deane that it must have caught from a stove situated back of a partition, which divides the store. Going through the place carefully today, Chief Deane could find nothing to bear out this belief as the fire was on a different side of the partition than the stove when his men arrived.

ENTERTAINED CHOIR.

Miss Grace Emmons Was the Host at Trinity Church Affair.

A congenial gathering marked the reception given by Miss Grace Emmons, of Jackson avenue, to the choir of Trinity church, which took place last night. There were about twenty-five present. The first prizes were won by Mrs. Arthur Titsworth and Arthur Smith, while the consolation prizes were awarded to Miss Eva Dunavan and Charles Dolliver. The prize winners were the ones securing the greatest number of points in the several games. Music and dancing brought the entertainment to a conclusion, and refreshments were served at midnight.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Mrs. J. P. D. Kirch, Miss Delia Johnson, Miss Nettie Kreitling, Miss Davenport, Miss Harriet Randall, Miss Anna Randall, Miss Eva Dunavan, Miss Dora Wilson, Miss Abbie VanCliet, Miss Ada VanDoren, Charles M. T. E. F. RANDOLPH DEAD

Wealthy Retired Merchant Passes Away Suddenly.

AGED SEVENTY-TWO

A Sincere Christian Whose Life Was Full of Good Deeds—Funeral on Monday.

Thompson E. F. Randolph, of 530 Central avenue, died suddenly at his home last night at the age of seventy-two years.

Mr. Randolph was born in Plainfield May 25, 1832. In 1852, after a period of travel in other lands, including a visit to Palestine, Mr. Randolph entered active business after reaching the age of twenty years. He was thus a merchant for nearly half a century, retiring a few years ago. He had a high sense of honor and his word and personal undertaking were always known to be good and beyond question.

After his retirement from active business in New York he returned to his old home in Plainfield and to the very house in Central avenue where he lived many years ago.

Mr. Randolph was a sincere Christian and his life was full of kind and charitable deeds. He was active in the building of the First Baptist church edifice now standing at the corner of Front and Grove streets.

In the broad sense he was a Christian gentleman and was universally beloved for his genial and kindly manners. He died last evening very suddenly and very peacefully, surrounded by his loved ones.

In 1857 Mr. Rudolph married Marie Antoinette Ireland. She and five daughters survive him.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2:45 from the house.

NO IMMEDIATE CHANGE AT THE HOTEL ROSELL

NEW OWNER CANNOT GAIN POSSESSION UNTIL LEASE EXPIRES.

The purchase of the Hotel Rosell property by John H. Staats, of the Hotel Kensington, was a much discussed matter and by many it is considered one of the most important local realty deals in years. The place is one that has been greatly sought after, the Plainfield Trust Company making a determined effort to secure it before buying on the opposite corner and there were several others who had cast longing eyes upon it. It was said today that the Trust Company was blocked by Proprietor Rosell refusing to dispose of his lease, at one time turning down an offer of $12,000 for it.

When Mr. Staats was seen by a Daily Press reporter today, he said that matters will rest just as they are at present as the Rosell lease holds for seven more years. At the conclusion of that time, he will take possession and one of his first acts will be to enlarge the structure and make it one of the finest hotels in the State.

SCOTS CELEBRATE BURNS' ANNIVERSARY

BIRTHDAY OF THE IMMORTAL POET OBSERVED BY THE THISTLE CLUB.

The one-hundred-and-forty-sixth anniversary of the birthday of Scotland's immortal poet, Robert Burns, was celebrated as jolly Scots can by members of the Thistle Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kenney, of West Third street, last night. The event really occurs on January 25, but the weather conditions Wednesday night caused a postponement which evidently had no adverse effect in the final affair.

The gathering numbered thirty and the enjoyment beginning shortly after 8 o'clock continued without cessation until midnight. Songs familiar to those from the "Land of the heather" were sung again and again, and there were numerous contributions of "Hielan' reels" and instrumental selections. Among those who participated were Mrs. William L. Gleak and Mrs. William Gray, who sang; William Wilson, with violin selections and Mrs. William Gray and John Kenney on the piano.

Chief McDuff presided during the affair and gave an excellent address on the life of Burns' and paid tribute to his memory. When supper was served with all its Scotch delicacies, he cut the haggis, at the same time reciting the Selkirk grace of Burns' composition:

"Some hae meat and canna eat,
And some wad eat that want it;
But we hae meat, and we can eat,
And sae the Lord be thankit."

The celebration closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," in which the entire gathering joined with instrumental accompaniment.

T. A. B. MASQUERADE PROVES BIG SUCCESS

SOCIAL EVENT IN THE WEST END ATTENDED BY 300 YOUNG PEOPLE.

Attended by fully 300 young people, the third annual masquerade ball of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society in T. A. B. Hall, last night, was probably the most successful event of its kind yet conducted by the organization. In point of costumes, nothing like it was ever seen in the hall before and the fun continued from 9 o'clock until well after midnight. The grand march which began at 10 o'clock, brought out sixty couple on the floor and the pretty figures were greatly enjoyed. It was led very ably by James J. Kane and Miss Margaret Bray. The music was a feature of the affair and was furnished by Prof. Heinemeyer's full orchestra from Elizabeth.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair comprised William H. Schafer, R. J. Bermingham, David J. Doyle, Michael F. Higgins and Thomas McInerny.

School Song for Leal's.

The members of Leal's School are no longer to be out in the cold when the Plainfield High School cheerers are singing "The Red and Blue." A new school song has recently been written entitled "Leal's." The author of the song, which is written to the tune of "Mr. Dooley," is George W. Endicott, of the class of 1907. The school has not had a good spirited song for many years, and undoubtedly the new one will be used in the coming basketball championship game on February 8.

DEMOCRATS WRANGLING

Carney Deposed as Chairman at a Noisy Meeting.

A WORDY WAR

Chairman Bodine Mounts His Desk in Effort to Enforce Order—Lively Scene.

Opposing factions in the borough Democratic party met again, last night, and one of the liveliest sessions that has ever taken place over the brook was the result. It was held at Democratic headquarters and started out with David J. Carney as chairman, but before the big gathering had dispersed, he was deposed and David Bodine was elected in his place. The change was made amid a demonstration that resembled Bedlam and for a time it was impossible to tell "who was who."

President D. J. Carney, of the North Plainfield Democratic Club, called the meeting to order, and stated that its specific purpose was to receive the report of the committee of three appointed last Monday evening to confer with a number of Republicans who were disposed to place a Citizens' ticket in the field at the coming March election. He declared that it had been impossible for the committee on either side to get together so soon, and he called upon David Bodine, a committee member, who said he had been informed that Messrs. Honeyman, Place and other Republicans were to hold a meeting tonight for the purpose of selecting a committee to confer with the Democratic one. At this point a motion was made to discharge the committee appointed at the last meeting but the chair declared it out of order and a spirited cross-fire between Charles Lyman and David Bodine took place, the former favoring a straight Democratic ticket and the latter a Citizens'.

At its conclusion, former Mayor W. L. Saunders addressed the gathering, also favoring a straight Democratic movement and pointed out the advantages it would bring. Andrew E. Kenney spoke similarly but there was an evident intention on the part of the majority to have the meeting pledge itself to the Republicans who oppose Mayor Smalley's administration. Former Assemblyman Swackhamer spoke in favor of an independent ticket and urged those present to enter into a union with the "breakaway" Republicans.

The meeting by this time had been in progress about an hour and as the former Assemblyman sat down, there came a lull. It was broken by Chairman Carney, declaring the meeting adjourned for one week and announcing that the committee appointed at the last gathering, composed of David Bodine, Lorenzo D. Townley and himself, would be able to present some tangible report. This brought on the gathering storm and one of the straight Democrats soberly stated today that the scene resembled "a riot demonstration." Nearly every man was on his feet and as the majority insisted on talking at the same time, it was impossible to get at anything. All manner of accusations were made against Chairman Carney because of his wish to adjourn and it was some time before any semblance of order was restored.

From the chaos there emerged another meeting with David Bodine as chairman. He jumped on top of a desk and calling for quiet, finally got the majority down to business again. It was then decided to enter into a Citizens' movement and a committee consisting of Mr. Swackhamer, George Kirch, Charles Harding, William Rickert, John T. Cass and Walter Bennett was appointed to confer with the leaders from the Republican side. The meeting adjourned with no time set for another and the matter now rests in the hands of this committee.

This morning, both sides of the Democrats had something to say about the gathering.

D. J. Carney said this morning: "There will be a Democratic ticket in the field in March, notwithstanding the efforts of those who are attempting to force the party to do otherwise. Everyone of the leaders who participated in the riotous proceedings last night, excepting Messrs. Swackhamer and VanWinkle, were bolters from the party in the past. This was noticeably so in the Wilson-Smalley campaign."

The leaders of the faction which placed Bodine in the chair, assert that it was Carney's intention to entertain no motion that would oppose his views and that he wanted to adjourn the meeting indefinitely without anything being done. Walter Linberger, one of them, said to a Daily Press reporter:

"We didn't, or don't intend to submit to any gag rule."

SWORD OF FREDERICK

EVIDENCE THAT WASHINGTON RECEIVED SUCH A PRESENT.

"From the Oldest General to the Greatest General in the World"—History of This Valuable Relic.

Washington.—The story that Frederick the Great sent George Washington a sword with the characteristic and epigrammatic message, "From the oldest general to the greatest general in the world," has been familiar from our earliest childhood. It is a plain narrative, as given by members of the Washington family, who alone have any knowledge, real or traditional, of the fact, says a writer in the Evening Star. The appraisers' list of the personal effects of Washington, made at Mount Vernon, May, 1800, contains this item: "Swords and blades, $12.00." Among these, which were chiefly presents, was the one sent by the king of Prussia. The personal effects of Washington were divided among the heirs, but a large proportion were left at Mount Vernon for Mrs. Washington, who was still living. Upon her death Justice Bushrod Washington took possession of the mansion, for he was his uncle's chief heir and the one to whom he intrusted his papers. Bushrod Washington lived 30 years at Mount Vernon, and bequeathed the estate and personal property, save an occasional gift, to his nephew, Col. John Augustine Washington, who also lived there 30 years. There was an immense accumulation of papers and relics—

PRESENTED BY FREDERICK.
("From the Oldest to the Greatest General of the World.")

among other souvenirs of interest was the sword of Frederick.

Maj. Lewis Washington, of Belle Air, Jefferson county, Va., visited his cousin at Mount Vernon in 1858. At this time he was the owner of two of the five swords willed by Gen. Washington to his nephews—one direct from his grandfather, William Augustine Washington; the other, that one which Justice Bushrod Washington received and had willed to his father, George Corbin Washington. Maj. Washington admired the elegant dress sword sent by the king and offered in exchange for it, being perfectly satisfied as to its authenticity, the Bushrod Washington sword. During his life this beautiful rapier was seen by many neighbors and friends at his home. Some years after his death his widow, Mrs. Ella Bassett Washington, sold it, with other valuable Washington relics, to the state of New York. These are now deposited in the library at Albany. In the catalogue will be seen: "No. 4, dress sword of Washington," which, through the courtesy of officials, I am permitted to reproduce. The sword acquired by Col. Washington in this exchange was sold a few years since by his son, Lawrence Washington, of Alexandria, to John H. Havermeyer, of New York, who presented it to Mount Vernon, being thus happily returned to its original abode.

When Col. John A. Washington disposed of the home of our first president to the Ladies' Mount Vernon Association of the Union, he gave possession early in the year 1860.

He carefully packed his valuable papers in barrels, of which there were 12. He left them in the care of his friend, Mr. Upton Herbert, first superintendent of Mount Vernon, thinking, in the disturbed state of the country, they would be safer than at any other place. Col. Washington's sad death occurred in 1861, and these papers remained at Mount Vernon until Mr. Herbert left his office. In 1866 he removed them to Alexandria and stored them in an old bank building; this building in 1868 was burned and nearly all the papers and documents were destroyed.

Of documentary proof I have not found any, though the search is not yet complete. The archives of Germany may yield all we need.

One interesting item of circumstantial evidence came to me a few months ago. A German artist, vigorous and full of reminiscence, at the ripe age of 88, resented a reflection on Washington as a general and vaunted Frederick the Great. When told that old story was a myth, he replied with fine contempt: "Oh, yes; you say so in America, but I heard it at my mother's knee, and at her mother's. It false who gave it to the mothers of Germany?"

The "LIGHTNING" WHITE WASH Sprayer and Force Pump, No. 28.

Patented June 24, 1902.
Will Fit any Pail or Bucket.

This is the only Spray Pump that will properly spray White Wash without clogging. It will do much better work than can be done with a brush, especially on rough surface, as the force with which the material is applied causes it to penetrate the small crevices and openings, thus making a complete and perfect job. It is constructed of heavy galvanized iron, with brass tops and valves, a material that is effected by the poisonous arsenites used in different formulas for spraying fruit trees, vines and shrubbery. It is made with large air chamber and has ball valves, the pressure being held in the air chamber and on the hose, so that the nozzle throws a continuous spray and is not affected by the upward stroke. The operator is enabled to keep a constant pressure on the nozzle with little exertion: will throw a continuous stream 60 feet high and one of usual value for washing buggies, windows, extinguishing fires, sprinkling lawns, flowers, spraying trees, etc. The stirrup is made of steel and the pump is provided with the best hose and two nozzles. It is very neat in appearance, being nicely painted.

SICK MAN'S COUNTRY.

Thousands Destitute and Starving In Eastern Turkey.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—The American board of foreign missions made public last night reports received from Moush and Van, in eastern Turkey, relative to prevailing sickness and destitution.

From Moush Dr. H. L. Underwood, a missionary physician, writes in part as follows:

"There are some 7,500 persons so destitute of food and clothing that it is a problem how they are to survive the winter. Typhoid is rampant. The barracks are full of it, and the dwellings of the citizens also. The death list this year from typhoid reaches four figures among the soldiers alone."

Dr. G. C. Raynolds, reporting the situation at Van, says:

"The people here will soon be perishing from hunger unless assistance is sent them. There is doubtless grain enough in the province to keep the whole population alive were it evenly distributed.

"Business is at a standstill. Work cannot be found, and those who would gladly labor remain in idleness and hunger. In the city very many families are without food or fuel, and multitudes more have food enough to last but a very few weeks."

Cut From an Icy Tomb.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Michael Conlin of Bridgeport, N. Y., rode on the front platform of a baggage car on the New York Central from Utica to Syracuse. The locomotive scooped up its water supply from the track tank near Rome while in rapid motion and deluged Conlin. He was soon benumbed with the zero temperature and covered with ice. Station employees in this city discovered him and cut him from his ice tomb. He was taken to a hospital, where he regained consciousness and told his story. Physicians say that he may lose several toes.

World's Biggest Diamond Found.

JOHANNESBURG, Transvaal, Jan. 28.—The largest diamond ever discovered has been found near Pretoria. The stone weighs 3,032 karats and is said to be a pure white diamond of good quality. It is locally valued at $3,500,000 to $4,000,000. The famous Kohinoor, which is valued at $600,000, weighs 123 karats, though it is said to have weighed 900 before it was cut. There is immense excitement at Pretoria over the find.

Higgins Pardons Two Boys.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Governor Higgins has pardoned Edwin L. Kendall and Howard Flanary, boys aged seventeen years, whose families live in Brooklyn and who have been confined in the Elmira reformatory for passing a forged check. The check was passed in New York city, and the boys were sent to serve an indeterminate sentence. The governor said last night that the case was one which called for clemency.

Drifts Tie Up Springfield Road.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 28.—Notice has been posted here that all trains on the Springfield division of the Central New England railroad would discontinue running for the present. This line extends from Tariffville to Springfield. At the office of the company it was explained that the suspension was caused by the exceedingly heavy snowdrifts and that when the blockade was removed the trains would resume as usual.

Davis Asked Pertinent Question.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—At the North Sea commission hearing here a witness named Brooks testified that he noticed, while escaping out of the range of the Russian fire, a big vessel resembling a merchantman, but he was unable to give an exact description of the ship. Answering a question by Rear Admiral Davis, the witness stated that the vessel carried ordinary merchantman's lights.

Traffic Resumed at Danbury.

DANBURY, Conn., Jan. 28.—Traffic has been resumed on the railway line between this city and Brookfield Junction and on the Ridgefield branch, both of which had been blocked by snow nearly forty-eight hours. The first of the Pittsfield express trains to run through from Brookfield Junction and South Norwalk passed here just before noon.

Vaderland Released.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Dr. A. H. Doty, health officer, announced, after a bacteriological examination into the deaths of the passengers of the Vaderland, that no evidence of contagion or infection had been discovered and that the persons had died of pneumonia. The Vaderland therefore has been released from quarantine.

Trying to Save Tucker.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Counsel for Charles L. Tucker, convicted of the murder of Mabel Page, has filed two motions at the office of the clerk of the superior court at East Cambridge, one for a new trial and the other for an extension of time in which to prepare exceptions to go before the supreme court.

Driver Killed In Runaway.

READING, Pa., Jan. 28.—Taking fright at a snow sweeper, a pair of trotters belonging to W. Harry Orr ran away, and William Hanley, the driver, was thrown against a curb and instantly killed. The other occupants of the sleigh, two female relatives of Mr. Orr, escaped with slight bruises.

Oyster Dredgers Stopped by Ice.

WARREN, R. I., Jan. 28.—For the first time this winter the oystermen have been obliged to suspend operations on the beds in Narragansett bay and the contiguous rivers, coves and harbors because of the ice. A shortage in the oyster supply is feared.

CRUISER MARYLAND

May Be Swiftest of Uncle Sam's Warships.

IS THE ACME OF POWER AND SPEED

May Lead Sister Ship Pennsylvania, Which Holds Record For Her Class—A Floating Citadel of Great Guns.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—With a keen northwest wintry wind striking her abeam, the new armored cruiser Maryland, built for the United States government by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, attained on her official trial trip an average speed of 22.306 knots an hour, thereby exceeding her contract requirement of 22 knots. The Maryland is the fourth and last of a type of fast cruisers to have a trial off Cape Ann. Of the three which have preceded, the Pennsylvania, the fastest of these, averaged a speed of 22.43 knots an hour. It cannot be said, however, at this time that the Pennsylvania is queen of the class, for it was unofficially announced by the trial board that the tidal corrections for the trial of the Maryland are in the ship's favor by from 11.100 to 18.100 of a knot. If this tidal correction is over .124 of a knot the Maryland will be recorded as the speediest cruiser of the class.

The Pennsylvania and the Colorado, which made 22.24 knots, were built by the Cramp Shipbuilding company of Philadelphia. The West Virginia, the third sister ship of the Maryland, was built by the Newport News company. This ship averaged a speed of 22.14 on her official run.

The trial of the Maryland was attended by circumstances of unusual interest from the fact that the builders of the Maryland endeavored to prove her the speediest of the four cruisers of this type.

As the Maryland cut her way through the seas the water was sprayed in great masses over her bow and, falling on the deck and rigging, froze almost immediately.

The Maryland was found to have quick working steering gear, she establishing a record for the throwing of the helm hard over, when the big ship described a figure "8" at the conclusion of the official run.

Her main battery consists of four eight-inch breech loading rifles, fourteen four-inch rapid fire guns and a secondary battery of eighteen three-inch and twelve three-pounder guns and eighteen automatic guns.

They obtained a week's time to make complete response.

Have Been In Power Since 1867.

VIENNA, Jan. 28.—All reports from Budapest indicate that the defeat of the government in the elections is greater than was first thought. Premier Tisza is expected to come to Vienna after the last polling day to formally tender the resignation of himself and the cabinet to the emperor. After being in power since 1867 the Liberals have suffered their first defeat.

No Pardon For Mrs. Rogers.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 28.—State officials here express the belief that the efforts of those outside of the state to secure a commutation of the death sentence of Mrs. Mary A. A REMARKABLE RACE

Christie, Winning Fifty Mile Auto Event, Finished Alone.

ALL OTHER FLIERS BROKE DOWN.

Ormond Beach Witnessed Chapter of Accidents—Barney Oldfield and Webb Had Usual Luck of Unhappy Chauffeurs.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 28.— Walter Christie, in his sixty horsepower Christie car, won the fifty mile race for American cars for the Lozier trophy here, his official time being 1 hour 9 minutes and 20 1-5 seconds.

The fifty mile race for the Lozier trophy was a most remarkable one, A. G. Webb, in a seventy-five horsepower machine; Barney Oldfield, in a 24.60 horsepower machine, and Walter Christie, in a sixty horsepower machine, being the only starters. The start was made from the sixteen mile post at Ormond, and the course was laid twelve and a half miles down the beach, two rounds to complete the fifty miles, with a two minute control at each turn. Accidents happened from start to finish. Mr. Christie broke a wire in his machine and was delayed over fifty minutes. Mr. Webb also broke down before he had covered six miles. Meanwhile Barney Oldfield went down the course and back again. It was discovered that he turned at the ten mile instead of the twelve and a half mile post, and he had to run the first half of the race over again. Mr. Webb and Mr. Christie did not know of their competitor's mistake and had practically given up the race. Mr. Webb, after making repairs, went off the track, but Mr. Christie continued on the course. Coming back on the first round, Mr. Oldfield lost his right hand rear tire, and it went spinning into the breakers. Meanwhile Mr. Christie finished his first round. He had passed Oldfield in the second round, as he thought, and was about to give up, when he learned how Oldfield stood. He hustled away again in the last twenty-five miles. Then Oldfield came back on three tires. He decided to start out for Mr. Christie nevertheless, but only ran as far as the clubhouse, when he left the track for the garage. Mr. Christie therefore was the only one to finish and won the trophy.

In the first twenty-five miles Mr. Christie made it in 48 minutes and 34 seconds; Oldfield, 35 minutes and 43 seconds. Mr. Christie made the last twenty-five miles in 24 minutes and 46 seconds, winning the race in 1 hour, 11 minutes and 20 1-5 seconds.

The start was at Ormond and the course twelve and a half miles down the beach. The weather was clear, and a good north wind was blowing.

Sensational races at the kilometer and the mile distance resulted in victories for Ross and MacDonald in all events of importance. In the longer races there will be no chance for Ross, and other cars than those which have shown so prominently will be likely to score.

There is little chance that the races will finish today. The cold weather, high tide and long programme have caused trouble, and it is possible that it will be Tuesday or Wednesday before the contestants will be able to get away to Palm Beach. Many cars have been entered for the Cuban races.

The only other race run was a special match between Guy Vaughan in his forty horsepower and Leon Bolée in his forty horsepower machine for ten miles. Mr. Vaughan won by four seconds; time, 9 minutes and 25 2-5 seconds. A high tide and lumpy course prevented the other races.

Favonius and Dan McKenna Won.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—Favonius and Dan McKenna, both of whom won with considerable ease, were the only successful favorites. Signal II. and Georgia Baldwin lasted just long enough in their races to beat Evelyn Kinsey and Mary Glenn, the favorites. Joe Lesser was strongly fancied in the last race, but seemed short and unfit. Rian fouled Tootsie Mack in the stretch and was disqualified, third place being given to Handspinner.

San Nicholas Weakened.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—In the fourth race at Oakland San Nicholas was installed favorite, and after flattering his backers up to the stretch he weakened and finished third. McBride, picking the best going with Ishlana, won in clever style by the best part of a length. Sals, who finished second, sweyed badly.

Juvenal Maxim and Gavin C.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 28.—In the card at Essex park Juvenal Maxim and Gavin C. were the winning favorites. The form players were given a rather severe upset in the second race, when Saidora, the 3 to 5 favorite, was only able to finish third to Oaklawn and Pretty Girl.

Delagoa Managed to Win.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 28.—After almost a score of starts Delagoa managed to win a race at Ascot from a field of some class. Two favorites, two second choices and two third choices were successful.

Basket Ball Victory For Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 28.—In a basket ball game here last night Yale defeated the University of Pennsylvania by the score of 31 to 14.

Axle Works Destroyed.

MOUNT CARMEL, Conn., Jan. 28.—The Mount Carmel Axle works plant here has been destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $30,000, which is covered by insurance to the amount of $18,000.

COWBOYS' POKER GAME.

Border Ruffian Ran Amuck at Tucson, Ariz.

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 28.—A tragedy in which four men lost their lives occurred in the border town of Nogales. William Walters, a gambler, entered the Palace saloon, owned by M. M. Conn, walked to a poker table and, without a word of warning, drew a revolver and opened fire on the dealer, known as "Cowboy" Johnson, firing two shots through his head. Walters then turned on Conn, the proprietor, who was making his way toward the door, shooting him through the head and heart. The murderer then turned his weapon toward the monte dealer, shooting him through the back of the head. He fired a shot at George Bendle, a cattle man, which grazed the latter's face, and then turned the revolver on himself and sent a bullet through his own brain. All of the victims died before being able to make statements. It is said Walters was intoxicated at the time. Conn was one of the best known sporting men in the southwest.

Mafia Murder at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28.—The local police assert that two men being held in connection with the killing of Agostino Caldaroni, an Italian, in Kansas City are members of the Mafia of Chicago and were sent here to commit murder. Caldaroni was killed here on Thursday night, and Joseph Bellabesti and Frank Rossi, Italians, were arrested. The police are holding them on the theory that they were sent here from Chicago to kill the slayer of Joseph Shereto, a member of the society, who was murdered in this city on Dec. 7 last. It is asserted that Caldaroni was mistaken for Nicholas Basili, another Italian, who was suspected of the murder of Shereto.

Camden Ferryboat Quarantined.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—Thirty-three passengers and the crew of a Philadelphia and Reading ferryboat were quarantined for several hours as a result of a colored woman dying from smallpox while the boat was making a trip across the Delaware river from Camden, N. J., to this city. The passengers were sprinkled with a disinfectant and released after being held on the boat about three hours. The ferryhouse was roped off and the boat sent to Camden for fumigation. Service on the line was suspended for the day.

Peabody Will Fight to a Finish.

DENVER, Jan. 28.—Former Governor James H. Peabody denied a report that he intended to withdraw his contest for the governorship or that he had been approached with any proposition for a compromise. "You couldn't drive me out of this contest with a pack of bloodhounds," said the ex-governor. "I entered the contest with a determination to probe the frauds to the bottom, and I will be there at the finish."

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Damage to Business by Storms.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Storms at home and complications abroad tended to check activity in commercial and financial markets, but most industrial lines continue busy, testifying to confidence that trade interruption will be brief. Prior to the bad weather there was a liberal distribution of merchandise at steady prices, but subsequently a sharp advance occurred in retail prices of food products owing to restricted receipts at points of heavy consumption. Country merchants at the south have large stocks that move slowly because of the decline in cotton, and collections are slow.

New England manufacturing plants are well engaged, especially in machinery, jewelry and textiles. The steel and iron business continues good. Foreign commerce at this port for the last week shows a gain of $772,924 in imports and a loss of $1,690,177 in exports as compared with the same time in 1904.

Railway earnings in January were only .4 per cent larger than last year, and prices of securities declined from the high position attained in the previous week. Money remained easy despite the heavy loan expansion in the last bank statement and large exports of gold coin to Paris. Bank exchanges at New York for the week were 30.6 per cent larger than in 1904, while at other leading cities the gain was 11.5 per cent.

Bad weather in Argentina and in parts of the domestic winter wheat belt, together with interruption to movement, tended to regain part of the earlier loss in wheat prices, although home flour trade is quiet and exports only fair. Western receipts of 3,059,450 bushels of wheat compared with 3,510,813 in the same week last year. Arrivals of 3,839,960 bushels of corn at primary markets were slightly larger than the 3,757,404 bushels last year. Failures for the week numbered 305 in the United States against 302 last year and 43 in Canada compared with 28 a year ago.

Man Frozen Stiff In Drift.

WINSTED, Conn., Jan. 28.—Sitting upright in a sleigh in which he had started Wednesday night, during the snowstorm, to drive from this borough to his home in Walcott, the body of Jacob Sulskoski, aged thirty-five, was found by men who were breaking out the snow filled highway. Sulskoski had apparently frozen to death. The horse attached to the sleigh was still alive when found, but was so badly frostbitten that it will probably have to be killed. Horse, sleigh and driver were concealed entirely under a ten foot snowdrift. Sulskoski leaves a wife and several children in Walcott.

Would Not Hear Lacombe.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Judge E. Henry Lacombe of the United States circuit court for the southern district of New York was at the capitol seeking an opportunity to be heard by the house committee on the judiciary in reference to the reflections on his conduct as a judge contained in a letter from a Philadelphia law firm. The committee took the position that as there was nothing before it or the house on the subject there was no precedent or reason for taking up the matter.

Beat Bank Out of $10,000.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 28. — The grand jury has returned ten indictments, six against E. T. Hays, former cashier of the Orange Growers' National bank, and four against Colonel J. W. F. Diss, former right of way agent of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railway. Three of the indictments against Hays allege embezzlement in sums aggregating more than $10,000 from the Orange Growers' National bank.

Government to Control Wireless.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The administration's views have been embodied in a bill drafted by the commissioner of navigation, assisted by Captain Seabury of the navy and others. It provides that no person or corporation shall use any apparatus for wireless telegraphy in this country or upon any American vessel except he be licensed by the secretary of commerce and labor.

Shot by His Own Men.

MANILA, Jan. 28.—Mrs. O'Neil, widow of Dr. J. O'Neil, the contract surgeon killed in the attack by ladrones in the town of San Francisco de Malabon on the night of Jan. 24 and who was endeavoring to escape with her husband, confirms a report to the effect that when the surgeon was shot he exclaimed, "I have been shot by our own men."

Great Gale at Colon.

COLON, Jan. 28.—The norther still continued last night, and shipping was at a standstill. The New Orleans steamer Brighton, in the harbor, has been unable to approach the dock, and her mails and passengers are still aboard. High seas have somewhat damaged the water front at Cristobal and other localities.

Drift Caused Delay and Famine.

FIGHTING IN WARSAW

Russian Cities Suffer Strikes, Riot and Bloodshed.

KUROPATKIN CLAIMS VICTORY ON HUN

General's Report of Successful Advance and Capture of Villages in Manchuria Cheers Russian Officials at Capital.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 28.—A collision between troops and strikers has occurred in Warsaw, Poland, in which the military used their arms. It is officially stated that the casualties were two killed and seven wounded.

The strikers invaded the Wolski suburb and broke into liquor shops. There was a sharp encounter with the police and military.

The strike started in Warsaw has spread rapidly, a number of factories being closed.

Labor agents from Riga have organized a strike at Mitau, and men were forced to quit the factories and workshops. Troops were summoned.

A general strike has begun at Lodz.

Thirty-nine men and two women have been killed and thirty-seven civilians and eight soldiers wounded in the Riga riots.

It is asserted by the authorities that the attempt to turn the movement into a political revolt has failed. It appears to be the government policy to treat the strikers without harshness, to promise inquiry into their grievances and to appeal to their patriotism to return to work.

Revolutionists are being treated with rigor. They have been driven to cover and have no opportunity to meet.

Employees of some of the Moscow factories resumed work, and it is hoped to settle the strike there without more bloodshed. Proclamations have been issued promising redress of workmen's grievances after they return to work.

The news this morning of General Kuropatkin's successful repulse of the Japanese advance come most opportunely. The belief exists here that Field Marshal Oyama sought to take advantage of any depression prevailing in the Russian ranks as the result of the news from St. Petersburg to launch an attack against General Kuropatkin's right, but the Russian commander in chief seems to have nicely turned the tables, inflicting considerable loss upon the Japanese and taking several positions westward along the plains of the Hun river. Evidently General Kuropatkin is following up his victory.

A leading Russian here said last night:

"The government's embarrassment will go on, and the autocracy will fight inch by inch, but it will be forced to give way, as it has done whenever too hard pressed, until finally the contest will end in the granting of a constitution, or a revolution will overtake it."

"What of the immediate future?" was asked.

"Bombs," was the reply. "The terrorists will begin to take vengeance."

The most of the Russian newspapers which will appear have decided, inasmuch as they will not be permitted to publish full and uncensored accounts of the strike and riot events of the last few days, to print only the official statement.

General Kuropatkin reports that Russian troops, after a desperate fight, have occupied the village of Sandepas, which had been strongly fortified by the Japanese.

A strong advance had commenced on the Russian right flank against the enemy, during which they captured and occupied Khailatosa and Khelgoutaya.

General Kuropatkin says:

"From later reports it appears that in capturing these positions we made prisoners of 100 Japanese. We also occupied the village of Wehelitatse, on the Hun river, losing fifty men.

"Our troops continued the offensive against Sandepas, and soon it fell into our hands. The Japanese attacked our position near the village from the south and southeast, but were repulsed. Our cavalry participated, maneuvering against the left flank, and attacked the Japanese in the rear. Our force then attacked Sandepas, and after a desperate fight, with the assistance of sappers, we surmounted the strong intrenchments and occupied the large village.

"The same day our troops occupied the enemy's intrenchments at Shakhe and repulsed Japanese attempts to retake them."

Revolutionists In London.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The large east end resort, "Wonderland," which is notorious as a prize fight arena, was the scene last night of a remarkable revolutionary demonstration. The audience numbered 3,000 and was composed largely of Russian Jews. A Russian revolutionary leader in London presided and made a speech denouncing Emperor Nicholas and the grand dukes. For the benefit of recent arrivals from Russia he repeated his speech in the Russian tongue. The speaker was constantly interrupted by cheers for the Russian revolution and the singing of the revolutionary hymn.

Called It Petty Larceny.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The house has passed the agricultural appropriation bill without material amendment. The usual discussion of the provision for free seed distribution was indulged in, Mr. Lilly of Connecticut characterizing it as petty larceny.

New Cabinet at Madrid.

MADRID, Jan. 28. — King Alfonso has sanctioned the formation of the new Spanish cabinet as organized by Marquis Villaverde, who will be premier.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 28, 1905.

Thousands of dollars belonging to the taxpayers will be wasted in holding an useless special election on Feb. 7.

Notwithstanding repeated and urgent requests, Robert Clark, Jr., still withholds his consent to become a candidate for the mayoralty in North Plainfield. A large and representative body of citizens favor him as Mr. Smalley's successor and believe that Mr. Clark should comply with their wishes by becoming a candidate for the office.

It is to be regretted that Mayo Newton B. Smalley declines to be come a candidate for renomination. He is now serving his third term and during the six years of his administration marked municipal improvement has been made in North Plainfield. No chief executive of the borough ever devoted so much time to furthering its interests. None has been so painstaking, and none has accomplished so much of real good. The widening of Somerset street and the introduction of storm sewers beneath that thoroughfare, the establishment of a building line ordinance, the erection of proper street signs, the opening up of Duer street, a paid fire department and a more efficient police department as well as a new fire house, and recorder's court, jail and councilmanic headquarters are among the many things largely due to the efforts of the present Mayor. When Mr. Smalley retires from office a severe loss will be suffered by North Plainfield.

DEAD IN LIMOGES.

American Woman Was Recently Arrested There as a Russian Spy.

Rev. Walter T. Griffin, of this city, consular agent in Limoges, France, sent a cable message Thursday that Miss Eugenie Ulrich died there in a hospital that morning. Miss Ulrich was editor of the magazine "The Christian Mother," and secretary of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, an organization which cares for foundlings. She went to Europe a few months ago for study at Oxford. On her way there she met an exiled nun from France, who told her of the dearth of teachers to take places of banished religious. So she went to Limoges and took a place in a convent school as teacher of German and English.

After a few weeks in Limoges the Chief of Police summoned her before him and asked to see her passport. She told him she was an American woman student and did not have a passport. He charged her with being a Russian spy and gave her ten days to prove her identity or be deported. It required cable messages between Consular Agent Griffin and the State Department at Washington to prevent her banishment from France.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The note for $300 which was payable to P. W. Brakeley and which was lost by him, was ordered paid at a recent special meeting of the Board of Education. The note was given to Dr. Brakeley last May, and subsequently mislaid. The Board wrote for legal advice, receiving a reply advising the payment of the school note to Dr. Brakeley upon the receipt of a copy, as near as possible, of the note, and a bond for double the sum required. The interest on the note amounted to $11.45, which was included in the resolution passed providing that the amount of the note be paid, upon the fulfillment of the provisions advised by the lawyer. The meeting was called particularly for the transaction of this business and no further matters were attended to.

An important meeting of the Township Committee has been called for next Wednesday and will be held in the Hotel Nelson. In addition to the usual routine business of the committee the bills and claims for the fiscal year will be received and paid, and relative business will be transacted. It has been publicly announced that all bills for dog damages against the township should be legally presented at the meeting Wednesday. A supplementary meeting of the committee will take place five days later and settlements with the various township officers will be made. At this meeting the accounts will be prepared for publication.

Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Casselberry entertained Mr. and Mrs. William B. Blackstone, of Oak Park, Ill., the first of the week. 'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

With the opening up again of communication with the outside world, the public is only beginning to learn of the severity of the blizzard here on Wednesday. Snow drifts fully as high as those in the great storm of '88, blocked both roadway and sidewalks. One of the large sweepers and two cars, together with crews were stalled early on Thursday morning in the drift between Park and Stout avenues. Another sweeper and cars were hemmed in at Leland avenue. They were not able to move until Friday morning, when large gangs of men tackled the mountains of snow with shovels and dug the imprisoned cars out. The crews were obliged to depend upon the neighbors for coal to keep from freezing while a tempting repast of crackers and cheese had to sustain their craving appetites as Scotch Plains stores were breadless, not a baker being in town since Tuesday. Township Committeeman Bruckman, as soon as the storm ended, secured all the men he could hire and began to break the sidewalks and roads through the principal streets of the town, but it will be fully a week before the work will be done, even under the most favorable conditions. Altogether the storm was the worst the 'Plains has had to contend with in years.

Not since the blizzard of '88 has Coles' hill on Front street been blocked as it was by the storm of Wednesday, the heavy wind piling up snow banks in some places eight and ten feet high, blocking the roadway entirely in some places.

The bowling alleys of the Suburban Club have been hired Friday nights by an independent bowling team of the Y. M. C. A., of Plainfield. This leaves three nights a week for club bowling—Monday, Tuesday and Saturday.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be as usual: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching by pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, 10:45; P. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15 p. m.; evening service, 7:45.

One of the ice houses which has been used to store the ice crop for several winters past at the back pond, has been pulled down. Only the large houses will be filled this season.

The Township Committee met last night in the town rooms. A number of bills were ordered paid and other business of routine nature was transacted.

Some of the residents are gunning for the man who was predicting last week that winter was breaking up and an early spring could be looked for.

The trolley company managed to get the line open yesterday and the 'Plains once more is enjoying communication with the outside world.

Gray Brothers have entered some of their prize-winning cochin bantams in the Newark poultry show which opens Monday.

COTTON EXPERIMENT

RUSSIA AND GREAT BRITAIN STIMULATING CULTIVATION.

The Two Great Nations Endeavoring to Make Themselves Independent of the American Yield of This Fabric.

Just as the vagaries of the American cotton market have stimulated the cultivation of cotton in various parts of the British empire, so also has Russia for years past been endeavoring to render her mills independent of the United States, remarks, with sturdy pride, one of the prominent journals.

The district chosen for the experiment, which district is here illustrated, is the Khanate of Kokand, and especially the valley of the Zarafshan, lying to the west—the most fertile and best-watered part of Central Asia. According to the account given by Shrine and Denison Ross, in their standard work "The Heart of Asia," a large proportion of the Zarafshan valley is now under cotton raised chiefly from American seed. The seed is sown in April, and towards the end of September the ripe pods are picked and exposed in heaps for sale. In average years an acre yields 1,400 pounds, and gives a net return of $27.50, considerably more than other crops.

Several years ago there were 45,000 acres under cotton, but the prospects for extending the crop are not encouraging, the area of land suitable for cotton-raising being limited in extent, and the soil, though naturally rich, having been exhausted by centuries of cultivation, needs much manuring.

Kokand was the last of the Central Asian Khanates to fall under the Russian yoke. The capital was seized in 1876 by a force under Skobeleff, who subsequently became the first governor of the Khanate which was annexed to Russia under its ancient name of Farghana. The town lies on the railway connecting Samarkand with Andijan, and has a population of 82,000. It is inclosed by a wall 12 miles in circumference, surrounded, like many Central Asian towns, by beautiful gardens. The most noticeable building is the old palace of the Khans, similar in architecture to the mosques of Samarkand. The inhabitants of the provinces are chiefly composed of the town-dwelling Sarts and the nomadic tribes of Uzbecks and Kirghiz, men of swarthy complexion and short and sturdy in build. They are great mutton eaters, and their favorite drink is brick tea. Their chief relaxations are music and dancing, especially on the festivals of their saints.

India, ages ago the great cotton-producing country, might add greatly to the amount of cotton now grown in her broad confines, and, to an American, it is a matter for wonder that Great Britain has been so slow to adopt the latest approved systems for the cultivation of this most important crop. Methods that have been followed for centuries still continue to obtain among the ignorant small farmers that generally grow cotton in India. To be sure, recent experiments have been begun in this portion of King Edward's domain towards improving existing conditions. Agricultural experiment stations have been established for the study of the needs of the cotton plant, but as yet no great progress has been made towards the goal of independence of American cotton.

It is in India we have the earliest notice of cotton, a record of 450 B. C. referring to trees of India that bore as their fruit fleeces more delicate and beautiful than those of sheep, and reference is made to the use of the "tree fleece" by the Indians in the manufacture of cloth. The Indian cotton is famous, and even to-day with their primitive hand-looms the natives turn out most beautiful fabrics. We get our word calico from India, a material that in the original was not the common stuff now known by that term. The material made in the city of Calicut—hence, calico—is so described as so fine you could handle and feel it in the hand and the thread when spun could hardly be seen.

MRS. C. W. FAIRBANKS

SHE IS THE MENTOR OF THE VICE PRESIDENT-ELECT.

His Speeches Are Submitted to Her Before Being Given to the Public and Changed as She Suggests.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The election of Senator Fairbanks to the vice presidency has not only created great public interest in him, but also in Mrs. Fairbanks, who played an important part in influencing the senator to accept the nomination. At no time did she attempt to conceal her delight that the honor should come to him.

Of the two, indeed, Mrs. Fairbanks is the more ambitious for honor and power. She is fond of society, and she recognized the fact that it would be a distinct social gain to her to return to Washington as the wife of the vice president. A close friend of the family said some time ago that she was very anxious for the senator to accept the party nomination, and that he was governed largely by her wishes when, though not seeking the nomination, he gave his friends to understand that he would not refuse it.

Mrs. Fairbanks has long been known here for her freedom from ostentation and at the same time for her fondness for elegance, says an Indianapolis correspondent of the New York Herald. She treats all persons with courtesy and consideration. While possessing a fine instinct for the best in human nature and a certain shrewdness in her judgments of men and women, Mrs. Fairbanks has an artlessness and a childlike naivette that render her especially charming in her home and among her children. She enjoys their full confidence to an unusual degree.

While democratic in a rare degree in her manners, she is always careful and dignified, but her dignity is softened by a tact which is always at her direction. She exercises a commanding influence in her home, and this influence extends to her husband in all matters political. He has great respect for her judgment, and she is a counsellor as well as a wife.

All of his public speeches, it is said, are first submitted to her, and her advice is asked on important points. Nor do the criticisms fall heedlessly. Manuscripts are revised if Mrs. Fairbanks so advises. The senator makes it a practice to read his speeches to his wife in the quiet of the home library, and if passed upon favorably they are delivered to the larged audiences in the senate or on the political platform.

Mrs. Fairbanks cannot be called a domestic woman in the sense of personally superintending her home, but she is brimful of hospitality. A housekeeper is in charge, and she is made responsible for the corps of well trained servants, after the fashion observed in large English establishments. Mrs. Fairbanks is a very busy woman, her large mail making heavy demands on her time, aside from multitudinous social duties.

The question of dress cannot be said to be an all absorbing one for Mrs. Fairbanks. Always dressed in excellent taste, Mrs. Fairbanks renders her gowns in keeping with her position rather than as a matter of superlative importance. New modes and the latest wrinkles of fashion trouble her not at all, nor will she consent to being made uncomfortable. Certain limitations she sets for her dressmakers; otherwise they are at full liberty to make her gowns as handsome and becoming as their ability permits. White is her favorite color.

Mrs. Fairbanks is the mother of five children, Mrs. John W. Timmens, Warren C., Frederick C., Richard M. and Robert. No society demand upon her was ever sufficient to cause her to take one moment from her children when they needed her attention, and they have grown up remarkably like the mother, kind, affable and popular. One of the striking characteristics of the family circle is the respect for one another that is manifested in a thousand ways.

Late Beginning.

Sir Walter Scott began to write his celebrated novels at 40. Milton began "Paradise Lost" at 50. When "East Lynne" appeared its author, Mrs. Henry Wood, was 45. Cromwell was 41 when he began his public career. The year of the Hegira was the fifty-third of Mohammed, and Marlborough reached his independent command at the same age. In spiritual examples Abraham was 75 when called out of Charan, and Moses was 80 when he stood before Pharaoh as the champion of Israel.

A Worthy Memorial to Jennie June

It is a fickle and forgetful world. Humanity has so many troubles of its own that it cannot long hold in mind even individuals who have helped it. That the remembrance of "Jennie June" Croly may not pass so speedily from the thought of the living the Women's Press club of New York city has prepared a beautiful and fitting memorial to her. It is a handsome and artistic book dedicated to the General Federation of Women's Clubs of America. Mrs. Croly was the originator of the federated woman's club idea. She was, indeed, practically the orginator of the woman's club itself, Sorosis, of which she was the chief founder, having been the first incorporated woman's club. Mrs. Croly was also the founder and until her death the only president of the New York Women's Press club. After her death a committee of that club, headed by Mrs. Caroline M. Morse, made a collection of sketches of their lost leader prepared by various writers, also of many of her own papers and letters to friends. These constitute the contents of the beautiful book recently published, which is called "Jane Cunningham Croly, 'Jennie June.'" Mrs. Morse, Jennie June's intimate friend of years, has edited the book with sympathetic discrimination.

Miss Gabrielle Clark of Salem, Ore., is a successful and very capable young lawyer.

Smile! Oh, yes, smile at everybody and everything, and if you can't smile, grin!

Already no doubt the majority of womankind are preparing to break their New Year's resolutions gracefully. But the following let us hold fast to for the whole year through thick and thin: "I will put forth good will and helpfulness to everybody, and I will mind my own business strictly."

Wherever a woman is really popular you will note that she has a hearty, affectionate, natural manner which puts to flight and to shame all the kangaroo hand shakings, the artificial society smiles and all the conventional small talk in the universe. The woman whose life is spent in an effort to do the conventionally proper thing shrinks into pitiful smallness beside the woman who is sincere and naturally warm hearted and sympathetic. This makes a woman magnetic—to be sincere, warm hearted and sympathetic.

Blessed be the woman who does not know what everybody else ought to do!

American girls going to France to study ought to get passports before leaving their native land or they may be mistaken for spies, as Miss Eugenie Ulrich of New York was. Miss Ulrich was an American teacher and lecturer who spent some time in Limoges, France. Soon after going into the town she was summoned to appear before the authorities and present her credentials. She had none, not thinking them necessary. But the French authorities held her under surveillance as a Russian spy, and she was not allowed to go free till the state department at Washington interfered in her behalf.

Mrs. John D. Sherman has been invited to become instructor in parliamentary law at a Chicago law school. Mrs. Sherman was official parliamentarian at the last meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at St. Louis. Many of the most accomplished parliamentarians of the time are women. They are versed in all that pertains to the holding of any meeting, from a political convention to the executive committee meeting of a woman's club. Yet even so late as 1852 Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton could find no woman who she thought knew enough to preside at the first woman's rights convention. Once more "the sun do move."

In a recent English magazine a wife writes to the editor asking him what she can do with a husband who drinks up all of her earnings, leaving her nothing with which to support her children. The editor can only tell her that nothing at all can be done. The law gives the husband there the right to his wife's earnings, to do with them exactly as he pleases. How would you like to live under such laws as those? American women do not half appreciate their own country.

No matter who or what you are, learn to do something useful whereby you can earn a living. Every year more and more women brought up in luxury are forced by some turn of fortune to seek employment, and they are as ignorant as a kitten of any work that the world is willing to pay for. Their condition is pitiable indeed. Remember the Tolstoi dictum that it is the first duty of every human being to do some useful work.

We have not cultivated our powers to the half of their capacity. If we had done so, all the race could achieve things that now seem within reach of only a few persons of transcendent genius. All power is latent in every one of us.

An Eccentric but Pretty Round Toque—A Demiseason Novelty.

There is a new and pretty turban toque very broad and round in shape. The outside brim is very tall, being built up with layers of white mallines. The same material is puffed and ruched at the top. Crowns are of chiffon, velvet or tiny roses. Only a tall woman should wear a hat of this type, as it has a tendency to diminish the height of a small person.

Jet is reappearing as a trimming for evening hats.

Dainty silks with white grounds covered with tiny bouquets or a single flower, such as a lovely moss rose bud, are very attractive for afternoon tea frocks.

The flowers on these silk patterns are to be found in the natural shades of the flower in the design or in pale pastel shadings.

There is a new shade of blue worn in the evening called "twilight." This shade is particularly effective in gauze and velvet fabrics.

The Parisian model hat seen in the cut is of rich white guipure lace. The brim is softened with a rouleau of twisted tulle. A full trimming of soft bronze ribbon encircles the crown and forms the stylish rosette.

SPRING STYLES.

A New Serge For Demiseason Wear. Military Coats Revived.

A very English looking suit is made of the new blue serge which more nearly resembles cashmere than any material answering to the old name of serge. The new blue is a happy mingling of navy, Russian and cadet blue tints. A gown of this blue serge is stunning with a bright shade of red used for vest, deep cuffs and skirt strappings.

Smart tailored frocks have lost much of their air of severity. Some of the newest models are almost fussily trimmed.

Plum bloom is an effective color for a spring costume. This lovely shade is not as bright as cardinal, but has the rich, deep tones of purple with high lights of red.

A gown of plum bloom cloth is smart made with a plaited skirt stitched very tight around the hips and flaring at the feet. About the hem are swirls of silk braid. The Eton jacket is ornamented with motifs of braid and has a tiny vest of ivory silk held in place with buttons of amethyst and silver.

The up to date girl is wearing a long military coat made on the lines of the army coats of 1861.

Mingled with the feather boa and muff are to be seen in some instances ruchings of chiffon flowers and velvet. Satin flowers show up prettily against the feathers. The favorite flowers employed are forgetmenots, lilies of the valley and gardenias.

The gown shown in the picture is of light fawn broadcloth. The skirt, prettily disposed in stitched sections, is trimmed with buttons. The bolero jacket has small flat revers and tiny cuffs of green cloth.

CHAPTER V.

JOURNEYS END —

It had been a day of upsetting for David Kent, beginning with the late breakfast at which Neltje, the night watchman at the railway station, had brought him Penelope's telegram.

At ten he had a case in court; Shotwell vs. Western Pacific Co., damages for stock killing; for the plaintiff—Hawk; for the defendant—Kent. With the thought that he was presently going to see Elinor again, Kent went gaily to the battle legal, meaning to wring victory out of a jury drawn for the most part from the plaintiff's stock-raising neighbors. By dint of great perseverance he managed to prolong the fight until the middle of the afternoon, was worsted, as usual, and so far lost his temper as to get himself called down by the judge, MacFarlane.

Whereupon he went back to the Farquhar Building and to his office and sat down at the typewriter to pound out a letter to the general counsel, resigning his sinecure. The Shotwell case was the third he had lost for the company in a single court term. Justice for the railroad company, under the present agrarian conditions, was not to be had in the lower courts, and he was weary of fighting the losing battle. Therefore——

In the midst of the type rattling the boy that served the few occupied offices in the Farquhar Building had brought the afternoon mail. It contained a letter from Loring, and there was another reversive upheaval for the exile. Loring's business at the capital was no longer a secret. He had been tendered the resident management of the Western Pacific, with headquarters on the ground, and had accepted. His letter was a brief note, asking Kent to report at once for legal duty in the larger field.

"I am not fairly in the saddle yet, and shall not be for a week or so," wrote the newly appointed manager. "But I find I am going to need a level headed lawyer at my elbow from the jump—one who knows the state political ropes and isn't afraid of a scrap. Come in on Number Three to-day, if you can; if not, send a wire and say when I may look for you. Or, better still, wire anyway."

David Kent struggled with his emotions until he had got his feet down to solid earth again. Then he tore up the half written resignation and began to smite things in order for the flight. Could he make Number Three? Since that was the train named in Penelope's message, nothing short of a catastrophe should prevent his making it.

So it came about that the outcome of the cataclysm was a thing which happens often enough in a conventionalized world. David Kent, with his tragedy fresh upon him, dropped informally into place as one of the party of five; and of all the others, Penelope alone suspected how hard he was hit. And when all was said; when the new modus vivendi had been fairly established and the hour grew late, Kent went voluntarily with Ormsby to the smoking compartment, "to play the string out decently," as he afterward confessed to Loring.

"I see you know how to get the most comfort out of your tobacco," said the club-man, when they were companionably settled in the men's room and Kent produced his pipe and tobacco pouch. "I prefer the pipe myself, for a steady thing; but at this time of night a light Castilla fits me pretty well. Try one?" tendering his cigar case.

Fighting shrewdly against a natural prompting to regard Ormsby as an hereditary enemy, Kent forced himself to be neighborly.

"I don't mind," he said, returning the pipe to its case. And when the Havanas were well alight, and the talk had circled down upon the political situation in the state, he was able to bear his part with a fair exterior, giving Ormsby an impressionistic outline of the late campaign and the conditions that had made the sweeping triumph of the party in power possible.

"We have been coming to it steadily through the last administration, and a part of the preceding one," he explained. "Last year the drought cut the cereals in half, and the country was too new to stand it without borrowing. There was little local capital, and the eastern article was hungry, taking all the interest the law allows, and as much more as it could get. This year the crop broke all records for abundance, but the price is down and the railroads, trying to recoup for two bad years, have stiffened the freight rates. The net result is our political overturn."

"Then the railroads and the corporations are not primarily to blame?" said Ormsby.

"Oh, no. Corporations here, as elsewhere, are looking out for the present dollar, but if the country were generally prosperous, the people would pay the tax carelessly, as they do in the older sections. With us it has been a sort of Donnybrook fair; the voter has shillalahed the head he could reach most easily."

The New Yorker nodded. His millions were solidly placed, and he took no more than a sportsman's interest in the fluctuations of the stock market.

"You know Loring—Grantham Loring?"

"Passably well. I came across him one summer in the mountains of Peru, where he was managing a railroad. He is a mighty good sort. I had mountain fever, and he took me in and did for me."

"He is with us now," said David Kent; "the newly appointed general manager of the Western Pacific."

"Good!" said the club man. "I think a lot of him; he is an all-around dependable fellow, and plenty capable. I'm glad to know he has caught on higher up."

The locomotive whistle was droning again, and a dodging procession of red-eyed switch-lights flicked past the windows. Kent stood up and flung away the stump of his cigar.

"The capital," he announced. "I'll go back with you and help out with the shawl-strap things." And in the vestibule he added: "I spoke of Loring because he will be with us in anything we have to do in Mrs. Brentwood's behalf. Look him up when you have time—fourth floor of the Quintard."

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE MAKING OF LAWS.

The session, the shortest in the history of the state, and thus far the least eventful, was nearing its close; and the alarmists who had prophesied evil and evil only of the last political victory were fast losing credit with the men of their own camp and with the country at large.

After the orthodox strife over the speakership of the house, and the equally orthodox wrangle over contested seats, the state assembly had settled down to routine business, despatching it with such unheard-of celerity as to win columns of approval from the state press as a whole; though there were not wanting a few radical editors to raise the ante-election cry of reform, and to ask pointedly when it was to begin.

Notwithstanding the lack of alarms, however, the six weeks had been a period of unceasing vigilance on the part of interests which were supposed to be in jeopardy. Every alien corporation owning property and doing business in the state had its full quota of watchful defenders on the ground; men who came and went, in the lobbies of the capitol, in the visitors' galleries, at the receptions; men who said little, but who saw and heard all things down to the small talk of the corridors and the clubs, and the gossip of the hotel rotundas.

David Kent was of this silent army of observation, doing watch-dog duty for the Western Pacific; thankful enough, if the truth be told, to have a thing to do which kept him from dwelling overmuch upon the wreck of his hopes. But in the closing days of the session, when a despatchful assembly, anxious to be quit of its task, had gone into night sittings, the anodyne drug of work began to lose its effect.

The Brentwoods had taken furnished apartments in Tejon avenue, two squares from the capitol, and Kent had called no oftener than good breeding prescribed. Yet their accessibility, and his unconquerable desire to sear his wound in the flame that caused it, were constant temptations, and he was battling with them for the hundredth time on the Friday night when he sat in the house gallery listening to a perfunctory debate which concerned itself with a bill touching state waterways.

"Heavens! This thing is getting to be little short of deadly!" fumed Crenshawe, his right-hand neighbor, who was also a member of the corps of observation. "I'm going to the club for a game of pool. Won't you come along?"

Kent nodded and left his seat with the bored one. But in the great rotunda he changed his mind.

"You'll find plenty of better players than I am at the club," he said in extenuation. "I think I'll smoke a whiff or two here and go back. They can't hold on much longer for to-night."

Five minutes later, when he had lighted a cigar and was glancing over the evening paper, two other members of the corporation committee of safety came down from the senate gallery and stopped opposite Kent's pillar to struggle into their overcoats.

"It's precisely as I wrote our people two weeks ago—a timidity scare, pure and simple," one of them was saying. "I've a mind to start home to-morrow. There is nothing doing here, or going to be done."

"No," said the other. "If it wasn't for House Bill Twenty-nine, I'd go to-night. They will adjourn to-morrow or Monday."

"House Bill Twenty-nine is much too dead to bury," was the reassuring rejoinder. "The committee is ours, and the bill will not be heard of again at this session. If that is all you are holding on for—"

They passed out of earshot, and Kent folded his newspaper absently. House Bill Twenty-nine had been the one measure touching the sensitive "vested interests"; the one measure for the suppression of which the corporations' lobby had felt called on to take steps. It was an omnibus bill put forth as a substitute for the existing law defining the status of foreign corporations. It had originated in the governor's office—a fact which Kent had ferreted out within 24 hours of its first reading—and for that reason he had procured a printed copy, searching it diligently for the hidden menace he was sure it embodied.

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

GEN. LEW WALLACE.

HEALTH OF VETERAN AUTHOR NOT AS BAD AS REPORTED.

His Unique Workroom at His Crawfordsville Home — How He Got the Idea and Characters for "Ben Hur."

Crawfordsville, Ind.—Gen. Lew Wallace, who, according to the press dispatches is in imminent danger of dying, is in not nearly such poor health as many of the correspondents would have the public believe. He is 78 years old, and these years, together with an aggravated case of dyspepsia, accounts for his present ill health, but he is not suffering from the effects of a surgical operation for cancer of the stomach as the correspondents have repeatedly reported.

As the author of "Ben Hur" Gen. Wallace is known in practically every country of the globe. No other book since the days of "Pilgrims' Progress" has been so widely read. An estimate indicates that from the total number of editions of the book that have been sold at least 4,000,000 people have read and enjoyed the Hoosier soldier's beautiful tale of the lowly Nazarene. The dramatization of the work, which was completed in 1901, further extended the general knowledge of the story and added largely as well to the fame and profit of the author.

The home of Gen. and Mrs. Wallace is comfortable appearing. Set well back in a tract of four acres close to the center of the city, it is surrounded by spacious grounds. Trees, many of which antedate the coming of the Elston family to Crawfordsville in 1823, give ample shade. To the rear of the house Gen. Wallace had built several years ago his famous studio or library. It is perhaps the most remarkable literary workshop in the United States. A one story structure of red brick and white stone, it has no windows on its sides. Light is obtained through a glass roof. The construction of the building is such that its

GEN. LEW WALLACE.
He Is Not as Near Death as the Correspondents Would Have Us Believe.

occupant can shut himself entirely apart from the outer world and pursue his literary labors unmolested by the slightest sound. It is in this workshop that Gen. Wallace has done much of his best work. What has not been accomplished there has been done beneath the shade of an aged beech tree which stands beside the library. It was under this favorite tree that most of the chapters of "Ben Hur" were written. The tree has come to be known historically as the Ben Hur beech.

Of the writing of "Ben Hur" Gen. Wallace told an interesting story to a Chicago Chronicle correspondent. It has been told that the inspiration for the tale of the Christ was given to Gen. Wallace by the famous agnostic, Robert G. Ingersoll. Gen. Wallace denies that a reputed conversation with Col. Ingersoll had anything to do with the beginning of "Ben Hur." It was, however, due to a conversation between Gen. Wallace and Col. Ingersoll that the research which made the book the marvel of its age in all lands began.

This conversation occurred during the course of the journey from Cincinnati to Indianapolis. Ingersoll had made the speech which nominated James G. Blaine for the presidency. In the car on which both were returning Col. Ingersoll occupied the stateroom. He invited Gen. Wallace to join him and have a talk. Gen. Wallace replied that he would do so on the condition that he be permitted to fix the topic of conversation. To this Ingersoll assented, asking him:

"What is your text?"

Gen. Wallace replied: "Is there a God?"

"I don't know. Do you?" was Ingersoll's reply.

"Is there a hell?" asked Wallace.

"I don't know. Do you?"

"Was Jesus Christ the son of God?"

"I don't know. Do you?" Ingersoll answered in the same tone.

Ingersoll then took up the entire subject of the Bible and displayed such a thorough knowledge of the book, its characters and scenes that Gen. Wallace became deeply interested. He studied the new testament and the life and sayings of Christ with the result that he came to believe absolutely in the Bible. He gave up all doubt of the existence of a God and accepted the story of the divine origin of Jesus Christ. His conception of the Nazarene and the almost perfect portrayal of scenes in Palestine, which he had not yet visited, were the result of this conversation. Had it not been for "Bob" Ingersoll it is doubtful whether the world would have had the "Ben Hur" as it is known to people of all lands. Certain it is that Gen. Wallace would have lost much of the fame and wealth which the book brought him. For without the awakening produced by the conversation of Ingersoll Gen. Wallace would never have studied so deeply into the subject as he did.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

Arthur Aalbolm's team recently defeated William Sebring's basketball aggregation in the first game in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league among the teams in the men's class, the score being 18 to 13. The game was well played.

The Interscholastic League teams have no game scheduled for Wednesday, February 8. The regular schedule closed last week, but on account of the tie between Plainfield High School and Leal's teams, the reserve date, February 8 will mark the final meeting of the rival schools, and will decide the city championship.

An attempt will be made to play off two matches in the Y. M. C. A. Men's class basketball league on Tuesday night. Collier's team was to have played Hoagland's aggregation Thursday night, but the players failed to put in an appearance. On Tuesday these two teams will play and if possible Sebring's and Aalbolm's team will contend.

The business men's team, of the Y. M. C. A., will go to Passaic tonight to play the business men's team of that association, instead of the latter five coming to this city on Monday as was formerly announced. The game at the local gymnasium Monday night will be against the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. business men's class. The first team has scheduled a game with Leal's School for that date.

One more game with an out-of-town team confronts the Plainfield High School basketball five. They will play the South Orange High School team, the one which defeated them 78 to 10, and the present holder of the State Interscholastic championship, on March 1. The game will take place on the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium floor, and will be an opportunity for local basketball enthusiasts to witness fast playing.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

A return game will shortly be played between the Dunellen and Suburban bowling clubs. The Dunellenites won in a recent match, and as the Fanwood bowlers were all decidedly off on their game, they are in hopes of clinching a victory at another meeting.

The Park Club bowlers have no game scheduled in the Central Journal League until February 8, when they will meet the team representing Roselle on the local alleys. The team will journey to Elizabeth sometime next week, however, and bowl the match which was scheduled for Thursday night. Roselle now leads in the league, with the local team next to the last.

The remaining matches in the Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament will be rolled off on Wednesday night at the association alleys. The bowling team has no games scheduled during the tournament. Of the three competitors who have completed their six games in the event, Koons leads with an average score of 147. Stephen has a good average, however, for his three games, and may prove better than Koons' in the end.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Dash, of the Hoboken team, is being talked of as a possibility for the Mayoralty of Hoboken. In case he is elected it may change his baseball plans for the coming season.

Ambrose Putmann, who pitched one game for the Plainfield A. C. last season, has signed with the New York Americans for the coming season. Last year he pitched for a team in New York State.

It is authoritively stated that Chas. H. Denman, manager of the Westfield team, sustained a personal loss of about $200 in running last season's team, but that he is still game and willing to continue as manager.

Railroad Merger?

Rumor has it that the Pennsylvania will soon put the Baltimore and Ohio, the Reading and the Jersey Central all under one management and that President Baer, of the Reading, will be put in charge of the allied roads. It is pointed out that Mr. Baer has shown remarkable ability in bringing the Reading from a receivership to a position where it can pay dividends. Moreover, the centralization of the three systems under one control would simplify the management and insure the continuation of the Pennsylvania influence in each.

Plainfielders Stormbound?

Harrison Coddington, of Mountain avenue, together with his son, Allen Coddington, of Somerset place, have evidently become stormbound somewhere at Long Island. They left for Riverhead last Tuesday to witness the ice harvest, in which they are interested, and no word has been received from them since. Long Island received the full fury of the blizzard and many of the places have not yet emerged from the big drifts.

INSURANCE MEN HOLD THEIR ANNUAL BANQUET

PRUDENTIAL COMPANY'S EMPLOYES GATHER AT THE KENSINGTON.

Superintendent Charles E. Ball and his assistants of the Plainfield district of the Prudential Insurance Company, tendered a banquet at the Hotel Kensington, last night, to the agents of the district. Division Manager C. S. Alston, Assistant Secretary L. V. Ash and Joseph Atkinson, of the Home Office in Newark, together with Mrs. Charles E. Ball, of the borough; Mrs. T. J. Cahill, of Dover, and Mrs. Riddle, of Hampton Junction, were present as guests. As stated at the beginning by Mr. Ball the affair was given as a celebration, but chiefly as a source of inspiration for the coming year. In this respect the banquet was a great success.

After the thirty-six guests had enjoyed one of the Hotel Kensington's best menus, well served under the direction of Manager John Auten, there were a number of speeches. Superintendent Ball acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers with a few well chosen remarks. Division Manager Alston was the first one called upon and he congratulated the Plainfield district upon its excellent showing, quoting a few statistics to show what had been done during the pas tyear, as well as in the first month of the present year. In Division I, of which Plainfield is a part, there was written last week on an average of four policies to every one of the 600 agents in the division, Plainfield's share being 136. He urged the men to try and make the coming year far better than last.

Assistant Superintendent T. J. Cahill, of Dover, briefly told of the work being done in his part of the district, and he promised to outdo the Plainfield district in the getting of new business this year. Dr. H. H. Lowerie, who has been a medical examiner for the company twenty-seven years, made a few remarks in which he paid high tribute to the company and the excellent service of Superintendent Ball. He was followed by Assistant Superintendent W. C. Hope, of Somerville, who is also president of the assistant superintendent's association, told of the individual work of the agents in the district, an encouraging feature being that there are two agents who were forty-fifth in line for the greatest amount of business secured by all the agents in the United States.

Assistant Secretary L. V. Ash told of the large amount of business turned in by the Plainfield district and he hoped that the agents would keep up the good work.

The concluding address was made by Editor Joseph Atkinson, of the Prudential Record, who gave the men much inspiration by his earnest words in praise of the company and the enormous work being done by it. He recalled the fact that the company began business twenty-nine years ago with a total expenditure of $5,900 in cash, aside from the $100,000 deposited with the State Insurance Department, permitting the company to do business outside of the State. He said that the Prudential Insurance Company is sixth greatest in the world and this is due to the army of agents which have stood behind that $5,900, the original cash capital, as well as the efforts of John F. Dryden and Leslie D. Ward.

Mr. Atkinson stated that there are now six million policies in force, and the increase last year was over a half million policies. The business issued and paid for amounted to $812,000,000 and the total assets $89,000,000. The increased assets in 1904 amounted to $16,000,000 and there was paid out to policy holders last year $130,00,000.

In conclusion Mr. Atkinson urged the men to work together harmoniously and secure a greater amount of business this year than ever before. Frequently during his address, the speaker became eloquent in his reference to the great men of the times and the Prudential Insurance Company and again and again he was roundly applauded.

The banquet was concluded when at the suggestion of Superintendent Ball three cheers were given for the company, the guests and the agents.

DIPLOMATIC PLACES HELD BY JERSEYMEN

EIGHTEEN OF ITS CITIZENS ARE NOW STATIONED ABROAD.

Jerseymen are scattered all over the globe looking after the interests of this country in the diplomatic and consular service, and everywhere they are attending to their duties in a manner which has won high commendation for their efficiency. Some of the posts held by the men from New Jersey are important, and, while changes are expected after March 4 the State will not lose any prestige in the diplomatic and consular service if the combined efforts of Senators Kean and Dryden can prevent it.

At the present time there are eighteen positions in the diplomatic and consular service held by Jerseymen. They are as follows: George Barclay Reives, second secretary at the United States Embassy at Vienna, holds one of the most important posts on the continent; William F. Powell, the Minister to Haiti, has a position which calls for plenty of decision, firmness and tact, and Mr. Powell has displayed these excellent qualities at all times, and insured the proper consideration for the rights of this country and its citizens.

John B. Jackson as Minister to Greece, Roumania and Servia, finds plenty to do in looking after the interests of the United States. It is expected that he will shortly be relieved of the missions to Servia and Roumania. Frank D. Allen is Vice-Consul at Autofagosta, Chile; F. Percy Scott is Vice-Consul at Port Limon, Costa Rica; Harold S. Van Buren is Consul at Nice, France, and William A. Prickitt is Consul at Rheims, France.

William F. Doty is Consul at Tahaiti, Society Islands; H. D. Van Sant is Consul at Guelph, Canada; George H. Bridgman is Consul at Kingston, Jamaica; Richard Jones is Vice-Consul at Southampton, England; Felix S. S. Johnson is Consul at Stanbridge, Quebec; George S. Schetky is Consular Agent at Naimo, Victoria, British Columbia; Alfred K. Moe is Consul at Dublin, Ireland, and James Johnson is Consul-General at Hankow, China, a very important post in the service, as is that held by Samuel Smith as Consul at Moscow, Russia, with Thomas Smith as Vice-Consul.

Samuel R. Gummere, the Consul at Tangiers, Morocco, has had plenty of work in dealing with the unreliable Moors, and if the recommendation of Secretary Hay is acted upon favorably by Congress he will be advanced to the grade of Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary.

East Front Street Cleared.

Township Committeeman Bruchman, of Scotch Plains, earned the thanks of drivers by tackling the big drifts on East Front street, between the Plains and the city line, soon after the big storm ceased. He kept teams and forty men at work constantly and today the road was entirely cleared. Today the roads of Fanwood township are being opened.

NO CONTEST AT PRIMARIES

Republicans Choose Delegates for County Convention.

FAVOR MAYOR PERKINS

Leaders Surprised at the Size of the Attendance at the Primaries—Delegates Uninstructed.

Republican primaries held Saturday night for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the Union county convention which will nominate a successor to the late George Embree, of Westfield, were run off with more than clock-like precision. Each of the four wards required less than ten minutes to select delegates and the Third ward was obliged to wait several minutes until 8:20 before its primary could be held. The leaders were surprised at the attendance, each ward being well represented.

While the delegates were uninstructed, there was an opinion and belief that they would act in accordance with the delegates chosen at Westfield, and as Mayor Randolph Perkins, of that place, secured the delegates there at the primaries, it is almost a sure thing that he will receive the support of the Plainfield delegates.

There was no contest and although the leaders had been approached by the Roselle Republicans asking for their support for their candidate, Mr. Cawl, it is not believed that the Plainfield delegates will throw their votes to that end of the county. They believe that Westfield is entitled to the honor, inasmuch as the vacancy occurred there.

City Clerk James T. MacMurray called the First ward primary promptly at 8 o'clock, and Horace G. Adams was made chairman. Sandford Robinson was the secretary. These delegates were chosen: Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Elias H. Bird, Sandford Robinson, Ralph I. Telles.

J. Hervey Doane called the Second ward primary to order, and after being made chairman, William R. Townsend was made secretary. These delegates were elected: J. Hervey Doane, Thomas Hanna, Frank T. Ostrom, William R. Townsend, William N. Runyon.

After waiting several minutes until 8:20, John W. Murray, Jr., called the Third ward representatives together. He was made chairman and John Cose secretary. The delegates chosen are as follows: Charles J. Fisk, George J. Tobin, Charles Foster, John Cose and John W. Murray, Jr.

The Fourth ward primary was held at 8:30, when Andrew McCardell called the meeting to order. Councilman Frank DeWitt Randolph was chosen chairman and John H. Cook secretary. These delegates were selected: Herbert Buxton, Alexander Ayers, John Kriney, John H. Cook, Arthur Case, Walter Clark and Adolph Wolgang.

In each primary the delegates were empowered to fill their own vacancies should any occur. There was no other business beside that of selecting delegates and after the primaries were held the delegates adjourned to the city clerk's office to secure their credentials and sign the necessary blanks.

The Union County Republican convention will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Berkeley Hotel, Elizabeth, and it is expected that the meeting will be a short one as no fight is looked for. It is believed that Roselle's aspirations will fade away when it is learned that Westfield has the majority of delegates.

Tonight the Democrats throughout the county will hold their primaries to elect delegates. So far as known the members of this party have no fight on. The two persons most prominently mentioned as candidates are Joseph Hague and Joseph Gunn, both of whom have served one year in the Assembly. The local primaries will be held at 105 East Front street at 8 o'clock.

Chase Was Postponed.

On account of the deep snow and impassable drifts, the weekly chase of the Watchung Hunt Club was postponed from last Saturday. If possible the chase will be held as usual next Saturday afternoon. This makes the third weekly chase which has had to be put off on account of the weather.

Authoress to Speak.

Miss Myra Kelly, a well known authoress, will give a talk at a tea to be held Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock under the auspices of the colored industrial school of Grace church, at the home of Mrs. J. Gilmore Drayton, of 104 East Ninth street.

—The Lackawanna locomotives are to be rearranged in different classes and renumbered as rapidly as possible.

PLAINFIELD COVETS STATE SENATORSHIP

WHY LOCAL REPUBLICANS WANT TO "STAND IN" WITH WESTFIELD.

Just now there are good reasons, according to the Republican leaders here, why Westfield should be supported in its efforts to elect a successor to the late George Embree in the Assembly. Next fall there is to be chosen a successor to State Senator Joseph Cross and Plainfield wants the support of Westfield, as well as other Republicans throughout the county for its candidate. Two persons prominently mentioned at this time for the place are Ernest R. Ackerman and City Judge William N. Runyon. Both have been candidates for State Senator before, and after making a fight, stepped aside for an Elizabeth man.

It is understood that Roselle will make a bid for the Assembly nomination to be made at Elizabeth tonight, basing their claim on the fact that they have not had a representative in the lower House in twenty years and they think it is time that some honors were accorded them. The leaders, however, do not expect a fight at the convention, for it is thought that the majority of the delegates will favor the Westfield candidate, Mayor Randolph Perkins.

MAKES PLEA FOR WORK AMONG THE ISRAELITES

MARK LEVY DECLARES JEWS SPIRITUAL WELFARE MUST BE CONSIDERED.

Mark Levy, a native of London, who is a Christianized Jew, delivered an address in the Church of the Holy Cross, yesterday morning, in the interest of his work. An able and interesting speaker, his discourse dealt in the main with importance of missionary work among the Israelites, dwelling on the fact that in ages past, these people had labored unceasingly for the spiritual welfare of the Gentiles.

In his remarks, Mr. Levy said: "Sometimes Christians say, 'We are glad you came over to us.' My reply is, 'No, you have come over to Israel, and I by the grace of God have simply entered into the spiritual inheritance of my forefathers, for Christ, the Messiah said, 'Salvation is from the Jews.' Our worship in this Episcopal church tonight is the spiritual expression of the ancient tabernacle and temple worship. The Psalms, the prophets and New Testament came through Israel and if we show no consideration for the spiritual welfare of the Jewish people, we display the spirit of the ingrate.

"Neither Jews nor Christians clearly understand how near they are to one another in the faith. Both worship one God and believe in the Trinity, that is, Avinu (our Heavenly Father), Meseach (Christ) and Ruach Haquodesh (the Holy Spirit.) Let us by kindness, personal testimony, and the gifts of tracts and New Testaments, present the claims of Israel's Messiah to His own brethren and give no offense to the Jew, the Gentile, nor the church of God."

MISS S. R. VAN WINKLE DEAD.

Passes Away After Long Illness at Her Home in Borough.

From the effects of a paralytic stroke which she suffered several months ago, Miss Susan Roome Van Winkle died yesterday afternoon at her home on Mercer avenue at Duer street. She was the daughter of the late Daniel G. and Rachael Roome VanWinkle and was born in New York city, January 4, 1827. She had been ill for more than a year but her suffering had been borne without a murmur and with a Christian fortitude that made her still more lovable to those about her.

Miss VanWinkle was a memoer of the Crescent Avenue church. She is survived by four brothers, former Mayor John H. VanWinkle, William H., and Daniel VanWinkle, of the borough, and Jacob R. VanWinkle, of this city.

Funeral services over the body will be held from her late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

—The fact that thousands of cases of White Label canned goods are sold every year, is proof that they are popular with the people. Neuman Brothers, the local selling agents, say only one trial is needed to prove their superiority.

PISCATAWAY SCHOOL PLAN

Petitions for Buildings in Three Separate Localities.

MEETING TOMORROW

Commissioners to Sit at New Market Will be Asked to Call a Public Meeting—The Solution.

As a solution of the school question which is agitating Piscataway township, petitions will be presented at a meeting of the school commissioners tomorrow afternoon, asking for appropriations for schools in several parts of the district. The commissioners will hold a session a New Market and it is likely that they will arrange for another meeting of the citizens of the township as is requested in the several petitions to be filed.

A. J. Gulick, of Lincoln, has obtained a large number of signatures to a petition, asking for the erection of a school house on Lincoln avenue, between Lincoln and Dewey Park, at a point known as Parker's Corner. In the petition $2,500 is requested to be donted by the voters. It is understood that the people of South Plainfield will ask for $1,000 for repairs and an addition to the present school house at that place.

Lawrence Kerwin, of Rock avenue, is circulating a petition which favors an appropriation of about $2,000 for the erection of a school building along that thoroughfare.

The people back of these petitions declare that if they are acted upon favorably at the public meeting to be called, then $10,000 will be sanctioned by them for a school house at New Market.

U. S. COURT DISTRICT NOT TO BE DIVIDED

PLAN IS TO MAKE SENATOR CROSS JUNIOR JUDGE OF PRESENT COURT.

The pending bill before Congress to give New Jersey another United States District Judge is for the double purpose of relieving Judge Lanning of much work and at the same time allowing United States Senator John Kean the pleasure of paying his political debts to Senator Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth.

There will be a new District Judge, but the district will not be divided. Both Judges, it is thought, will be of equal jurisdiction, but they will so divide the work that there will be no conflict of authority.

At first it was thought wise to divide the State into two districts, but as that would necessitate another district clerk, with assistants, as well as another circuit clerk, with assistants, the Attorney General's office in Washington counseled otherwise. The pending bill has passed the Senate, and will likely pass the House before March. It is said that the measure has the approval of the President.

Cross is now President of the New Jersey Senate, but his legislative labors will be over by April, so that he can then resign and go on the bench. He is in his last year of Senatorial term.

MRS. MEEKER BURIED.

Rev. Drs. Zelie and Schenck Officiate at the Funeral Services Yesterday.

The funeral services of Mrs. Margaret Meeker, mother of Robert A. Meeker, were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of the son, in West Front street. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Meeker was the only surviving charter member, was in charge. He read the Scripture and then spoke of the life and character of Mrs. Meeker, referring to the fact that she was the last of the charter members to pass away. He also stated that she was the third member of the church that had died within a short time. Following Dr. Zelie, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, read Scripture selections and offered prayer.

After the prayer, Rev. Dr. Zelie read a poem, appropriate to the death of Mrs. Meeker.

There were many floral tributes from relatives and friends, the casket being completely covered with beautiful flowers. The interment took place in the Baptist Cemetery in Plainfield avenue. The pall-bearers were Otto Mueck, B. Frank Coriell, Andrew J. Gavett, George M. Macintyre, H. W. Marshall and Henry Woodland.

NEGROES' TRIAL GOES ON

All Five Made Defendants in First Indictment.

ASSAULT THE CHARGE

Marshal Flack on the Stand When Court Is Adjourned Until This Afternoon.

With the court room filled to overflowing, James Terne, Whit Tunstall, Samuel Hunt, Lee Wells and Thomas Henderson, the Plainfield negroes charged with atrocious assault on three North Plainfield policemen on Christmas eve, were placed on trial before Justice Fort at Somerville today. Three indictments stand against them and they are to be heard separately on each one, today's charge being atrocious assault on Marshal Walter G. Smalley, the policeman who was hurt the least of the three.

The jury was addressed by Assistant Prosecutor Fred J. Pope in which he said that he would prove that all five were guilty as charged and he began calling the State's witnesses to bear him out. Borough Clerk Frank Rowley was first placed on the stand, simply to make plain the borough ordinances defining assault and to testify as to Smalley's regular appointment as a marshal.

He was followed by Marshal Smalley, who related the early part of the trouble in detail, from the time that he first noticed the crowd of colored men going up Somerset street until his attention was called to them again by Marshal Flack rapping for him as they were coming back to cross over the city line. He then told of the fight from his standpoint and was submitted to rigid cross-examination by Counsellor W. S. Angleman, who is appearing for Henderson.

Smalley was followed by Alfred Tranchand, of the borough, clerk in a local tea store, who gave important testimony. He said that he was on his way home and encountered the crowd of negroes just after he had said "good night" to Smalley, then standing in a doorway near the bridge. As he approached the five, they were acting in a very disorderly manner and when he neared them one said: "Here comes a spotty, let's kill the ——— ———." One of them peered in his face and after jostling him, exclaimed, "It's all right, let him go." His testimony was brought out to show that the colored men had been acting in a disorderly and offensive manner.

Marshal Joseph Flack followed Tranchand on the stand and his testimony was somewhat similar to that of Smalley's, beginning at the time when he (Flack) and Chief Marshal Weiss noticed the crowd making a disturbance at Somerset street and Lincoln place. He was still under examination when court was adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

WORKING OVERTIME TO CLEAR AWAY THE SNOW

STREET COMMISSIONER GAVETT KEPT BUSY ALL DAY SUNDAY.

In his effort to get the main thoroughfares of the city clear of big snow drifts as soon as possible, Street Commissioner Gavett kept the greater part of his storm force at work all day yesterday and the huge piles of snow are disappearing rapidly. The gang comprises sixteen men and twelve horses and carts, all of which are still on West Front street, which has been badly banked up all the way from Watchung avenue to Grant avenue. As soon as they are through with it, they will go to Somerset street and from there to Watchung avenue, finishing up within a day or so.

Mr. Gavett has a second gang at work which is cleaning sidewalks and which has encountered some very bad drifts. An impression prevails that the work is being done at the city's expense, but Mr. Gavett said today that all sidewalks cleared will be charged to the abutting property owner.

Taxation Report Ready.

It is learned that former Governor George T. Werts, to whom was delegated the task of drawing up the report of the Equal Taxation Commission, has completed his work, and that the report will be ready for presentation to the Legislature tonight.

LEGAL LIGHTS AT FEAST

Union County Bar Association Holds a Banquet.

AT CAFE MARTIN

C. A. Marsh Acts as Toastmaster—C. A. Reed One of the Speakers—List of Plainfielders Present.

Plainfield was well represented at the second annual banquet of the Union County Bar Association held at Cafe Martin, New York, on Saturday night, there being present Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, president of the association; former Senator Charles A. Reed, former City Judge W. A. Codington, former City Judge W. R. Coddington, former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, William Newcorn, Francis J. Blatz, members of the association, while Sheriff B. Frank Cornell and County Registrar F. H. Smith, of this city, and County Clerk J. C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, were guests.

Mr. Marsh spoke to the toast "He Did Not Look Afar Into the Surface of Time. All's Well That Ends Well." He also acted as the toastmaster. Mr. Reed also spoke. He dwelt upon the importance of every member of the bar becoming a member of the association which has for its chief object the elevation of the bar.

Among the other speakers were Hon. J. Franklin Fort, Richard V. Lindabury, Hon. Gilbert Collins, John K. English, Frank Bergen, J. C. Connolly and Judge Wilbur A. Heisley, of Long Branch.

Although the association is but two years old it has a membership of about seventy, yet it is the desire that this list be increased materially during the coming year. It was noted that here there are about thirty lawyers, yet not more than a dozen are members of the association.

BOULEVARD WORK DRAGGING ALONG SLOWLY

THOROUGHFARE WILL LIKELY BE NAMED MYRTLE AVENUE.

The work of opening a boulevard from Compton avenue, in the city, through Dunellen avenue to Green brook to connect with Myrtle avenue, in the borough, has been progressing steadily, the storm of last week being the only drawback to the improvement. The land has been cleared of trees and other obstructions and everything is now in readiness to make the boulevard. During the past two weeks workmen have been carting way the trees and debris. It was necessary to make several blasts to remove the stumps of trees.

This street will extend from Compton avenue one thousand feet north to the brook, and it is quite likely that it will take the name of Myrtle avenue, when connected with that avenue in the borough. In opening this avenue between the city and borough it will, of course, be necessary to place a bridge over the brook. It has been suggested by those interested in the improvement that it would be wise to take the bridge on West End avenue, now spanning Green brook and use it to connect the two municipalities and then places a new bridge on West End avenue.

The extensive improvements planned in that section of the borough and city will certainly demand a new bridge on West End avenue as the plans of Messrs O. W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield and N. B Smalley call for a boulevard on that avenue one hundred feet wide and the present bridge would be far too small for such an avenue.

As soon as the spring weather arrives the work of building the boulevard from Compton avenue to the brook will be started. The borough will do the same, although it will not have as much work to do in extending Myrtle avenue to the brook. All the preliminary work, such as the appointment of commissioners to assess benefits and damages, has been completed and the actual work can now be done.

—L. L. Manning is preparing for the work of erecting a new building on his corner of West Front street and Central avenue, has moved his marble works from the corner next to John Abbott's residence.

—If you have a house to rent, and have not advertised it today, count the number of house-owners who do advertise today and you will know how many people in the city have more enterprise than you have.

TROLLEY CAR CRASHES INTO GROCERYMAN'S RIG

HORSE IS SO BADLY INJURED THAT A PATROLMAN HAS TO SHOOT IT.

While being driven along West Front street near Mariners place, early Saturday night, a horse belonging to Edward J. Goerz, who conducts a grocery at 1216 West Front street, was struck by a west-bound trolley and so badly injured that it had to be shot. Just what caused the animal to get on the tracks is not known as the boy who was in charge claims that it turned suddenly as the car approached but the moterman insists that it was running away. The horse went down beneath the fender and it was impossible to get it out, causing a blockade of that track for some time.

Word of the accident was telephoned police headquarters and Patrolman Higgins went to the scene. He ended the animal's misery by shooting it at once, as its head was crushed and one leg broken. When the collision occured, the sleigh attached was forced into a snowbank and the boy occupying the seat was pitched out but escaped harm.

The car was filled with passengers who were shaken up by the suddenness with which it was brought to a stop.

REV. A. E. FINN'S SERMON ON "THE PETRIFIED MAN"

A STRONG APPEAL TO RESIST HARDENING FORCES OF THE WORLD.

"The Petrified Man," in the Christian life, was the subject of the sermon by Rev. Albert E. Finn, at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night. It was a strong and an earnest appeal to those whose lives have become hardened by the contact with the world, to turn and seek again the Kingdom of God.

Rev. Mr. Finn spoke of the many worldly influences which combine to harden the life of one who, though a professing Christian, may be far from a true Christian. His sermon dealt with the three forces in man which are petrified—the heart, the will and the conscience. The preacher referred to several stories illustrative of his subject, showing the spiritual petrification of the heart, will and conscience, and how eventually the whole being becomes like an adamantine stone. To draw further and further away from right and religious influence is, the speaker said, to become more and more immuned to unrightousness and evil.

The man who seeks religion, yet in his heart is hardened toward everything that is holy and Godlike, is like a man in a nightmare, who seems unable to attain that for which he yearns. In conclusion, as an antidote for the petrification which, as Rev. Mr. Finn said, is becoming more and more prevalent, the preacher urged upon his hearers that they let preeminently the spirit of God control their hearts, will and consciences, and act as a shield against the forces which tend to harden and to make the petrified man.

3 MAYORALTY NOMINEES

Republican, Democratic and Citizens' Tickets in Borough.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES

Overton, Buchanan, Clark and Swackhamer Suggested by Citizens—Other Parties Are at Sea.

With Mayor Newton H. Smalley's emphatic declaration that he will not accept a re-nomination as a candidate to succeed himself, the mayoralty bee has been buzzing in the boroughas it never buzzed before. With the approach of the March election and both parties divided among themselves, names for the place have been suggested without number during the past few days but most of it has been done by friends and in many instances without serious intent. At the present time neither Republicans, Citizens or Democrats, have any idea as to where their choice will rest.

The name most often mentioned in connection with the nomination is that of former Councilman Robert M. Clark, Jr., who has been urged repeatedly to head the Citizens' ticket but only to have him refuse.

When interviewed today Mr. Clark said that he had been approached by a number of citizens on the subject and that delegations from various organizations had waited upon him but that he had declined to allow his name to be used in connection with the mayoralty. Mr. Clark's business interests in Newark demand his entire time and he has stated several times that it would be impossible for him to become a candidate. Former Councilman Clark is considered one of the most popular men in the borough and the Citizens' party realizes that he would be the strongest candidate they could name. Efforts are being made to get Mr. Clark to reconsider his determination not to run.

In addition to Mr. Clark, other names that have been mentioned in connection with the Citizens' movement are those of Edward A. Overton, president of the Board of Education, former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer and Dr. J. H. Buchanan, though neither has as yet been approached directly.

The Republicans are practically in the dark in respect to mayoralty timber and of the many names mentioned, none have loomed very high. At the present time the leaders are active and matters will assume a definite turn within the next week. Mayor Smalley and Charles A. Reed profess to have no knowledge of a candidate, and others who have been interviewed speak in a similar strain.

The wrangle between the Democrats at the gathering Friday night and the sense of the meeting that the party should ally itself with the Citizens' has led to the belief that those not in favor of this move, will place a straight Democratic ticket in the field. At the gathering Friday former Mayor Wm. L. Saunders was one of those who favored a straight Democratic ticket and when spoken to today reiterated what he had said at the time. He continued, however, that though he and several others took this view, nothing had been accomplished since the meeting and he did not know that any action would result this week. He expressed the opinion that of all the possible candidates, Robert Clark, Jr., is the one to succeed Mayor Smalley.

AMUSEMENTS.

Satisfying indeed were the results last season of William Faversham's first engagement at the Grand Opera House. Mr. Faversham's popular star appeared in his success of former seasons, "Lord and Lady Algy," and enjoyed the most prosperous week of his career since leaving the Empire Theatre Stock Company. With "Letty" Mr. Faversham is expected to outdo last season's proud record, and set a standard for all of the Frohman attractions. He is the attraction at the Grand Opera House this week. There are those who claim that Pinero has never written a better play than "Letty." It is one of the conspicuous successes of Mr. Frohman's many 1904-05 productions and is destined for long life in American theatres. Mr. Faversham is most congenially placed in "Letty" and the sincerity of his acting in the strong scenes of the play has won over the few critics who were wont to claim that his art was confined to a limited sphere. It was a long struggle for Faversham to win his way into the hearts of certain scoffers, but his sterling ability emphasized itself during the recent engagement at the Hudson Theatre, and now he firmly occupies his undeniable place as a leading New York favorite.

WILL KILL THE CZAR

Terrorists Doom Russian Emperor and Army Officers.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR PROTESTS.

Situation In Poland Grows More Threatening—Strikes Extend to Odessa and Baltic Provinces. Prince Gurielly Shot.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 30.—The most serious feature of the strike situation in Russia is its continued extension in the Baltic provinces and in Poland.

Strikers are cutting telegraph wires and interrupting communications.

Fears are expressed of most serious disorders, especially in Poland.

There is much gossip about what is occurring at Tsarskoe Selo, but the only thing certain is that the emperor and his advisers have not reached a decision regarding further action. It is known, however, that a project for the creation of a sort of zemskyzabor, with a limited membership and along the lines of the old Russian land parliament, as a consultative body without power of action, has been discussed.

A small group of nobles of the Institute of Moscow have prepared a petition asking the emperor to invoke a national assembly.

No reports of disturbances at Dorpat, Reval or Lodz have been received here.

Governor General Trepoff has warned some foreign correspondents that if they continue to send out false and misleading reports of the situation they will be deported.

Prince Gurielly, an officer of the police guard, while driving past the iron works yesterday at Batoum was shot and killed by an unknown man. No arrests have been made.

The Warsaw strike disorders are becoming more serious. The ordinary life of the city is quite suspended. On Saturday the strikers stopped the street railway service, but remained otherwise orderly. Yesterday, however, they began wholesale pillage. The majority of the shops in Marshal Kovski street and the state vodka shops were looted. All the factories, shops, schools and theaters are closed, and the street lamps are extinguished. There have been several collisions between the police and strikers, and many arrests have been made. Peace abiding inhabitants are terror stricken.

At Warsaw 100,000 people are now out on strike. Thus far there have been no disturbances of any importance.

The street cars are not running, and no newspapers are published.

There is practically no bread left in the bakeries.

About 100,000 persons have struck at Lodz. Telephone communication with that city has been interrupted by the strikers.

At Libau there were some demonstrations on the part of the strikers during the night, and attempts were made to loot bakeries, but the rioters were dispersed by the troops, who have been re-enforced by a regiment from Kovno.

Some telegraph poles were torn down, but they have been replaced.

The governor has issued a proclamation reminding the workers of the patriotism they displayed on the occasion of the recent visit of Emperor Nicholas and the imperial family to Libau, declaring that the strike is the result of the activity of evilly disposed revolutionists who have nothing in common with the workmen and urging the latter to return to work and not embarrass the country while it is at war.

It is added that if the men resume their employments the governor will help them. Otherwise he will take energetic measures to restore order.

The zemstvos of Saratov, Nijni, Novgorod and Vladimir have adjourned because the St. Petersburg zemstvos are practically in control of the governmental machinery of the provinces, and some of the Liberals are trying to induce others to close with the object of further embarrassing the government and compelling it to yield to the demand for the convocation of constituent assembly.

A marshal of the nobility from one of the central provinces has expressed the opinion that the government cannot extricate itself from the present situation without very substantial concessions. He believed that within three months, in the face of thickening troubles, it would be obliged to create a zemskyzabor.

The situation in Poland is increasingly threateneing. There are prospects of extension of the strikes in Odessa and other manufacturing cities of southern Russia, where the workmen are better organized and more serious.

Meanwhile practically all classes anticipate renewed terrorism. It is said that when the leaders notified the Social Democrats that a truce had been proclaimed immediately after the close of the zemstvoists' congress they were told that the gantlet would again be thrown down to the aristocracy, but that this time the sovereign, who was specifically declared to be exempt from danger during the recent activity, as shown in the trial of Sasoneff, the assassin of Minister von Plehve, would be included in the challenge. Attempts especially are expected upon the officers who a week ago ordered the soldiers to shoot.

Evidence is accumulating that Emperor Nicholas throughout the present crisis has acted largely upon the advice of Grand Duke Sergius, who is the most reactionary member of the imperial family, the head of what is denominated the war party and whom the Liberals stigmatize as Russia's evil genius. With the first appearance of Father Gopon in the movement Sergius urged the necessity of putting down the demonstrations in the most energetic manner.

Emperor Nicholas and members of the imperial family are reported to be determined on drastic measures for the suppression of all agitation for economic or political reform. Reports continue rife that the terrorists are prepared to resume their activities.

Father Gopon, the leader of the St. Petersburg workmen, is reported to have escaped to Stockholm. The holy synod has denounced him as a "criminal priest," a betrayer of his sacred office.

A report from Warsaw says that a group of hussars ran down British Vice Consul Muoukain on Saturday night in Marshal Kovski street. Two hussars rushed at him with their swords, inflicting severe cuts across his face and lower lip. Dripping with blood, Muoukain was conveyed to the hospital, where he is now doing well. British Consul General Murray had a narrow escape from being similarly run down in Wierzbova street. It appears that the incidents were due to a company of hussars getting drunk and running amuck.

Warsaw is in a state of complete anarchy. Many have been killed or wounded in charges by troops and the recklessness of swashbuckling hussars. The only conveyances moving in Warsaw are military supply carts, ambulance wagons and tumbrils for the dead.

At St. Petersburg Sir Charles Hardinge, the British ambassador, has asked the Russian government to make inquiry into the outrages on the British consul general and vice consul at Warsaw.

HAY'S PROPOSAL.

Baron Hayashi Talked on Integrity of China.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister to Great Britain, talked freely on the subject of Secretary of State Hay's proposal for a conference by the powers on the integrity of China. Minister Hayashi does not favor the proposition as being likely to result in a satisfactory adjustment of the question and is of the opinion that it would not result in any improvement of the existing situation.

"Mr. Hay's proposal is decidedly interesting," said Baron Hayashi. "It is only another evidence of the sincere desire of the American state department to reach some acceptable solution of the vexed question of the preservation of the territorial integrity of China. For my part, however, I am unable to see how it could be effectual under the circumstances. If a conference should decide that all countries sign a treaty guaranteeing territorial integrity to China it is a question if we would be any better off. Treaties have been broken before without the signatories enforcing them by a resort to arms.

"What is the use of making an agreement with a country which has no regard for treaty promises? China is not like a country that could maintain its own neutrality and territorial integrity with the moral support of the powers. If so a treaty would be a good thing. But in the present case in the event of a breach of the treaty it is not likely that America would rush into war to enforce its observance, and therefore a treaty is valueless.

"Japan is now fighting to prevent the violation of Chinese territorial integrity and proposes to continue to prevent its violation by force of arms if necessary."

No Negro Troops From Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 30. Negro troops from Georgia will not be allowed to attend the inauguration of President Roosevelt on March 4. Governor Terrell will not grant permission to the colored troops to leave the state. The Lincoln guards of Macon, commanded by Sandy Lockhart, has already made arrangements to attend the inauguration of the president, but when formal request for leave of absence of the company is made it will be denied by the governor on the ground that he does not want the state of Georgia represented on such an occasion by negro troops.

Mine Fire Under Control.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 30.—The fire in the No. 4 mine of G. B. Markle & Co. at Jeddo has been extinguished. The fire was subdued by means of a bucket brigade on duty the greater part of the night.

Prince Eitel No Better.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The physicians in attendance on Prince Eitel issued a bulletin at 8 o'clock last night, saying that during the day the prince's temperature ranged from 100.6 to 100.7, that his pulse was strong at 90 and that he had repeated perspirations. During the evening Prince Eitel's respiration was somewhat more difficult and his cough increased.

BOTH CLAIM VICTORY

Great Battle Being Fought In Manchuria.

RUSSIANS LOST A THOUSAND MEN

Chansiamtun Reports Heavy Loss of Czar's Troops at Taking of Sandepas—Mischtschenko Is Wounded.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Field Marshal Oyama has assumed the aggressive all along the line south of Mukden, and engagements have occurred at Chenchelhpao and Heikoutai. Oyama reports that he has defeated the Russians at Chenchiehpao and Heikoutai.

General Kuropatkin claims to have broken through Field Marshal Oyama's left wing and to have threatened his communications with Yinkow. A high military official reports that General Kuropatkin has undertaken a general forward movement on both flanks, with the object of threatening both lines of Japanese communications and forcing the Japanese from their winter quarters.

A Tokyo report says that the American steamer M. S. Dollar, en route for Vladivostok with a cargo of provisions and forage, has been seized by the Japanese in the Pacific ocean east of Hokkaido island.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg say that at Chansiamtun the Russians lost 45 officers and 1,000 men killed or wounded when they captured the village of Sandepas. The Russians took 102 prisoners, besides arms, wagons and ammunition.

The general staff has received the following dispatch from General Sacharoff, General Kuropatkin's chief of staff:

"Our troops continue on the offensive at Sandepas. South of there a column of our cavalry encountered four Japanese battalions and six squadrons of cavalry advancing from Heikoutai.

"The Japanese fled, throwing their arms into ambulance wagons. One of our columns took many prisoners."

The battle commenced on the right flank on General Kuropatkin's initiative. The Japanese were driven back five miles from their advanced positions, defended by the reserve brigades. The fighting was furious at the Japanese center position. The Japanese endeavored to take Poutlioff (Lone Tree) hill and other positions, but were driven back with heavy loss.

The Russian forces going into battle are well prepared for the weather conditions, being warmly clad and shod, well fed and in good spirits.

Ths activity of General Mischtschenko's fast riding cavalry continues. A large Japanese transport train was captured by them on the extreme right of the west flank.

A telegram from Huan mountain states that General Mischtschenko has been wounded in the leg.

A Szefangtai dispatch says fighting was renewed at daylight. The right flank, re-enforced by troops from the east, began a movement against the Japanese left. One corps, leaving Szefangtai at midnight, marched about seven miles southwest and at daylight attacked. The infantry, backed up by artillery, drove the Japanese from two villages at midday after a sharp fight and continued to make progress, the rest of the right flank becoming engaged. The Russian artillery fire was heavy, but the Japanese remained almost silent. The captured villages presented a warlike picture, with Japanese and Russian dead lying side by side in the streets.

The Russian infantry kept under the cover of the walls and houses to protect themselves from the Japanese fire from adjoining villages.

It is snowing and bitterly cold, and the troops eagerly seek the protection of the villages.

During the fighting there was a heavy fire along the right flank front and an advance was made. The wind at the Russians' backs drove the snow into the faces of the Japanese, and it was very difficult to see any distance. One Siberian rifle regiment suffered somewhat heavy losses in consequence.

Dispatches from Japanese Manchurian headquarters say:

"Our troops occupied Liutaiko Saturday and were twice counter attacked by a superior force of the enemy. We entirely repulsed the enemy.

"Another force at dawn on Sunday attacked the enemy in the neighborhood of Feitssaihotzu, about two miles north of Heikoutai, and occupied the position. The enemy fiercely counter attacked our force which assailed Heikoutai, but was repulsed with loss, and our force occupied the neighborhood of Heikoutai.

"The enemy in the direction of Liutaiko and Heikoutai has entirely retreated to the right bank of the Hun river. Our force is now pursuing them.

"In the direction of Chenchiehpao and Likajeutan the enemy made several attacks, but were repulsed. The enemy attacking these points belonged to Kuropatkin's Eighth and Tenth corps.

"In the direction of Heikoutai the enemy is composed of the First and mixed corps of infantry, together with a cavalry division under General Mischtschenko.

"We captured 500 officers and men."

The Russians are massing about 65,000 troops on the Japanese left and bombarding the left flank and center. Small forces of Russians are attacking all along the line.

In the direction of the left wing a Japanese detachment were victors at Chenchiehpao and occupied Liutiako and Lichiawopeng on Saturday, the Russians retreating north and west.

Advices this morning from the seat of war instead of confirmation of Saturday night's report that General Kuropatkin had broken through the Japanese left, Lieutenant General Sacharoff's officially admits that the Russians have been compelled to retire from Sandepas on account of their inability to carry a redoubt. It is also significant that dispatches from the front have again suddenly ceased, which is regarded as an indication of the failure of the operation and strengthens the first impression that it was a demonstration undertaken to distract the people at home from the present situation.

A Tokyo dispatch says that Russian supplies from the interior are concentrated at Lake Baikal, owing to the fact that the railway east of that point is blocked with snow. Vladivostok is now isolated on the land side as well as the sea front.

It is reported that orders have been placed in England for several large warships for Japan.

Twentieth Woman Claims to Have Married "Bluebeard" Last October.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—The police here claim to have discovered another woman who was married to Johann Hoch, wanted by the Chicago authorities for murder, bringing the total number of Hoch's wives up to twenty. Caroline Schaefer called on Captain Donaghy of the detective department and told him that she was married to Hoch on the 31st of last October.

She asserted that he lived with her about a week and decamped with $200 of her money which she had intrusted to him for investment. She furnished a description of Hoch, which tallies in every detail with that sent broadcast by the Chicago police department. The woman said she recognized a newspaper photograph of Hoch as that of her missing husband.

Captain Donaghy said that he had sent a confidential telegram to the Chicago police, but declined to state the nature of the message.

BIG FIRE AT OMAHA

Nebraska's Great City a Prey to Flames.

MANY LARGE BUILDINGS DESTROYED

Entire Fire Brigade Could Not For Many Hours Get Blaze Under Control—No Loss of Life Occurred.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 30.—A fire here has totally destroyed a half block of five story buildings, containing valuable stocks of wholesale and commission firms. Despite the efforts of the entire fire department, with half a hundred streams playing on the flames, they continued to spread until damage to the extent of $750,000 had been done.

The flames gathered such headway before the firemen arrived that they could not be checked. They spread rapidly to adjoining business places in the same building and by 1:30 o'clock had entirely destroyed a solid half block of five story buildings between Harney and Howard streets and Eleventh street and the alley in the rear.

Despite the fact that the entire force was at work on the burning buildings with the entire equipment of the city fire department, throwing half a hundred streams on the interior of the buildings, the flames continued to spread for several hours. They ate their way into the building occupied by Porter, Riorson & Hoobler Co., manufacturing chemists, shortly before 2 o'clock, and a series of explosions followed, causing the flames to spread with renewed vigor. Adjoining Snyder's commission house on the north were four other commission houses, and the fire had enveloped these places before streams could be started on them.

These firms occupied the first story and the basement of the five story building on the corner of Eleventh and Howard streets. The upper four floors were occupied by the M. E. Smith Dry Goods company as a storage house. The stocks of all these firms were soon in ashes. The flames attacked the five story building occupied by the F. P. Kirkendall Shoe company, covering a quarter of a block. This structure was an entire loss, together with the stock of the Kirkendall company.

To the west of this building was the Martin-Cott Hat company, wholesalers, whose stock was almost entirely destroyed. The flames then spread to the Porter, Riorson & Hoobler Co. destroying the stock and building.

Steamer Manhanset Burned.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 30.—The steamer Manhanset was burned almost to the water's edge early yesterday. She was the property of the Montauk Steamship company and was employed as a freight and passenger carrier between this port and Sag Harbor. The boat was tied up to the dock after discharging her cargo, and all hands had left with the exception of the watch. The cause of the fire is not known, the fire being almost beyond control when discovered by the watchman. It is thought that she is damaged beyond repair.

Blood poisoning followed, and, although Dr. Brenneman had the best medical attention in New York and here, he died. He was thirty-four years old and unmarried.

Blizzard In the Yukon.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30.—A dispatch from Vancouver says reports from the north tell of the worst blizzard that has raged in the Yukon since the first white man arrived there on a hunt for gold. The gale swept as far down as Dawson City, but was worst on the American Yukon. In Valdes the snow is piled in drifts twenty-four feet high, while in other parts it is from fourteen to twenty feet deep. Miners and prospectors are suffering untold hardships, and it is believed that a number of men have died from cold and exposure.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 30, 1905.

Seems strange that no one seems willing to be placed on any of the three mayoralty tickets to be named in North Plainfield, and yet modesty never was a characteristic of borough politics.

Abe Hummel, famous in New York for bringing about the legal separation of mismated couples, has been indicted by a grand jury and will have to divorce himself from the charge of subornation of perjury.

The New Brunswick Times refers to State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker as the author of the Meeker election law. Reminds one of the woman who thought it strange that the man who composed "Tannhauser" should be the author of "The Simple Life."

BUSINESS MEN DEFEATED BY PASSAIC SECOND TEAM

BUT ARE GIVEN GOOD TIME AFTER BASKET BALL GAME.

The fact that the second team of the Passaic Y. M. C. A. defeated the local Y. M. C. A. Business Men's basketball team Saturday night, was not enough to mar the pleasure of the occasion for the Plainfielders, who were royally entertained at Passaic and admirably treated. The game war an interesting one, the score being 38 to 25, while the reception which the local players were afforded was all that could be desired.

The game was played on the Passaic Y. M. C. A. gymnasium floor, and was won for the home team by clean superior passing and team work. The game was singularly clean, and was free from all unpleasant features. The fouls were few and were undisputed, while the game wrs not so easy a victory as to be uninteresting. On the contrary, the Plainfielders kept their opponents on their feet, and put up a strong defense. Had the offensive game been equally good, the score would have been different. Heicher and Spicer were the strong points for the Business Men. The line-up of the local team was as follows: Heicher and Miner, forwards; Spicer, center; Letson and Clark, guards.

After two motions, the court decided that there was a defection in both the summons and the service, and the cause was discontinued. The dispute concerned the purchase of goods from the plaintiff by one of the defendants without the knowledge of the other. Hyman had bought goods from Magelies, and Hamberger was held liable for the same.

TO BE REPRESENTED IN POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE GAMES ON FEB. 18.

Leal's School track team will be represented in the annual races and track meet to be held on February 18 by the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, at the Twenty-third Regiment Armory at Brooklyn. The affair is a big event for the Greater New York schools, and on that occasion the High Schools and academies of New Jersey are invited to compete. Leal's has not been represented in an affair of this kind for many years, and the members of the track team are already preparing for the meet.

Captain Edwin Daniel, winner of the city athletic inter-scholastic championship last year, has called out his team and has begun training for the event. He has selected the following to represent Leal's School in the meet: William Glenney, Edgar Lawrence, George Hooley, Roger Wilcox, Edward Suffern and J. Manning. Nearly all the above named are prominent in Leal's School athletics, and have been in training dur ng the basketball season. The events as announced by the management of the Poly Prep. track team will be: 60 yard dash, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, one mile run, one mile relay race, (four men team), pole vault and shot put.

The competition is of particulaar importance to the New York and Brooklyn schools, as the championship of Greater New York is determined at the meet. The three rival schools in Brooklyn, Erasmus Hall, Boys' High and Poly Prep. schools, will run in a one mile relay, not open, in addition to the one conducted for the other schools. The prizes in the events will be gold, bronze and silver medals, and in the relay races silver cups will be presented to each member of the winning team.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—It is predicted that before the coming summer is over there will be a direct trolley line between Wilmington, Del., and the Delaware Water Gap.

—"Webb" table linens are everywhere recognized as being the best. Woodhull & Martin have just placed on sale a grand line of 1905 patterns, ranging in price from 50c. to $2.50 per yard, with napkins to match.

—It is stated that the Lackawanna Railroad Company will soon remove the old railroad bridge across the Delaware river above Delaware Station. A bill has been introduced into the Pennsylvania Legislature providing for the establishment of free toll bridges between the two States, and if New Jersey acts with Pennsylvania there is a possibility that this bridge will be purchased and made a free public road bridge.

is a fairly large amount of money. How to get it is a question, and how to take care of it after you do get it is another. The way to get it is to save, and deposit a certain sum each month. By allowing the interest to compound semi-annually, the principle is surprisingly increased. We take care of the large and small deposits and pay 3½ per cent. interest.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Though to a certain extent the annual visit at the Industrial Home is a yearly ceremony, the inspection which recently took place at the home, when Superintendent Hummer entertained, showed the building to be in first class condition and everything to be conducted in the most approved manner. The Township Committee members who attended the dinner given by Mr. Hummer made an inspection of the rooms and inmates, and found that everything was being done for the welfare and comfort of the dependents. To provide for the unfortunate inmates at the Industrial Home is by no means an easy matter, yet so far as the visitors could see, every care is being taken by those in charge and the utmost precautions are used in the cases of sickness. There has been considerable sickness at the home during the last winter, and at present six out of the twelve at the home are on the sick list. Those who are at the home now are George Peters, blind; John Stinger, Christopher Branford, Celia Mundy, feeble minded; Nathaniel Sanders, Elmer Kreuger, Caroline Clawson, Elizabeth Smith, Howard Wright, William Koof, Henry Johnston and Mary Spencer. The above have been in the institution for terms varying from two weeks to eleven years. The one who has been in the home eleven years is Elmer Kreuger, a cripple. Though up to his eleventh year, the boy was able to walk a little, for the last four yars, he has been unable to move, and is obliged to remain in bed continually.

Tomorrow and Wednesday are the last days in which delinquent taxes can be paid without the extra payment of costs. All the taxpayers whose bills have not been paid by Wednesday will be recorded at the county clerk's office. Abundant notice of taxes which are due, have and will be given before the names of the delinquents are publicly announced.

The women of the Methodist church have arranged for a chicken supper to be given at the church on Thursday, February 16. The affair promises to be an enjoyable one and a leader among local church functions.

There will be a meeting of the Township Committee of Piscataway on Wednesday afternoon. Important business will be transacted. It will take place at Hotel Nelson.

In the local churches the regular pastors occupied the pulpits yesterday morning, while at the Presbyterian church Mark Levy spokin the evening.

Mrs. Rebecca Swackhamer, who has been confined to her home by a slight attack of the grip, is now much improved.

H. S. Garretson is recovering from a severe cold which threatened to develope into grip.

PLAINFIELD AND FANWOOD.

The Republican voters met Saturday night to elect two delegates to the county convention, which meets at Elizabeth tomorrow, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Assembly to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman-elect Charles Embree, who died two months ago. George H. Johnston and Edward L. Hand were the delegates selected. The election will be held Tuesday, February 7. But little interest was manifested by the voters in the primary and the poll of votes election day will probably be a light one.

One of the largest shoots the gun club has held this season was the weekly club shoot held Saturday afternoon. The members had planned to attend the Plainfield club's shoot, but when this was postponed on Friday the members decided to hold the weekly shoot as usual. The club's range being situated under the foot of the mountain, was protected some from the blizzard of Wednesday. No regular match shooting was held but the individual scores made were very good, especially the scores of the five-men team who are to meet Plainfield's team shortly.

The borough Republicans take but little interest in the special election to be held on Tuesday, February 7. No primary was held Saturday night to elect a delegate to the county convention. There is some talk of sending a delegate by petition. Neither the town or borough taxpayers are very enthusiastic over what they deem a needless expense to the county of $10,000.

Charles R. Vincent, superintendent of the Sunday-school, led the weekly B. Y. P. U. meeting held last night in the parlors of the church. As this was the monthly missionary meeting, Mr. Vincent gave an interesting talk upon the work being done in the foreign fields.

The roads were so bad with snow drifts between town and the borough yesterday that it was impossible to run the stage for the church services at the Baptist church. Consequently the attendance at both services was much smaller than usual.

The Plainfield Gun Club shoot, which was to have been held Saturday afternoon, was postponed on account of the weather conditions. The match shoot between the Brookside's five-men team and the Plainfield club team has been postponed for a time.

Miss Lulu Hollingsworth led an interesting monthly missionary meeting of the Epworth League last night at the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of East Front street, spent Sunday with Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr.

The Democratic voters meet tonight in the Bucket and Engine Company rooms to elect delegates to the county convention.

Mr. and Mrs. George Klemser, of Murray Hill, were the guests of friends in town Sunday.

Miss Evelyn Buckley, of South avenue, has been visiting her aunt, Miss Susie Parse.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Baptist church, will be entertained by Mrs. Thomas Gage on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Bethune Dunham, who has been in a very low condition with pneumonia several days, is now much improved.

Miss Grace Dayton was confined at home yesterday with symptoms of grip.

LEADERS ARE DIVIDED OVER PROSECUTORSHIP

THOMPSON BACKS GRIGGS, WHILE FRELINGHUYSEN SUPPORTS REGER.

The meeting of the Somerset County Republican Executive Committee at Cawley's Hotel, Somerville, Saturday afternoon, developed into a hot scrap between the present Prosecutor, James L. Griggs, and John F. Reger, a member of the law firm of Dungan & Reger, of that place, who wished to succeed Mr. Griggs to that office. Only twenty members of the committee were in attendance at the session, which was to decide the question. Griggs has the backing of former Senator Lewis A. Thompson. Col. J. S. Frelinghuysen is supporting Reger.

The vote on the question was a tie, and no decision was reached. It was decided that the committee drop the matter in the interest of harmony. Therefore the appointment, which will be made this week, will rest entirely with Gov. Stokes. Old leaders believe Frelinghuysen is endeavoring to oust Thompson from the leadership. There is some talk of the latter being a candidate for State Senator next fall, while it is believed Frelinghuysen also has his mind on the nomination.

Miss Nellie Meade, of this city, is spending a month with relatives at High Bridge.

E. B. Maynard, of North avenue, is still confined to his home with an attack of the grip.

NEW JERSEY EXHIBIT BACK FROM ST. LOUIS

WILL BE PLACED IN STATE HOUSE MUSEUM AS SHOWN AT FAIR.

New Jersey's exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, filling several cars, has arrived in Trenton, and under the direction of Curator Morse is being unloaded and placed in the museum at the State House. When completely installed it will make a splendid addition to the museum. Several of the handsome glass cases in which portions of the exhibit were and in these these parts will be placed in the museum just as they were at the fair.

The insect exhibit, which won a grand prize, will be one of the main additions to the collections at the State House. Some of the animals and birds have already been unpacked and mounted. Among them is a splendid specimen of the bald eagle. A striking group is one showing the various species of swallows found in this State. This is a portion of a shed showing the interior of a section of the chimney, and the barn swallow, the chimney swift, the eave swallow and the martin are mounted true to nature, with their nests shown just as the birds build them.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The men of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will give an entertainment and supper in the parlors of the church tomorrow night. The men will do the cooking and serving.

St. Mary's Guild of St. Stephen's church will meet tonight at the home of the rector, 721 East Sixth street. St. Ann's Guild of the same church will meet at the rector's home Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. C. E. Herring and Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., exchanged pulpits yesterday morning. Mr. Herring's sermon was on "The Power and Efficacy of Prayer" and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who heard his earnest convincing argument for more praying by God's people. Rev. Mr. Herring's text was Acts 1-14.

The canons of the Protestant Episcopal church, as amended to the general convention, Boston, in October, have been published, and are now in the hands of the clergy of this city as well as elsewhere throughout the United States of America. While there are other changes denoted in the recently published pamphlet, the one of widest interest is that concerning the question of divorce and remarriage. The "compromise canon," as it is called, has made it impossible for any clergyman of the church to officiate at the marriage ceremony of a person whose divorce is recognized by the church unless a full year has elapsed since this divorce was recorded. It otherwise states, too, that legal proof of such divorce, with the date of same, must be put in the hands of the clergyman. Another important point is that any clergyman may refuse to solemnize a marriage, if such be his desire.

LITERARY.

President Roosevelt was elected because the people believed him honest in his declaration for "Fair Play." Robert M. LaFollette was elected Governor of Wisconsin because he has fought the people's fight to rid the State of railroad tyranny and to estop the rate discriminations that kill individual industry and open competition. Governor LaFollette is still fighting the commonwealth's fight, but President Roosevelt has reversed his Fair Play policy and rallied to the railroads's support by appointing to the Federal bench a notorious railroad lobbyist. Collier's for January 21 comments upon the President's surprisingly bold and open affront to Wisconsin.

Miss Ethel Vroom, of Bayonne, Hunterdon county, spent Sunday with her aunt, Miss Wilhelmina Vroom, of East Sixth street.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Martha Washington Council, No. 38, Daughters of America, met Saturday night and elected nine members, received three propositions and initiated one. The Council will hold an entertainment on Saturday night, Feb. 25.

Miantonomo Tribe, I. O. R. M., at its regular meeting Friday night received two candidates, and enjoyed a pleasant social evening. Instructions were given to the representative to the Grand Lodge, C. L. Holstein, in preparation for next month's meeting. Plans for a delegation of local members to attend the meeting at Tonaluka Tribe, of Cranford, at the district session tomorrow night, were discussed, and a large number of Miatonoma members will be in attendance. The past sachems degree will be conferred upon three members of the local tribe.

Mrs. Maggie Young, of Warrenville, who has been visiting friends in Plainfield, has returned home.

John Valiant, Jr., and R. E. Hallock, of the borough, are registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Mrs. Thomas Byrne, Sr., of Washington, Warren county, has been visiting friends here for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. George Howell, of Pleasant Grove, Warren county, have returned home after a visit with friends here.

ONCE A DAY LABORER

ROMANTIC STORY OF CZAR'S MINISTER OF RAILWAYS.

Worked in an American Factory for One Dollar a Day, and Ran Locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

St. Petersburg.—Prince Michael Hilkoff, imperial minister of railways and transportation in Russia, the genius of the Trans-Siberian railway, has had a most romantic and inspiring career, beginning his working life as a day laborer in America.

When the Russian serfs were emancipated by Alexander II., the grandfather of the present czar, Prince Hilkoff's father was ruined, at least so far as available financial resources were concerned. Just at this juncture the father and son began a bitter quarrel, which ended in voluntary exile on the part of the latter. In his anger, the son, the prince of to-day, renounced all his titles and ancestral estates. He also resigned his office at court—as an officer in the guard of the Russian empress—and forthwith sailed for the United States as a common emigrant.

He arrived in Philadelphia absolutely penniless. For a week he walked the streets, hungry, cold, homeless, an alien in a strange land. One day he entered a machine shop and blurted out: "I want work at any wage." "What's your name?" asked the foreman. "Mi-kale," replied the young man, pronouncing his name in English, with evident difficulty. "My other name's John," he added, thinking that John was as good a name as any other. And thus Prince Hilkoff became John Mikale, an attendant of a bolt making machine at one dollar a day.

That machine shop was as a paradise to him, after his many days of tramping. He lived on 50 cents, and saved the remainder, until he had enough to pay for a course of instruction in mechanical engineering. After attending the bolt-making machine for two years, and having secured a good working knowledge of mechanical engineering, he went in search of a job where there would be better chances of promotion.

He found his opportunity at the offices of the Pennsylvania railway, where he was given a situation as a brakeman on a freight train. From that day forward he stuck to railway work, devoting all his spare time to the study of railway engineering. Presently he became brakeman of a regular passenger train, and later was promoted to the position of locomotive engineer.

In time he began again to look about for an opening that would afford him a still greater chance for the exercise of his talents. One day the minister of railways from the South American republic of Venezuela was a passenger on the train of which "John Mikale" was engineer. There was a breakdown, and the engineer was the only man who kept his head, and the only man who knew how to fix up matters without waiting for the repair train to come. The South American visitor engaged the engineer in conversation, learned that the young man wanted a higher position, and thereupon offered him a place as superintendent of a new railway in Venezuela. "John Mikale" accepted, and went to South America at the expense of his new friend.

Then came a longing for his old home in Russia. He decided to throw up his job and return to his native land at whatever set-back to his career. Sailing as "John Mikale," and concealing his true name and title, even when he reached Russia, he applied for a situation on one of the principal Russian railways. As "John Mikale," therefore, he began his life over again in his own country as a station agent in an obscure town. "My chance will come," he said, noting that there was frequent trouble in the movement of trains at his station.

That psychical moment came for "John Mikale." The trains became hopelessly blocked day after day, and the heads of the line far away were in despair. Mikale wired: "Will you leave it to me?" "We'll try you," came back the answer. And a few hours later "John Mikale" had so arranged switches and schedules that never again were trains congested at that point. His technical skill shown in that emergency brought him to the attention of his superiors, and even to the czar himself. As a result, he was ordered to come to headquarters in St. Petersburg.

There he was given a position on the technical staff, and thenceforth was promoted rapidly higher and higher, until he occupies a position corresponding to that which he had abandoned in South America—general manager. Not until then did he reveal his identity as Russian prince and a former officer of the imperial guard. So pleased was the czar to find that this man was one of his own subjects, and so delighted was his majesty with the remarkable capacity and skill displayed by this particular general manager, that he restored to Prince Hilkoff all the estates and titles he had renounced when he emigrated to America.

WAYS TO KILL MILK GERM.

There Are Many of Them, But the Bacteria Crushing Machine Is Last.

Many ways of killing the bacteria in milk have from time to time been suggested. A recent and ingenious way is to crush the bacteria to death by pressure, as a man crushes an insect under the pressure of his boot. "A bacteria-crushing machine," said a chemist, "has been built and tried with partial success. This machine is capable of putting forth a hydrostatic pressure of 450,000 pounds to the square inch. Milk has been squeezed under it till the bacteria howled for mercy. Seriously, milk has received at the hands of this machine a pressure of 90 tons. The effect of a pressure so enormous was to make the milk keep longer—it kept for five, six and seven days. This showed that some of its bacteria, the fermenting bacteria at least, had been killed. But though the milk remained sweet it began to emit finally a strange, new odor and it had a strange, new taste. This showed that other bacteria in it had not been harmed. Prof. Wiley's poison squad's tests have proved that preservatives in milk are harmful. A pressure of 70 tons preserves milk for three or four days and there is no strange odor or strange taste. Maybe before long chemicals as a preservative of milk will be succeeded by pressure."

MUSIC AS A THERAPEUTIC.

Mental and Physical Ills May Be Relieved by Its Aid—One Example of Use.

Much assistance is in many instances to be derived from the intelligent use of music, either vocal or instrumental, as a therapeutic adjunct. Melancholia, insomnia, hysteria, family affliction, business reverses, delirium, pain, fatigue, mental or physical, will all be helped by the beneficial influence of music, rightly used. As a post-operative measure it would have an undoubted influence for good in taking the patient's mind from his bodily distress. So, also, could "painless" dentistry be relieved of some of its pain and distress by the quieting influence of music, which would, as has been amply demonstrated, produce a pleasanter mental influence during the administration of nitrous oxide or other anaesthetic. A German writer recently stated (February, 1904), that in a number of test cases in which music was provided during the administration of the anaesthetic there was an absence of distress and resistance on the part of the patient: also an absence or reduction of the post-operative nausea under the same circumstances. To be advantageous the nature of the composition must be carefully selected with a view to the needs of the individual case, and the execution must be as nearly faultless as possible.

UNNECESSARY DISTINCTION

Expressions "By and By" and "By the Bye" Are Cause of Arguments as to Origin.

The two expressions "by and by" and "by the bye" are really derived from the same original word, and the words "by" and "bye" have the same general sense. But the spelling "bye" has long been used in the second of these phrases, without any real reason for the change, declares St. Nicholas Magazine. We should not speak of a bye-law or a bye-path, and yet many are careful to write "by the bye" and "by and by." In "good-bye" there might be some reason for keeping the final "e," since it stands for the word "ye" in the shortened form of "God be with ye;" but where so much has been dropped the "e" is hardly worth keeping, especially as the old meaning is seldom recalled.

MUSIC A GOOD STIMULANT.

Experiments Prove That Melody Acts on Heart Thus Causing Rapid Breathing.

The experiments of Ginet and Courtier were conducted with a view to determining the effect of music upon breathing and upon the action of the heart, writes Gustav Kobbe, in Good Housekeeping. It was found that lively major chords, without relation to melody, quickened breathing. Melodies, grave or gay, caused rapid breathing, the respiration approximating its time to that of the music. Rallentando and diminuendo effects made the breath come more slowly. Single notes without tune accelerated the heart's action, but melodies quickened it still more, operatic pieces resulting in the quickest action. These experiments would seem to show conclusively the stimulative effect of music.

Would Seek North Pole.

According to British sources, the duke of Orleans has applied to the Norwegian government for permission to hire Dr. Nansen's ship, the Fram, for the purpose of an arctic expedition next year. A Norwegian newspaper states that the admiralty will propose as conditions of the arrangement that Otto Sverdrup shall captain the ship, that the plan for the expedition shall be sanctioned by the Norwegian authorities, and that the University of Christiania shall have the benefit at least in part of the scientific results of the expedition.

CHIC CONCEITS.

Winter Shirt Waists Elaborately Embroidered In Colors.

One of the prettiest fancies to be recorded in the blouse world is that of hand embroidery done on the material itself, after the manner of treating the linen blouses of last summer. The materials so treated are usually French flannel, nun's veiling or fine cloth, and the embroidery stitch is worked in some harmonizing or contrasting color.

A new waist of white nun's veiling has a wide center box plait and a group of small tucks on each side to give the required fullness. French knots and tiny sprays of flowers worked in pale blue decorate the front, cuffs, collar and shoulder straps. Tiny pale blue enameled buttons are sewed down the center front.

A blouse model that struck an original note by reason of its decorative treatment is of white cloth. The fullness at the top was disposed of in rather wide tucks dotted over with pale blue pin spots, the center box plait, shoulder bretelles, cuffs and collar trimmed with two inch lines of coarse machine stitching.

The illustration shows the sensation of the moment in the way of a dressy hat. It is made of violet faille, and the wide brim is faced with shirrings of violet tulle. A jeweled venetian cap lifts the hat at one side. Around the crown are several white feathers.

WHAT IS WORN.

Colors That Have Been Accepted For the Season.

White as a costume color has been gradually passing out of the sartorial world. Indications in the early fall pointed to pink as the favorite shade of the season, and the prophecy has been perfectly carried out.

Pale blue tints in exquisitely flowered silken stuffs are winning the post of honor, particularly when made up into pompadour evening frocks.

Fluffs and frills are everywhere piled upon gowns in profusion and are the central dominating idea of a costume repeated in an ever widening ripple of trimming.

At the hems the width of skirts is enormous, but materials are so cleverly managed by the expert dressmaker that there is nothing but a soft picturesque mass of fluffiness net at all complicated.

Irish crochet laces and all the French laces share honors with the sheerest of silk laces in delicate tones of pink, blue or yellow.

Evening wraps are charming. An exquisitely beautiful creation is of palest sky blue velvet. There are about a dozen rows of gatherings around the shoulders that give the fullness necessary to the grace of the cloak. Over the gathering is a double row of silver ball embroidery and above this a high medici collar of ermine. This royal fur and silver embroidery ornament the fronts of the wrap. The sleeves are original and comfortable—large affairs of white satin brocade outlined with silver introduced from wide openings under the arms.

The chic mantle illustrated is of oyster white cloth, with vest and cuffs of pastel green velvet. The buttons outlining the vest are of the "new art" variety carried out in emerald and gold.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

When the search proved fruitless, he had seen the bill pass the house by a safe majority, had followed it to the senate, and in a cunningly worded amendment tacked on in the upper house had found what he was seeking. Under the existing law foreign corporations were subject to state supervision, and were dealt with as presumably unfriendly aliens. But the senate amendment to House Bill Twenty-nine fairly swept the interstate corporations, as such, out of existence, by making it obligatory upon them to acquire the standing of local corporations. Charters were to be refiled with the secretary of state; resident directories and operating headquarters were to be established within the boundaries of the state; in short, the state proposed, by the terms of the new law, to deal only with creatures of its own creation.

Kent saw, or thought he saw, the fine hand of the junto in all this. It was a still hunt in which the longest way around was the shortest way home. Like all new-country codes, the organic law of the state favored local corporations, and it might be urged that a bill placing the foreign companies on a purely local footing was an unmixed blessing to the aliens. But on the other hand, an unprincipled executive might easily make the new law an engine of extortion. To go no further into the matter than the required refiling of charters: the state constitution gave the secretary of state quasi-judicial powers. It was within his province to pass upon the applications for chartered rights, and to deny them if the question pro bono publico were involved.

Kent put two and two together, saw the wide door of exactions which might be opened, and passed the word of warning among his associates; after which he had watched the course of the amended House Bill Twenty-nine with interest sharp-set, planning meanwhile with Hildreth, the editor of the Daily Argus, an expose which should make plain the immense possibilities for corruption opened up by the proposed law; a journalistic salvo of publicity to be fired as a last resort.

The measure as amended had passed the senate without debate, and had gone back to the house. Here, after the second reading, and in the very hour when the Argus editorial was getting itself cast in the linotypes, there was a hitch. The member from the Rio Blanco, favoring the measure in all its parts, and fearful only lest corporation gold might find a technical flaw in it, moved that it be referred to the committee on judiciary for a report on its constitutionality; and, accordingly, to the committee on judiciary it had gone.

Kent recalled the passing of the crisis, remembering how he had hastened to telephone the Argus editor to kill the expose at the last moment. The incident was now a month in the past, and the committee had not yet reported; would never report, Kent imagined. He knew the personnel of the committee on judiciary; knew that at least three members of it were down on the list, made up at the beginning of the session by his colleagues in the army of observation, as "approachables." Also, he knew by inference at least, that these three men had been approached, not without success, and that House Bill Twenty-nine, with its fee-gathering amendment was safely shelved.

"It's an ill-smelling muck-heap!" he frowned, recalling the incidents of the crisis at the suggestion let fall by the two outgoing lobbyists. "And so much of this dog-watch as isn't sickningly demoralizing is deadly dull, as Crenshawe puts it. If I had anywhere to go, I'd cut the galleries for to-night."

He was returning the newspaper to his pocket when it occurred to him that his object in buying it had been to note the stock quotations; a daily duty which, for Elinor's sake, he had never omitted. Whereupon he reopened it and ran his eye down the lists. There was a decided upward tendency in westerns. Overland Short Line had gained two points; and Western Pacific—

He held the paper under the nearest electric globe to make sure: Western Pacific, preferred, was quoted at 58½, which was one point and a half above the Brentwood purchase price.

One minute later an excited lifesaver was shut in the box of the public telephone, gritting his teeth at the inanity of the central operator who insisted on giving him "A-1224" instead of "A-1234," the Hotel Wellington.

"No, no! Can't you understand? I want twelve-thirty-four; one, two, three, four; the Hotel Wellington."

There was more skirling of bells, another nerve-trying wait, and at last the clerk of the hotel answered.

"What name did you say? Oh, it's you, is it, Mr. Kent? Ormsby? Mr. Brookes Ormsby? No, he isn't here; he went out about two minutes ago. What's that you say? Damn? Well, I'm sorry, too. No message that I can take? All right. Good-by."

This was the beginning. For the middle part Kent burst out of the telephone box and took the nearest short-cut through the capitol grounds for the street-car corner. At a quarter of nine he was cross-questioning the clerk face to face in the lobby of the Wellington. There was little more to be learned about Ormsby. The clubman had left his key and gone out. He was in evening dress, and had taken a cab at the hotel entrance.

Kent dashed across to his rooms and, in a feverish race against time, made himself fit to chase a man in evening dress. There was no car in sight when he came down, and he, too, took a cab with an explosive order to the driver: "124 Tejon avenue, and be quick about it!"

It was the housemaid that answered the ring at the door of the Brentwood apartment. She was a Swede, a recent importation; hence Kent learned nothing beyond the bare fact that the ladies had gone out. "With Mr. Ormsby?" he asked.

"Yaas; Aye tank it vill pee dat yentlemans."

The pursuer took the road again, rather unhopefully. There was a dozen places where Ormsby might have taken his charges. Among them there was the legislative reception at Portia Van Brock's. Kent flipped a figurative coin, and gave the order for Alameda Square. The reception was perhaps the least unlikely place of the dozen.

He was no more than fashionably late at the Van Brock house, and fortunately he was able to reckon himself among the chosen few for whom Miss Portia's door swung on hospitable hinges at all hours. Loring had known her in Washington, and he had stood sponsor for Kent in the first week of the exile's residence at the capital. Thereafter she had taken Kent up on his own account, and by now he was deep in her debt. For one thing, she had set the fashion in the matter of legislative receptions—her detractors, knowing nothing whatever about it, hinted that she had been an amateur social lobbyist in Washington, playing the game for the pure zest of it—and at these functions Kent had learned many things pertinent to his purpose as watch-dog for the railroad company and legal advisor to his chief—things not named openly on the floor of the house or the senate chamber.

There was a crush in the ample mansion in Alameda Square, as there always was at Miss Van Brock's "open evenings," and when Kent came down from the cloak-room he had to inch his way by littles through the crowded reception-parlors in the search for the Brentwood party. It was unsuccessful at first; but later, catching a glimpse of Elinor at the piano, and another of Penelope inducting an upcountry legislator into the mysteries of social small-talk, he breathed freer. His haphazard guess had hit the mark, and the finding of Ormsby was now only a question of moments.

It was Miss Van Brock, herself, who told him where to look for the clubman—though not at his first asking.

Loring had told him Miss Van Brock's story. She was southern born, the only child of a somewhat ill-considered match between a young California lawyer, wire-pulling in the national capital in the interest of the Central Pacific railroad, and a Virginia belle tasting the delights of her first winter in Washington.

Later, the young lawyer's state, or his employers, had sent him to congress; and Portia, left motherless in her middle childhood, had grown up in an atmosphere of statecraft, or what passes for such, in an era of frank commercialism. Inheriting her mother's rare beauty of face and form, and uniting with it the sympathetic gift in grasp of detail, political and other, she soon became her father's confidante and loyal partisan, taking the place, as a daughter might, of the ambitious young wife and mother, who had set her heart on seeing the Van Brock name on the roll of the United States senate.

Rensselaer Van Brock had died before the senatorial dream could be realized, but not before he had made a sufficient number of lucky investments to leave his daughter the arbitress of her own future. What that future should be, not even Loring could guess. Since her father's death Miss Van Brock had been a citizen of the world. With a widowed aunt for the shadowiest of chaperons, she had drifted with the tide of inclination, coming finally to rest in the western capital for no better reason, perhaps, than that some portion of her interest-bearing securities were emblazoned with the great seal of this particular western state.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

SAN JUAN REFOUGHT.

Fun With Roosevelt at the Gridiron Club Banquet.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Gridiron club celebrated its twentieth anniversary with a dinner at the New Willard, which was attended by 250 guests, including the president, members of his official family, representatives of the courts, the senate and house and the army and navy, as well as men of prominence in the literary, scientific and business worlds.

While the anniversary was recognized in making Major John M. Carson president of the club and in the production of a souvenir which told the story of a score of years of successful dining, the dinner, like all others of this famous organization of Washington correspondents, dealt with present events, which were treated with the usual levity and burlesque and satirized, while the prominent guests were roasted in the good natured and witty way that makes Gridiron dinners so enjoyable.

The presence of Mr. Roosevelt afforded an opportunity to make many pointed allusions to doings of the administration and views of the chief magistrate. The inauguration of Major Carson as president of the club, with a rough rider accompaniment and a reference to the charge of President Roosevelt's regiment at San Juan hill, was managed by a khaki clothed band, which played "There'll Be a Hot Time In the Old Town Tonight."

The pending impeachment proceedings in congress were satirized by having all the senators present "not under indictment" sit in a trial of Speaker Cannon, who was charged with eight counts, among which were that the speaker had refused to comply with the antismoke ordinance; that he insisted that the house was a co-ordinate branch of the government to the mental anguish of many senators; that he had with scorn refused the vice presidency, thus thrusting upon the country Charles W. Fairbanks, and that he had been guilty of pushing in too many chips on a bobtailed flush and was caught in the act. The speaker notwithstanding his plea, was adjudged guilty, and Senator Gorman pronounced sentence.

"Frenzied Finance" was the theme of a pretentious skit which burlesqued some late events in banking, brokerage and railroading and introduced "Colonel Bill Greene," "Tom Lawson" and "Mrs. Cassie Chadwick," who were portrayed by members of the club.

Bad Fire at Norfolk, Va.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 30.—The Crawford House, a four story building, occupied by Mrs. M. A. Ethridge as a boarding house, was gutted, as was the four story brick residence at Crawford and Queen streets. The residence of Major E. M. Wright, across the street, was burned to the ground, and then the fire spread to the rear of the Rosenbaum block on High street, burning the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, the Southern Shorthand and Business university, several law offices and lodge rooms of nearly all the fraternal orders of Portsmouth. The store of the New York Clothing company in the Rosenbaum block was also burned. The fire was confined to the block bounded by High, Queen, London and Middle streets. The millinery store and residence of Mrs. Annie L. Stokes has been destroyed, as has the rental and insurance offices of H. L. Dashiels, adjoining the Hotel Lafayette.

Cleveland and Garfield Spoke.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Former President Grover Cleveland was the principal speaker at the exercises in connection with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Philadelphia Young Men's Christian association. Three general meetings were held here. Mr. Cleveland addressed a large gathering at the Pennsylvania railroad department of the Y. M. C. A.; Harry A. Garfield, son of the martyred president, who occupies the chair of American politics at Princeton university, spoke at a large meeting in the northeastern section of the city, and prominent local clergymen were the speakers at the Garrick theater, where the central branch of the Y. M. C. A. observed the day.

Governor Violated Constitution.

HONOLULU, Jan. 30.—When the Japanese Prince Fushimi passed through Honolulu on his way to the United States he gave Governor Carter a massive silver punch bowl, which has been much admired. It now transpires that in accepting a gift from a "foreign prince" the governor violated article 1, section 9, of the constitution of the United States. Just what the governor is going to do remains to be seen, but it is expected that he will ask permission of congress to accept the gift.

Roosevelt at Restored Church.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—President Roosevelt delivered an address at the rededication of the Luther Place Memorial church here, which was seriously damaged by fire just one year ago last night, while a sociable given in honor of the seventy-eighth birthday anniversary of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. G. Butler, was in progress. The church has been entirely restored and was occupied last night for the first time since the fire.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 30.—The appointment of a joint British and Nicaraguan commission to settle the turtle fishery dispute in which the Cayman fishermen are concerned is announced. The ownership of Sucre Cay is the subject of the dispute and the primary object of the commission. The British representative, Captain Bodden, is here preparing to go to the cay.

DIAMOND DUST.

It has been decided by the baseball fans of Newton, Morris county, have a team in that place this season, but $1,500 is to be raised before anything is done.

Those interested in the formation of the proposed Union county baseball league will meet at the North Avenue Hotel, Westfield, Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

The Washington, Hackettstown, Belvidere and Phillipsburg High School boys are talking of organizing a baseball league. There is considerable rivalry between these places.

Many Plainfielders, especially among the baseball fans, will be interested to learn that Charles Walton otherwise known as "Kid", and who played good ball for the Plainfield A. C., last season, was recently married to Miss Edith Tompson, of Easton, Pa., also the home of the groom. He will play shortstop for the Ingersoll team, of Easton, this season.

MISSING MAN RETURNS.

Charles Ramsberger's Family Was Alarmed Over His Continued Absence.

Charles Ramsberger, of Essex street, a well known employe at the Potter Press Company's Works, was reported missing at police headquarters today by Mrs. Ramsberger. She informed Chief Kiely that he had left his home in working clothes Saturday morning and that nothing had been seen or heard from him since. He had a considerable sum of money with him and she feared that harm had befallen him. Ramsberger is a steady worker and his wife asserted that he would not remain away from home but for some good cause.

Early this afternoon, a member of Ramsberger's family again called at headquarters and said the missing man had returned. He had been at Rahway, it was said, but he gave no explanation of his absence.

To Open Ballot Boxes.

Justice Fort granted an order Saturday to County Attorney Wm. H. Codington, of this city, to open the ballot boxes for use at the primaries and the special election on Feb. 7. Under the general election law the boxes must be closed for a period of three months after the election preceding the special one. It is not quite three months from Nov. 8 to Feb. 7, and consequently an order of court is necessary.

R. D. Chandler's Funeral.

The body of Richard D. Chandler, who died at his home in Springfield, Mass., Thursday, was brought to this city today and placed in a vault at Hillside cemetery. Mr. Chandler was a former resident of Plainfield, having left here about fifteen years ago. Mrs. William L. Perrine, of Rockview terrace, is a sister. The body will be interred in Hillside cemtery the latter part of the week.

Mrs. Coddington's Funeral.

The funeral services of Mrs. W. B. Coddington were held yesterday morning from the Mt. Horeb church, Rev. Charles A. Walton, assisted by Rev. H. B. Opdyke, being in charge. The interment was at Mt. Horeb.

Miss Elsie Brokaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Brokaw, of Sycamore avenue, has gone to Baltimore to visit friends.

John H. Tier, Sr., of Bank place, who has been very ill for two weeks, shows little sign of improvement. His condition causes much anxiety, although his physical has hopes of a change for the better.

TIGERS ASK FOR A GAME

Princeton and Columbia Likely to Cross Bats With P.A.C.

ARRANGING SCHEDULE

Game Arranged With Chatham—Strong Contests to be Booked by Manager Woolston.

Already Manager Charles S. Woolston, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, is commencing to schedule games for the coming season, and judging by the applications for contest a strong list of attractions will be presented to the fans during the summer. Manager Woolston has also received a letter from the manager of the Princeton College team asking for a game here on Saturday, May 10, and it is likely that this contest will be arranged.

Saturday, May 20, is reserved for the Columbia 'Varsity team, which is being coached this year by "Billy" Lauder. The boys from Morningside Heights have one of the strongest teams this season in the history of the University and they will give the locals a hard fight. Tyler will be in the box for Columbia, and he is one of the best twirlers in his class. It will be remembered that he defeated Plainfield last year, pitching for the Murray Hills.

Saturday, April 29, has been reserved for the Chatham team, and this may be the opening match here. Those who followed the game last season know the strength of Chatham. This team defeated the locals to the tune of 7 to 0 and not once through the contest did the home boys have a show to win. Charley Speer, pitching for Chatham, had his opponents at his mercy. The manager for the Chatham team writes that he will bring along the "goods" this year and hopes to again whitewash Plainfield.

It is the purpose of the local management to schedule only the best teams, those that are recognized to be strong aggregations and no chances will be taken with teams of unknown strength.

Wreck Narrowly Averted.

A disastrous wreck was narrowly averted on the New Jersey Central near Raritan, Saturday. The Harrisburg flyer was running at a fast clip, when the tire slipped from one of the engine wheels and bounced under a Pullman, disarranging the brake rigging. The train was soon brought to a stop and the terrified passengers piled out. Word was sent to Dunellen and another engine was secured from there to pull the train to Jersey City. It is considered a miracle the train did not leave the track and cause a big wreck.

Fishermen's Missionary to Talk.

Under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, of the English Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, will tell of his work at a meeting to be held in the chapel of the church on Thursday night, February 16, at 8 o'clock.

I. O. of F.'s "Ladies' Night."

Under the auspices of Court Watchung, Independant Order of Foresters, there will be a "ladies' night" entertainment tomorrow night in the lodge rooms, Columbus Hall, 116 East Front street. The affair was postponed last week on account of the storm.

In the City Court.

The following cases were disposed of in the city court this morning: Irving McCullum, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, forty days straight; Lawrence Kerwin, adjudged guilty of assault and battery, sentence suspended; Robert Meeks, drunkenness, fined $5

FIRST PRINTING PRESS IN NEW JERSEY IN 1751

JAMES PARKER STARTED A SHOP IN WOODBRIDGE.

The first printing press in New Jersey was established in the town of Woodbridge in the year 1751 by one James Parker, a native, and for many years a resident of the town.

The printing office is believed to have been situated on what is now known as Perth Amboy avenue, from the fact that in cultivating the land in that locality—in years past—mineral types have frequently been ploughed up.

The legislative proceedings at that time and many public documents were printed on the Woodbridge Press, also the laws of New Jersey.

It was about the year 1758 when the New American Magazine was published in Woodbridge. It was the first periodical ever published in the State. It was issued monthly; the publication continued about two years, when the Press was removed to Burlington, to accommodate "Smith, the Historian," in the issue of his History of New Jersey.

The Press was afterward brought back to Woodbridge, and the printing office—press, etc., were burned to the ground by a band of Tories, during the Revolutionary War.

It may be of interest to note in this connection that through all the intervening years we do not hear of a Woodbridge publication until January 6, 1866, when the first issue of the Woodbridge Gazette appeared under the management of James H. Berry. The paper was ably edited and was in every respect a first-class local paper, but the publication was continued for only about two years. He was succeeded by Colonel Alfred Jones, who edited the Woodbridge Independent Hour for a brief period, when it passed into the hands of Peter K. Edgar, and was a successful local paper for several years.

In March, 1887, the Woodbridge Register made its first bow to the public, edited by J. R. Rollinson in Woodbridge, but printed in Rahway. Republican in politics, but liberal with all parties, it was greeted with a large patronage, which has continued to the present day.

J. R. Rollinson was succeeded by his brother, H. B. Rollinson, in the editorial chair, but owing to a pressure of other business Mr. Rollinson withdrew, and was succeeded by H. D. Uhler, the present editor, who has the honor of being the editor of the longest-lived local newspaper ever in circulation in Woodbridge.

Another paper, The Woodbridge News, is now in circulation, printed in New Brunswick, edited by William Lansley. This is the history in brief of Woodbridge journalism.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Emrick, of Cleveland, O., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Wikoff, of West Fourth street.

SNAP SHOTS.

John O. VanDyke, of East Fifth street, one of the best known travelling salesmen in the State, returned home Friday night from Morris County, where for several days he had a lively experienced in the snow storm. He was located chiefly in the vicinity of Dover. He left home Wednesday for Dover and Thursday night he with a number of other travellers was stalled in a passenger train of two cars. Three engines were unable to get the cars out of the huge snow drifts, although making a persistent effort for thirteen hours. A trolley car was lost at Dover and was not found for two days. The motorman and conductor were almost perished when reached by a relief party.

Considerable attention has been attracted to the drawings of Frederick Kuechenmeister, Jr., of 555 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth. The boy is the son of the former manager of Turn Hall, and is about fifteen years of age. He possesses a natural love for drawing and while he has never had the benefit of systematic instruction in the art, he has demonstrated an ability of no mean proportion, and a brilliant future is probably in store for him. He draws well from studies in still life and is especially strong in portrait drawing. He has many evidences of his skill in the form of pictures hanging about his home. Mr. and Mrs. Kuechenmeister hope to send him abroad next spring to have his natural talents cultivated.

Letters have been forwarded to the alumni and alumnae of both the State Normal and Model schools as the first step of both associations. As soon as the answers have been received efforts will be made in the compilation of a history of the graduates of these educational institutions. The letters will number 2,500. As the schools are very close to their fiftieth anniversary, the alumni association purposes to make it a memorable event. The celebration is to be participated in both the Model and Normal schools, and will be held during commencement week, beginning June 18, 1905. As a feature of the event it is proposed to show the great educational value that the schools are to the State by teaching and service. This will be done in the publishing of a volume containing the names of all who have received diplomas from the schools or who are within a year of receiving one, to be followed with a brief sketch.

General Passenger Agent O. M. Burt, of the New Jersey Central, has issued a new style ticket for local traffic between points on the road extending from New York to the western end of the line. They are somewhat smaller than the former sized used and a part of the contract on excursion tickets states that either half is void if detached, the idea being to have either used in the direction stated thereon. Hereafter tickets have been accepted in either direction. The excursion rate between this city and New York is $1, and has been for several years. A cheaper way of reaching the city is to buy an excursion ticket to Elizabeth, and at the latter place secure an excursion ticket to New York. The round trip fare to Elizabeth is fifty-five cents and from the latter place forty cents, thus a passenger could save five cents. This difference is due to the competition which the New Jersey has in Elizabeth with the Pennsylvannia, as well as the trolley cars.

AGAINST SALOON INVASION

Ministers Meet to Plan Fight Against License Applicants.

IN THE WEST END

Three Congregations to Present Petitions to the Common Council.

For the purpose of meeting any further invasion by the saloon in the West End, the pastors of Hope Memorial chapel and Monroe Avenue M. E. church and the rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, met Sunday afternoon and took preliminary steps towards effecting an organization of those who are opposed to the saloon, especially in that end of the city. Another meeting was held last night when Rev. George Mooney, Rev. L. R. Howard and Rev. Robert T. Walker, representing the religious organizations named, drafted a dozen or fifteen petitions which will be circulated quite generally through the West End for signatures. These will be presented to the Common Council at the proper time.

This movement to meet the saloon by organized effort had its inception at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, when Rev. John McMurray was the pastor. The congregation rallied to his support and together with other residents in that part of the city, attended the Common Council meetings and fought the saloon in a practical way. They were largely instrumental in defeating John Goff's purpose of securing a liquor license on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, and they nearly caused Michael Watson to lose his license, he having only one vote to spare when the roll was called. The force of the movement thus started by Mr. McMurray was fully realized by the opposing side, for they, too, set about to get signers to a petition favoring the granting of the license, but they were unsuccessful.

So successful were the temperance people that they planned to keep alive this interest until further effort along this line was needed. Rev. Mr. Mooney, like his predecessor, has taken the initiative this time and he sought the co-operation of Rev. Mr. Howard, of Hope chapel, and Rev. Mr. Walker of the Church of the Heavenly Rest. They gladly consented to join in the movement and now they will seek the support of all friends to oppose the granting of any new liquor license in the West End, while they will do all in their power to rid the Fourth ward of saloons, if possible.

It is generally understood that Mr. Goff will again make application for a license for his hotel and it is understood that he is receiving some support. While there are no doubt many who are against his having a license, there are also many who favor it. They contend that the Common Council has no right to compel a person to go an unreasonable distance to get a drink, that if he wants a licensed place near his home or place of work the Common Council should consider his pleasure.

The temperance people have successfully kept licensed places from that part of the city west of Grant avenue, where several factories are located and the manufacturers themselves have joined in the petitions asking that the saloons be kept away from their plants, believing that the men are better off without the influence of these drinking places. However, the results will be watched with more than ordinary interest, especially as it is not known definitely how the various members of the Common Council will vote on the license applications.

Narrowly Missed Accident.

In a letter to a friend in this city, Miss Ida Recap, who is now spending the winter at Daytona, says that she was at Ormond Beach the day that Frank Croker was fatally injured, and it was only a short time after Miss Recap left that Mr. Croker met with the accident, which resulted in his death. Miss Recap also says that thousands of dollars worth of oranges have been frozen by a recent cold snap. Fires were built in the orange groves, but the frost was to heavy to save the fruit in this way.

Board of Trade Active.

The local Board of Trade has arranged for a special programme in connection with its regular monthly meeting Thursday night. A talk on "Modern road making" is to be given by F. A. Dunham and vocal solos are to be contributed by City Judge William N. Runyon and Thomas M. Muir. Indications point to a good attendance and a large amount of business may be transacted.

PERKINS IS NOMINATED

Westfield's Mayor Republican Candidate for Assemblyman

TAME CONVENTION

Poorly Attended Session at Elizabeth—J. W. Murray, Jr., Chairman of Plainfield Delegation.

Mayor Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, was unanimously chosen by the Republicans as the nominee for the Assembly to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman George Embree, at the convention held at the Burkeley Hotel, Elizabeth, last night. His was the only name mentioned and he received the full vote of all the delegates. He was placed in nomination by Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, after he paid tribute to the late Assemblyman George Embree. Mr. Codding also said that the Republicans of the county regretted exceedingly the heavy expense it is being put to by the special election.

Edward S. Coyne, chairman of the Republican county committee, called the convention to order. E. B. Cissel, of Elizabeth, was chosen chairman, and N. Morreson, also of Elizabeth, was made secretary. When the nominations were called for, all the delegations gave way to Westfield, owing to the fact that the vacancy to be filled is in that town. It was then that Mr. Codding placed in nomination Randolph Perkins, and it was seconded by Plainfield.

The other business of the convention included the appointment of these committees:

Credentials—Messrs. Hall, of Cranford; Connelly, of Elizabeth; Reed, of Rahway; rules—Messrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, of Plainfield; Hope, of Roselle; Gott, of Elizabeth; resolutions—Messrs. McKinzey, of Elizabeth; Floyd, of Westfield; Kirkland, of Roselle. Hamilton F. Kean, Charles N. Codding and J. W. Murray Jr., were appointed a committee to fill vacancies. J. W. Murray, Jr., was chairman of the Plainfield delegates.

Less than half of the Plainfield delegates was present as follows: First ward—S. P. T. Wilbur, E. H. Bird; Second ward—J. Hervey Doane, William R. Townsend; Third ward—George J. Tobin, John Cose, J. W. Murray, Jr., Charles Foster; Fourth ward—Alexander Ayers, John H. Cook and Arthur Case.

Randolph Perkins, the nominee, is thirty-three years old. He was born in Dunellen and has been a resident of Westfield over six years. He is a member of the law firm of Crouse & Perkins, of Jersey City, having been admitted to the New Jersey bar nine years ago. Locally he is a member of Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum, Westfield Golf Club, Westfield Club, and is an enthusiastic baseball fan, autoist and is interested in other sports. He has just made application for membership in Westfield Lodge, F. and A. M.

TEACHERS ARE INELIGIBLE

Only 6 of 36 Qualified for the Teachers Office Tenure List.

LABOR UNIONISM?

Mr. Townsend's Argument Against Adoption of Proposed System—Mr. Wightman's Admission.

Holding its regular monthly meeting, last night, the borough Board of Education transacted no business of importance, but discussed at great length the teachers' permanency of office proposition introduced by Mr. Joy at the December meeting. It resulted in the matter again being laid over but brought out several interesting facts, one of which was that of the thirty-six teachers in the borough's schools only six would be eligible for the permanent list were it established. This statement was made by Superintendent Wightman and of course, means in efficiency, as that is really the requisite in tenure of office.

The resolution as offered was opposed throughout by Mr. Townsend, who declared that the establishment of a permanent list really narrowed down to the introduction of labor union methods in the schools, that is, the one rule would govern all teachers alike and the best would have to be placed with those not so good. In this and other arguments his objections were frequently sustained and the original resolution was greatly altered to meet the exigencies. The majority of the board seems to favor the plan and there is every likelihood of its passing at the next regular session. Mr. Joy was not present last night or the measure might have been brought to a head.

Superintendent Wightman reported that Miss Mary Edna Leonard, of Borton, who is really a Plainfield young woman having gone away from the city to teach, had been engaged as assistant instructor in the kindergarten department to succeed Miss Morris. Miss Leonard has had several years' experience in this class of work and it is thought that her methods will have good results. She was selected from a large number of applicants for the position.

The request of J. E. Skiff, the school music instructor, to have the board finance his plan to give a large musical production in a local hall, aid d by borough pupils, was reported upon in the negative by the committee appointed to consider it. The chairman stated that the arrangements for the musical were rather elaborate and that it would cost $301 for one night's performance and $356 for two nights, an expense they thought the board would not care to assume even though there were indications of a profit.

T. E. F. RANDOLPH BURIED AT HILLSIDE

REV. DRS. ZELIE AND KITTREDGE OFFICIATE AT THE FUNERAL SERVICES.

The funeral services of the late Thompson E. F. Randolph were held yesterday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock from the home, 520 Central avenue. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends, including many former business associates of Mr. Randolph, who came from New York. The services which consisted of Scripture reading and prayer, were in charge of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. Abbott E Kittredge, Mr. Randolph's former pastor in New York. The Lotus Glee Club, of New York, sang "O, Still, Still With Thee," and "Beauiah Land"

There were many floral tributes, the casket being completely covered and surrounded with flowers. The interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

Trolley Patrons Want a Change.

Persons who live along the line of the West Front street trolley, it is said, are anxious to have the through cars put back on that line instead of stopping at the Watchung avenue stand. The small cars now used are inadequate to carry the people and some of the cars it is argued should be in the shops for repairs.

Taxation Report Delayed.

Former Governor George T. Werts announced yesterday that the equal tax commission report would not be ready until the latter part of the week and perhaps not until the early part of next week. Yesterday afternoon the report was discussed in ex-Governor Werts' office by the members of the commission.

CO. K MAN GETS A MEDAL

Col. Collins Presents Decoration to Sergeant N. R. Hort.

BEST MARKSMANSHIP

Former Mayor P. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth, Makes a Speech to the Soldier Boys—Capt. Hall Present.

Honored doubly by the visit of Col. D. F. Collins, of the Second Regiment and by the fact that one of its members was awarded the gold medal for highest marksmanship, Company K was afforded a memorable time last night. Sergeant Hort was the winner of the medal for the highest score made by an enlisted man in qualifying for marksman, on the days assigned for rifle practice. His score was the highest made under the above conditions by any member of any company in the regiment. Last year this medal was won by Sergeant A. I. Littell.

Hort's scores were as follows: On the 200 yard range, 44; on the 300 yard range, 42; on the 500 yard range, 44; making a total of 130 out of a possible 150. The possible score on each range was 50. In presenting Sergeant Hort with his medal, Colonel Collins not only complimented the marksman personally but spoke commendably of the rifle practice of the company at large. Though tied with Company L, of Princeton, as the colonel said, the local company really stands at the head of the State, because they had a larger number of men at the range. Company L, of Princeton, won the trophy by the narrow margin of four-one hundredths per cent. above the local company.

Colonel Collins furthermore complimented the work of Company K in drill, speaking especially of its proficiency with the new regulations.

Contrary to precedent, an honor was conferred upon Company K last night, which has never before been afforded to any single company, when Captain Frank Phillips, of Newark, was sworn in as Inspector of Rifle Practice of the Second Regiment. The exercise took place before the company at attention, and was performed by Colonel Collins. Captain Phillips was formerly sergeant in the Essex Troop, and has for many years been a member of the State rifle team. After taking the oath of office as Inspector, Captain Phillips made an interesting and instructive speech on the subject of rifle practice, and seconded the congratulations extended by the colonel. Captain Phillips said that the company might feel justly proud of its record, and he hoped that it might for many years continue to lead the State.

Among the other speakers of the evening was former Mayor P. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth, who addressed the guard in a well worded and appropriate speech. Colonel Collins brought with him also, Captain Conroy Hall, of Company I, Elizabeth. All spoke highly of the Company's drill, which preceded the presentation. The medal which was won by Sergeant Hort, is of gold, handsomely embossed with the Colonel's insignia, a golden eagle suspended by two chains. It is said to be the handsomest medal ever presented for the highest marksmanship.

Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, will read a paper at a meeting of the convocation of New Brunswick, which comprises about one-half of the churches of the diocese of New Jersey, at St. Michael's church, Trenton, today. A sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. O. A. Glazebrook, of Elizabeth, this morning. In the afternoon essays will be read. In the evening the subject of a mission will be considered, one of the addresses being by Rev. Mr. Stevenson.

Sleighing Party.

About forty young people enjoyed a sleighride last night to Westfield. The start was made from the home of William O. Smith on Grandview avenue, and the company was well-provided with musical instruments with which to enliven the trip. A box sleigh and two cutters were used to accommodate the crowd. It was nearly midnight when the young folks reached home.

PLEA FOR HIGHER MORALS

Dr. Whiton's Lecture Before Monday Afternoon Club.

RELIGIOUS WORK

Editor of The Outlook Says Moral Questions Make Turning Points in History—Cites N.J. Race Tracks.

Taking for his subject "The Need of Moral Renaissance," Dr. James Whiton, one of the editors of The Outlook and a brother of John M. Whiton, of Central avenue, interested a large audience at the Monday Afternoon Club's meeting in the Casino yesterday.

The lecture was devoted to the need of a higher standard of religious morality or moral religion in the church. A wide distinction was made between conventional morality which led to self satisfaction and real morality which was full of aspiration and unselfish endeavor.

The moral ideal, according to Dr. Whiton, is a flying goal, without conformity to any present standard. He illustrated this statement by reference to a time when duelling lotteries, slavery and universal rum drinking were considered less immoral than at the present time. Dr. Whiton claimed that business methods were egoistic and not altruistic and that the social conscience needed to be awakened so that the aim should be the out-put instead of the in-take. Even charities, he said, were not based on the justice of prevention of crime and poverty.

At variance with the general thought, the lecturer said that man was born into a state of duty, not of rights: that moral crisis should be met with a moral revival and that moral questions made turning points in history like the American Revolution and the Civil War. On the ground that moral weakness imperils church and state, Dr. Whiton pleaded for the extension of righteousness.

At the close of the lecture in reply to a query whether individual effort could not improve the tone of morals without the church, Dr. Whiton replied that no reform could be made without religious stimulus and referred to the overthrow of race track, gambling in New Jersey as showing the growth of public opinion, starting with the individual and ending with the church. A similar agitation on the subject of child labor in New Jersey he said was desirable.

In reply to another query, how to cultivate the moral judgment, Dr. Whiton made answer by emptying one's self of prejudice and self-interest, having a desire to know the right and do the right—the pure mind finding its reward in the beatitude "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Preceding Dr. Whiton's talk a paper was read by Mrs. Isaac L. Miller on the subject: "Value to the Member of a Club Devoted Exclusively to Intellectual Culture." This paper was prepared for the State Federation of Clubs and read at the semi-annual meeting in the autumn.

ARM BROKEN TRYING TO DEMONSTRATE "JIU-JITSU"

STREET CAR CONDUCTOR WORSTS GEORGE FOSBRE IN THE ATTEMPT.

In an attempt to demonstrate "jiu-jitsu," or the Japanese art of self defense, George Fosbre, a young man who resides on West Sixth street, suffered a bad break in one of his arms, Sunday morning. Fosbre was standing on the rear platform of a Somerset street trolley car and in talking to the conductor about the new form of "hold" which the little brown men have induced the New York police to take up, they decided to try it. After a little twisting and turning, Fosbre was suddenly jerked from his feet by the knight of the bell-cord and when he landed again, the break was in his arm. It was just at the point where the Japanese generally place it when seeking to cripple an adversary.

Fosbre hurried to the office of Dr. Hughes where the injured member was placed in splints. The conductor who proved such an adept at the trick without previous instruction has started a class in "jiu-jitsu" and his fellow employes are learning it in preparation for the summer rush and the Sunday pilgrimage to Scotch Plains.

SECOND DAY OF TRIAL

Borough Assault Case Nearly Ready for Jury.

NOW SUMMING UP

Session Yesterday Afternoon and This Morning Required to Hear All the Witnesses.

The second day of the trial of James Tems, Whit Tunstall, Samuel Hunt and Thomas Henderson for assaulting Marshal Walter G. Smalley on Somerset street, Christmas eve, opened at Somerville this morning, with another large crowd in attendance, the spectators including Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield. Nearly the entire session this morning was devoted to testimony presented by the defense and that offered in rebuttal by the prosecution. Counsellor Swackhamer yesterday secured a nolle pros for Lee Wells and he was not included in the defense as the trial proceeded. The summing up began just before noon and it will be nearly 3 o'clock this afternoon before it is concluded and the matter comes to the jury.

Thomas Henderson was on the stand when court adjourned yesterday and he was again put on this morning. His story simply dealt with his own part of the affair which consisted of running away when he saw that trouble had been precipitated. After him came Tems, who seems to have been in the trouble all the way through. He admitted early in his testimony that he had been drinking and might have been intoxicated but he denied that he had thrown Smalley down or that he had jumped on him. He was rigidly cross examined but though he became nervous at points, he clung to his original story.

Tems was followed by Abram King, who was called simply to testify that Walter Smalley had remarked after the trouble occurred that, "Swackhamer had ought to be ashamed of himself for taking up the cause of the niggers and defending them." It was declared that Smalley had so expressed himself in the presence of several North Plainfielders but King's evidence failed to prove anything. Counsellor Swackhamer evidently was nettled by this alleged statement as he has referred to it on various occasions since the trial commenced.

With King's withdrawal, the defense rested and the prosecution recalled Chief Marshal Wells to rebut Tems' testimony, declaring that he had pulled Tems from Smalley as he was jumping upon him. Smalley was also called in rebuttal and the last witness to go on was Edward Smalley, to prove that Marshal Smalley was not alone when the colored men came along, as one of them said on the stand.

The court announced that each side would be allowed one hour in summing up and this was divided into twenty minutes each for the three defending lawyers and thirty minutes each to the prosecutor and assistant prosecutor. Counsellor Angleman started for the defense and his remarks were wholly for Thomas Henderson, who he represents alone. In pleading for him and calling attention to the fact that the testimony had shown that he was not anywhere near the scene of the struggle at the time it actually occurred, he threw the brunt of the blame for it on Tunstall, Tems and Hunt. As he concluded court adjourned until 1 o'clock, at which time Attorney DeMott pleaded and was followed by Swackhamer. As soon as the jury retired, the second indictment against the men, that of assault with intent to kill on Marshal J. William Klein, will be taken up for trial.

When court was resumed yesterday afternoon, Marshal Joseph Black was again placed on the stand and he related his story of the fight, which corroborated Walter Smalley's version given in the morning. The opposing counsel haggled at great length over allowing the admission of the part where he told of his being stabbed, in which the defense was sustained. Patrolman Peter Hamilton, of the city force, who stopped Thomas Henderson as he was running up Somerset street away from the scene of the trouble, was called by the prosecution and told of this occurrence.

Special Marshal J. William Klein, who was badly injured in the fight, was next placed on the stand, but his testimony was simply a repetition of what had been given by the officers who preceded him. Here again the lawyers argued over admitting the facts of his being cut and stabbed, on the grounds that it had no bearing in this one particular matter, and the de-

ROOSEVELT A GUEST

Quaker City Union Leaguers Banquet President.

CLUB FOUNDED TO UPHOLD LINCOLN

Great President Taught Lessons by Which We May Profit—Federal Government Should Control Large Corporations.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31. — President Roosevelt was the guest of honor and principal speaker last night at the forty-second anniversary banquet of the Union League. The president came to this city over the Pennsylvania railroad from Annapolis. An immense throng greeted Mr. Roosevelt.

The banquet room was a marvel of the decorator's art. The national colors predominated in the floral and electrical effects, and the tables were designated by letters in red, white and blue, forming the name "Rooseveit." President Roosevelt occupied a seat in the center of the guests' table, with President E. T. Stotesbury of the Union League on his right and United States Senator Penrose on his left. Seated at the same table were former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith, Congressman Bingham, Surgeon General Rixey, Brigadier General Frederick D. Grant, Lieutenant General S. B. M. Young, retired; Governor Lea of Delaware, Governor Stokes of New Jersey and Mayor Weaver of this city. Governor Pennypacker of Pennsylvania was indisposed and could not attend.

When President Roosevelt arose to make his address he was greeted with long continued applause. Then the entire assembly stood and sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

President Roosevelt in his address said in part:

"This club was founded to uphold the hands of Abraham Lincoln when he stood as the great leader in the struggle for union and liberty. We have a right, therefore, to appeal to this club for aid in every governmental or social effort made along the lines marked out by Lincoln. The great president taught many lessons which we who come after him should learn. Among the most important of these was the lesson that for weal or for woe we are indissolubly bound together, in whatever part of the country we live, whatever our social standing, whatever our wealth or our poverty, whatever form of mental or physical activity our life work may assume. Lincoln, who was more emphatically than any other president we have ever had the president of the plain people, was yet as far removed as Washington himself from the slightest taint of demagogy. With his usual farsighted clearness of vision he saw that in a republic such as ours permanent prosperity of any part of our people was conditioned upon the prosperity of all and that, on the other hand, any effort to raise the general level of happiness by striking at the well being of a portion of the people could not but be in the end disastrous to all.

"The principles which Lincoln applied to the solution of the problems of his day are those which we must apply if we expect successfully to solve the different problems of our own day—problems which are so largely industrial. Exactly as it is impossible to develop a high morality unless we have as a foundation those qualities which give at least a certain minimum of material prosperity, so it is impossible permanently to keep material prosperity unless there is back of it a basis of right living and right thinking. In the last analysis, of course, the dominant factor in obtaining this good conduct must be the individual character of the average citizen. Given this average of individual character, then wise laws and the honest administration of the laws can do much to supplement it. If either the business world or the world of labor loses its head, then it has lost something which cannot be made good by any governmental effort. Our faith in the future of the republic is firm because we believe that on the whole and in the long run our people think clearly and act rightly.

"Unquestionably, however, the great development of industrialism means that there must be an increase in the supervision exercised by the government over business enterprises.

"Neither this people nor any other free people will permanently tolerate the use of the vast power conferred by vast wealth, and especially by wealth in its corporate form, without lodging somewhere in the government the still higher power of seeing that this power, in addition to being used in the interest of the individual or individuals possessing it, is also used for and not against the interests of the people as a whole. Our peculiar form of government, a government in which the nation is supreme throughout the Union in certain respects, while each of nearly half a hundred states is supreme in its part of the Union in certain other respects, renders the task of dealing with these conditions especially difficult. No finally satisfactory result can be expected from merely state action. The action must come through the federal government.

"All great business concerns are engaged in interstate commerce, and it was beyond question the intention of the founders of our government that interstate commerce in all its branches and aspects should be under national and not state control. If the courts decide that this intention was not carried out and made effective in the constitution as it now stands, then in the end the constitution, if not construed differently, will have to be amended so that the original undoubted intention may be made effective.

"At the present moment the greatest need is for an increase in the power of the national government to keep the great highways of commerce open alike to all on reasonable and equitable terms. It is in the interest of the conscientious and public spirited railway man that there should be such governmental supervision of the railway traffic of the country as to require from his less scrupulous competitors and from unscrupulous big shippers such fell that heed to the public welfare which he himself would willingly give and which is of vital consequence to the small shipper. Every important railroad is engaged in interstate commerce. Therefore this control over the railroads must come through the national government.

"The details must rest with the lawmakers of the two houses of congress. But about the principle there can be no doubt. Hasty or vindictive action would merely work damage. But in temperate, resolute fashion there must be lodged in some tribunal the power over rates, and especially over rebates, whether secured by means of private cars, of private tracks, in the form of damages or commissions or in any other manner, which will protect alike the railroad and the shipper and put the big shipper and the little shipper on an equal footing.

"In some such body as the interstate commerce commission there must be lodged in effective shape the power to see that every shipper who uses the railroads and every man who owns or manages a railroad shall on the one hand be given justice and on the other hand be required to do justice. Justice—so far as it is humanly possible to give and to get justice—is the foundation of our government. We are not trying to strike down the rich man. On the contrary, we will not tolerate any attack upon his rights. But we are striving to see that the man of small means has exactly as good a chance, so far as we can obtain it for him, as the man of larger means; that there shall be equality of opportunity for the one as for the other. Ours is not a government which recognizes classes. It is based on the recognition of the individual. We are not for the poor man as such nor for the rich man as such. We are for every man, rich or poor, provided he acts justly and fairly by his fellows, and if he so acts the government must do all it can to see that inasmuch as he does no wrong so he shall suffer no wrong."

A SPECIAL MESSAGE.

President Wants Marriage and Divorce Statistics Collected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The president sent a message to congress today recommending legislation authorizing the director of the census to collect and publish statistics on marriage and divorce covering the period from 1886 to the present. Following is the text of the message:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives.—I call the attention of the congress to the fact that no statistics have been collected by the federal government upon the subject of marriage and divorce since the year 1886 and that but few of the states have provisions for the collection of such statistics.

"The institution of marriage is, of course, at the very foundation of our social organization, and all influences that affect that institution are of vital concern to the people of the whole country. There is a widespread conviction that the divorce laws are dangerously lax and indifferently administered in some of the states, resulting in a diminishing regard for the sanctity of the marriage relation."

Yaqui Outbreak Is Serious.

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 31.—W. W. Daly, a mining engineer and mine owner, just arrived from Minas Prietas, says that the Yaqui outbreak in Mexico is serious. There are probably 300 Yaquis out, divided into some fifteen bands. Depredations so far have been confined to the Cobache district. The Indians are well armed and, according to Daly, are killing Americans and Mexicans without discrimination. Twenty persons, four of whom are Americans, have been killed in the district within the last week. General Torres and Governor Ysabel, with Mexican troops, are pursuing the renegades. Torres is regarded as the best Indian fighter in the Mexican army.

Infernal Machine Crank Expedited.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 31.—Governor Pennypacker has honored the requisition of Governor Higgins for the extradition of Gessler Rosseau, who is wanted in New York for sending to the dock of the steamship Umbria a trunk containing an infernal machine with the intention of having it placed on the steamship. Rosseau is also alleged to have made an attempt to blow up the statue of Frederick the Great in Washington. He is under arrest in Philadelphia.

Wyman Convicted and Sentenced.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 31.—Erastus J. Wyman, a young man of this city who has been on trial in the superior court here for three weeks on the charges of criminal assault and attempted criminal assault, has been found guilty on both counts, and Judge George W. Wheeler fixed indeterminate state prison sentences, giving the prisoner from ten to fifteen years on the first and from four to six years on the second count. The defense was insanity.

Bomb For Russian Prince.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The police here have discovered a supposed bomb, with a tube attached containing a lighted fuse, in front of the house of Prince Troubetskoy, an attache of the Russian embassy here. The policemen extinguished the fuse and informed the authorities, who are investigating the affair.

HUNDRED MILE RACE

H. W. Fletcher Won Great Event on Ormond Beach.

WORLD'S RECORD AGAIN BROKEN.

During Last Half Accidents Happened to Nearly All Cars—MacDonald Quit at Sixty Miles—Wallace Hopped on Three Legs.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 31.—H. W. Fletcher in an eighty horsepower machine won the hundred mile race over the Ormond-Daytona Beach course in 78 minutes 24 seconds. The course had seven turns, and it is believed the time made will stand as a world's record for some time to come. The winner was not picked out by the crowd as likely to head three or four of the other starters.

There were a number of accidents to machines, trifling for the time being, but of sufficient importance to put them out of the running.

Ten cars lined up for the start, which was at the two mile post near Mosquito inlet. The course then lay fourteen miles up the beach, where the turns were made, then back and forth between the fourteen mile stretch for three and one-half laps, finishing the last six miles back to the clubhouse.

The cars were started one minute apart, leaving in the following order: Arthur E. MacDonald, driving his ninety horsepower; A. Le Blanc, driving B. M. Shanley, Jr.'s, ninety horsepower; M. G. Bernin, driving W. Gould Brokaw's sixty horsepower; Paul Sartori, driving Alfred G. Vanderbilt's ninety horsepower; William Wallace, driving his ninety horsepower; Charles De Plus, driving Joseph H. Keller's eighty horsepower; Samuel B. Stevens, driving his ninety horsepower; Walter Christie, driving his sixty horsepower; Charles Canault, driving R. E. Jarrige's forty-five horsepower, and H. W. Fletcher, driving A. F. Thomas' eighty horsepower.

In the first twenty miles the cars held their relative positions in fine form. The turn at the Ormond end was a good point of vantage, and hundreds of spectators assembled there to witness the approach and hair raising turns. MacDonald displayed great skill in turning, as did also Mr. Wallace and the two professionals Sartori and Bernin. When the machines reached the sixteen mile post on the second turn they had traveled forty-six miles. Mr. MacDonald's car was still leading the procession, but Mr. Wallace had gained one minute or more. Mr. Fletcher in his heavy machine had outstripped the lighter one, and Mr. Christie was looming up as a strong possibility.

After going about sixty miles MacDonald stopped some distance from the clubhouse. He was then in the lead, but was done for, as he had a punctured tire. It then looked as though Mr. Wallace would win, the only other man pushing him being Mr. Fletcher in his big car, yet there was plenty of remaining distance to be run.

During the latter half of the race accidents happened to most of the machines. Mr. MacDonald punctured a tire, as stated; Mr. Stevens seared a cylinder so badly that he had to drop out, Mr. Sartori opened a leak in his gasoline tank and had to stop long enough to plug it up, and there were other minor troubles. Meantime Mr. Wallace and Mr. Fletcher were plugging along smoothly and swiftly, with Bernin and Sartori close in the rear.

Mr. Wallace got into trouble with only sixteen miles to go. He burst an inner tube in his left front tire, yet he kept pluckily at it, made the turn at the sixteen mile post and finished sixth instead of first or second, with only three tires on. When Mr. Fletcher saw the Wallace machine hopping along on three legs he realized that Bernin and Sartori were his closest competitors. At the same time Mr. Christie and Le Blanc in Mr. Shanley's car were pegging along in good shape, all having had an uninterrupted run except Mr. Sartori, who had to stop to plug up a leak.

The finish came at last. Bernin and Sartori, with seven and eight miles' lead over Fletcher in the order of getting away at the start, finished the race first, but there was Fletcher pegging along in the rear with but a few miles on a clear straight track. Bernin and Sartori did not finish soon enough, and the Fletcher machine flew over the line winner of the race with nearly three minutes to spare.

Only three cars were entitled to start in the five mile great Ormond handicap. They were Paul Sartori, in Mr. Vanderbilt's car, with an allowance of thirty-four seconds; William Wallace, in his machine, with an allowance of nineteen seconds, and Edward R. Thomas, in his car, running from scratch. Mr. Thomas managed to overtake Mr. Wallace, but Paul Sartori, with his thirty-four seconds lead in five miles, won the race easily. His time was 3 minutes 57 seconds. Mr. Thomas was second and Mr. Wallace third.

High Price For Trotters.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—S. H. Knox of Buffalo yesterday paid $20,500 for two horses at the annual midwinter sale of light harness horses, which was begun at Madison Square Garden. Mr. Knox bought Prince Ideal, a green trotter, for $10,000, which was the surprise of the day. He also bought Lord Direct for $10,500.

Racing In Mud at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 31.—Joe Lesser, who won the fifth race by a narrow margin after a very rough journey, was the only winning favorite here. J. Martin, who had the mount on Lady Charlot in that race, allowed the mare to interfere not only with Joe Lesser, but with Sea Shark, and this interference cost the latter the place. The track was muddy, and neither Flight nor Inspector Girl, favorites in the first two events, could negotiate the going. Mosaic's win in the two-year-old race was very popular, the filly being home bred. Ralbert, thoroughly at home in the going, outbroke his field in the third race and made a runaway race of it. Old Stone was never a contender in the handicap.

Trapsetter Lost by Poor Riding.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31.—A fair track at Oakland upset some of the calculations of the wise ones. In the opening event a poor ride landed Trapsetter behind Hawaiian, and in the fourth Barrack won a runaway race. Misty's Pride, favorite in the sixth race, won in a driving finish.

Awakening's Win a Surprise.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 31.—Awakening, a new starter at Ascot park, furnished the surprise of the day by winning. Two favorites, two second choices, one heavily played third choice and an outsider were successful. Merces romped home in front.

Toscan and Black Art.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 31.—The track was heavy. Three favorites, all at short prices, won, and there was a strong play on Toscan and Black Art, second choices, who won the fourth and the fifth races respectively.

Dusty Miller Defeated.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 31.—Willie Spracklin of Windsor, Ont., got a decision last night over Dusty Miller of Chicago after ten rounds at the Detroit Athletic club.

KUROPATKIN REPULSED.

Oku's Troops Drove Russians Across the Hun With Heavy Loss.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that General Kuropatkin's attempt to break through the Japanese left wing and outflank Field Marshal Oyama's position on the Shakhe river seems to have failed entirely. Field Marshal Oyama, as at the battle of the Shakhe river, appears to have answered the Russian advance with a counter offensive movement, but no great disposition was shown to carry the war far into the territory held by the Russians.

A report from Oku's headquarters says that two divisions of Japanese troops attacked Pehowski and drove four divisions of the Russians across the Hun river. Six hundred Russians were captured.

The Russians are making a stand across the river.

One Russian division made several attacks on Santanpu to the east, but was driven back with a loss of over 4,000.

The Japanese bombarded the entire Russian line. The Russians replied feebly, showing little activity.

The casualties during the fighting at Chenchiehpao and Heikoutai are estimated at 5,000 on the side of the Japanese and 10,000 on the Russian side.

Russian activity on the Shakhe river seems to have ceased after these two fights, where the Japanese were victorious.

The object of the operations is not clearly understood, but it is suggested that the Russians either intended to turn the Japanese left and move a heavy force down west of the Liao river or were seeking to divert attention from some projected operation against the Japanese right.

Japan Denies Bad Faith.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The Japanese government has made verbal denial to the state department here and, it is understood, to other governments of the Russian charges of violation of Chinese neutrality during the present war. The Japanese denial is couched in strong language.

For Road Through Adirondacks.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 31.—State Engineer Van Alstyne has returned to Albany, having been one of a party of guests at "Kill Kare," the Adirondack camp of former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff. He said that a topic discussed by the party was a proposed vehicle and automobile road through the Adirondacks, which would form a loop, extending from Utica through the chain lake district to Saratoga. Mr. Van Alstyne said the total cost to the state of constructing twenty-five miles of new road and repairing twenty-five miles of poor road on this loop would be about $250,000.

Bill to Regulate Rates Reported.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce voted to report the Esch-Townsend bill regulating railroad rates. The Democratic members of the committee first moved to substitute the Davey bill. This motion was supported by the minority members except Representative Shackleford of Missouri. The motion to report the Esch-Townsend bill received the support of all the Republican members of the committee, but no Democratic votes.

Attempt to Bribe a Witness With $2.

BEDFORD, Ind., Jan. 31.—At the hearing of the case of Frank Evans and Elmer Browning, charged with killing Sarah Schaeffer, a Latin teacher, Rachel Kelley testified that Evans' brother offered her $2 and expenses if she would swear that Evans took supper with her the day after Sarah Schaeffer was killed. Other witnesses partly corroborated this testimony.

Woman Died After Judgment.

"BLUEBEARD'S" DIPLOMA.

Chicago Woman, Twenty-first Wife, Had Narrow Escape.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—The list of women whom "Bluebeard" Jacob Schmidt, or Hoch, is alleged to have married has been increased through identification of his picture by Mrs. Marie Goerk of Chicago as that of a man known to her as Jacob Schmidt, to whom she was married in December, 1901, and with whom she lived at her home here until the following March, when he fled.

"Hoch advertised in a German paper," said Mrs. Goerk, "for room and board. I wrote to Hoch, and he came here at once. A week later he asked me to marry him, and I did so. Then he took out an insurance policy, for which he did not pay, and demanded that I have my life insured too. I refused to do so, and he became angry. A few days later I became very sick. As soon as I fell ill he asked me to let him take care of me. I did not like the look of things, so I refused, declaring that if I did not get better soon I was going to a hospital. Then he kept away, and I got well."

Mrs. Goerk led the police to a shed in the rear of her home and pointed to a trunk which she said belonged to Hoch. An investigation revealed a number of articles used by stage magicians and several wigs and false beards; also a diploma certifying that Schmidt, having faithfully studied and completed instructions embodied in a complete mail course in modern hypnotism, was declared a perfect hypnotist and deemed thoroughly qualified to practice the art of hypnotism in all its varied phases.

RUSSIANS LOST THEIR NERVE.

Swedish Sailors Told of Shots From Baltic Fleet.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The international commission inquiring into the North sea incident here heard two Swedish witnesses, Captain Johnson and Mate Stromberg of the cargo boat Aldebaran.

They testified that a few hours preceding the firing on the British trawlers by the Russian squadron their boat was attacked in the North sea by a strange warship, which fired many shots at the Aldebaran, but did not do her serious damage.

Counsel for Russia protested that this testimony was not directly connected with the North sea incident, but Admiral Fournier (France), president of the commission, ruled that the testimony was admissible.

Hugh O'Beirne, British agent, said the strange vessel was the Russian transport Kamchatka, which mistook the Swedish craft for a torpedo boat.

Mr. O'Beirne further declared that the Kamchatka thereafter sent a wireless message to Vice Admiral Rojestvensky notifying him that she had been attacked by a torpedo boat, and Rojestvensky thereupon ordered his squadron to be on the lookout for torpedo boats, which, Mr. O'Beirne asserted, caused the North sea incident.

A STATE OF SIEGE

Warsaw, Lodz and Libau Under Military Rule.

RIOT CENTER NOW AT POLISH CAPITAL

Street Car Traffic Under Guard of Soldiers—Volleys Fired From Four Sides of Square When Fighting Was Renewed.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 31.—A dispatch from Warsaw says that by order of the governor general the governments of Warsaw, Lodz and Petrokoff have been placed under the operation of the law for the strict maintenance of public order.

The government buildings and large factories are guarded by troops. Part of the electric light plant has been destroyed by strikers.

Interest has been transferred entirely from St. Petersburg and Moscow to Warsaw, Lodz and Libau, where a state of siege has been proclaimed. Warsaw is the chief center of interest on account of the rioting there on Sunday and Sunday night, in which at least 100 persons were killed or wounded. The strike continues unabated and business is paralyzed, but there was better order during the day. In Warsaw, however, the crisis is by no means passed, and there is great apprehension here with regard to what the night may bring forth, especially since the lighting system has been tampered with by strikers. The Warsaw demonstrators evidently are in an ugly mood.

The public reprimand administered to Deputy Chief of Police Roudneff of Moscow on account of the posting of the anti-British telegram in that city has been delivered, and in government circles it is thought to be severe enough to satisfy British opinion. It is thought that this step, together with circulating the reprimand in provincial administrations, will prevent further attacks or insinuations against foreigners and will remove the incident from the realms of diplomacy.

Reports from Warsaw this morning say that the street railway service has been partly resumed, with soldiers riding before and behind most of the cars. Few cabs are running. Street fighting continues, and the mob is growing in dangerous fashion. There have been frequent collisions between the people and soldiers. Revolutionists attacked the troops with revolvers and knives. The principal disturbances have occurred in Noviswiat street, a leading business thoroughfare.

At 11 o'clock at night a regiment of infantry marched to that thoroughfare from Smolna street, when somebody fired on them, whereupon the troops were ordered to form a square and fire from four sides.

Any criticism of the troops must be qualified by the fact that they were fighting under trying conditions, being constantly exposed to snipers and occasionally stabbed by passers-by. Generally the troops are well behaved, but sometimes there are excesses by individual soldiers who have become intoxicated. One such soldier killed two children before his comrades were able to disarm him.

There have been many sad cases of wholly innocent people shot accidentally as they turned street corners. There are rumors that hundreds have been killed in fighting in the suburbs, but there has been a comparatively small death roll reported.

Fighting was renewed this morning, people firing from their houses on the troops in Noviswiat street.

All the alcohol monopoly shops have been plundered, and most of them have been burned.

Bomb Thrown at Paris Officials.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—A meeting was held last night in the Tivoli, Vauxhall, to protest against Russian autocracy. It was under the auspices of the revolutionary Socialist groups, and 6,000 persons were present. Deputies Jaures, Vaillant and De Pressense spoke. The police were present in strong force. During the exit of the audience into the Avenue de la Republique a bomb was thrown into the center of the group of republican guards, in which stood Prefect Lepine and other high officials. None of these was hurt, but two guards were wounded and many windows were broken. The bomb was loaded with big headed boot nails. Two men have been arrested, one of them a law student, on the belief that they were the authors of the crime.

Attempt to Dynamite a Well.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Jan. 31.—An attempt has been made to wreck one of the artesian wells of the Crookston Light and Water company with dynamite. The explosion cracked the sides of the well and badly damaged the pump house. It is alleged that certain persons who opposed a city contract recently made with the Crookston Light and Water company for water were parties to the attempt to destroy the well.

Beef Trust a Conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The supreme court of the United States has decided the case of the United States versus Swift & Co., known as the beef trust case, charging conspiracy among the packers to fix prices on fresh meats, etc. The opinion was handed down by Justice Holmes and affirmed the decision of the court below, which was against the packers.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 31, 1905.

It is not likely that former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer will consider a nomination from the Citizens' party with which he has been identified in North Plainfield. While he might be willing to run for the mayoralty office, he could not afford to place himself on record as a candidate in opposition to the party which twice nominated him for a seat in the Legislature. It is believed that Mr. Swackhamer will continue to ally himself with the Cits in borough fights but he is shrewd enough to know the consequences of becoming a leader in opposition to the Democratic party.

If Governor Folk, of Missouri, succeeds in bringing about the reforms which he has not only outlined in his first annual message but has started the Legislative machinery to frame he will need no monument of marble or bronze to perpetuate his memory. Missouri is rotten to the core and the energetic reformer in the executive chair proposes to continue the work he carried on while State's attorney in putting the rascals behind the bars Some of the measures which he is guiding through the Legislature are as follows: To eliminate the railway lobby, to extend the statute of limitation from three to five years in bribery cases, to compel witnesses to testify in bribery cases, vitiating franchises obtained by bribery, to compel the sale of all franchises at public auction, direct primary law applying to the entire State, self-government for all cities in the State and to place highways on the same basis as the public school system.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Edison gold moulded records for February now in stock 35 cents. Talking machine headquarters, Harry K. Lister, 161 North avenue, opposite depot.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by tomorrow night to secure payment at the next meeting of the Common Council, Monday night.

—Fancy fruits are a feature at Neuman Brothers', winter or summer. At present they are showing a nice lot of fancy Florida oranges and grape fruit, the very choicest quality.

—Among the improvements being made in Shirley & Johnston's carpet store in the Babcock building, is the laying of a fine maple wood floor. L. T. Titsworth is doing the work.

—J. V. E. Vanderhoef, crockery buyer for Woodhull & Martin, has been invited to attend the annual banquet of the New York Crockery Board of Trade to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria on Friday night.

New Lunch Rooms.

Jesse Hatfield and his son-in-law, T. A. Garthwaite, who have been conducting a lunch room on Watchung avenue, are today moving into their new building at 212 Watchung avenue, adjoining the old place. The new store is modern in every respect and will be well-equipped for the serving of hot lunch, as well as cigars, tobacco, confectionery, while a handsome soda water fountain will be installed in a few days. Mr. Garthwaite will have charge of this store, while Mr. Hatfield will conduct a similar place at Westfield Junction, a new building being erected there for that purpose. He expects to open up in about a week. Mr. Garthwaite and family will occupy the flat above the store and Mr. Hatfield will live with them. A dumb-waiter will connect the store with the rooms above for lunch orders.

Big Men to be at Williams.

Brockholst K. Miller of class of '06, of Williams' College, who is a son of Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue, in writing to the New York Evening Post, states that the Commencement in June next at that institution, will be attended by President Roosevelt, Ex Secretary of War, Elihu Root, James R Garfield, the latter being of the class of '85. It will be remembered that Plainfield is represented at Williams by five young men.

Miss Ethel Lorton, of Watchung avenue, is detained at home with a heavy cold.

ORANGE FIELD CLUB TO MAKE PLANS TONIGHT

MEETING TO ARRANGE FOR BASEBALL SEASON.

The members of the Orange Field Club are agitating the organization of a baseball team, and from the reports the prospects for a good representation on the diamond are bright. For the purpose of considering the proposed baseball organization and with a view to arranging for permanent club rooms, the members of the Orange Field Club will hold a meeting in the Hotel Kensington this evening.

Those wishing to join the club, and all members interested in baseball are invited to be in attendance at this meeting, which is the first which the club has held since the football season. The baseball team, though composed of many of the football players, will be under different management. The manager has not yet been appointed, but Clifford Smith, who was in charge of the football team, has stated that he will have nothing to do with the baseball management.

With regard to the composition of the team, nothing definite has been stated as yet. It will be necessary to await developments at the meeting tonight. It will be the aim of the club to put on the diamond a strong team capable of competing on equal ground with the other amateur organizations in the vicinity. The team will be entirely amateur, and none but members of the O. F. C. will be allowed to play.

Since the choice of the club fell upon the Babcock building as the place for a suite of rooms, this decision being made early last fall, no action in this matter has been taken, and President McVey hopes to bring the affair to a satisfactory conclusion tonight. The location in the Babcock building, though favorable to the members, was beyond the financial capabilities of the organization, and if possible, permanent rooms will be selected at the meeting tonight.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Levy Mark, a former resident of Dunellen, who has been away from the borough for some time, was here Sunday, and spoke in two of the local churches. In the afternoon he spoke at the Episcopal church, while in the evening he filled the pulpit at the Presbyterian church. He also spoke in Plainfield Sunday morning at the Church of the Holy Cross. His remarks were a plea for the Jew, emphasizing the necessity of salvation for the Israelites. He upheld the Jews in the fact that in the past they have worked for the uplifting of the Gentiles. The Christianized Jew spoke particularly of the fact that it is the duty of all Gentiles to display the same interest in the Jews, that they do toward any body of men needing the light of the new Testament. He urged upon his hearers that they present the claims of Israel's Messiah to His own brethren, and treat the Jews as well as the Gentiles.

The special meeting of the board of school commissioners of Piscataway township, which has been called for this afternoon, was appointed for the purpose of receiving various petitions from the citizens in New Market and Lincoln. The substance of these petitions is known to embody the request that appropriations for school in different parts of the district be allowed, and instead of the $20,000 school problem, the citizens will undoubtedly be summoned together again in a short time to vote on the question which these petitions propose. The petitions request this second meeting and vote of the citizens of the township, and in all probability the petitions will be favorably considered.

Several strawride parties have been made up since the recent heavy snow, and though at first the drifts were rather deep to permit lengthy rides, it is now possible to go as far as Scotch Plains, without fear encountering impassable obstacles. The youngsters in the borough have planned a ride for tonight, and expect to go as near Westfield as possible. The affair is in charge of George Apgar, and about twelve boys will go.

Mrs. Newton Apgar is confined to her home by serious illness. The first symptoms occurred on Sunday, and the doctors after an examination stated that pneumonia had set in. This morning it is feared that pleurisy was also one of the complications of troubles which are likely to keep Mrs. Apgar at home for a long time.

The regular monthly meeting of the Farther Light Society, of the Baptist church, will be held at the home of Mrs. Mahlan Dayton on Saurday afternoon. The usual routine business will be transacted, and a social time will be enjoyed at the conclusion of the business meeting.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, though able to occupy his pulpit Sunday, is ill, and will be confined to his home for a few days. Rev. Mr. Fletcher has been suffering from a cold for some time, which developed into the grip Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. W. E. Nelson will entertain the Ladies' Missionary Society, of the Baptist church, at its regular monthly business meeting on Friday afternoon. The usual transaction of business will occupy the afternoon.

There will be a meeting of the Township Committee of Piscataway tomorrow afternoon. It will be held in the Hotel Nelson.

Mrs. Esty, of Bayonne, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Betce, has returned to her home.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The 'Plains is fast recovering from Wednesday's storm. All the large drifts in roadways and sidewalks have been broken. Township Committeeman Theodore Bruchman, as soon as the storm abated, hired several large gangs to start right in with the work and by Saturday night all the streets through the town were again passable. On Sunday a gang was out breaking the mountain road near Seeley's Mills. The work is about finished, but it will be a long time before some of the high banks through town are melted and the blizzard of '05 is forgotten.

The attendance at the public school is again up to the usual standard, the scholars who were stormbound Thursday and Friday being able to get out again. Only one session was held on Friday, while Wednesday and Thursday the teachers were about the only ones who braved the elements.

The boys in town are enjoying skating on Green brook for the first time in a number of years, the brook being frozen so that it is possible to skate from town right into Plainfield.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen, who has been detained at home for several days with a serious eye trouble, is able to be around again.

Charles Frentz, of Pittsburg, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Frentz, of Westfield avenue.

The local bowlers and the Dunellen team are scheduled to roll a return game tonight on Lee's alleys.

John H. L. Todd, of the borough, has returned from a two weeks' business trip through the West.

Mrs. G. M. Shott and daughter, Miss Ruth, have returned from a visit with out-of-town friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Alberts, of Park avenue, have been entertaining relatives from Plainfield.

Joseph Gray has been entertaining his brother, Adam Gray, of Newark, over Sunday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Township Committee will hold an important meeting tomorrow at Hotel Nelson at New Market. Bills and claims for the fiscal year will be received and paid, and other routine business will be transacted. It has been announced that all bills for dog damages against the township should be legally presented at this meeting.

Eddie Horne has fully recovered from his recent attack of scarlet fever. The house has been fumigated by the proper authorities and Mr. Horne and son, who have been boarding out several weeks, are about to resume home life.

There has been no progress lately made in the new telephone line through here on account of the right of way in one or two places not having been agreed upon.

The weekly prayer meeting at the Baptist church tonight will take the subject of prayer for students in schools and universities.

The Grand Jury of the County Court will meet again on Tuesday, February 14, and will finish up the business for the term.

Daniel Randolph, who has been suffering from paralysis a long time, and recently had a turn for the worse, is better again.

The public sale of the farm of the late W. J. Elliott took place today on the premises at 2 o'clock.

William Faulks has gotten out again after several weeks' illness.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Horace Sandford, of Dunellen, underwent an operation last week for trouble in the nose and ear.

—Arrangements are being made to conduct a straw ride for the members of the Y. M. C. A. Boys' department on Friday night.

—While carving meat at William Smalley's butcher shop, Clark Mundy, an employe, yesterday morning, nearly cut off a little finger.

—Alfred R. Tranchand, of the borough, has resigned his position with the Grand Union Tea Company, to take effect on Thursday. He will take the position of circulation manager for the Engineering News, of which George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, is the editor.

Miss Ella Titsworth, of Madison avenue, has recovered from an attack of the grip.

Charles Warnock, of East Fourth street, has been removed to Muhlenberg Hospital to undergo treatment for pneumonia.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The College Widow" is still playing to crowded houses, and the Garden Theatre, New York city, has never in its history sheltered such large audiences as during the run of this fanciful Ade comedy which began last September. The whimsical humor, the quaint character drawings interpreted by an excellent company, and the shafts of satire directed at American life in general, and life at an inland college town in particular, make "The College Widow" one of the most pleasing offerings on the stage. Dorothy Tennant, Frederick Truesdell, Gertrude Quinlan, Amy Ricard, Lida McMillan, Edgar L. Davenport, Stephen Maley, Edwin Holt, Morgan Coman, Frederick Burton, George Bryant and Dan Collyer continue in the leading roles. The "town girls," who lend a fetching presence to the climax of the third act when a football game is shown, are an attractive feature.

WASHINGTON LETTER

HOUSE AND SENATE SOON TO ELECT PRESIDENT.

ATTRACTING MEN TO NAVY

Interested Spectator in Senate Gallery —Curiosity Lessens in Regard to Mormonism — Other Gossip from National Capitol.

WASHINGTON. — Theodore Roosevelt and Charles Warren Fairbanks will be elected president and vice of the United States on Wednesday, February 8. This may sound strange to those who thought these men were elected to these offices on November 8 last. They will not be officially elected, however, until the senate and house of representatives get together in joint session on February 8 and count the electoral votes and declare the election of the candidates receiving the highest number of votes. When congress ascertains from the official electoral ballots, filed with the president pro tem of the senate and with the secretary of state, who received the highest number of votes, they will enter the result on the record of the joint session and the election of president and vice president will have been completed.

The senate and house goes about this business as solemnly as though their count of the vote was to be the first announcement to the country of the names of the next president and vice president, although 70,000,000 or 80,000,000 people knew on the morning of November 9 last that Theodore Roosevelt and Charles W. Fairbanks would fill the offices of president and vice president for four years, beginning on the 4th of next March. The votes which will be counted on February 8 were cast on Monday, January 9, when the successful electors met in each state and cast their ballots in accordance with the instructions of the conventions which nominated them. These electoral votes have now reached Washington and the last impressive ceremony of electing the two highest officers in the government will take place February 8.

Men for the Navy.

SECRETARY of the Navy Morton is advocating a new method of attracting young men to enlist. There is a desire on his part to make the service attractive and the inducements offered to likely young men throughout the country are put in as alluring form as possible. There has been no falling off in the enlistments in the navy and it is desired that there shall not be. For this purpose it is intended that the most favorable knowledge of the navy shall be disseminated in those parts of the country remote from the sea coast, where the naval recruiting parties are at work.

Hitherto much dependence has been placed in bill posters and a considerable sum of money has been expended each year in thus advertising the advantages of service in the navy. These bill posters are familiar objects throughout the country and represent almost life size figures of sailors and marines in natty uniforms, while the text of the poster describes the character of the service, wages paid and some of the attractions of the life. It is now proposed to reach young men through the mediums of books and newspapers. A handsome illustrated pamphlet has been favorably considered, and Secretary Morton expects that it will appeal to the intelligence of husky young fellows who want to sail the ocean blue and get on Uncle Sam's pay rolls.

It is proposed to have this pamphlet contain a full account of the duties exacted of an enlisted man on board a ship of war, together with the rates of compensation and the chances of promotion. The covers of the book will bear half-tone designs; the front cover to include that of the officers and crew of a battleship and the back cover to have a picture of a modern man of war. It is proposed also to have pictoral advertising in the newspapers published in the localities where recruiting parties are periodically working.

The Two Dolliverr.

THERE can be seen almost daily in that section of the senate gallery set apart for the accommodation of the families of senators an old gentleman of strong, rugged features, but showing the signs of very advanced years. He is assisted by the doorkeeper, as he has to walk on crutches, having but one leg. The old man's gaze is frequently centered upon a stalwart, black-haired, black-mous tached young senator who sits near the center of the republican side. When this young senator arises to make an address the eyes of the old gentleman are never taken off of him, and the young man often turns and looks up at the front pew of the senatorial gallery to meet the gaze of the venerable occupant. The eloquent young senator is Johnathan P. Dolliver, of Iowa, and the old gentleman in the gallery is his proud, venerable and venerated father.

The elder Dolliver spends the winters with his son in Washington and seldom misses a day to look down upon the latter from the senate galleries. He is far advanced in years, having long since passed the four score years limit. His form, a few years ago as erect as that of his sturdy son, is becoming shriveled by age and he is bowed with the weight of years. He is a fine type of the sturdy frontier circuit rider of more than half a century ago. The Rev. Dolliver for nearly 60 years was one of the most eloquent divines in the Methodist church and rode over the mountains of West Virginia, in which state his son, Johnathan Prentiss Dolliver, was born. The boy comes honestly by his talent for oratory, as his distinguished father was noted for his eloquence and power as a preacher. There is no one in the big audience that frequently gathers in the senate chamber to listen to the junior senator from Iowa, for whose approval young Dolliver cares so much as he does for that of his aged father.

Women Attend the Smoot Hearings.

FOR some reason the hearings in the Smoot case before the senate committee on privileges and elections are not so largely attended now that the defense is having its innings, as they were when the prosecution was presenting its case. It has been suggested that there is not so much of the salacious in the testimony now being taken as there was when Mormon men and women were questioned regarding the mysteries of Mormonism and the domestic life of the polygamist. There were some pretty "racy" episodes in the early part of the session and the committee room was always crowded to its limit by a throng of the curious.

There are still many women who attend the hearings, but for the most part they are representatives of women's organizations who are doing their utmost to secure the expulsion of Senator Smoot as a rebuke to the Mormons and as a vindication of the purity of the home. When the testimony on the part of the prosecution was being taken, however, there were throngs of the fair sex that drifted to the committee room every day to hear what was said. It was noticed that after a day when the evidence had been unusually sensational and "tart" these crowds increased, presumably in expectation of hearing more of the same kind of testimony.

The examination of witnesses for the defense is now of a more quiet and humdrum character. The witnesses called are testifying for the most part to the good character and good points of the Mormons. This does not seem to interest a certain class of the morbidly curious. The committee, however, is just as keen to get the testimony of those who see the best side of the Mormons, as it was to elicit all possible information regarding the evils of that strange religion. The mass of testimony taken was such as to make it improbable that the committee can digest it all and prepare its report within the next month.

Career of Postmaster-General Wynne.

POSTMASTER General Wynne is understood to be slated for another good position when he retires from the cabinet on March 4 to be succeeded by National Chairman George Bruce Cortelyou. President Roosevelt is very fond of Mr. Wynne and wants to give him a place in the government service in which dignity and a munificent compensation are united. He has offered the postmaster general the position of consulate general at London. This place is now held by ex-Congressman and ex-Pension Commissioner Henry Clay Evans, of Tennessee. From the standpoint of compensation it is the most desirable berth in either the consular or diplomatic service. While the salary is but $5,000 a year, the consul general receives in addition the notarial fees of the office, which amount from $12,000 to $15,000 a year. This makes the pay of that official greater than the salary of the American ambassador to the court of St. James, which is but $17,500 a year.

Some two years ago Mr. Wynne was a newspaper correspondent in Washington, but one of the best and most widely known. He was selected by the late Postmaster General Payne as first assistant postmaster general, and upon Mr. Payne's death was promoted to be head of the department. The record of Mr. Wynne's life is an illustration of the possibilities before every energetic and intelligent American boy. From a messenger boy in a telegraph office to a seat in the cabinet of the president of the United States is almost as great an achievement as was that of the late James A. Garfield, who began life on the tow path driving mules and died president of the United States.

RICH HOLIDAY GOWNS.

Velvets and Velutinas Are Trimmed With Jet and Lace.

Just at the present moment womankind are too busy thinking about the holidays now upon us to care very much about the newest of anything except such gowns as are to be worn to the different dinners and receptions. They have all arranged their winter wear for the street, and the evening dress is more necessary just now. Naturally this means those women who are like the one of whom we once read —the one who sat on the cushion and sewed up a seam and ate nothing but strawberries, sugar and cream. So let us relegate the useful to the background while we talk a little of the purely ornamental.

In the first place, velvet is the preferred material this season for fine gowns for young and old women, but the younger ones, or, rather, the single ones, must be content with lighter stuffs, though not much less costly. For indoor wear the velvet must be of the regulation silk face, and the richer and heavier the piece the more admirable it is and the more desirable. For outdoor wear the velutinas are preferred in almost every case. The colorings and appearance are exactly the same, and the wearing qualities are excellent, at one-quarter the cost.

Nothing trims a velvet gown or indeed any other garment so well as jet in almost any manner, whether in cords, applique or laid on in set designs. On one superb gown shown in a leading store there were large arabesques made of fine cut jet sewed directly on the velvet. Another had a series of cords and tassels across the front of the skirt from top to bottom. The waist was made with a deep point that might have been worn in the days of Queen Elizabeth. Around the low cut neck there was a bertha of heavy vandyke lace. The whole was a picturesque and splendid gown. It was for a young matron to wear at a grand dinner and at the opera afterward. To wear with it was a long cloak with sleeves containing enough cloth to make a suit for a girl of six. They were big, clumsy, baggy things, but the material was a brocade so rich and fine in ivory and old rose, bordered with a line of fluffy white fur, that one thought of the old farmer who when he saw a modern parlor for the first time asked the owner if she thought she could have all that and heaven too. What with the velvet gown, the proper allowance of jewels and this magnificent long coat one wonders where the "simple life" comes in.

To return to our dinner dresses, every kind of thin, soft silk is considered just right, but crepe de chine and chiffon have the first place. Crape is best for some gowns and chiffon for others. Chiffon is as well liked today as when first presented to our admiring gaze. The illustration shows a beautiful dinner gown for one of the elite who knows how to dress well. The slip is of a rich, vivid blue, and the chiffon overdress is a delicate pink. This makes a combination most exquisite, for combined in this way the shades form elusive purple tints varying in depth according to the closeness of the gathers. The waist is a corselet of ivory lace over the blue undertint, and this is in turn run with red and gold threads, following the design of the lace. Around the shoulders is a graduated bertha of chiffon edged with gold and red castle braid. The sleeves and skirt are shirred, and at the foot a vandyked design of the lace is added as an inset. Around the edges of flounce and sleeves is a narrow shirring of the chiffon, which finishes it beautifully.

I discovered the cause of the peculiar flare of the skirt and will tell my kind readers who do not know how to achieve that effect that they may reproduce it. There is another skirt still beneath the blue silk slip, and this has a flounce six inches deep. Where it joins the skirt is set a row of crinoline with one row of featherbone piping woven into it. It is sewed fast to the skirt, not to the bottom of the flounce, and that is what makes it stand out so stylishly.

Daily the trend of the shapes in gowns and other garments comes nearer to those worn long ago, and some of them are strangely familiar. The skirts are full around the waist and flounced or otherwise trimmed straight around the bottom. The waists, too, are much easier to make. Princess shapes are again making their appearance, and the tight postillion waists are often seen with the tailor suits. THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Kent was thinking of Loring's recountal as he stood looking down on her. Other women were younger—and with features more conventionally beautiful; Kent could find a round dozen within easy eye-reach, to say nothing of the calm-eyed, queenly improvisatrice at the piano—his constant standard of all womanly charm and grace. Unconsciously he fell to comparing the two, his hostess and his love, and was brought back to things present by a sharp reminder from Portia.

"Stop looking at Miss Brentwood that way, Mr. David. She is not for you; and you are keeping me waiting."

He smiled down on her.

"Of what use can I be to Mr. David Kent this evening?"

"See how you misjudge me!" he protested. "My errand here to-night

"YOU MISJUDGE ME!" HE PROTESTED, "MY ERRAND IS PURELY CHARITABLE."

is purely charitable. Which brings me back to Ormsby; did you say you could tell me where to look for him?"

"He is in the smoking-room with five or six other tobacco misanthropes. What do you want of him?"

"I want to say two words in his ear; after which I shall vanish and make room for my betters."

Miss Van Brock was gazing steadfastly at the impassioned face lighted by the piano candles.

"Is it about Miss Brentwood?" she asked abruptly.

"In a way—yes," he confessed.

She rose and stood beside him—a bewitching figure of a woman who knew her part in the human comedy and played it well.

"Is it wise, David?" she asked softly. "I am not denying the possibilities: you might come between them if you should try—I'm rather afraid you could. But you mustn't, you know; it's too late. You've marred her, between you; or rather that convention, which makes a woman deaf, blind and dumb until a man has fairly committed himself, has marred her. For your sake she can never be quite all she ought to be to him: for his sake she could never be quite the same to you."

He drew apart from her, frowning.

"If I should say that I don't fully understand what you mean?" he rejoined.

"I should retort by saying something extremely uncomplimentary about your lack of perspicacity," she cut in maliciously.

"I beg pardon," he said, a little stiffly. "You are laboring under an entirely wrong impression. What I have to say to Mr. Brookes Ormsby does not remotely concern the matter you touch upon. It is an affair of the stock exchange."

Miss Van Brock let him go at that, but now the way to the smoking-den on the floor above was hedged up. He did battle with the polite requirements, as a man must; shaking hands or exchanging a word with one and another of the obstructors only as he had to. None the less, when he had finally wrought his way to the smoking-room Ormsby had eluded him again.

He went back to the parlors, wondering how he had missed the clubman. In the middle room of the suite he found Portia chatting with Marston, the lieutenant-governor; and a young woman in the smartest of reception gowns had succeeded to Elinor's place at the piano.

"You found him?" queried the hostess, excusing herself to the tall, saturnine man who had shared the honors at the head of the people's party ticket with Jasper G. Bucks.

"No," said Kent. "Have you seen him?"

"Why, yes; they all came to take leave just a few moments after you left me. I thought of telling Mr. Ormsby you were looking for him, but you shut me off so snippily——"

"Miss Van Brock! What have you done? I must go at once."

"Really? I am complimented. But if you must, you must, I suppose. I had something to tell you—something of importance; but I can't remember what it was now. I can never remember things in the hurry of leave-takings."

As we have intimated, Kent had hitherto found Miss Portia's confidences exceedingly helpful in a business way and he hesitated. "Tell me," he begged.

"No, I can't remember it: I doubt if I shall ever remember it unless you can remind me by telling me why you are so desperately anxious to find Mr. Ormsby."

"I wonder if you hold everybody up like this," he laughed. "But I don't mind telling you. Western Pacific preferred has gone up to 58½."

"And Mr. Ormsby has some to sell? I wish I had. Do you know what I'd do?" She drew closer and laid a hand on his arm. "I'd sell—by wire—to-night; at least, I'd make sure that my telegram would be the first thing my broker would lay his hands on in the morning."

"On general principles, I suppose: so should I, and for the same reason. But have I succeeded in reminding you of that thing you were going to tell me?"

"Not wholly; only partly. You said this matter of Mr. Ormsby's concerned Miss Brentwood—in a way—didn't you?"

"You will have your pound of flesh entire, won't you The stock is hers, and her mother's and sister's. I want Ormsby to persuade them to sell. They'll listen to him. That is all; all the all."

"Of course!" she said airily. "How simple of me not to have been able to add it up without your help. I saw the quotation in the evening paper; and I know, better, perhaps, than you do, the need for haste. Must you go now?" She had taken his arm and was edging him through the press in the parlors toward the entrance hall.

"You haven't paid me yet," he objected.

"No; I'm trying to remember. Oh, yes; I have it now. Wasn't some one telling me that you were interested in House Bill Twenty-nine?"

They had reached the dimly lighted front vestibule, and her hand was still on his arm.

"I was interested in it," he admitted, correcting the present to the past tense.

"But after it went to the house committee on judiciary you left it to more skillful, or perhaps we'd better say, to less scrupulous hands?"

"I believe you are a witch. Is there anything you don't know?"

She turned from him and spoke to the footman at the door.

"Thomas, fetch Mr. Kent's coat and hat from the dressing-room." And then to Kent, in the tone she might have used in telling him of the latest breeziness of the member from the Rio Blanco: "I remember now what it was that I wanted to tell you. While you have been trying to find Mr. Ormsby, the committee on judiciary has been reporting the long-lost House Bill Twenty-nine. If you hurry you may be in time to see it passed—it will doubtless go through without any tiresome debate. But you will hardly have time to obstruct it by arousing public sentiment through the newspapers."

He snatched coat and hat from the waiting Thomas and was running like a madman for the nearest cab-stand.

CHAPTER VII.

THE SENTIMENTALISTS.

Kent's time from Alameda Square to the capitol was the quickest a flogged cab-horse could make, but he might have spared the horse and saved the double fee. On the broad steps of the south portico he, uprushing three at a bound, met the advance guard of the gallery contingent, down-coming. The house had adjourned.

"One minute, Harawicke!" he gasped, falling upon the first member of the corporations' lobby he could identify in the throng. "What's been done?"

"They've taken a fall out of us," was the brusk reply. "House Bill Twenty-nine was reported by the committee on judiciary and rushed through after you left. Somebody engineered it to the paring of a finger-nail: bare quorum to act; members who might have filibustered weeded out, on one pretext or another, to a man; pages all excused, and nobody here with the privilege of the floor. It was as neat a piece of gag-work as I ever hope to see if I live to be a hundred."

Kent faced about and joined the townward dispersal with his informant.

They parted at the entrance to the Camelot club, and Kent went two squares farther on to the Wellington. Ormsby had not yet returned, and Kent went to the telephone and called up the Brentwood apartments. It was Penelope that answered.

"Well, I think you owe it," she began, as soon as he had given his name. "What did I do at Miss Van Brock's to make you cut me dead?"

"Why, nothing at all, I'm sure. I—I was looking for Mr. Ormsby, and—"

"Not when I saw you," she broke in flippantly. "You were handing Miss Portia an ice. Are you still looking for Mr. Ormsby?"

"I am—just that. Is he with you?"

"No; he left here about 20 minutes ago."

Kent hung up the receiver, and when he was asking a second time at the clerk's desk for the missing man, Ormsby came in to answer for himself. Whereupon the crisis was outlined to him in brief phrase, and he rose to the occasion, though not without a grimace.

"I'm not sure just how well you know Mrs. Hepzibah Brentwood," he demurred; "but it will be quite like her to balk. Don't you think you'd better go along? You are the company's attorney, and your opinion ought to carry some weight."

David Kent thought not; but a cautious diplomatist, having got the idea well back into the back part of his head, was not to be denied.

"Of course, you'll come. You are just the man I'll need to back me up. I sha'n't shirk; I'll take the mother into the library and break the ice, while you are squaring things with the young women. Penelope won't care the snap of her finger either way; but Elinor has some notions that you are fitter to cope with than I am. After, if you can give me a lift with Mrs. Hepzibah, I'll call you in. Come on; it's getting pretty late to go visiting."

Kent yielded reluctantly, and they took a car for the sake of speed. It was Penelope who opened the door for them at 124 Tejon avenue; and Ormsby made it easy for his coadjutor, as he had promised.

"I want to see your mother in the library for a few minutes," he began. "Will you arrange it, and take care of Mr. Kent until I come for him?"

Penelope "arranged" it, not without another added pang of curiosity, whereupon David Kent found himself the rather embarrassed third of a silent trio gathered about the embers of the sitting-room fire.

"Is it to be a Quaker meeting?" asked Penelope, sweetly, when the silence had grown awe-inspiring.

Kent laughed for pure joy at the breaking of the spell.

"One would think we had come to drag you all off to jail, Ormsby and I," he said; and then he went on to explain. "It's about your Western Pacific stock, you know. To-day's quotations put it a point and a half above your purchase price, and we've come to persuade you to unload, pronto, as the member from the Rio Blanco would say."

"Is that all?" said Penelope, stifling a yawn. "Then I'm not in it: I'm an infant." And she rose and went to the piano.

"You haven't told us all of it: what has happened?" queried Elinor, speaking for the first time since her greeting of Kent.

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Plainfield people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Plainfield reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

George S. McGinnis, of No. 218 Somerset street, foreman of R. H. McCullough's Sash and Door Manufacturing Company, says: "I never was sick a day in my life until a pain struck me across my back and a lameness over the kidneys. I did not pay much attention to it at first, thinking it would soon pass away, but instead of this it grew worse. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended by those who had used them for such troubles that I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I used them according to instructions and felt somewhat relieved. Continuing the treatment, by the time I had finished the third box the pain in my back and lameness disappeared."

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

PEAT AS NEW FUEL.

CHICAGO CONCERN READY TO MANUFACTURE IT.

Say They Will Sell It for What It Is Worth and Not What It Costs —Has Advantage Over Coal.

Chicago.—To the average mind the word "peat" suggests the crude huts of St. Patrick's land of bog, or Holland peasants trudging along green meadows in heavy wooden shoes. But Yankee ingenuity has dragged it from those ancient settings into the strong light of modern industrial utility, to act as guide to the common people, to lead them, in fact, from the coal barons' Egypt into a promised land, which shall be smokeless, sootless, sulphurless and cinderless. Yankee ingenuity has found a way to manufacture excellent coal out of Yankee peat, the new process being made practicable by certain patented machinery invented by a Chicago man, J. Campbell Morrison by name.

But whether the common people will be benefited financially thereby to any material extent is an open question, since the new process is owned by a corporation, and corporations are heartless things. The process is already a demonstrated success to the point that this new manufactured peat coal is being made every day in Chicago, and when put to use as a steam riser or for domestic fuel it answers all the requirements of the most perfect and economical sort of fuel. It has as great heat value as anthracite; it will burn as long, and it is a conspicuously good fuel in that it is actually smokeless.

Like all good things with a commercial value, however, the science of making coal out of waste prairie lands and marsh ground is not to be pushed as a philanthropy to give the people a rebate on their winter's coal bills, or to clean our city skies, although both may follow as incidental advantages. This new application of science to the creation of wealth was no sooner perfected than it was grabbed up by business men, who were quick to see wealth in it for themselves. These have formed a corporation, to become in the peat fuel industry just what Divine Right Baer and his fellow monopolists are in the anthracite trade. In short, the peat fuel business is to become a monopoly as big as any other in the fuel field, those who are behind the new business declare, with calm confidence, and instead of one set of barons providing an antidote for the other, the people may be oppressed by both.

The new method is an original one, and simple, as all great things are simple. The ground is dug by machinery, conveyed by bucket chain to the plant, where it is dried in centrifugal machines, that whirl at the rate of 750 revolutions a minute, and automatically feed wet peat and discharge dried peat at the rate of 500 pounds every three minutes. The dried stuff is then chopped and conducted through a rotary drier and fed into a very powerful press, where under great pressure and with heat applied to the mold, it is pressed from soft, dry powder into a hard, dense block, much like coal. The peat is pressed through an open tube, instead of against a fixed resistance mold, and the only base is the movable base of other briquettes being pushed out ahead, which offer resistance by friction against the side of the mold. Yet that resistance gives a pressure of 30 tons to the square inch, and makes a briquette much more dense than could be secured by pressure in a fixed die. The surface is then seared, or glazed, to make it weather-proof.

MONSTER PEAT PRESS.
A Twenty-Five Ton Machine Now Operating in Chicago.

And because this new plan has been worked out effectually and actually produces excellent smokeless coal, and will be able to furnish it in immense quantities at one dollar or less per ton, the people are to be asked to pay five dollars per ton for it, in order that trade may develop another giant monopoly and stockholders may waax fat on dividends.

But these peat makers seem to have the best of the argument, as the peat lands are all but worthless without their method, and the people need the fuel, and, as they say, "the people will have to come to us and pay whatever our fuel is worth in heat units—not respecting the cost to us of producing the fuel."

That they have the whip hand, and are aware of the fact, was made clear to a reporter who called upon the president of the corporation, Henry S. Bunting. The Illinois Peat Fuel company is the name under which the corporation operates.

Mr. Bunting made no attempt to conceal the fact that he was not philanthropically inclined. His career on this point, in fact, was interesting from a psychological viewpoint, as he explained that the stockholders of his company had made him president, not with the idea of guarding the interests of the dear public, but "to make dividends for them." He proposed to fill his position with an eye singly and solely to that end.

SECOND DAY OF TRIAL

fense was again upheld. Chief Marshal Weiss added his story of the assault on Smalley but when he said: "I saw the officers get stabbed," this part of the testimony was ordered stricken out.

Unimportant testimony was given by George Baldwin and Charles Krewson, citizens, who witnessed different parts of the struggle, and as they concluded, the prosecution rested. At this point, Prosecutor Griggs caused a stir by moving that the second count of the indictment, "with intent to kill," be stricken out and it was so ordered by Judge Schenck. Counsellor Swackhamer followed with a move that the court nolle pros the indictment as a whole against Lee Wells, on the ground that the evidence had not showed that he had anything to do with the assault on Smalley, and this was also granted.

The opening address for the defense was made by William G. DeMeza after which Thomas Henderson, one of the indicted men, was called. He stated that he had taken to his heels when Smalley caught hold of James Tems and that he heard cries of "murder" when he reached Front street but did not turn back. He encountered Patrolman Hamilton and in reply to a question put by the officer as to where his companions were informed him that they had gotten into a fight and that he had left them. Hamilton was recalled to the stand by the defense and bore out his part of Henderson's story.

Samuel Hunt, another of the indicted, said he had also ran away when Tems was grabbed and that he saw nothing. Whit Tunstall followed him on the stand, and he asserted that he too, had seen nothing of the fight, having taken to his heels when Tems and Smalley were jumping about. In cross examination, he was asked if he had a knife in his possession at the time and he replied in the affirmative, saying that it was his father's and that he had procured it from him that day by "swapping." He was the last to go on the stand for the day and court adjourned when he concluded.

It is understood that the consideration was about $20,000.

Justice Mosher Gives Advice.

Sally Powell and Sally Ford, both colored, appeared before Justice Mosher today, exhibiting bumps and bruises that each claimed the other was responsible for during a mix-up and with a demand that the aggressor be arrested. The justice found it impossible to figure out which one was to blame and sent both away after handing out some advice about living peaceably, at the same time adding a warning that if they returned both would go to jail.

BRUNSWICK TO JOIN UNION CO. BALL LEAGUE

MIDDLESEX COUNTY CLUB WANTS TO PLAY BALL IN UNION.

The New Brunswick Bicycle Club is desirous of joining the proposed Union county baseball league, and for that purpose James S. Manning, of that club, came here yesterday to secure some information about the new organization. He called at The Daily Press office and stated that there are a number of good ball players in the club and it is proposed to place a first-class team in the field this season. Among those who will probably play are Cox, who was shortstop for Alts, and James S. Manning, who has made an enviable record as a pitcher. The other positions will be filled with strong men.

Mr. Manning says that the club will be represented at the meeting of baseball managers to be held at the North Avenue Hotel, Westfield, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and an effort to join the association will be made. The New Brunswick athletes believe that their team will compare favorably with those from Westfield, Rahway, Plainfield and Cranford and they will make a strong bid for the championship if admitted to the association.

Under the auspices of the Christian church a lecture will be given at the Y. M. C. A. hall tonight by Dr. Geo. T. Smith, who was for ten years a missionary in Japan. He will tell many things about the Japanese which at this time are of especial interest. The admission will be free, but a silver offering will be taken during the evening.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church a social and reception will be held Thursday night. It will in a sense take the place of the social affair which has been presented in the shape of the annual turkey supper, which was omitted this year. An elocutionist and a musical programme will afford some of the entertaining features.

NEW JAIL AND COURT FAVORED FOR SOMERSET

PUBLIC MEETING HELD AT SOMERVILLE THIS MORNING.

William H. Riley, of North Plainfield, was among the interested residents of Somerset county who attended the hearing before the Board of Freeholders in the Grand Jury room of the court house at Somerville, this morning, to ascertain the public feeling in regard to the building of a new Court House. He urged the inadequacy of the present jail and the need of an up-to-date building.

Among the other speakers were A. A. Cortelyou, of Neshanic, and S. Hoagland, of Belle Mead. All were in favor of the new building, the only question raised being the probable cost.

The general opinion was that from $125,000 to $150,000 would erect a suitable structure which would include the public offices and the jail.

There were not over half a dozen speakers at the public meeting.

Others who seek the nomination include former Assemblyman Joseph Hague, of Elizabeth, and former Assemblyman Joseph Gunn, of Springfield. It is generally believed that Hague will be named.
